EL PASO, July 31.—Protest, which is practically an ultimatum, has been received by Gen. Francisco Villa from Washington in connection with action taken today by Villa against the foreign mining interests in the State of Chihuahua.

Advices to this effect were received here in private messages from Chihuahua.

The situation is more acute than is generally known throughout the United States, and unless Villa changes his stand drastic action on the part of the American government may be expected.

HONOLULU (T. H.) July 31.—The sugar plantation and mills of the Kona Development Company at Kona, Hawaii, were purchased today by a Japanese syndicate for $200,000. Although Japanese have financial interests in several Hawaiian plants, the Kona plantation is the first to pass completely to Japanese control. The property transferred comprises one of the oldest sugar plantations on the islands, although not one of the largest. Its annual production exceeds 3000 tons.

COMMENT ON THE SITUATION.

The wind-up of the Russian campaign seems to be pretty well indicated and generally accepted. All eyes are now turned in the direction of Constantinople and Calais. There are promises in the dispatches that the Germans will get reinforcements through to the Turks, and that also they will initiate an immense offensive against the British line to capture Calais.

Villa's latest levy on foreign mining men has suddenly complicated the Mexican situation, and a stern protest has been lodged by Washington.

One Great Avenue of Retreat Out of Warsaw Cut off by the Invaders.

Preliminaries of Offensive in Belgium and France Under Way.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, July 31, 10:10 p.m.—The fate of the Russian armies in the Polish salient still hangs in the balance. No official confirmation had been received up to a late hour tonight of the evacuation of Warsaw by the Russian troops. That they are withdrawing eastward is certain.

What portion will succeed in getting back to the new line is a matter of speculation. The arrival of Austrian artillery at Lublin, which is officially announced from Vienna, shows that the southern line of retreat is entirely barred to the retiring army, as Field Marshal Von Mackensen had previously crossed this railway.

There remain, however, the main double-track route through Minsk and an equally good road from Ivangorod through Lukow and the northern line, which runs south of the Bug River, to say nothing of the innumerable vehicular roads, which enter the Polish capital from the east. Therefore, so long as Field Marshal Von Hindenburg is prevented from crossing the Bug from the northeast, it is believed Grand Duke Nicholas has still an excellent chance of saving his whole army.

When the Russians do reach the new line of defense they will be faced by another danger—that arising in the advance of Gen. Von Buelow's army, composed largely of cavalry, which is now approaching the fortress of Kovno and which is within three days' march of the Vilna-Petrograd railway.

The retirement, although described by Petrograd as voluntary, is accompanied by very hard fighting, reminiscent of Gen. Kuropatkin's retreat from Liao-Yang, when he inflicted on the pursuing Japanese losses greater than his own.

While the main army, with the field artillery, is making its way to the rear, infantry and cavalry are protecting flanks and making repeated attacks.

In this way a few hours are gained, which are of inestimable value to the retreating forces.

It probably will be several days before the struggle is finally decided. Nobody questions the fact that with the capture of Warsaw, the Germans will score a victory, which will not only put the Russians on the defensive for many months, perhaps well into next year, but which will greatly hearten the civilian population of the central powers and release an army of one million or more men for an offensive in the west.

There continues to be sharp fighting at various points in the western zone, but this is initiated by one side or the other simply to secure the best starting point for the big offensive, which is certain to come.

OFFICIAL GERMAN REPORT.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

BERLIN, July 31 (via London, 10:20 p.m.)—The German War Office today issued the following:

"Eastern war theater: Northwest of Lomza and on the railway north of Goworowo east of Rozan our attack is progressing.

"Southeastern war theater: The troops under Gen. Von Woyrsch, who crossed to the right bank of the Vistula, advanced eastward under obstinate fighting. Counter attacks by the Russian reinforcements proved unsuccessful.

"On the line of Nowo Alexandria and the heights of the Vistula, north of Lublin, which yesterday was occupied, and to the south of Chelm, the enemy again attempted resistance against the pursuing troops under Gen. Von Mackensen. The enemy was everywhere attacked.

"Early yesterday morning in attacking Hooge, east of Ypres, we stormed houses on the west border of Hooge, which, after our storming of June 3, remained in the hands of the English and further captured a vantage point south of the road to Ypres. Enemy counter-attacks during the afternoon and last night were repulsed.

"The French again unsuccessfully attacked with hand grenades near Souchez.

"The severe fighting on the line Lingekopf-Barrenkopf in the Vosges is now coming to a standstill. A portion of our positions at Lingekopf is still in the hands of the French. Schratzmannele and Barrenkopf are again in our possession.

"The damage done by enemy airmen was unimportant. A French

The German line from north to south, as indicated on the map, makes a bow to the west of Warsaw. It is the pressure of the upper and lower curves of the bow which has been described in the news dispatches as the pressure of the German pincers on Warsaw. The Russians have been squeezed out of Warsaw, as it were. The dotted line projecting north from Lublin shows the course by which the Germans have cleverly cut off the progress of the Russians back home over one of the most important avenues of retreat.

Reconciliation.

FULL TEXT OF PEACE APPEALS MADE BY HIS HOLINESS THE POPE.

PARIS, July 31.—The text of the peace appeal just issued by Pope Benedict reads as follows:

"When we were called to succeed to the apostolic throne of Pope Pius X, whose upright and exemplary life was brought to an end by the fratricidal struggle which broke out in Europe, we, too, felt—after gazing fearfully upon the bloody battlefield—the despair of a father who witnesses his home torn asunder and ravaged by a furious tempest.

"We thought with inexpressible sorrow of our young sons cut down by death. We felt in our heart, enlarged by Christian charitableness, the great, unspeakable sadness of mothers and of wives made widows before their time and the tears of children deprived too soon of parental guidance.

"Participating in our soul in the fear and anguish of innumerable families, and well knowing the imperial duties imposed upon us by the mission of peace and love with which we have been confided during these sad days, we adopted a firm resolve to concentrate our whole activity and all our power to the reconciliations of the peoples at war. We made a solemn promise to our Divine Father, who wished with the price of His blood to make all men brothers.

"Words of peace and love were the first we addressed to the nations and their chiefs as the supreme guardian of their souls. Our affectionate and insistent councils as father and friend are not heard. This increased our sadness, but did not shake our resolution. We continue with confidence to appeal to the All Powerful who holds in His hand the minds and hearts of subjects as well as kings, imploring Him to end the great scourge.

"In our humble but ardent prayer we want to include all the faithful and to make it more effective, we have taken care that it be accompanied by works of Christian penitence.

"Today, on the sad anniversary of the terrible conflict, our heart gives forth the wish that the war will soon end. We raise again our voice to utter a fatherly cry for peace. May this cry, dominating the frightful noise of arms, reach the warring peoples and their chiefs and induce kindly and more serene intentions.

"In the name of the Lord God; in the name of the Father and Lord in heaven; in the name of the blessed blood of Jesus—the price of the redemption of humanity—we implore the belligerent nations before divine providence henceforth to end the horrible carnage which for a year has been dishonoring Europe.

"This is the blood of brothers that is being shed on land and sea. The most beautiful regions of Europe—this garden of the world—are sown with bodies and ruins. There, where recently fields and factories thrived, cannon now roar in a frightful manner in a frenzy of demolition, sparing neither cities nor villages and spreading the ravages of death.

"You who before God and men are charged with the grave responsibility of peace and war listen to our prayer, listen to the fatherly voice of the vicar of the eternal and supreme judge to whom you should give account of your public works as well as private actions.

"The abundant riches which the creating God has given to your lands permits you to continue the contest, but at what a price, is the answer of thousands of young whose lives are lost each day on the battlefield, and of the ruins of so many cities and villages, so many monuments due to the piety and genius of our forefathers. The bitter tears that flow in the sanctity of homes and at the foot of altars, do they not also repeat that the price of the continuation of the contest is great, too great?

"It cannot be said that the immense conflict cannot be ended without violence of arms. May this course for destruction be abandoned; nations do not perish. Humiliated and oppressed, they tremblingly carry the yoke imposed on them and prepare their revenge, transmitting from generation to generation a sorrowful heritage of hate and vengeance.

"Why not now weigh with serene conscience the rights of just aspirations of the peoples? Why not start with good will a direct or indirect exchange of views with the object of considering as far as possible these rights and aspirations and thus put to an end the terrible combat?

"Blessed be he who first extends the olive branch and tenders his hand to the enemy in offering him reasonable conditions of peace.

"The equilibrium of world progress and the security and tranquility of nations repose on mutual well being and respect of the right and dignity of others, more than on the number of armies and a formidable zone of fortresses.

"It is the cry of peace, which issues from our supreme soul this sad day and which invites the true friends of peace in the world to extend their hand to hasten the end of a war, which, for a year has transformed Europe into an enormous battlefield.

"May Jesus, in His pity, by the intermediary of the Mother of Sorrows, end the terrible tempest and cause to arise a radiant dawn and the quietude of peace formed in His author of divine image. May hymns of thanks to the Most High Author of all good things soon resound.

"Let us hope for the reconciliation of the states. May the peoples once again become brothers and return to their peaceful labor in arts, learning and industry. May once again the empire of justice be established. May the people decide henceforth to confine the solution of their defenses no longer to the sword, but to courts of justice and equity, where the questions may be studied with necessary calm and thought.

"This will be the most beautiful and glorious victory. In confidence that the tree of peace will soon allow the world to enjoy again its fruits, which are so much to be desired, we bestow our apostolic benediction upon all those who are part of the mystic flock, which is confided to our keeping, and also on those who do not yet belong to the Roman Catholic Church. We pray the Holy Father to unite Himself to us by bonds of perfect charity."

Tremendous Onslaught Against the Forty-mile Line Held by Kitchener's Troops in the West is Expected as Soon as the Kaiser has Moved Some of His Seasoned Men from the Eastern Front.

BY HARRY CARR.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

AMSTERDAM, July 31.—Europe will now watch a race between the Kaiser and Lord Kitchener for the weakest spot in the western line.

This is the belief expressed today by a military expert of high standing in commenting upon the fall of Warsaw and its probable effect upon military operations in Europe.

If Lord Kitchener has a large army in England ready to be shipped across, the quicker he ships it over to the western front and "digs them in" the better it will be for the allies.

This officer expressed the belief that the German forces would not attempt to progress farther in Poland, but would content themselves with the construction of strong fortifications extending through the small railroad centers facing the lines to which the forces of Grand Duke Nicholas have been withdrawn.

Nicholas has chosen his own new line, and no doubt has had plenty of time to prepare himself to hold it. The Teutonic allies can use a comparatively small force to hold the Russians where they now are and withdraw their seasoned troops for a new attempt to break through to Calais on the western front. With strong fortifications at Ostrow, Siedlice, Lukow, Vangord and Lublin, and along the Narew River on the north, they should be able to leave the Austro-Hungarian forces in command of a defensive campaign and release more than a million men for operations elsewhere. No doubt a large force will be employed in an attempt to clear the way through Servia for reinforcements of the Turkish forces defending the Dardanelles against the land operations of the allies.

Of course, if the withdrawal of the Russian troops really is due to a serious shortage of ammunition, time may yet be left for a new offensive by the Russians if enough supplies of ammunition are shipped in. But in all probability the time for a grand offensive in the Russian campaign will have passed in another two months, and it is doubtful if the Russians, even with new supplies of ammunition, will be willing to project another offensive.

Every indication points to a growing and very marked dissatisfaction in Russia with the inaction of the allies on the western front. Russia feels that she has been left by her allies to bear the brunt of the fight at a time when she was unprepared to meet so vigorous an offensive.

Without doubt the forty-mile British front will again be the scene of a tremendous drive by the Germans. Calais must be taken if the Germans hope to place themselves in position to make peace terms, and this front must be either pierced or eliminated before Calais can be taken.

Of course, there always is the possibility of throwing enough troops against another part of the line to break through and execute a flanking movement against the line of trench fortifications into which the allies have dug themselves in the west. This would demand a vigorous offensive along the entire line to keep it busy while the piercing of one point and the flanking movement were in progress.

Retrospect of the First Year of the Great Conflict of the European Nations.

Forward and Backward.

SECOND YEAR OF THE WAR TO BE DATED FROM TODAY

Review of the First Twelve Months of the Conflict of the Nations.

Preparations are Already Well Under Way to Carry on the Carnage into the Coming Winter—High Officials of All the Belligerent Powers Want the Issues Determined Once for All.

[COMPILED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

THE second year of the European war opens today. On August 1, 1914, Germany declared war against Russia and the last chance vanished of localizing the Austro-Servian war, declared three days previously by Austria-Hungary.

All the great powers of Europe were drawn into a struggle the like of which history has not heretofore recorded. Eleven nations are at war and almost all lands are affected, directly or indirectly. Millions of men have been killed, wounded or carried to captivity in hostile countries. Billions of dollars have been expended. Thousands of square miles of territory have been devastated and hundreds of cities and towns laid waste. Half the world is in mourning for the dead. And although the war has been in progress with unexampled fury for a year, the result may be summarized in one-half sentence: No decisive results have been achieved and the end is not in sight.

Determination to pursue the war to a decisive ending has been expressed by high officials of all the belligerent nations, preparations are being made for next winter's campaign, and, in fact, indications from Europe are that it is more likely to increase in size rather than decrease. It is still an open question whether Bulgaria, Rumania or Greece will be drawn in.

In view of the immensity of the struggle, previous standards count for little in considering the price the world is paying. The figures involved are so vast as to convey little meaning. The nations at war have poured out their treasures of men and gold without limit. The usual standards of life have been subordinated or disregarded, and in some cases social, industrial and political activities have been virtually reorganized on a militaristic basis, to make all contribute to the supreme necessities of war.

It is impossible to obtain accurate statistics of the number of men engaged, the casualties and the cost For obvious reasons the size of the various armies is kept secret. Most of the nations do not consider it expedient to reveal the number of casualties; in fact, Great Britain is the only one which has given out official totals. As to the money expended, there are available only partial statistics.

More than half the population of the world lives in the countries at war. The population of the warring countries is estimated roughly at 947,000,000, and of the countries at peace at 797,000,000. The population of the Entente nations is perhaps five times as great as that of their opponents The number of men under arms has been estimated variously, usually in the neighborhood of 20,000,000. William Michaelis, writing recently in a Berlin magazine, put the number of soldiers at war at 21,770,000; for the allies, 12,820,000, for Germany, Austria-Hungary and Turkey, 8,950,000.

No previous war has approached the present one in wholesale destruction of life. This is due not only to the number of men, involved, but to the terrible efficiency of modern weapons. Trench warfare on a great scale, with its deadly charges, mining operations and extensive use of artillery and hand grenades, has contributed to this end. Whereas in the past it has been calculated that the proportion of killed to total casualties runs one to eight or one to ten, the proportion in trench warfare, as indicated by official British statistics, is about 1 to 5.

The battles on the plains of Flanders, on the Warsaw front, in the Austro-German advance through Galicia and in the Carpathians were attended by frightful slaughter. Russian losses in the Carpathians alone were estimated unofficially at 500,000 Along the battlefields from Arras, in Northwestern France, to the Belgian coast whole fields have been covered with corpses, and at the time of the German attempt to reach the English Channel the Yser Canal was choked with dead. According to official British statistics, the British army alone has been losing of late, in killed, wounded and missing, 200 a day. On June 9 Premier Asquith announced that British casualties since the beginning of the war (excluding naval losses of 13,549 up to May 31) amounted to 258,069, of which the total of killed was 50,342.

The losses of Germany, France and Russia, by reason of their larger armies, have been far greater. The Heer und Politik of Berlin early in June estimated that more than 5,000,000 soldiers of the countries at war with Germany and her allies have been killed, wounded or captured. Hilaire Belloc, the English military writer, said Germany's potential manhood for actual fighting probably had diminished from all causes by nearly one-half in the first year of the war, and asserted a conservative estimate was that Germany had much nearer 4,000,000 than 3,000,000 men permanently out of the field. Estimates of the total casualties run from 6,000,000 to 8,000,000, which the former figure probably conservative.

The cost in money runs to a similarly huge total. Great Britain is now spending about $15,000,000 a day on the war, according to Premier Asquith. Albert Metin, general budget reporter of the French Chamber of Deputies, calculates the war is costing France $10,000 a minute, or $14,400,000 a day. William Michaelis recently estimated the daily cost to Germany at $8,250,000, saying forty days of this war cost as much as the whole Franco-Prussian War of 1870-1. In March Dr. Karl Helfferich, Secretary of the Imperial Treasury of Germany, said the war was costing all belligerents $275,000,000 a week.

On the basis of Dr. Helfferich's estimate, the first year of the war cost the stupendous sum of $11,500,000,000. Mr. Michaelis puts the figure at $15,000,000,000, not including Italy's expenditures; a sum more than 50 per cent. greater than the gold production of the world during the last 500 years. Other estimates run still higher, to $20,000,000,000 or more.

In addition to the money expended directly on the war, the loss in destruction of property on land and sea has run high into the millions. Great losses are being occasioned by the cessation or curtailment of many forms of productive industry. The energies of the world have been largely diverted to making war. Factories of all sorts have been turned over to the making of war munitions, men taken from mill and field, to be replaced by women, old men and children. Economists assert that for generations to come the world will feel the effect of the huge losses, in the burden of taxation and otherwise, and sociologists make conflicting predictions as to its moral, physical and psychological effect on generations living and to come.

Neutrals as well as belligerents have been affected. The financial stringency which followed the outbreak of war was world-wide. The United States, in common with other neutrals, has been confronted with the threatened abridgement of its rights, particularly at sea, and has sent notes of remonstrance to England and Germany, the complications with the latter country following the sinking of the Lusitania giving especial concern.

The war has been attended with many unexpected features, one of which is its protraction. It had been believed that such a struggle would be of comparatively short duration, on account of the cost and loss of life it would entail. At the outset it was commonly said that within less than a year the nations involved would be compelled to seek peace through financial exhaustion, if for no other reason. While each side has won its victories, no final results have been reached in any of the campaigns, with a few minor exceptions of the lesser operations in distant colonies. Over the greater part of the Franco-Belgian front the opposing millions are facing each other in the same positions as last September. Movements on the eastern front have been wider, but with no signs of an approaching decision.

The German plan is generally assumed to have been to deal first with France, in the early weeks of the war, before the Russian army, slower to mobilize, was able to present a serious menace; and then to turn on Russia. The fierce resistance of Belgium and the unexpectedly quick mobilization of both the French and Russian armies prevented the full fruition of this plan. Nevertheless Germany has been able to hold her own on both the eastern and western fronts.

In reality the struggle of the eleven nations is divided into a number of separate wars, related to each other in only a general way. The whole field of military operations may be summarized as follows:

In France and Belgium Germany is battling with Great Britain, France and Belgium. In August Germany invaded Belgium and France, pushing southward almost to the gates of Paris. Following the battle of the Marne, perhaps the most important contest of the war thus far, the Germans were compelled to retreat and have since held an intrenched line from the Belgian coast to Alsace, retaining possession of northeastern France and most of Belgium. In this theater the war has been so even that the capture of a group of houses or a few yards of trenches has been considered a victory worthy of mention in the official reports. The German attempt to break through to the English Channel; the British victory at Neuve Chapelle, the German triumph at Soissons, while calling forth supreme efforts, did not materially change the relative positions of the antagonists along the front of nearly 300 miles.

On the eastern front Russia faces Germany and Austria-Hungary. Russian armies invaded Galicia and Bukowina, capturing most of the former province, but lost the greater part of this territory as a result of Field Marshal Von Mackensen's great drive from Cracow. The Germans invaded Russian Poland, and their attempts to capture Warsaw led to some of the deadliest fighting of the war. In time the struggle here settled down to trench warfare, much as in the west, with Germany retaining a large part of Russian Poland. Russian invasions of East Prussia resulted in disastrous defeats. Further north, the Germans swept into the Baltic provinces of Russia, capturing Libau, on the sea. The unprecedented extension of battle lines which this war has witnessed reached its most remarkable exemplification in this campaign, in which the front has been drawn out more than 600 miles, from the Baltic to Bukowina.

Italy, after ten months of uncertainty, began war with Austria-Hungary, in May, and has occupied a fringe of Austrian territory in the mountainous region to the north. Trent and Trieste are the objectives of the Italian campaign. Owing to the difficult nature of the ground neither of the antagonists has made much headway.

On the Gallipoli peninsula, in the Dardanelles and in the Bosphorus Turkey, aided by her Teutonic allies, is at war with France, Great Britain and Russia, with possession of Constantinople as the great stake. Following the failure of the naval assault on the Dardanelles by an Anglo-French fleet, troops were landed on the peninsula. Few details of this campaign are available, and little is known beyond the fact that the fighting has been particularly severe, and that the allies have occupied and retained the tip of the peninsula.

Servia and Montenegro, the former assisted by British troops, are at war with Austria-Hungary. The Austrian invasion of Servia ended in failure. On the Montenegrin front there has been only desultory fighting. Both Servia and Montenegro have recently invaded Albania, with the object of obtaining ports on the sea.

On Asiatic soil Russia is at war with Turkey in the Black Sea region. Neither side has employed large numbers of troops in this campaign. There has been fighting in the Caucasus and Persia, with no great accomplishments. Further south, in Mesopotamia, there has been sporadic fighting between Turkish and British troops. Turkey sent an army to attack the Suez Canal, but the main body of troops failed to reach its objective.

In Africa French and British troops occupied Togoland and part of the Kamerun, German possessions. A British attack on German East Africa was defeated.

The insular possessions of Germany in the Pacific were captured by Great Britain and Japan.

Tsing-tao, the German fortress in China was captured by the Japanese, aided by a British contingent.

On the seas there have been no great battles. Great Britain's supremacy, owing to the overwhelming size of her fleet, has not been disputed to the ultimate issue, the main German fleet having remained in home waters. Two German cruisers which were in the Mediterranean when war began went to the Dardanelles, and were acquired by Turkey. A few German cruisers and converted merchantmen, including the famous Emden, and the Karlsruhe, Kronprinz Wilhelm, and Prinz Eitel Friedrich, raided shipping of the allies for a time, but were eventually sunk or forced to intern in neutral ports.

The Austro-Hungarian fleet has remained in the Adriatic and the Turkish fleet has been kept from the Aegean. Germany's merchant marine has been swept from the seas.

There have been several naval battles of importance however. In the first month of the war Rear-Admiral Beatty's squadron dashed into Helgoland Bight, near the great German naval station, and sank three German cruisers and two torpedo boat destroyers. In January occurred a battle in the North Sea between British warships and a German squadron which presumably was attempting a raid on the English coast. In this battle the German cruiser Bluecher was sunk.

The German Far East Squadron defeated Vice-Admiral Craddock's British squadron off the Chilean coast on November 1, sinking the Good Hope and Monmouth. The British obtained their revenge in December when, off the Falkland Islands, a powerful British squadron defeated the Germans, sinking the Scharnhorst, Gneisenau, Leipzig and Nuernberg.

German squadrons have twice attacked the English coast, causing some loss of life and damage to property. English towns including London have also been attacked by German aircraft, which have made several successful trips across the North Sea, raiding points on the east coast.

Methods of fighting have been altered radically in consequence of the lessons learned in the first year of the war. It has been pre-eminently a war of machines. The resources afforded by modern scientific development have been taxed to devise new instruments of death and destruction more potent than ever had been employed. It has been also a war of surprises. New problems have arisen, necessitating reconstruction of the theory of war. Plans and methods heretofore approved by authorities on military affairs were discarded, and the staffs of the various armies were compelled to grapple with situations for which there was no precedent.

The first great surprise of the war was the German 42-centimeter (16½-inch) gun, which hurls for some 15 miles a shell weighing almost a ton. The great fortifications which were the pride of Belgium, and believed to be almost impregnable, were battered into ruins by these guns in a comparatively short time. Two of these guns, stationed 10 miles from Antwerp, wrecked its elaborate defense works. Liege and Namur fell similarly.

The use of artillery and machine guns, in fact, has been one of the principal features of the war. Great execution was done by the new Krupp 11-inch howitzer, weighing nearly 40 tons, with a 6-mile radius. The Austrian 12-inch howitzer also has proved exceptionally efficient. The French 75-millimeter gun is regarded as one of the most effective field pieces.

On all the European battlefields artillery has been the main reliance of the various armies. Trenches bristle with machine guns, which military men say bid fair to relegate the rifle to a secondary place. It was with artillery that the Austro-German forces blasted their way across Galicia a few weeks ago, making what was said to be the greatest concentration of heavy and light field pieces ever seen. With artillery the British won at Neuve Chapelle, the Germans at Soissons. Every considerable movement of infantry is preceded by a heavy artillery bombardment, and frequently the infantry has little more to do than occupy the positions of the enemy made untenable by artillery fire.

The deadliness of machine guns necessitated recourse to trenches, for no troops in exposed positions could live within the range of the rapid firers. Consequently trench warfare has developed to an extent never before seen. Whole armies moved into underground quarters, with elaborate labyrinths of passages and subterranean living and sleeping quarters.

The result of machine warfare was the use of ammunition on a scale for which the world was unprepared. England recognized it as her greatest problem and made David Lloyd George Minister of Munitions, with power to mobilize the nation's workers for the production of war munitions on a colossal scale. France took similar measures. Italy, which had ten months to prepare for war, found it necessary after two months of fighting to appoint by royal decree a supreme committee to increase the production of munitions. The battle of Neuve Chapelle alone is said to have cost the British the expenditure of more powder than the entire Boer war.

One result of the development of this form of warfare is the eclipse of cavalry as one of the principal arms of the service. Cavalry is still used to a small extent on the eastern front, but its employment in France virtually has been abandoned. The cavalrymen have been dismounted and placed in the trenches.

Almost as conspicuous is the development of submarine warfare. The remarkable exploits of submarines have proved their efficiency so thoroughly that already the supremacy of battleships has been challenged. Germany, compelled to rely chiefly on these craft for her marine activities, has gained the greatest success with them. Their first large achievement was the torpedoing and sinking by one submarine within an hour of the British cruisers, Cressy, Aboukir and Hogue in the North Sea in September. Since that time hundreds of vessels, warships and merchantment, have been sent to the bottom in the North Sea, the Baltic, the English Channel, the Adriatic and at the Dardanelles. From all causes more than 500 vessels have been destroyed. England has been the greatest sufferer, by reason of her preponderance of shipping and also on account of the German government's attempt to blockade that country following the declaration of a war zone around the British Isles last February.

In size, speed and cruising radius the new type of submarines far exceeds the earlier small vessels, designed primarily for coast defense.

GERMAN POLICY OF NAVAL WAR.

First Weaken and then to Attack British Fleet.

Review of the Engagements at Sea for the Year.

Capt. Persius Draws a Lesson from the Chronicle.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

BERLIN, July 31.—Although the main German and British fleets have not been matched in battle, the ending of the first year of the war finds that Germany has distinguished herself at sea, says Capt. I. Persius in a naval review prepared for the Associated Press. Capt. Persius, formerly an officer of the German navy, is a recognized authority on German naval affairs and is naval expert of the Berliner Tageblatt. He states that Germany's policy has been to attempt to weaken her chief opponent at sea by using submarines and mines, to a point where there will be some prospect of success of an attack on the main British fleet. His review follows:

"The German fleet may boast that the offensive spirit it has displayed has constituted the most prominent and decisive feature of all the naval war theaters. War was declared against Russia on August 1, and on August 2 the cruiser Augsberg bombarded the Russian war port of Libau. The declaration of war against France was issued August 3, and on the following day the cruisers Goeben and Breslau shelled the troop embarkation points of Phillipeville and Bona, on the North African coast. Finally England declared war on August 4, and on the 8th the minelayer Koenigin Luise planted mines at the mouth of the Thames, one of which destroyed the cruiser Amphion.

"We thus see that from the very beginning German warships displayed a spirit of daring offensiveness. Not only in European waters but in distant seas we heard of victorious combats wherein our cruisers were engaged. In a majority of cases the foreign cruisers, like the home units, fought against much superior forces.

"In Germany the gigantic task of our sea forces is in no wise underestimated. We know that the British fleet alone, so far as material strength is concerned, is considerably more than twice our superior, but we are certain that the same heroic spirit of determination to win exists in the fleet as in the army, and that we can depend upon the efficiency of our material which, even though inferior in quantity, can brave comparison with that of any other power for excellence in construction of artillery and machinery.

"We do not forget that the British fleet, first in the world and of glorious history, is an opponent worthy of all respect. Nevertheless, the close of the first year of the war, it may be said without exaggeration that its achievements do not measure up to our expectations. It has lacked, it seems, the iron determination and ability to conquer.

"The British Admiralty has held strictly to 'the strategy of caution.' The German submarine danger is, we realize, partly responsible, but it cannot be questioned that, as a consequence of undeniably evident lack of initiative, the prestige of the British sea power no longer stands so unshaken throughout the world as formerly. British forces have been victorious only in engagements where they were overwhelmingly superior, as at the Falkland Islands; and even this is not claimed by the British press to be an unconditional success, because the battle was too costly in time and sacrifice.

"Our naval authorities followed generally the principle of keeping battleships in harbor while attempting to weaken the enemy through minor warfare, particularly with submarines and mines, to a point where an attack on the main fleet will offer some prospect of success. How correct this strategy was is proved by the past twelve months. Thanks to the effectiveness of our submarines, which excited the justified admiration of the whole world, it has been possible sorely to wound the British fleet.

"In addition, our submarine arm has busied itself since the beginning of the year in an entirely unexpected way, as a destroyer of commerce. Views may differ as to the final outcome in this field, but it is undeniable that a nation like Germany, whose commerce has been driven from the seas, but which can subsist without imports, has an extraordinary advantage over a country dependent almost entirely, like Britain, upon importations of food and raw materials across the water. The submarine danger unquestionably weighs like a nightmare upon the inhabitants of the sea-washed land. The fortune results of the wide extension, as we hope, of the fruitful activity of our submarines cannot be predicted, but the expectation is generally cherished in Germany that the submarine campaign will help to accelerate the demand for peace in England.

"Every type of warship has fallen victim to German submarines—the battleships Formidable, Triumph and Majestic, the armored cruisers Hogue, Cressy and Abukir, the Russian armored cruiser Pallada, the cruisers Hawke and Pathfinder and the British destroyer Recruit, for example—and neither the express steamer nor the slow-fishing boat is safe from our deadly torpedoes.

"In addition, the aerial arm of the service has won many laurels. Zeppelins crossed the North Sea safely, even to London and back, and German aeroplanes participated in the destruction of the enemies' war and merchant ships. The question whether airships and aeroplanes could be used offensively at sea must, in the light of the achievements of our aircraft, be answered affirmatively.

"German aircraft have even fought successfully against the dreaded submarines. A Russian submarine was destroyed in the Baltic by bombs from an aeroplane, and at least one British submarine met the same fate in the North Sea.

"The general fear of submarines is responsible for the remarkable spectacle of the heavily armed and strongly-armed battleships rarely venturing to leave sheltering harbors—ships which before the war were counted as decisive factors in sea power, but which find themselves condemned to inactive roles. Clashes of heavy battleships, like those in distant waters, have borne out the old rule that superiority in numbers, artillery and speed make up the decisive factor for victory.

"The British were defeated off Coronel, Chile, because the Monmouth and Good Hope depended for the most part on 6-inch guns, while the German cruisers Gneisenau and Scharnhorst carried many 8.3-inch guns. The victory at the Falkland Islands was easy for the British cruisers Invincible and Inflexible and their consorts because they mounted twelve-inch guns and also were much faster than the German ships.

"In warship duels also weight and armament were decisive. The Sydney, armed with 6-inch guns, was thus able to destroy the Emden, with only 4.2-inch cannon.

"The lessons which may be drawn from past events may be summed up briefly as follows:

"Superiority of technical material plays, as in earlier naval battles, an important role, perhaps to a greater extent now than before. Given crews practically equal in skill, the side which is inferior in artillery and speed is at so heavy a disadvantage that victory is possible only under exceptionally favorable circumstances.

"The submarine has proved itself a thoroughly dangerous weapon to which unsuspected possibilities must be conceded. All methods of defense hitherto employed have failed to fulfill their purpose in requisite manner.

"Dirigibles and aeroplanes have not only demonstrated their value in scouting but also have been engaged effectively upon the offensive.

"The lessons learned even thus far will have a marked influence upon the construction of fleets, and I can understand that in the United States efforts are being made to take advantage of them."

Petrograd.

SAYS RUSSIA'S POWERS ARE STILL UNDIMINISHED.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PETROGRAD, July 15.—From a person who, although not connected officially with the War Department, is in close touch with the government officials and is well acquainted with the military situation and the Russian state of feeling, the Associated Press has obtained the following review of the first year of the war:

"The end of the first year of the war finds Russia's potential fighting ability undiminished. Her armies are intact, her resources virtually untouched; and the determination of her people, the morale of her troops, have only been deepened with the growing realization of the enemy's strength.

"This determination is expressed most forcibly in the mobilization of vast industrial resources for the production of war munitions. These efforts are rapidly lessening the disparity of the combatants in guns and ammunition. Russia does not look for speedy termination of the struggle, but feels confident of her power to exhaust the enemy.

"The campaign on the eastern front must be viewed in relation to the enormous extent of territory over which battles have been waged, from the Baltic to Bukowina. The far-flung advance and retreats here have had no more significance relatively than gains and losses of a thousand yards on the western front. To interpret Russia's temporary loss of territory as German success is to ignore Russia's role to engage as great a part of the enemy's forces as possible, to relieve pressure on her allies. Russia's refusal to accept battle in disadvantageous conditions, even though she must temporarily abandon territory, has kept her armies and defensive lines unbroken.

"It is the assertion of Russian authorities that every German advance has cost Germany more men, both relatively and actually, than it cost Russia. They regard Germany as now committed definitely to a campaign which is carrying the German armies farther and farther from their bases; and to abandon this campaign would be a disastrous defeat for her. Moreover, it is maintained that not even the territorial ambitions of Germany have been realized, since the German objectives on this front have not been fully attained.

"The advance of the Austrians into Southern Russia in the early stage of the war met with full defeat. It was followed by Austria's loss of Galitcia. Gen. Ivanoff, at the head of the Southern Russian armies, carried on one of the most brilliant offensive campaigns of the war. The present stage may possibly be regarded as an uncompleted repetition of this earlier movement.

"Furthermore, the repeated German drives at Warsaw from the west have cost the enemy tremendous losses. It was only after six weeks of the most intense fighting in the Bzura region due west of Warsaw last winter that the Germans recognized the futility of attempting to break the Russian front by direct frontal movements.

"On the other hand, by exacting a heavy toll of lives in rearguard actions during the carefully-ordered retreats and by keeping her own army intact, Russia successfully performed her appointed task.

"The East Prussian Aggressive, which manifested itself periodically, and latterly the Baltic campaign never have been regarded otherwise than as diversions. A parallel to these movements is found in the Bukowina operations, in their relation to the general Galician campaign. Their chief importance has been to draw men from other fronts, where more serious fighting has been in progress.

"While it is understood the fate of the Turkish provinces on the Caucasian front will be determined by the general course of the war, this should not minimize the genuine military successes Russia has achieved in that distant field. Russia did not desire to expend her strength in Asiatic Turkey, but when opposed by the threatening Turkish advance in December she exerted her power, flung back the Turkish army at Sari Kamysh and began a series of movements which carried the Russian arms to Van and the approaches of Bitlis and Mush, in Turkish Armenia."

RUMANIA OUT OF EQUATION.

And Bulgaria is Favorable to the German Cause.

Main Hope of the Allies is to Take Constantinople.

Kaiser's Diplomacy Triumphs in the Balkan States.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONDON, July 31.—A new turn has been given to the Balkan kaleidoscope, and Constantinople is seen more clearly than ever to be the key to the whole jumbled situation in Southeastern Europe.

Reports, which are doubtless receiving America's special consideration, as her interests are directly concerned, are current that the events in the neighborhood of the Dardanelles may have an important influence upon the future history, not only of the countries contiguous to the narrow seas of the Near East, but of the continents lapped by the oceans of the extreme Orient.

On this latter aspect of the question, which is concerned with alleged negotiations between Russia and Japan, nothing has yet been published in England, although the French censorship has permitted a free discussion in the press of Paris, whence a summary of it has reached Holland and perhaps also the United States by the French cable.

Since Premier Asquith's recent reference in Parliament to the possibility of money being required for "new allies" there had existed in London a belief that the late summer or early fall would certainly bring developments in the Balkan peninsula favorable to the allies' cause. German threats to Rumania, timed to culminate almost synchronously with the meeting of the new Greek Parliament controlled by M. Venizelos, strengthened the conviction that the former country would move immediately her harvests were gathered in, and that the latter would quickly follow suit.

Recent events have considerably shaken this confidence. When the Russian forces were in Bukovina Rumania's army could have been thrown into the battle line without great risks. Such action would have been in the nature of an extension of the Russian left wing. Since the Russian retreat Rumania is left in an exposed position, which would become highly critical if the Teutonic drive against the Russian armies were crowned with complete success.

Even now, though the Grand Duke's forces are still in being, Germany considers that the Rumanian danger has been eliminated, and Theodore Wolff in a recent issue of the Berliner Tageblatt suggested that Prince von Hohenlohe's visits to his royal brother-in-law at Bucharest were a superfluity. Rumania, according to this view, can no longer afford to run the risk of offending Germany by refusing the passage of munitions for Turkey.

Greece, on her side, missed a golden opportunity, and her intervention, now that French and British have a firm foothold on the Gallipoli peninsula, is less valuable to the allies, and consequently would be likely to obtain less reward if it were given at this date.

In the German view, Bulgaria is able to play the most important role among the Balkan states. Some authorities hold that it is a race against time, and that unless the Dardanelles operations move more rapidly Bulgaria may take what Herr Wolff describes as her "great opportunity." Her present attitude is enigmatic. Her arrangement with Turkey, announced this week, whereby the latter country ceded a considerable tract of territory, roused apprehension as an indication of an evolution of Bulgarian policy in regard to the great war.

No information has been received as to the quid pro quo which Turkey obtained. The Nation says: "It looks as if Bulgaria had been squared by Turko-German diplomacy." The disappointment is all the greater because of the hopes founded upon the recent change made in the British diplomatic representation at Sofia.

Count Reventlow, however, believes that Bulgaria will make no move until she is convinced that Russia's military force is finally broken. In that event a renewed attack by Austria upon Servia would be a probability, and there is a possibility also that the Austro-German staff might attempt to break a way through Thrace to the defense of Constantinople.

A Franco-British victory in the Dardanelles would put a completely different aspect on all these matters. It would transform a situation which, beyond all doubt, is at present highly critical for the allies. Thus is Constantinople the key to the whole situation in the Near East. It would also be the beginning of the ending of the war.

Optimism.

FRANCE CAN CONTINUE THE WAR TO BITTER END.

One Year of the Immense Struggle Finds the Republic Fit to go on and on Indefinitely, According to Count de Montebello, a Recognized Authority on European Military Affairs.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PARIS, July 31.—A year of war finds "France is fit to continue the struggle to the end and confident of the outcome," says Count Adrien Lannes de Montebello in a review of the first twelve months of hostilities given to The Associated Press. Count de Montebello, a recognized authority on military affairs was one of the strongest advocates of the three-year military service law, and its co-author with the former Premier, Louis Barthou. He was formerly Deputy from Rheims and Vice-President of the Committee on Military Affairs of the Chamber of Deputies. His grandfather was Marshal Lannes, at whose death on the battlefield of Essling Napoleon is said to have wept.

His review of the war follows:

"France was not expecting war, and her preparations therefore were less complete than those of her adversaries who, knowing their intentions, had accumulated an immense supply of fighting material and disposed of their troops in such a manner as to strike the most powerful blow of which they were capable.

"Germany threw against Belgium and France, 52 Army Corps, or almost her entire military force as mobilized in August. Under the impact of the German advance the French armies, with their British allies, suffered initial reverses and great losses, especially in the battle of Charleroi. While the French armies were in retreat a national ministry was formed and the civil population of France organized for war. The French and British armies stood on the line of the Marne from a point near Paris to the eastern frontier of France. They received the shock of more than 1,200,000 German troops, and defeated them with somewhat inferior forces. The Germans were outled and outfought in a vast general action over a line of more than 120 miles.

"The French troops were too exhausted by their fifteen days of marching and fighting to make their victory decisive. The Germans checked their retreat upon the line of the Aisne, and had sufficient time to dig in. The battle of the Aisne developed by the Germans endeavoring to turn our left and by the simultaneous French effort to turn the German right.

"This contest resulted in a race for the sea in the obstinate two months' battle along the Yser in October and November. The Germans again failed and finally gave up that part of their offensive on account of their terrific losses.

"Simultaneous with the battle of the Marne, though forming no part of the battlefront of what has been called the Battle of the Marne, were the operations in the Argonne, the Woevre and the Grand Couronne de Nancy. The army of the German Crown Prince, marching on Verdun, and the army of Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria, marching on Nancy, both were defeated in some of the bloodiest engagements of the entire war.

"The ultimate result of these defeats was the liberation of that part of the ancient province of Lorraine left to France after 1870 from the occupation of the German army. The German forces had penetrated 15 or 18 miles. They were not only driven out before the first of November, but since then the French have invaded Upper Alsace, of which they now hold a considerable part. This country, taken from France in the war of 1870-71, has been reorganized and is under control of a civil government, which restored the school and judicial system of France.

"From the battle of Charleroi to the end of the first year of the war the Germans achieved no successes on the western battle front save the slight advance at Soissons during the floods of the River Aisne, the advance at Ypres, partially lost afterward, at the time of the first attack, with the assistance of asphyxiating gas.

"The successes of the allies since the battle of the Marne are in the recapture of Thann, Steinbach, Hartmans-Weilerkopf, Metzeral, La Fontenelle, together with considerable territory in the Alsatian Vosges; the capture of an entire German position in the forest of Le Pretre, along the wedge the Germans are still holding in the French lines at St. Mihiel; an advance of a mile along a front of two miles at Beausejour, in the Champagne country; the capture of Neuve Chapelle by the British, the capture of Notre Dame de Lorette, Germans and Neuville St. Vaast, and an advance of two to three miles along a front about seven miles north from Arras by the French, and the clearing of the left bank of the Yser of the enemy by the Belgian army.

"Never since the war began has the French army been so fit to continue it to a triumphant conclusion as today. We have not only carried on the war with success during the year but we have accumulated immense reserves of every necessity for continuing the war until it has been won. Our reserve troops in depots and under training are relatively greater than those of the Germans. The army is absolutely confident. The people behind the army to a man, is equally so.

"The French people, through no fault of theirs, have suffered and are suffering today, but they are equal to every hardship, every effort necessary to drive the war to a final victorious conclusion."

SIR EDWARD GREY ON THE GREAT WAR.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, July 31.—Sir Edward Grey, the British Minister for Foreign Affairs, has given the following authorized statement to the Associated Press:

"I have been asked to send a message to the United States of America at the end of the first year of the war.

"The reasons which led Great Britain to declare war and the ideals for which she is fighting have been frequently set forth. They are fully understood in America. I do not think, therefore, there is any need to repeat them now. I am quite contented to leave the rights and wrongs of the causes and conduct of the war to the judgment of the American people.

"The United Kingdom, and the entire empire, together with their gallant allies, have never, been more determined than they are today to prosecute this war to a successful conclusion which will result in honorable and enduring peace based on liberty and not burdensome militarism."

POSTAL TO CUT RATES.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK BUREAU OF THE TIMES, July 31.—Charles C. Adams, vice-president of the Postal Telegraph Cable Company, in charge of the traffic department, states that on Monday, August 2, that company will make a 50 per cent. reduction in its leased wire rate to the press at night throughout the country.

All lake cities were much cooler than for several days, but the rest of the Middle West continued hot, with slight rains. All the East is hot. CALLS WHITMAN A MURDERER.

INSCRIPTION PLACED ON LIEUT. BECKER'S CASKET.

Last Protest of Widow of Late New York Police Officer Executed for Rosenthal Crime — Former Gov. Glynn Declares Conviction was Influenced by Official Statements.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK BUREAU OF THE TIMES, July 31.—

Charles Becker
Murdered July 30, 1915
by Governor Whitman.

Such is the last protest of Mrs. Helen Lynch Becker against the conviction and execution of her husband, and the protest will go with her dead to his grave.

On a silver plate about five inches by seven the above words are inscribed, and the plate is fastened to the top of Becker's casket. And in this way the casket will go to the grave Monday morning.

Over the telephone Mrs. Becker said tonight after a reporter had been allowed to view the casket and the plate, which takes the place of the usual name-plate, that she had decided upon the plate on Thursday night while she was driving from Poughkeepsie, where she had just appealed to Gov. Whitman for her husband's life, to Sing Sing, where she was to take her last farewell of her husband.

EX-GOV. GLYNN'S CHARGES.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

ALBANY, July 31.—In an editorial tonight in the Albany Times-Union, ex-Gov. Martin H. Glynn declares that the two convictions of Charles Becker were rendered by jurors who were influenced "subconsciously" by stories given out at the New York District Attorney's office—stories which ex-Gov. Glynn insinuates were irrelevant and given out to prejudice Becker's case.

Gov. Whitman was not in town tonight. A friend and confidant of the Governor said to the correspondent:

"Ex-Gov. Glynn's editorial in substance declares Becker was innocent and framed up by Gov. Whitman while District Attorney. It is plain that he is trying to make political capital out of the Becker case. He was Governor when Becker was convicted on both occasions, and could have pardoned him. Why didn't he do it if he believed Becker innocent?"

The editorial, after speaking of the comments made by Gov. Whitman on learning Justice Ford's decision denying Becker a new trial, said:

"Many who now realize the methods by which he (Becker) was prosecuted put more credence in his protestations of innocence on the brink of the great beyond than in the judgment of the law courts and the juries.

"Nor is this an indictment of the judgments of the law courts. But it is an indictment of the applause seeking methods of a sworn officer of these courts. It is a revelation as to some of the methods of the last campaign."

RECEIVER FOR ROCK ISLAND.

Financial Pyramid Organized in 1902 Goes on Rocks in the Federal Courts.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

NEW YORK, July 31.—The financial pyramid of three railroad companies organized by Daniel G. Reid and William H. Moore and their associates in 1902 to control the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railway, had virtually toppled over yesterday when it was announced that the Rock Island Company had been placed in the hands of a receiver.

The Rock Island company was incorporated in New Jersey with $150,000,000 capital stock and was a holding company organized to take over control of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railway, the operating company, the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railroad Company. The operating company already was in the hands of a receiver and the intermediary company defaulted its bonds last year.

Chauncey G. Parker of Newark, N. J., was appointed receiver upon application of John J. Quinlan, president, who alleged the company had overdue obligations amounting to $38,848, with no funds to meet them.

CRITICS AROUSE REDFIELD'S IRE.

Attacks in Eastland Inquiry Stir up Secretary.

Promises to Get at Truth of the Great Disaster.

Will Investigate All Charges Whenever Presented.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, July 31.—With one week elapsed since the steamer Eastland sank at its wharf with 2500 excursionists on board, investigation to determine blame for the accident had simmered down to a Federal grand jury inquiry, although a county grand jury continued to hear testimony and Secretary Redfield of the Department of Commerce went ahead with the steamboat inspection examination required by law.

Federal Judge Landis forbade the examination by others of witnesses desired for the Federal grand jury and had taken possession of the ship and all documentary evidence available.

Secretary Redfield today took notice of adverse criticism of his inquiry and in a speech before the hearing, said he was profoundly pained by the attacks made on him before he had had time to delve into the case. He offered to make any sort of an investigation any one could suggest, provided charges were properly filed against one.

One body was recovered from the Eastland today, making the total dead 836. While 158 are still reported missing by the Western Electric Company, giving a possible total of 994, the missing list has rapidly dwindled.

REDFIELD'S STATEMENT.

Secretary Redfield issued this statement:

"I am willing and ready to search every corner and cranny for the ultimate truth as regards the United States inspection service and the Eastland disaster. I came to Chicago for that purpose, and my purpose has never wavered.

"I am sorry; I am hurt. I have been mistreated and prejudged by the Chicago press and by Chicago citizens.

"Mr. Thurman, the solicitor for my department, a man whose judgment in legal matters I am bound to follow, has told me that to widen this investigation would be beyond my power. I would be disobeying the law and breaking my oath of office in doing as he asks. I have already stretched the law to the breaking point in this inquiry by sending to Washington for expert witnesses in an effort to bring out the truth and the whole of it. I can not go further in that direction.

"I now give to the citizens of Chicago my solemn promise that if charges are presented to me as head of the Department of Commerce of the nation against either individual inspectors or the service as a whole, those charges will have my fullest consideration and my undivided attention, and I will spare neither time, energy nor money in arriving at the truth.

"However, I must say in my own defense, such charges have not yet been presented. They have been asked for, but thus far they are wanting. I will not hold any man up to public scorn; I will not condemn any man until that man has had an opportunity to be heard."

BURNING NEGRO HAMPERS POLICE.

SUSPECTS IN TEXAS MURDER CASE STILL AT LARGE IN THE STATE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

TEMPLE (Tex.) July 31.—The burning at the stake here last night of Will Stanley, a negro suspect in the triple Grimes family hammer murders, today hampered police efforts to arrest and identify other persons suspected in the case. Stanley was put to death because he wore trousers which bore the name of W. R. Grimes, which Grimes identified.

Before being thrown into the flames he asserted that a white man had paid him and another negro, whose name he gave, to go to the Grimes home Wednesday night and kill the family. Grimes and his wife were beaten into unconsciousness and three of their six children were killed. The negro at the stake promised to try to identify the white man, but a bullet through his body and the fire cut off any further statement from him. He said he held the horse while the other negro did the killing.

Earlier in the day the crowds had shown their temper by hanging a negro employed on the Grimes's place. This negro was saved by Grimes's brother after being hauled up to a tree limb.

Two other negroes under arrest, Slim Harris and a negro giving the name of Wells, were taken secretly from Temple last night and hidden by the police, but later freed.

A telephone message to the county attorney here said the negroes were seen at Taylor, Tex., today fifty miles south of here.

BATTLESHIP SINKS A BARK.

Nebraska Rounding Cape Cod In Collision With Vessel in Thick Fog Takes off Crew.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BOSTON, July 31.—The battleship Nebraska, rounding Capt Cod in a thick fog tonight was in collision with a bark believed to be the Mabel I. Meyers of Belfast, Me. Wireless advices said that the Nebraska was not seriously damaged.

The bark, however, was believed to have been sunk, as the battleship reported that she had taken off the crew and was bringing them here. The Nebraska was not expected to arrive off this port until tomorrow morning. The Nebraska has completed a series of maneuvers off Rockport, Mass., and was bound for Newport, R. I., to join the other vessels of the Atlantic fleet in the more extensive maneuvers about to begin there.

BONUS TO COLT MEN.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

HARTFORD (Ct.) July 31.—Employees of the Colt Patent Firearms Manufacturing Company were informed today that a bonus of 12½ per cent. would be paid to all, based on wages earned and dating from May 1, last. The action was voluntary on the part of the company.

WIN WAR AT ALL COSTS, SAYS SIR EDWARD CARSON.

Word Peace Eliminated from the British Vocabulary, Declares Attorney-General—After Year of Conflict He Insists Europe will be Relieved of Aggression of Prussian Domination.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, July 31.—Sir Edward Carson, Attorney General in the Asquith Cabinet, has prepared for the Associated Press a signed statement giving a broad outline of the first year of the war from the British standpoint, together wih expression of the unalterable purpose of the British government and people to carry on the war to a successful conclusion. The statement follows:

"How long will the war last, and what will be the result? To such questions as these any British subject can give but one answer and that is that the war will last until the cause of the allies has been brought to successful issue and Europe and the world have been relieved from the ideals involved in the aggression of Prussian domination.

"The word peace does not enter into our vocabulary at the present time. It is banished from our conversation as something immoral and impossible under existing circumstances. And yet, we are the most peace-loving people in the world, a nation which throughout the globe within its many dominions has inculcated good government and social and industrial progress, and the free exercise, in its widest sense, of civil and religious liberty.

"Rightly, or wrongly, we have in the past devoted our energies and our intelligence, not to preparations for war, but to that social progress which makes for the happiness and the contentment of the mass of our people. And this, no doubt, is the reason why other nations imagine that we, as a nation of shopkeepers, are too indolent and apathetic to fight for and maintain these priceless liberties won by the men who laid the foundation of our vast empire.

"But they are entirely mistaken in forming any such estimate of the temperament or determination of our people. Great Britain hates war and no nation enters more reluctantly upon its horrible and devastating operations; but at the same time, no nation when it is driven to war by the machinations of its foes who desire to filch from it or from its co-champions of liberty any portion of their inherited freedom, is more resolved to see the matter through, at whatever cost, to a successful issue.

"A year of war has transformed Great Britain. Of our navy, I need hardly speak. It has upheld to the fullest extent the great traditions which fill the pages of history in the past; it has driven its enemies off the seas; it holds vast oceans free for almost the uninterrupted commerce of neutral powers, and it has preserved these highways for its own supplies of material and food almost without interruption. I do not minimize the peril of the submarines, which is in process of being dealt with through the careful and zealous watchfulness of our admiralty, but while the submarine has aided the Germans to commit savage and inhuman atrocities contrary to the laws of civilization and against the settled rules of international law, it has done nothing to affect the vast commerce of our empire.

"The German submarine attack has signally failed to hamper our military operations. Under the protection of our navy, hundreds of thousands of men have been brought to the fighting area from the most distant parts of the empire. Troop ships are crossing daily to France and not a single ship or a single soldier has been lost in the passage. The manner in which our troops have received their supplies is a source of satisfaction to us and admiration to our enemies.

"At the commencement of the war we were not and never did pretend to be a military nation. An expeditionary force of 170,000 men and a small territorial army of 260,000 men for defense against invasion was all we could boast of, but today Great Britain teems with military camps in which millions of men of the finest material are being trained and equipped to cope with every emergency.

"No other nation in the world ever produced or hoped to produce a volunteer army of such proportions. Each day brings to the colors thousands of men who had never thought of military service before and each day, as our enemy grows weaker, the infancy of our strength is growing into manhood, and with increasing virility and prowess. No doubt some people are foolish enough to be influenced by the misrepresentations which are a part of the equipment of our German enemies, who represent us as a decadent race. But they know little of the spirit of our people.

"As the problem unfolds from day to day and the task before us expands in its Herculean form, our spirit becomes more determined and our efforts and organization quietly shape themselves to meet the emergencies that are before us. That all this is being accomplished without dramatic demonstration and foolish boasting is not a sign of weakness but of strength.

"The splendid heroism of our Russian and French allies is not only an example which stimulates us but it is an additional incentive to our national honor to carry on to an end the obligations we have undertaken. And if for the moment we are confronted with the impossibility of offensive action by our brave Russian allies and are compelled to wage a costly and difficult war against the Turks in the Dardanelles as well as against our enemies in Flanders, we cheerfully resolve to fit ourselves for the situation which confronts us."

Paris.

STEADY BOMBARDMENT IN THE FRENCH SECTORS.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PARIS, July 31, 10:14 p.m.—The following official communication was issued tonight:

"The day passed without an infantry engagement, but some bombs were dropped by aeroplanes on Dunkirk, the damage being insignificant.

"In Artois at Angers and at Arras there has been the usual artillery activity. One piece, firing at long range, threw nine shells on Compiegne. No material damage was done, according to the report received and a fire which was started was quickly extinguished. In the Argonne in the region of Fontaine-aux-Charmes and at Four de Paris the bombardment of the trenches on all sides was almost continuous. In the forest of Le Pretre the cannonading was very spirited.

"In the Vosges the enemy has bombarded our positions on Hill 627 at La Fontenelle and the village of Metzeral. This morning seven of our aeroplanes bombarded the station and the aviatik (aeroplane) works at Freiburg, Baden. One of them was forced to make a landing on its return to the enemy lines because of motor trouble."

Vienna.

AUSTRIANS ENTER LUBLIN, SLAV RETREAT CUT OFF.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

VIENNA, July 30 (via London, July 31, 11:47 a.m.)—Austrian cavalry entered Lublin Friday afternoon, according to an official statement issued tonight at the Austrian War Office.

By the occupation of Lublin, 95 miles southeast of Warsaw, the Austrians have cut the Russians' all-important means of communication connecting the whole southern Russian front between the Vistula and the Bug rivers. The Russians have battled desperately to prevent the Teutonic allies from gaining possession of the Ivangorod-Lublin-Chelm railroad, which for some distance parallels the Vistula River.

The Russians rushed new reserves to the front and administered serious checks to the Austro-German forces, although exposed to a merciless artillery fire. Field Marshal Von Mackensen evidently has been successful at last, however, in forcing an advance.

Control of the Lublin-Chelm railroad will afford the Austro-Germans a means of quickly massing troops at any point desired and will deprive the Russians of one of their main avenues of retreat. A military railroad built by the Russians south from Lublin during their occupation of Galicia through a region which for strategic reasons had hitherto been left without railroads proved of great advantage to the Austrians in solving the problem of communication.

Peruna Saved My Life. Physicians Failed.

Able to Go to Work On the Farm

Samuel Seal was a very sick man, a short time ago.

Samuel A. Seal lives at Luther, Tenn., and writes concerning the wonderful cure Peruna has wrought for him. He was afflicted with a chronic case of catarrh of the stomach. He says:

FAILS TO FIND CURE.

"I had tried everything I could find, without any benefit. I tried the best physicians in Hancock county. Then I tried two of the best physicians in Hawkins county. They were doing me no good. I was gradually growing worse.

"A friend of mine passing by handed me a Peruna pamphlet. I sent to Rogersville, Tenn., fifteen miles away, and procured some Peruna. I began taking it. In a few days I began to get better.

GONE TO WORK AGAIN

"I continued using it until I was able to go to work on the farm again, and now I am in very good health. I do honestly believe Peruna saved my life. I cheerfully recommend it to others. You are at liberty to publish my testimonial, and I sincerely hope it may be a benefit to some one."

FIVE AND TEN-CENT SUIT.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

The motion was denied because the complainants were not judgment creditors.

ARIZONA CROPS FLOURISHING.

Great Irrigation Reservoir Full to Overflowing.

Big Wheat Yield is Expected on Gila Valley Farms.

Storms do Much Damage in Yavapai County.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PHOENIX (Ariz.) July 31.—Never were Arizona's agricultural interests in more flourishing condition than they are today. Arizona has many more farmers, and much more land in cultivation that she had a year ago. Moreover, the farmers are reaping bigger profits than ever before in history. The outlook for the future is unusually bright because the great Roosevelt reservoir is full to overflowing and heavy summer rains are reported from every section of the State.

There is enough water in the Roosevelt reservoir to irrigate the Salt River Valley three years, even if not another drop of rain falls. But the rains and the flood waters are supplying all the irrigation the valley needs at this time and the stored supply is not being drawn upon.

The cantaloupe shipping season is just closing in the valley. Mesa and Glendale are the shipping points for the little ribbed melons. Mesa has shipped 250 carloads to the eastern market centers and Glendale has sent out 150 cars. In addition no less than 35 cars were shipped by express in less-carload lots.

Highly satisfactory prices were received. Cantaloupes of standard grade brought $2.50 and $2.75 a crate throughout the season. All the growers realized greater profits to the acre than in any previous season. This was due largely to the superior quality of the melons. As the reservoir is full the growers were able to irrigate their vines just when they needed it.

SEEDLESS GRAPES.

Six carloads of Thompson seedless grapes have been shipped east from Mesa this year, and the prices received were good. Mesa, Tempe and Phoenix are supplying the southwest with its watermelons. Figures on the total watermelon shipments are not available, but it is believed that at least 500 carloads will be sold outside the valley this season. Watermelon prices have not been quite so satisfactory as the returns from the cantaloupes, as the production was just a little ahead of the market. Nevertheless the watermelon men have made money.

Alfalfa remains the staple crop of the Salt River Valley. There is just one pest which damages the alfalfa and that is the alfalfa butterfly, the larvae of which eat the leaves. The government entomological laboratory at Mesa is now experimenting with the compsileura concinnatta, a fly which has proven effective in combating the Gypsy and brown tail moths in the New England States. It is believed that this fly will eradicate the alfalfa butterfly.

Farmers in the Buckeye and Yuma valleys are harvesting heavy crops of alfalfa seed. The favorable conditions that now exist assure that much new land will be planted to alfalfa next season, therefore there will be a big demand for seed and the price will be high.

UPPER GILA VALLEY.

In the upper Gila Valley the farmers are turning more and more to early bar wheat. It has been discovered that early bar as good as any produced in Kansas can be grown along the Gila. The yield is from 40 to 60 bushels an acre, and a mill at Safford is buying all the wheat it can obtain for $1.85 a hundred pounds. The mill is now working two shifts and is selling all the flour it can turn out at $4.40 a hundred. This flour goes to Bisbee, Miami, Globe and other mining camps. As conditions in the Salt River Valley are practically the same as in the Gila Valley, it is predicted that the farmers of this section will take up the growing of wheat on a large scale. The Salt River Valley wheat crop this year is heavier than usual, particularly in the Tempe district. A number of Tempe business men have financed the old flour mill at that point and it is now being operated to its full capacity on wheat grown within a few acres of its doors.

Sudan grass is proving to be a highly profitable crop in the McNeal Basin, of Cochise county. The farmers are planting all the Sudan grass seed they can get. They cut three crops of hay a year and two tons to the acre is obtained at each cutting. Seed is also an important item as it sells at 20 cents a pound.

In the Salt River Valley Sudan grass is a proven success. One acre was planted to the grass at the University agricultural experiment station. Four cuttings, all in one year, yielded 10 tons of hay and 2350 pounds of seed.

RAINS IN YAVAPAI.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PRESCOTT (Ariz.) July 31.—Extraordinarily heavy summer rains, which have been falling daily for more than a week, have filled the streams of Yavapai county and assured the stockmen of splendid range feed.

Much damage was done by the storms, however. Road conditions in the Verde Valley and other isolated sections are reported as deplorable. The road between Prescott and Flagstaff is damaged at Cherry Creek.

CATTLE SWEPT AWAY.

George Oyler, a mine operator near Dewey, saw a herd of cattle caught in a swirling flood which swept down a narrow canyon following a cloudburst. The wall of water was fully eight feet high. Oyler saw five cattle drown and he believes that several more were lost.

A riderless horse, with a saddle under its belly, was found in the sinks of Walnut Creek. It is believed that the horse was ridden by some cattleman who lost his life in trying to ford the swollen stream.

TROUT ARE SUFFOCATED.

The Crystal Springs Trout Company, in Skull Valley, lost 100,000 young trout, which were suffocated by muddy water that swept down an arroyo and into the fish pools.

HORSES FOR ALLIES.

Five buyers are now in Northern Arizona, purchasing horses for the armies of the allies. The ranges are being combed closely for available animals and thousands have already been shipped. The requirements are not so rigid as they were a few months ago. Horses of less than 14 hands height are now accepted. The minimum price is $40 a head and some sales have been made at as high a figure as $150.

BULLDOG VS. LION.

To prove that their big bulldog can whip an Arizona mountain lion without assistance is the ambition of five students of Yale and Harvard Universities, who outfitted at Prescott for a summer camping trip in the Mogollon and White Mountains. They carry a motion picture camera and intend to film the combat when they locate a lion for their dog to chew up. In the party are D. D. Sigourney, editor of the Harvard Terror; Alexander McIntosh, star half-back of the Yale football team; R. S. Grinnell, P. H. Sherwood and Edward Cox, all of Yale. They are accompanied by Capt. J. T. Owens, a hunter and trapper.

BRYAN TABOOS POLITICAL JOBS.

DECLARES HE IS ABSOLUTELY WITHOUT ASPIRATIONS FOR THE FUTURE.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

PORTLAND (Or.) July 31.—"I have no political aspirations whatever and no plans looking to the holding of office in the future," said William Jennings Bryan in a dictated statement here today. In the statement he gave his opinion upon the political outlook for next year and answered critics of his world's peace movement.

"The work which I have mapped out for my remaining years," said Mr. Bryan, "does not include the occupying of any political position."

With regard to the next national election Mr. Bryan said that the Republican party had no prospects. "They simply have possibilities and those depend largely upon Mr. Roosevelt," he said. "Mr. Roosevelt can strengthen the chances of the standpats by going back, or he can destroy their chances by continuing the Progressive organization."

SUNDAY TALKS TO CONVICTS.

Prisoners at the San Quentin Penitentiary Listen to Admonitions of Noted Evangelist.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN RAFAEL (Cal.) July 31.—Prisoners at San Quentin penitentiary listened to the preaching of the Rev. William A. "Billy" Sunday, the evangelist, who arranged the service yesterday upon his arrival at San Francisco, where he will deliver a series of sermons beginning tomorrow. Monday he will speak at the Panama-Pacific Exposition.

Sunday spoke to more than 2000 prisoners assembled in the dining-room. He said he was going to "cut loose."

He told the men of his own life, his first attendance at religious services and advised the men against evils which had beset him.

Before the service Sunday asked to see a prisoner. "I used to go to school with him," he explained.

After the service Sunday umpired the first inning of a baseball game between the "Army" and the "Navy" teams of the prisoners and thereby missed his train.

INCREASE IS REJECTED.

Offer Made by President of Chicago Elevated Lines is Turned Down by the Unions.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, July 31.—Offer of increase in wages which would amount to practically two cents an hour for the first year and a substantial increase for the second year of a two-year contract, made by President Britton I. Budd of the Chicago Elevated Lines was rejected today by the members of the union by a vote of 1884 to 659. The result of the referendum now makes arbitration necessary. Mayor Thompson will act as umpire as he did in the arbitration of the surface car men's dispute. State's Attorney Hoyne will act for the employees. The elevated roads have not selected a representative.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

KANSAS CITY, July 31.—Election officials who served in a north side precinct at the primary election last August were named as defendants in a civil suit filed in the United States District Court here today. MARINES KILL SIX HAITIENS.

United States is Preparing for Prolonged Stay.

Further Disturbance Feared in Island Republic.

Situation of the Unemployed Further Complication.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, July 31.—The United States apparently is preparing for a prolonged stay of American naval forces in Port-au-Prince, Haiti, where two bluejackets and six Haitiens have been killed in fighting which followed the landing of Rear Admiral Caperton's forces to protect foreign lives and property. The battleship Connecticut sailed from Philadelphia today with 500 marines to reinforce the 400 marines and bluejackets now guarding the city. The transport Hancock and the hospital ship Solace will follow to the Haitien port and other aid will be sent as necessary.

Admiral Caperton believes further disturbances are likely throughout Haiti and it is understood the American forces will not be withdrawn until a definite settlement insuring lasting peace has been reached.

CAPERTON'S ADVICE.

Admiral Caperton advised the navy department today that six Haitiens were killed and two wounded in the engagement Thursday night in which the two American seamen lost their lives. Disarming of the natives continued, he said and quiet generally prevailed both at Port-au-Prince and Cape Haitien where American forces also are on guard.

Political activity resulting from the overthrow of the Guillaume government, the report said, already had manifested itself, the revolutionary committee having declared for Rosalvo Bobo, leader of the recent unsuccessful revolt at Cape Haitien. The Blot party at Cape Haitien has declared for an aspirant named Baurand. There are many unemployed men in and around Port-au-Prince, complicating the situation.

KILLING OF PRESIDENT.

No representations have been made by the State Department as a result of the overthrow of the government and the killing of President Guillaume. None will be made, it was officially stated today, until a new government is established with which the United States can deal. As soon as possible however, the United States government is expected to renew its efforts to negotiate a treaty whereby the United States would manage the finances of Haiti and secure the right to intervene in the interest of peace.

THE NAVAL STATEMENT.

The Navy Department issued this statement:

"Rear Admiral Caperton reports from Port au Prince that during the entry of the United States force into the town of Port au Prince and the fighting during the previous night, six Haitiens were killed and two wounded. The disarming of soldiers and civilians is still going on and a quantity of arms and ammunition already has been collected and placed under guard in the palace. Due to the large area covered by the city, it will take some time to complete disarming every one.

"He also reports that the revolutionary committee declared for Rosalvo Bobo. The selection of this committee, however, was only made after an attempt to get twelve other prominent men to accept the candidacy. These other men would not accept. The Blot party at Cape Haitien, it is reported, has declared for Baurand. In view of the conditions almost sure to follow the rivalry between the various candidates and their adherents in various parts of the country, the political conditions are very uncertain. Another dangerous element in the situation may result from the presence of a large number of unemployed men in and around Port-au-Prince. Cape Haitien reported quiet."

AUTO MAN DIES IN CLOUDBURST.

THIRTY-FIVE PERSONS INJURED IN TRAIN DERAILMENT.

Heavy Rains in Hills Near Colorado Springs Send Torrent Down Dry Arroyo, Washing Out the Supports of Culvert and Cars Leave the Track.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

COLORADO SPRINGS (Colo.) July 31.—Thirty-five persons were injured in the derailment of Santa Fe train No. 6, near Crews, eight miles from Colorado Springs.

Bert Colburn, an automobile driver, was drowned and V. H. Lucas, a ranch owner, and Harry Robinson is dead as a result of a cloudburst here shortly before midnight. Colburn's body was found lying face down on a sand bar in San Creek, near Kelker. Lucas and Robinson were on an automobile trip with Colburn.

Heavy rains in the hills sent a torrent down a dry arroyo, washing out the supports of a railroad culvert. When the train reached the bridge the engine crossed in safety, but the baggage car and chair car turned over and six sleepers left the track.

The circumstances surrounding the derailment were similar to those of the Eden wreck on the Denver and Rio Grande Railroad, between Colorado Springs and Pueblo, eleven years ago, in which nearly 100 passengers were drowned.

Among the injured, none of whom is thought fatally hurt, are:

Mrs. Laura Flagg, Lawrence, Kan., broken arm.

H. E. Wade, Kansas City, bruised back and arm.

W. H. Lang, Houston, Tex., wrenched back.

Not until today did the seriousness of the situation become known, as telephone and telegraph wires were prostrated and washouts behind the stalled train delayed word reaching this city.

Seven of the thirty-five persons injured were confined in a local hospital tonight. The others resumed their travel.

No trace has been found of V. H. Lucas.

Traffic on the Santa Fe and Denver and Rio Grande has been resumed. A considerable stretch of track was taken out on each road by the cloudburst. Several bridges on the Lincoln Highway and county roads were swept out by Fountain Creek, converted into a raging torrent.

SUSPEND NAZARENE PASTOR.

Credentials of Clergyman of Spokane Revoked Because He Kissed One of His Parishioners.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SPOKANE (Wash.) July 31.—The credentials as a minister of the gospel in the Pentecostal Church of the Nazarene of the Rev. Charles V. La Fontaine, known throughout the Pacific Northwest as an evangelist, have been revoked for a year, pending good behavior, it was announced today. The assembly of the church at a meeting in Walla Walla a month ago tried the Rev. Mr. La Fontaine on charges of improper conduct and found him guilty.

The charges were based on the allegation that while on a pastoral call he kissed Mrs. Ellsworth E. W. Cheeseman, aged 19, when she was ill in bed. The former pastor admitted that he had been indiscreet and said that he had made every reparation possible. The former pastor, who is about 50 years old, was at the time in charge of the First Pentecostal Church of Spokane.

Attorney-General of Iowa Issues Instructions to Authorities to Take Action in the Event of the Offense Being Repeated by Organization at Fort Dodge.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

DES MOINES (Iowa) July 31.—The recent display of an American flag with a white border sewed around it by a society at Fort Dodge, Iowa, promoting world peace, caused Atty.-Gen. Cosson today to issue instructions to the Fort Dodge authorities to take action if the display is repeated.

The instructions were issued following a conference between Mr. Cosson, Adjt.-Gen. Guy A. Logan and Col. D. J. Palmer, commander-in-chief of the G.A.R. Complaints were made to the adjutant-general's office by G.A.R. veterans of Fort Dodge, who declared the act as much a descration of the flag as if a border of red had been sewed around it.

Atty.-Gen. Cosson instructed the Fort Dodge authorities to invoke the law against mutilation of the flag, if it became necessary.

Review of the War.

Germany's new submarines are as long as a good-sized cruiser. Capt. Otto Hersing took the U-51 about 4000 miles from Wilhelmshaven past Gibraltar, through the Mediterranean and to the Dardanelles, where it torpedoed the British battleships Triumph and Majestic, and proceeded to Constantinople. The voyage from Wilhelmshaven to the Dardanelles required one month.

The aeroplane, almost an unknown quantity at the beginning of the war so far as its military value was concerned, has proved its practicability so thoroughly that it must be rated with the submarine and the heavy gun as one of the great features of the war. In fact, it has exercised a dominating influence over land operations, and to its use, perhaps more than any other single factor, may be ascribed the deadlock month after month in the principal fields of battle. It has rendered priceless service in reconnoitering, taking the place of cavalry. It has caused a revision of the tactics and strategy of war. Aerial observers, flying over the opposing lines, are able to discover movements of any large bodies of troops, rendering that form of strategy based on surprise attacks or quick movements in force impossible. Aeroplanes also have been of great value in locating enemy positions, enabling the artillery to get the range and fire accurately on the unseen foe.

Dirigible balloons also are employed, but to a much less extent, although Germany still is constructing Zeppelins and has used them effectively for long-distance raids. They are generally regarded as less valuable than the aeroplanes.

Automobiles are used to an enormous extent, all private machines being requisitioned in some of the countries at war. In some instances great numbers of automobiles have been utilized for rapid transportation of troops. Their main service, however, is in the handling of food supplies and ammunition. Armored automobiles, armed with machine guns or light-field pieces, also have been utilized.

Many new weapons of war have been tested with varying degrees of success. Poisonous gases, projected from tanks in the trenches, are reported to have enabled their users to capture opposing positions in several minor engagements. Steel darts and incendiary bombs dropped from aeroplanes, and new types of hand grenades also have been employed, while in France, both sides are said to have made use of apparatus for spraying burning oil.

The political effects of the war, tremendous as they must be, cannot yet be gauged. The principal result thus far is the definite rupture of the traditional alignment, which divided Europe for years into two alliances with a theoretical balance of power. Great Britain, France and Russia, forming the Triple Entente and Germany, Austria-Hungary and Italy, constituting the Triple Alliance.

From the day Austria-Hungary became involved in serious difficulties with Servia, there was little doubt Germany would support her ally in case Russia adhered to her traditional policy of defending her Slavic kinsmen in the Balkans. The entrance in the war of France followed as a natural sequence of her alliance with Russia and Great Britain joined in after Germany's invasion of Belgium.

Italy was thus the only one of the six nations concerned in the two alliances which was not involved at the outset. Proclaming her neutrality, she utilized the opportunity to seek from Austria the territory to the north of her border, which she has long desired. Failing to obtain full satisfaction of her demands, she denounced the Triple Alliance and joined the allies. The Triple Entente was thus converted into the Quadruple Entente, as it is sometimes called now.

Germany and Austria-Hungary were strengthened by the adhesion of Turkey to the informal alliance with Germany which had sprung up in recent years and in November Turkey entered the war. Montenegro took up arms with the Serbs, and Belgian, on being invaded, joined the allies. Japan, Great Britain's ally in the East, opened war on Germany, following Berlin's refusal to surrender Tsing-Tau. There are thus eleven nations now at war, of which eight form what are known as the allies.

Historians are agreed that the assassination of the Austrian Archduke Francis Fredinand in Sarajevo, Bosnia, on June 28, 1914, while the immediate cause of the war, was not the determining influence. Europe had been on the edge of the precipice for a decade. Perhaps, the chief underlying factor was the development of the national idea, demanding that political divisions should be made to correspond with the territory inhabited by the various peoples of Europe; that each people, with common language and customs, should have political independence and a "place in the sun." The struggle to attain this end kept Europe in political turmoil. France aspired for Alsace and Lorraine, Italy for Trieste and the Trentino, populated largely by Italians; Servia for Bosnia, Rumania for Transylvania and Bessarabia. Austria-Hungary, within whose boundary is a complexity of races with varying claims and aspirations, was particularly menaced by the growth of this idea, and it was one phase of this agitation—Servia's desire for Bosnia—which brought on the crisis. The same motive brought in Montenegro and Italy, and influenced Russia and France to go to war.

The growth of the national idea was attended by the growth of militarism as a means for securing these desires. The greatest standing armies in history were built up, compulsory military service became widespread, and enormous navies were constructed.

Out of it all, with the mutual suspicion engendered, grew the situation which kept Europe in fear of war. Armed to excess, the nations awaited the war which finally came.

"We gained Independence in Pahvant Valley"

Los Angeles, Calif.

Gentlemen:

I left the barbering business at Inglewood, California, to come and farm in Pahvant Valley. I was tired of the drudgery, confinement and small income of my business. I have been here eleven months—since July 28, 1914. I figure that I will net $1500 clear above all expenses from my 40 acres the first year. Experienced farmers predict that my wheat crop will run close to 60 bushels to the acre. Before coming here I searched California for a good piece of land at a low price and with cheap water, but I couldn't find it. I like this climate very much. The soil is rich and the irrigation system fine. This letter is written on July 4th, 1915, and as I look at the American flag waving over my house I realize that this is my first real "Independence Day." My farm spells freedom and independence for me.

Go to Pahvant Valley on our next excursion and talk to George Sampley and scores of other former California ranchers. It is harvest time and the actual proof of what this land will do is in evidence everywhere. Dig into the deep, rich soil. Investigate the $1,000,000 gravity irrigation system. Study the sugar beet, grain and alfalfa fields. Note the thousands of money-making hogs on all sides. You'll see another Imperial Valley—with none of that section's drawbacks. High elevation, delightful climate, pure lithia drinking water, invigorating winter climate, cool summer nights. John H. Young, one of the editors of the Los Angeles Tribune, has written a review of these rich lands based upon his recent personal visit to Pahvant Valley. At the present time there are about 17,000 men on the pay roll of the company, it is said. While the amount of the increase was not announced, it is believed it will average about 10 per cent. The announcement says:

It is unofficially announced today that the two companies will continue to pay the same bonus every month as long as copper remains at 20 cents a pound or better. It was said that several other mining companies will do the same.

These words of Emperor Nicholas of Russia, uttered at the Winter Palace on August 1, 1914, are reproduced in the press of Petrograd on the anniversary of the war.

A message in the Bourse Gazette today, printed in all the languages of Russia's allies, says:

"For a year past the enemy has been threatening the freedom of the world. We deeply appreciate the self-sacrificing aid of the allies in exerting a combined pressure on him on all sides.

"A firm confidence in victory in a community of world-wide interests, and in the final triumph of right, fires the spirit of the nation. It has been our guarding star throughout this year of bloodshed. It will serve us in the coming months, maybe years, of this terrible struggle.

"Russia greets her allies—France, Great Britain, Belgium, Servia, Montenegro, Japan and Italy. All hail to their heroic loyalty and firm determination to stand by her to the end, till light dispels the gloom."

CARRANZA ORDERS ARMY BACK TO MEXICO CITY.

Directs that Strong Patrols be Maintained Along the Railroad to Protect it from Bandit Raids — Villa Determined First Chief Shall not Receive Support of the United States — Middle Ground for Peace is Sought.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, July 31.—While reports of the reoccupation of Mexico City by Gen. Gonzales lacked official confirmation tonight, it was known that Gen. Carranza had ordered that strong patrols be established along the Mexican Railroad between Apizaco and Mexico City to protect it from bandit raids. The order followed closely the receipt by Gen. Carranza of the vigorous representations made by Secretary Lansing urging that the railway be reopened and kept open so the starving population of Mexico City could be fed.. Similar representations went to Gens. Villa and Zapata; but officials here felt that Gen. Carranza held the key to the situation through his control of the port of Vera Cruz.

CARRANZA'S STATEMENT.

"First Chief Venustiano Carranza has ordered Gen. Pablo Gonzales to reoccupy Mexico City, in view of the reports in circulation with regard to the critical conditions in the capital by reason of the shortage of foodstuffs.

"The orders include instructions to Gen. Gonzales to arrange for the immediate transportation of trainloads of staple articles of food at the same time his troops enter the city."

Carranza's prompt response to insistence by the United States was regarded here as averting necessity for immediate action by this government to insure the transportation of provisions to the Mexican capital. Administration officials had determined that provisions piled high in warehouses at Vera Cruz should be sent to the capital. Although no announcement was made of this government's plans, it is known officials of the army and navy were ready to carry through a forceful programme. An outline of Gen. Carranza's plans to relieve distress in Mexico City and for re-establishment of government, was conveyed to the State Department today. Strong intimations were made also that he soon would formally ask the United States to recognize a de facto government pending a constitutional election.

CARRANZA'S RESOLVE.

Gen. Carranza is said to be firmly resolved not to yield to any proposal for a peace conference which would necessitate a representative convention. He will not talk peace with Villa or Zapata, it is said, unless his adversaries first lay down their arms.

Villa and his adherents propose to do all in their power to avert the possibility of Carranza's receiving the moral support of the United States. To this end they have proposed the counter plan for consideration here that all factional leaders join in a peace conference, select a man for provisional president and then hold regular elections.. If Carranza will not yield to this, they suggest that the United States support them in such a conference without him, provided they can show that they represent a majority of the people..

It is between these two plans that the United States may be forced to find a middle ground for settling the Mexican situation without armed intervention.

High-handed.

TRIES TO FREE PAUL HUDSON.

BRAZILIAN MINISTER OPENLY FLOUTED BY MEXICANS.

President of "Herald" Publishing Company may be Court-martialed. Foreigners in Great Danger; Legations Ignored—People are Eating Cats and Dogs.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

MEXICO CITY, Saturday, July 24.—(By wireless from steamship City of Tampico to Galveston, July 31.)—Paul Hudson, president of the Herald Publishing Company of Mexico City, an American citizen, together with members of his family and the staff of his paper, are prisoners in Mexico City and threatened with court-martial.

The charges against Mr. Hudson have not been set forth and it is not known what fate awaits him.

Allan Mallory, an American, has been assaulted by followers of Zapata while carrying diplomatic correspondence. At the time of this attack Mr. Mallory was carrying an American flag, which was torn and insulted by his assailants.

Zapata personally destroyed the correspondence taken from Mr. Mallory. He broke the legation seals, saying that "The Americans were fools."

The Brazilian Minister made an effort to obtain the release of Hudson but he was openly flouted.

Governmental control is lacking in Mexico City, and terror prevails. Swiss and Spanish citizens have been removed in automobiles and ordered executed. Zapata is quoted as having said that he intended to kill the local Spaniards.

The foreigners feel that their position is particularly precarious for the reason that they are unable to appeal to any authority. The governor of the Federal District treats them with contempt.

The food situation in Mexico City is desperate. Starvation is abroad and the people are eating cats and dogs. Some of the foreign residents are starving.

Certain Mexicans are appealing to the Brazilian Minister for intervention by the United States.

Bands composed of followers of Zapata and Villa are expanding their control throughout the interior of the republic, and almost all of Central Mexico is today virtually without any constituted government. The followers of Gen. Carranza are fleeing toward the coast cities.

HUDSON WELL KNOWN.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

TOPEKA (Kan.) July 31.—Paul Hudson, publisher of the Herald at Mexico City, who is reported to be held with members of his family a prisoner in Mexico City, is a former widely known Kansas newspaper man. He is the son of the late Maj. J. K. Hudson, founder of the Topeka Daily Capital, and has been interested in newspaper work in the Mexican capital for fifteen years.

Charles Curtis, United States senator from Kansas, and Gov. Capper have sent messages to the Secretary of State, urging that everything possible be done to insure the protection of the Hudson family.

rich foreign mining holdings there unless a forced loan of $350,000 was met by July 31, today.

In conference today with Villa at Chihuahua six representatives of the American mining men in the Chihuahua district made point-blank refusal to meet Villa's demands.

FEAR ACTION OF VILLA.

El Paso friends of these American mining men fear that they have either been jailed and face possible death or that Villa will confiscate all the bullion in the American mines there. This bullion is said to be valued at not less than a quarter of a million dollars.

Among the mining men, whose personal safety is in jeopardy at Chihuahua as a result of the conference, are George B. McQuatters, manager and part owner of the Alvarado Mining and Milling Company of Parral; C. R. Watson of the Batopilas Mining Company; W. M. Murray of the Rio Tinto Copper Company; Donald B. Gillies of the Mines Company of America and William J. Quigley of the Chihuahua Mining Company.

The name of the sixth man could not be learned here tonight.

Villa's reply to the American ultimatum, the text of which is as yet unknown here, will perhaps be in Washington by Monday.

On that reply hinges the most delicate situation with which the American government has yet been confronted as a result of the Mexican imbroglio.

GEN. ANGELES RETURNS.

Gen. Felipe Angeles, who was refused an audience by President Wilson, arrived in El Paso today from Washington en route to Chihuahua.

He is declared to be working in the interests of peace in Mexico and to have gone to Washington in an effort to placate the differences between Villa and Carranza.

He declared this evening that he would later give a detailed statement summarizing the results of his labors. He believes that as a result of his report to Gen. Villa, international complications will be avoided.

A Villa force of Maytorenistas in the State of Sonora was defeated today at Durazno ranch by troops under the command of Gen. Calles.

Miguel Pesqueira, one of the prominent members of the wealthy Sonora family and an adherent of the Villa cause, with eight other Mexicans, was killed during the fight.

DOLLAR A DAY CARRANZA OFFER.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

NOGALES (Sonora, Mex.) July 31.—Manifestos scattered from a Carranza aeroplane, which also dropped a harmless bomb, informed Villa soldiers serving under Gov. Maytorena here today, that Gen. Elias Calles, the Carranza commander, was ready to pay them $1 per day in gold, plus $1 per day in Carranza currency. Those that did not accept and were caught fighting would be killed, the manifestoes read.

The aeroplane flew over American territory before reaching the vicinity of Nogales, and departed in a northeasterly direction.

SAW RUSSIANS QUITTING WARSAW

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

GENEVA (Switzerland) July 31, via Paris.—German aviators, returning to their lines after a flight over Warsaw, reported that they clearly saw the Russian troops evacuating the Polish capital, marching toward the east, says a dispatch received today by the Geneva Tribune from Innsbruck.

Austro-Hungarian cavalry, the dispatch adds, have entered Lublin and all the railways in South Russian Poland have been in the hands of the Austrians since yesterday.

A German offensive on a large scale from Plonsk and Pultusk to the confluence of the Narew and the Bug rivers began yesterday morning and these advices add, the Germans are making progress.

IBERIAN SUNK BY SUBMARINE.

Leyland Liner Sent to the Bottom by Torpedo.

One American is Killed by Heavy Shell Fire.

Big Vessel had Disregarded Warning to Stop.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, July 31.—The Leyland liner Iberian has been sunk by a German submarine. Five members of the crew were killed, two died aboard a rescue boat and sixty-one were landed safely.

One of the seven men killed was an American.

The casualties on board the Iberian were caused by shell fire. The submarine then torpedoed the Leyland liner and the vessel went to the bottom.

A dispatch from Queenstown to the Central News Agency says that the Iberian had a large crew aboard, including a number of cattlemen who were returning to the United States.

The Ibernian, 5223 tons gross, sailed from Boston July 7 for Manchester, where she was reported to have arrived July 20. She was 437 feet long with a beam of forty-eight feet, and was built at Sunderland in 1900. A. Leyland & Co., Ltd., of Liverpool were the owners.

The Iberian had been used for several months for the transportation of war supplies between the United States and England.

REPORT AT WASHINGTON.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Only one American, a mule tender, named Whyley, was killed when the British steamer Iberian was shelled and sunk by a German submarine. American Consul Frost at Queenstown reported today that the Iberian disregarded the submarine's warning to stop. Later the German commander gave the crew time to take to the boats before firing a torpedo. Whyley died of shock and wounds from shells.

Consul Frost's report said:

"Steamer Iberian submarined. Whyley, American muleteer, killed. Ship surgeon of the Iberian and American citizen, states that submarine did not shell Iberian until the latter disregarded the signal. Gave time to take to boats. Whyley died from shock and superficial wounds. No other Americans injured."

DR. BURNS'S STORY.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Aug. 1.—The Weekly Dispatch in a story regarding the sinking by a German submarine of the Leyland line steamship Iberian, quotes Dr. Burns of the Iberian as saying that Mark Whyley of Boston was among those killed. The members of the crew are said to have rowed for several hours in the ship's boats before they were rescued. Dr. Burns's story is given as follows:

"I was walking on the deck when, without warning a shot came flying over the bridge and killed six men forward. The submarine was within a mile and her captain began talking through a megaphone. He ordered us to leave the ship, which we did in six boats.

"The boat in which I was with Capt. Jago, went alongside the submarine and asked for appliances to dress the wounds of those who were hurt. The German gave me some bandages and I did the best I could. Poor fellows, during the six hours before we were rescued, two of the eight wounded died, including an American, Mark Whyley."

TRAVELING BAND OF FIFTY IS GIVEN SHORT SHRIFT AT LEICESTER.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LEICESTER (Eng.) July 31.—A traveling band of fifty preachers, members of a self-styled "fellowship of reconciliation" which has been touring the country spreading peace propaganda, met with short shrift at the hands of the people of Leicester today.

Crowds raided the band's camp, burned the tents and equipment and administered a beating to the male members of the party. The performance was concluded with the singing of "Tipperary" and "God Save the King" over the ashes of the outfit.

QUESTION OF DUTY, ASQUITH DECLARES

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, July 31.—The Prime Minister of Great Britain, the Rt. Hon. Herbert H. Asquith, has given the Associated Press the following authorized statement:

"I have been asked to send a message to the United States of America at the end of the first year of the war.

"The reasons why we are fighting are known in America. The world has judged, and will judge, not our words, but our actions. The question today is not of our hopes or our calculations, but our duties.

"Our duty, which we shall fulfill, is to continue to the end in the course which we have chosen, and 'to do all which may achieve and cherish a just and lasting peace.'"

CRUSH THE ENEMY, SAYS POLIVANOFF.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PETROGRAD, July 31.—The following statement concerning the conclusion of the first year of the war was prepared for the Associated Press by M. Polivanoff, Russian Minister of War:

"My opinion in a few words, after one year's duration of this war, unprecedented in the world's annals, is as follows:

"The enemy is strong and cruel, and that is the very reason why Russia and her heroic allies must continue the war—should it last for several years—until the enemy is completely crushed.

Heiress to Millions as a Bride.

Mrs. Catherine Barker-Spaulding,

Daughter of the late car builder of Michigan City, Ind., who was married yesterday at a fashionable ceremony in her palatial residence overlooking Little Travers Bay. A "slight misunderstanding" with the maid of honor, who failed to show up at the ceremony, created comment among the society people who attended.

Misunderstanding.

MAID OF HONOR IN HUFF DODGES SOCIETY WEDDING.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

HARBOR SPRINGS (Mich.) July 31.—Miss Catherine Barker was married to Howard Spaulding, Jr., shortly after 4 o'clock this afternoon. There was a gap in the bridal procession as it moved from the dining-room to the rose-covered altar in a corner of the sun porch overlooking Little Travers Bay. The gap should have been filled by Miss Elizabeth Goodrich, maid of honor.

What was characterized by the Goodriches as a "slight misunderstanding" between Miss Goodrich and Howard Spaulding was responsible for the absence of the maid of honor. The cause will not be told by members of either family. It is said to have been brewing for some time, however, and must have been serious, as Spaulding and Miss Goodrich have been close friends. It was understood Miss Goodrich sent back her dress and hat earlier in the day.

Miss Barker went across the harbor this morning in her motor boat, "The Katy-Fritz," to enter the confessional and attend mass at the Little Catholic convent church in Harbor Springs. She was accompanied by Mlle. Sarah Currier, her old friend and French teacher, and Miss Margaret O'Reagan, the governess of childhood days.

Miss Barker wore a morning dress of green and appeared to have been weeping.

The police were present, it is said, because Miss Barber had received a threat that unless she paid $75,000 immediately, Mr. Spaulding would be kidnaped. The bride's friends denied the rumor but the police were unwilling to take any chances.

It was a glorious sunny afternoon with just enough breeze sweeping in from the bay to make it comfortable. Several hundred persons crowded the house and the lawns down to the water's edge on either side of the point.

Four hundred guests were present, but scarcely a hundred were able to witness the ceremony. These were Miss Barker's closest friends, relatives and her servants and governess.

The setting was one of striking color of costumes and flowers. The porch itself was decorated with birch boughs, poppies, roses and sweet peas, which almost entirely hid the flaming color schemes of its walls, almost "cubistic" in their effect.

Nor were the colors of the summer finery of the guests less striking. Most of them were white but their variegated hats were of every hue. White, green, mauve, and pink predominated in the costumes of the bridal party.

Miss Barker wore a white satin gown draped with flounces of white chiffon, embroidered in pearls and held at the corners by tiny sprays of orange blossoms. The bride carried a bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley. The couple will visit the Pacific Expositions and Hawaii and the Orient for a wedding trip.

Arder.

EXPLOSION AND A FIRE IN A SCOTCH IRON WORKS.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, July 31, 6:14 p.m.—The British official press bureau tonight gave out the following:

"A fire broke out in one of the departments of the Arder factory (Arder Iron Works) near Irvine, Scotland, late Friday night. It was followed by several explosions.

"As far as can be ascertained, one man was killed and eleven were injured."

Anniversary.

"MY CONSCIENCE CLEAR," KAISER IN A MANIFESTO.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Aug. 1, 2:40 a.m.—Emperor William has issued a manifesto to the German people on the occasion of the anniversary of the outbreak of the war, according to a dispatch received in Amsterdam from Berlin and forwarded by the correspondent of Reuter's Telegram Company. In the manifesto, which was issued from the main headquarters of the German army, the Emperor says:

"One year has elapsed since I was obliged to call to arms the German people. An unprecedented time of bloodshed has befallen Europe and the world.

"Before God and history my conscience is clear. I did not will the war. After preparations for a whole decade, the coalition powers, to whom Germany had become too great, believed that the moment had come to humiliate the empire, which loyally stood by her Austro-Hungarian ally in a just cause, or to crush it in an overwhelming circle. No lust for conquest, as I already announced a year ago, has driven us into the war.

"When in the days of last August all ablebodied men were rushed to the colors, and troops were marched into a defensive war, every German on earth felt, in accordance with the unanimous example of the Reichstag, that it was a fight for the highest good of the nation, its life, its freedom. What awaited us if the enemy force succeeded in determining the fate of our people and of Europe has been shown in the hardship endured by my dear province, East Prussia.

"The consciousness that the fight was forced upon us accomplished miracles. Political conflict of opinion became silent; old opponents began to understand and esteem each other; the spirit of true comradeship governed the entire people.

"Full of gratitude, we can say today that God was with us. The enemy armies who boasted that they would enter Berlin in a few months are with heavy blows driven back far east and west. Numberless battlefields in various parts of Europe and naval battles off near and distant coasts testify what German anger, in self-defense and German strategy can do. No violation of international law by our enemies will be able to shake the economic foundation of our conduct of the war."

VIENNA REPORT.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

VIENNA, July 31 (via London, 11:35 p.m.)—The following statement was given out tonight:

"Yesterday Archduke Jos Ferdinand's army occupied Lublin. Its left wing in pursuit crossed the Bystrzyca River.

"German troops advanced down the Vieprz River, approaching Chelm from the southwest. The enemy offered renewed resistance at several points in the previously-prepared position, but was attacked everywhere.

"In East Galicia the situation is unchanged.

"The Italian infantry attacks in the district of Gorizia yesterday were completely suspended. The enemy's artillery continues to fire large quantities of ammunition.

"In the Corinthian frontier districts several engagements occurred. Three Italian battalions after artillery preparation attacked our troops. On Pal Piccolo the enemy succeeded in penetrating our advance trenches, but finally was completely repulsed after hard fighting. An Italian attack near Lodinut Pass, north of Poularo, also was repulsed in a hand grenade engagement.

"On the frontier ridge south of Malbourghetto one of our advanced detachments evacuated observation posts in the face of superior enemy forces.

"In the Tyrol, Italian artillery attacks were unsuccessful on the plateaus of Folgaria and Lavaronne. An attack by feeble hostile forces in the Monte Cirstallo district was sanguinarily repulsed."

POPE'S APPEAL STIRS UP PRESS.

INTERVENTION FOR PEACE IS GENERALLY CONDEMNED BY ITALIANS.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

MILAN (Italy) July 30 (via Paris, July 31.)—The press of this city, commenting on the Pope's appeal to the belligerent countries, says it shows the pontiff's ardent desire to see the conflict ended.

The Corriere della Gerra, however, remarks that any intervention in favor of peace will find an insurmountable obstacle; namely, that the conflict can not end except with a victory for the entente allies, it being for them a defensive war inspired by pure ideals of liberty and justice. Thus, the condemnation of the Pope, says the newspaper, strikes at those who, for ambition and a desire for predominance, unchained war.

The Secolo goes further, stating that peace now is impossible because it would be advantageous only for Germany, occupying, as she does, Belgium, part of France and Russian Poland; while every day, which passes, wears out Germany's forces, augments the resources of the allies and renders the intervention of the Balkan States more probable.

COMMENT IN BERLIN.

[BY WIRELESS AND A. P.]

BERLIN, July 31 (via Sayville.)—The Frankfurter Zeitung has published the full text of the proclamation of Pope Benedict making an appeal for peace. Commenting on the incident this paper adds:

"The Italian press already has emphatically rejected this proposal."

This news was given out by the Overseas News Agency.

HARDEN EXPELLED FROM GERMANY.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, July 31, 5:15 a.m.—A Reuter dispatch from Copenhagen says:

"Maximilian Harden, editor of Die Zukunft, passed through Copenhagen Thursday, incognito on an enforced holiday of indefinite duration in Northern Scandinavia. His recent article virtually commending Italy's attack on her arch enemy—Austria—is reported to have aroused the wrath of official Germany."

GERMAN STUDENTS HOOT AMERICANS.

SERIOUS DISTURBANCES NEAR OUR EMBASSY REPORTED IN BERLIN.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

ZURICH (Switzerland) July 31 (via London.)—American travelers arriving here today from Berlin report that there were serious anti-American disturbances in the German capital on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week.

A large crowd of students gathered in front of the American Embassy and hooted and yelled until they were dispersed by a force of police summoned to protect the building.

The police, according to the travelers, requested Americans in Berlin to refrain from wearing the Stars and Stripes as badges or scarf pins, the sight of which they say irritates the German and often exposes the wearers to insults and molestation.

Are We Soon to Become a Race of Bald-Headed Men?

PROF. JOHN H. AUSTIN

Hair Specialist of Chicago, Who Is Now at Hamburger's, Talks Most Interestingly About the Hair.

He says that baldness is increasing rapidly among men and points out some of the reasons. Prof. Austin is probably right in saying that about one man in every hundred ever thinks about his hair at all, except to comb it two or three times a day. If it falls out, he looks anxiously at the falling hair, and then promptly forgets it until the next time he uses the comb.

A man will give the utmost attention to his teeth, because he knows that when trouble arises he will have more trouble and probably lose his teeth if he doesn't go to a dentist promptly. But his hair doesn't ache, it just gradually dies, and when it is nearly gone, and the roots are dead, he anxiously tries a dozen different remedies at once and then resigns himself to baldness.

According to Prof. Austin, there are something like sixty different conditions of the scalp and hair. Some are contagious. Others develop from neglect. Practically all of them are curable in the early stages.

Prof. Austin examines the roots of your hair with a powerful microscope. He finds out just what is the trouble with your hair, and then he tells you what to do for that trouble.

It doesn't cost a penny for the examination, and it puts you under no obligation to follow his advice if you don't want to do so.

Prof. Austin has devoted thirty-five years to studying the hair and scalp. Surely it will be worth the few minutes it takes to let him turn the microscope on your hair.

During the past seven months Prof. Austin has made hundreds of free microscopic examinations of the hair and scalp of our patrons—they enthusiastically appreciate this free service.

He will make free microscopic examinations of your hair and scalp all this week, in his private office on the second floor, Hamburger's. Hours, 10 to 12 a.m. and 2 to 5 p.m.

Saengerfest.

CROWD STIRRED BY SONG IDOLS.

Great and Sincere Audience Sets a New Mark.

Schumann-Heink and Western Star Draw.

Big Interest in Contest of Societies for Cups.

BY EDWIN F. SCHALLERT.

If the sizes of audiences spell the varying degrees of success in an occasion like the present Saengerfest, then last night's gathering at Shrine Auditorium raised the peg a few notches higher than it was placed Friday evening. Furthermore while the enthusiasm had many of those attributes which naturally go into an affair of such a public character as this one, these were adequately supported by that genuine wholeheartedness and sincerity which has been visible throughout the festival.

Of course there were moments when the idols of the hour, like Mme. Schumann-Heink, caused this enthusiasm to run wild. Applause had to be counted in minutes after she sang Wagner's spiritually lovely "Traume." Marcella Craft, California's golden voiced singer, also was received with open hands, when she appeared to give her aria from "Der Freischuetz."

I think that "Traume" as given by the great idol of the Saengerfest will stand out among the memories the concert will leave behind it. I know that for me it will, probably, because I am prejudiced in favor of the song, perhaps for other reasons.

It was fashioned like mother of pearl, in its iridescent lights and shades; in its mystery and in its depth. It was a thing that lived like the spark of life itself, as the great humanness of the greatest of Saengerfest singers flowed out over the vast multitude.

MUCH APPRECIATED.

Solo honors were divided with Mme. Schumann-Heink and Marcella Craft by Carl Schlegel, whose charming renditions of "Feldeinsamkeit," by Brahms; "Daheim," by Kaun, and "Lenz," by Hildach, met with great appreciation. He gave an exceedingly convincing and well-executed rendition of "Wotan's Abschied und Feurzauber," from "The Valkyrie," this being being one of the most striking numbers of the evening.

Besides her aria from "Der Freischuetz" Marcella Craft gave "Bergnacht" (Berger,) "Erwachen" (Sucher) and "Lockruf" (Rueckauf,) all in her delightful individual and captivating style. She sang the soprano solo in closing chorus of "Germanenzug," while Mr. Schlegel rendered the part for the baritone solo. It has been a real pleasure to hear Miss Craft on an occasion like the present one.

The "Germanenzug," by the way, proved a rousing good closing number as delivered by the massed male choruses, under the baton of Mr. Schoenefeld. It struck a note which was close to the hearts of the Teutons, and was followed by the "Star Spangled Banner" and "Die Wacht am Rhein." Here was German-Americanism compactly welded together.

Other numbers, given under Mr. Schoenefeld's baton, which pleased the audience greatly, were the pathetic "Mutterherz" and "Annie Laurie," the latter being an arrangement by the conductor, with an accompaniment for the wood winds and horns. The rendition was clear cut and well conceived.

"Der Lindenbaum" was given by the festival choir and "Aennchen von Tharau" (Silcher) and "Luetzows Wilde Jagd" (Weber,) under Mr. Hagen's baton.

The orchestra, under Adolf Tandler, which opened the programme with Brahms' "Academic Overture," and also played the Andante from Beethoven's Fifth Symphony, furnished a large share of the evening's enjoyment.

REACHING CLOSE.

The concert last night wound up the musical events of the series, with the exception of this morning's on the steps of the Courthouse and this afternoon's contest at Schuetzen Park for the golden cup donated by Emperor Franz Josef of Austria-Hungary. Yesterday afternoon a contest was held at Trinity Auditorium for the gold cup donated by the German Emperor—the Kaiser-preis, so-called—and several other silver cups, the awards to be announced today.

One unforeseen event served to mar the excellence of last night's concert, in that it necessitated the disarrangement of the programme. Owing to an accident while he was being shaved, which resulted in one of the arteries in his face being cut, Siegfried Hagen, one of the festival directors, was unable to appear until the latter part of the programme. One of the massed choruses, "Sonnenaufgang," had to be omitted. When Mr. Hagen did appear to direct he was warmly applauded by the audience.

Not since the opening of the festival has the orchestra done better work in accompanying the various artists. Toni Hoff and Mr. Tandler divided laurels in this regard. The former gave a wonderfully reserved and beautifully shaded accompaniment in "Traume." It was thoroughly artistic. Claude Gotthelf and Mrs. M. Hennion Robinson assisted at the piano in certain of the solo numbers.

CUP CONTEST.

Concealed behind mysterious white curtains in various parts of Trinity Auditorium, five judges, like invisible deities, yesterday decided the fate of twelve bravely battling German singing organizations, belonging to the Grosspacific Saenger-bund. No hint was given to the audience as to which society would receive the awards, but they were naturally not prohibited from drawing their own conclusions, which in most cases they probably did.

The word "contest" had evidently fallen with considerable weight on the minds of many visitors, for they relinquished the strongly probable pleasures of a Saturday afternoon at the beach for the possible ones of a singing competition, which was to consist mainly in the successive repetitions of the several selections chosen for the competing bodies and with no decisions reached at the end. And with few exceptions the members of the audience stayed and listened attentively until the close, which was a compliment not only to their own enthusiasm, but to the novelty of the event. Dr. Max Magnus, however, in his closing speech politely commended their patience.

The fates played tricks with the drawing of lots for positions on the programme. They declared that it would be appropos to have the Southern California organizations appear toward the end, so that local pride might be kept in the background until the climactic moment.

This was a situation which kept up the suspense quite admirably. Moreover, the Kaiser-preis was being competed for. Perhaps another factor which was just as strong was the difference in the character of the renditions of the various organizations, as well as the mannerisms and conducting methods of the various directors.

There were some who led their forces stolidly and firmly to battle. There were others who cajoled them and urged them on. There were others again whose fingers in an infinite variety of motions were the medium of direction. Some used batons and some did not.

Claude Madden's huge frame and authoritative gestures gave a monumental vastness to the performance of the Arion Gesangverein of Seattle. Henry Schoenefeld was everywhere at once among the body of singers that gathered around him.

TACTICS VARY.

The arrangement of the fighting lines was not the same in every case either. One of the societies adopted a broad skirmishing formation; in some cases they presented a compact phalanx; in others they appeared in marching order. There were old men and young in the choruses, although the older predominated. Quite a few walked with the assistance of a cane. Erect and grave they marched onto the stage one after another.

The programme was opened by the Arion Philharmonie, the only mixed chorus of the Portland Social Turnverein under Lucien E. Becker, whose selection may have come as a surprise, in that it was none other than the familiar "Aloha" translated into German. The twelve societies which came after, with their directors and classified according to size, and in the order of their appearance were as follows: Class C. (sixteen members or under) Germania, San Jose, William Epping; Gesang Section, Socialen Turnverein, Portland, Mr. Becker; Arion Maennerchor, Los Angeles, S. C. Hagen; Tacoma Saengerbund, J. Hermann; Class B (sixteen to twenty-four members) Freundschaft Saengerbund, San Francisco, R. Rieger; Concordia, Anaheim, Ludwig Thomas; Class A. (thirty-five members and more) Arion Gesangverein, Seattle, Claude Madden; Fidelia Maennerchor, Los Angeles, Siegfried Hagen; Gesangverein Arion, San Francisco, F. G. Schiller; Gesang Section, Turnverein Germania, Los Angeles, Henry Schoenefeld; Gesangs Section San Francisco Turnverein, F. G. Schiller.

The cappella singing proved the acid test of the day. It was a test that a large number of the organizations failed to measure up to adequately. The pitch in a number of instances was very poorly adhered to. There were, however, several organizations that succeeded in giving a very good account of themselves in this respect, and it must be said in extenuation that the selections were very difficult, "Mein Lied," the Kaiser-preis song particularly.

This morning's programme at the courthouse will be given by the Massed Male choirs, accompanied by the Los Angeles county band, conductors being Henry Schoenefeld, S. C. Hagen and Adolf Tandler. This promises to be one of the biggest events of the Saengerfest.

This afternoon there will be a "Volksfest" and a singing contest at Schuetzen Park, while this evening prizes will be awarded at Turner Hall; a musical entertainment also is to be given.

Monday night there will be a grand festival ball at Solomon's Dancing Academy. Tuesday the Saengerfest members will leave for the north on the Harvard.

NUDE PICTURES ARE EVIDENCE.

"FILM PRODUCER" DETAINED BY COUNTY OFFICERS.

"Leading Lady" Said to Have Sent Girls to Lonely Gravel Pit is Held as Witness—Advertisement and Suspicious Actress Cause Action by Police.

J. T. Valpey, who says he is a motion picture producer and cameraman, was detained yesterday afternoon by Deputy Sheriffs Wright and Bell and Detectives Slaton and Wood, and held in the County Jail for investigation. Miss Muriel Doris Copping, 20 years old, who says she lives at No. 627 Echandia street, is held as a witness. Evidence procured by the officers yesterday is in the form of several hundred photographs of nude young women, some of whom are said to be minors.

Because Valpey refused to answer questions yesterday, speculation was rife as to just what the man's ideas were. Every officer advanced a different theory and none agreed.

The matter started three days ago when Miss Leona Eames, of No. 541 South Flower street, a motion picture actress temporarily out of a position, answered an advertisement in a newspaper. The notice requested that girls desiring to pose as models apply by letter to the Paris Motion Picture Corporation, General Delivery, Los Angeles.

Miss Eames did so, and received an answer telling her to meet the leading lady of the company at a certain number on Flower street. She later found this place to be a garage. This made her suspicious, but she kept her appointment. Miss Copping met the applicant in the garage and the police say, told her to go to the gravel pit on the Covina car line, a mile this side of Baldwin Park, where she would meet Mr. Valpey, the head of the company.

Knowing such a lonely spot was no place to meet a motion-picture director, Miss Eames reported the affair to the Federal authorities, who referred her to Policewoman Bowen. Mrs. Bowen went with Miss Eames to the gravel pit and met Valpey. The man, according to Mrs. Bowen, appeared impressed with the two women and made an appointment for the next morning, for them to pose in "a piece of cheesecloth."

The next day the women kept the appointment, but so did the four officers, and Valpey was detained. Quantities of pictures of nude women were found in the small bungalow where he lived. A still and also a motion picture camera were found, according to the officers.

Miss Copping was then taken to the Sheriff's office and questioned. She said she had posed one day for Valpey, appearing in the nude. She also stated that Valpey commissioned her two weeks ago to get girls he wanted for his works. A dozen or more, she said, were sent out to the gravel pit and later photographed. As far as Miss Copping knew, none of these subjects had received any money or had worked more than one day.

Valpey said he worked on railroads until ten months ago, when he was injured. Since that time he has been trying to form a motion picture company to sell films in Paris, France. He did not explain why he worked alone and in such a manner.

The officers will investigate the list of names obtained from Miss Copping, of the girls who visited Valpey. They will question each girl carefully.

FINAL VOTE STANDING WILL APPEAR TUESDAY.

Great Educational Contest of "The Times" Closes in Midst of Liveliest Activities and Anticipation of Jubilee to Occur Next Wednesday — Contestants' Scores Reach Immense Fgures.

WORK of contestants in The Times great Educational Contest of 1915 closed at midnight last night. The task of computing the final vote standing is yet to be accomplished. All coupons and subscription contracts that were placed in the mails up to 12 o'clock last night will be reckoned in the final count. It is the expectation of the contest manager that it will be possible to make the announcement of the prize winners Tuesday morning.

Yesterday was indeed a strenuous day for the scholarship contestants and also for the office force at the contest headquarters. It began at 8 o'clock, when the first of the workers arrived with a report of the activities of the evening before. Right on the heels of this visitor came another with a similar report, and then the regular run of visitors began.

At times as many as a dozen contestants were at headquarters. They took turns making their reports, and then sallied forth into the field again to pick up the last stray bits of business here and there that might be the very means of giving them finally the choice of scholarships that would fulfill their desires.

All day long the elevator at The Times Building was kept busy bringing visitors to the campaign headquarters, and the telephones were ringing. There was intense interest. Every one had expressions of hopefulness and expectation; and yet each was deeply interested in the campaign their neighbors were making. There were many pleasant reunions at the headquarters yesterday, and numerous contestants made the acquaintance of others of whom they have been reading or hearing during all these days of campaigning. All of them are looking forward with anticipation to the jubilee that will take place next Wednesday. There are forty-two active contestants who have stayed faithfully in the work to the very closing day. Only two of these will be unable to join in the festivities of Wednesday. The manager of the contest regrets that they will be unable to participate in the affairs planned for the day.

The affairs of the day are for these faithful campaigners. The programme calls for an assembly at The Times Building, First and Broadway, at 8:30 o'clock sharp. There will be an informal reunion and a get-acquainted period for those who have not met all the other workers. Then will appear the motor cars, and the members of the party, each adorned with the red badge bearing the magic words: "Times Scholarship Contestant, 1915," will get aboard, and sharp at 9 o'clock they will be on the way to Venice-by-the-Sea.

Arriving at Venice, the bath-house will be placed at their disposal and there will be fine sport in the plunge and in the surf. There are surely jolly times ahead for the contestants. Then will come a ride on the wonderful Ocean Front scenic railroad; and after that the party will march to the Strand Cafe, where a fine luncheon will be served to the accompaniment of an orchestra programme. Following the luncheon will be a period of rest and those who desire may dance.

Then comes the round of concessions. The party will visit the wonderful aquarium, where a special exhibit will be given by the manager and his assistants, and the seals will be fed. Following will come the "Race Through the Clouds," a trip on the "Rapids," the "Carrousels," the "Motordome," etc. The day will be chock full of delightful affairs.

Then late in the afternoon the happy contestants will again pile into the motor cars and come back to the city, in time for a rest before the formal closing exercises which will begin promptly at 8 o'clock in the evening in The Times Assembly-rooms, on the second floor of The Times Building.

An interesting programme will be given, during which Gen. Harrison Gray Otis will address the contestants and at its close he will distribute the thirty-four scholarships and the fourteen extra rewards of gold coin for incidental school expenses. Following the programme there will be an opportunity for all who wish to dance. The families and friends of all the contestants are cordially invited to attend the closing exercises.

FINAL VOTE COUNT.

It was the intention of the contest manager to publish the vote standing as far as computed this morning, but the vast volume of business coming in yesterday, and the fact that each mail last night brought in additional returns, made this entirely impracticable. As a great stack of envelopes now lies unopened in the contest headquarters, the publication of a partial count this morning would be entirely unsatisfactory. There is still the element of uncertainty as to the places in the list which each contestant will occupy. It's simply a case of "watchful waiting" until Tuesday morning—and the opportunity for all contestants to breathe long sighs of relief over the ending of the campaign.

The convention will be formally opened Monday evening with a reception in the big ballroom. During the day there will be a meeting of the Executive Committee and several other committees, and in the afternoon the visitors will be taken to Mt. Lowe.

While the delegates are attending a business session Tuesday morning, the women, numbering between 300 and 400, will be taken in automobiles to one of the biggest orange orchards in Oak Knoll, where they will be given "carte blanche" to pick and eat and carry away as much of the golden fruit as they desire.

The big social event of the occasion will be the grand ball Tuesday evening. The convention will close with an elaborate banquet on Thursday evening and Friday the Law League will leave for San Diego and will be entertained at the exposition on Saturday, which will be known as Commercial Law League Day.. OLDEST CADDIE WEDS.

Not content with two marriages in a lifetime, "Bill" Whitney, the oldest golf caddie in the world, and Mrs. I. J. H. Ware, a widow for twenty years, were yesterday doubly married in one afternoon by Judge Ben Strang.

The judge forgot to ask whether they desired a ring ceremony or not, and after he was all through marrying them they found that they had a ring left over. So the judge started over again, taking the precaution to use the ring the second time.

This seemed to rattle the muchly-married groom, for he immediately objected to being photographed.

"I don't object," remarked the bride sweetly.

"I don't want to," remarked the groom just as sweetly.

"I don't object," reiterated the bride.

Then the oldest golf caddie in the world asserted his new-born authority.

"When I say I don't want to it means that I don't want to," he snapped.

And the photographer sneaked out to the entrance of the building and focused on the door, successfully dodging a shower of rice and old boots as the happy couple emerged.

Mr. Whitney has been engaged on the Annandale Country Club links for the last nine years, and is known as the "handy man of Annandale." He is 65 years old and was divorced from a former wife two years ago. Mrs. Ware is 54 years old. She is a native of Boston and has resided here for eight years.

DIES IN NEW YORK.

E. H. Moulton, Jr., only son of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Moulton of No. 1501 South Marengo avenue, passed away in New York yesterday after an illness of three weeks with typhoid fever and pneumonia.

The young Pasadenan, who was well known in business and social circles in Los Angeles and in Pasadena, went to New York on business just six weeks ago.

When Mr. Moulton's condition grew alarming his uncle, living in Pittsburgh, was notified, and was with him when the end came.

For many years Mr. Moulton was in the stock and bond business. He was connected with the Harry C. Culver Company recently, leaving the company several months ago. He was 36 years old and was not married.

Besides his father he leaves a sister, wife of Henry S. Van Dyke, an attorney of Pasadena and Los Angeles. The body will be brought to Pasadena for burial.

CRUEL TO TIGER!

Accused of cruelty to animals because he manicured the claws of a big tiger at Universal City too close, Paul Bourgeois, animal trainer, was arraigned yesterday in Judge McDonald's court. He pleaded not guilty.

The charge of cruelty was sworn to by Humane Officer Kelly, who personally examined the big beast, which is considered the most dangerous of all the animals at Universal City. He found that the claws had been cut so short that sores had formed on the paws. This is the first time that anyone has ever been brought into court in Pasadena charged with cruelty to animals, in which a tiger figured. The case was set for Wednesday.

CITY BRIEFS.

The most unique engagement announcement ever made in Pasadena was that of Miss Ella McCluskey of North Chester street, and Samuel Smith, who informed their friends of the happy state of affairs through the medium of a mock wedding ceremony last night. Every detail of a regular wedding was carried out, even to the bride's bouquet and the wedding cake. The guests were all members of the Philathea class of the Lake-avenue Methodist Church. The date of the wedding has not been set.

Pasadena is the first city in per capita wealth in California, according to facts presented by the official organ of the League of California Municipalities, in its annual comparison just issued. For each and every man, woman and child living in Pasadena there is assessed property in the city valued at $1359. Against this property there is but 3 1-3 per cent. of bonded debt, and more than three-fourths of this is represented in the water and light departments, which are paying their own way and paying off the bonds besides.

A postcard shower has been arranged for Miss Catherine M. Townsend, of No. 467 Cypress avenue, who has been for twenty-one years a teacher in the Pasadena schools. Miss Townsend will celebrate her birthday August 12 in this novel manner, and it is expected that thousands of her former pupils will remember her on this occasion. This will be an entire surprise to Miss Townsend, as she is ill at her home and is not allowed to see the papers.

Redondo Beach.

THREE PICNIC CROWDS MINGLE AT THE BEACH.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDONDO BEACH, July 31.—Three picnic crowds beseiged this resort today and, mingling at the amusement places and on the Strand, wound up the day in a big street mardi gras, confetti battle and street dance. The spirit of the picnic was with the Los Angeles county employees, who came here 1000 strong, the occasion being an outing under the auspices of the Los Angeles County Institute of Technology.

Likewise 700 members of the Colorado State Society and about an equal number of Indianans, all or nearly all of whom are members of the Indiana State Society, reveled on the beach, in the pavilion dance hall, at the amusement places and at the mardi gras of the evening.

The baseball game scheduled to be played between the county employees and the team of the Pacific Light and Power Company was called off because a hurry call in the Sheriff's office today at about noon took away the battery, including Barney McKay, pitcher; Catcher Clea Cleveland, and Howard Byram, who was to play first base.

The programme of the day, which was in charge of E. C. Himeon, secretary of the institute, and Mrs. Himeon, a director, included racing, swimming contests, prize waltzing and lunching on the beach. Prominent in the revels of the county employees were A. L. Kemper, chief clerk of the civil service department; Judge Taft, Constable Roger Woodbury, George Wesson, a probation officer. Particularly active in the mardi gras and dancing were Miss Daisy Ryan of the Assessor's office; Miss Carrie Garrison of the Recorder's office, and Miss Jennie Shepard of the Assessor's office.

County Clerk Harry J. Lelande, County Recorder Logan and Assessor Ed Hopkins joined the crowd in the evening.

Ex-Lieut.-Gov. S. R. Fitzgerald of Colorado, now a resident of Los Angeles, addressed members of that State society, as did H. P. Forsyth, formerly of Colorado Springs, and Mrs. Samuel L. Carpenter, president of the society. The Colorado picnic crowd held a programme, including singing, foot races, swimming races and prize waltzing.

Loren Handley and Arthur Hadley of Los Angeles addressed the Hoosier crowd, as did Clarence D. Lawler, president of the Indiana State Society.

HOST OF HEELERS LOSE THEIR JOBS.

LONG BEACH'S FAITHFUL SERVANTS RULED OUT BY LAW OF RESIDENCE.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONG BEACH, July 31.—The new charter is playing havoc with city appointees. The "extra-dry" city law provides that all officers and appointees expect day laborers must have been a resident and voter for two years previous to his appointment. This bars a host of the faithful.

City Auditor Boynton today turned down salary demands for H. L. Pillsbury, E. E. Norton, Eva B. Thurn, L. Brown, A. H. Branson, John T. Cullen, W. O. Cooper, J. B. Lippincott, Zaidee Brown, city librarian; Nellie F. Christiansen, Fred Harrop, Peter Schwartz, Vito Pinto and C. E. Seeley. These, with the exception of the first two, had not come within the law as regards previous residence. Mr. Boynton declared that City Treasurer Norton or Mr. Pillsbury had not been reappointed. The Commissioners are endeavoring to find a way to retain those mentioned.

Although Miss Zaidee Brown, city librarian, is an efficient city servant she must, in the ordinary course of events, give up her job because of this queer section in the charter. The name of Mrs. Cora M. Morgan has been spoken of in connection with a successor to Miss Brown, if one is chosen. Mrs. Morgan is now acting as secretary to Commissioner of Public Affairs Cates, although Cates's daughter was regularly appointed as his secretary.

CANNED FRUIT SHIPPED EAST.

REDUCED FREIGHT RATES EAST SAVES MONEY ON FIRST CAR.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

POMONA, July 31.—The first car of canned fruit to go East from here on the new rate inaugurated by the Southern Pacific Railroad Company was shipped out today by the Sunset Canning Company. The consignment went to New York City and the shippers saved $206.60 by virtue of the new rate.

The former rate was 85 cents per 100, and the new rate is 40 cents per 100 from Pacific to Atlantic Coast. The car that was shipped today carried 99,000 pounds, or forty-nine and one-half tons. There were 1650 cases, each containing two dozen cans of fruit. Each case weighed sixty pounds.

H. W. Barnum, agent for the Southern Pacific, explains that the 40-cent rate on capacity loads was made up by the company this year voluntarily. He says that heretofore all shipments have gone to New York by rail and that several railroads have been taking a whack out of the receipts.

This year the company ships to Galveston over its own rails and then transports to New York in its own boats, getting all the freight rate and being able to charge less.

TEDDY COCKTAIL GIVES THE KICK.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONG BEACH, July 31.—In the continual round of plots and counterplots on the part of the thirsty in this city to defeat the "extra dry" laws, a new concoction came to light today. It is the "Teddy cocktail," and is composed of denaturized alcohol and paregoric. It has the kick.

Police Judge Carl V. Hawkins uncovered this latest phase of Demon Rum. Before him came W. S. Straight, a painter, who confessed to the judge that, although he took his straight in every other city, he was compelled to resort to strategy to "wet his whistle" in this dry town. He was told about the "Teddy cocktail" by another painter who had been using it for months.

Straight bought, mixed and drank the stuff. He shuddered and made a wry face but returned for more. He told Judge Hawkins that the drink had obtained a great hold on him although it was undermining his health. The court pitied the victim of a temperance drink and gave him his liberty on a 25-day suspended sentence.

Calexico.

CONCESSIONAIRES GIVEN WARNING.

REPRESENTATIVE OF CARRANZA HAS SOMETHING TO SAY.

Declares Gov. Cantu has no Authority to Approve Agreements. Eshleman Indorsed for Irrigation District Counsel—Calexico Voters Authorize School Bonds.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CALEXICO, July 31.—Over his signature as "Consul of Mexico," M. G. Paredes, Carranza representative here, this afternoon gave out the following statement:

"I wish to advise all parties concerned that contracts, concessions, agreements or real estate transactions wherein the interests of the Mexican nation are involved are subject to the consideration, approval or disapproval of the Federal government, which is being represented by virtue of the 'plan of Guadalupe' by Senor Don Venustiano Carranza, first chief of the Constitutionalist army and in charge of the executive power.

"Furthermore, the so-called Governor of the northern district of Lower California, Esteban Cantu, has no right or authority to approve of said agreements or grant said concessions, and even if he had, said transactions would have to be considered, approved or disapproved by the Federal government.

"Therefore his mere approval is entirely insufficient and will be null and void. In all those cases wherein the interests of the Mexican nation have been defrauded the persons responsible for such frauds will be held criminally liable and prosecuted according to the law.",

URGE SUCCESSOR.

The board of directors of the Farmers' and Merchants' Club of Calexico, in a special meeting this afternoon, adopted a resolution urging that the directors of the Imperial irrigation district appoint Lieut.-Gov. John M. Eshleman to succeed Marvin W. Conkling as chief consul. . Mr. Eshleman is at present associate counsel of the district.

Mr. Conkling announced yesterday that he would resign to relieve the board of any embarrassment arising from his affiliations with the Southern Pacific. In an interview Mr. Conkling urged that Mr. Eshleman be appointed to succeed him.

NEWS NOTES.

Voters today authorized $60,000 in bonds to build a new grammar school building. The vote was announced tonight as eighty against seven..

City Assessor Browne today announced the total assessed valuation of the city as $2,063,278, which is a gain of over 5 per cent., despite the decrease in real estate assessments of $116,490..

Apparently anticipating the threatened Carranzista attack on Mexicali, Gov. Esteban Cantu last night received a carload of ammunition which had been shipped from Tia Juana through the United States in bond. Col. Cantu is expected to return from that point tomorrow.

STABS ANOTHER YOUTH THREE TIMES AT SANTA ANA HOME.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA ANA, July 23.—While attempting to escape from the Detention Home, Beltram Salazar, aged 14, used a knife in his struggle with William Giese, a boy who lives at the Home and who prevented Salazar's escape. Giese was stabbed three times, once in the chest, once in the arm and once in the leg.

C. R. Munson, superintendent of the Home, came to Giese's assistance, and quickly disarmed young Salazar. This afternoon Salazar and Melvin Smith, aged 15, were taken to the State School at Whittier under commitment. They had been in trouble. Judge Thomas gave them another chance. They took an automobile at Orange that did not belong to them, and were ordered to the State School.

AFFINITY TO BLAME.

Frederick Waller, formerly a waiter at the Alexandria in Los Angeles, thinks his wife is mighty unreasonable. She has him in jail here on a charge of non-support.

"What's the use of you doing this?" he expostulated when he and his wife, Mrs. Ida Waller of Anaheim, were in Justice Cox's court. "For heaven's sake be reasonable. I have only got $7, and you know I can't get any more money. What good is it going to do you to have me put in jail?"

Something of Mrs. Waller's reasons was explained to Justice Cox when she read to him a portion of a letter written by a Chicago woman. Mrs. Waller said that the Chicago woman was the mother of Waller's affinity, and the mother-in-affinity's letter suggested that something ought to be done to cut loose connections with Mrs. Waller. Justice Cox sent Waller to jail, fixing his bail at $1000, which has not been secured. In Los Angeles Waller was sometimes known as Frederick Fairchilds.

LIES WHOLE DAY WITH BROKEN ARM.

AUTO HITS HARBOR WATCHMAN AND SPEEDS AWAY FOR THE CITY.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LOS ANGELES HARBOR, July 31.—Patrick Buynard, a watchman employed by the Miller Realty Company, was knocked down by a car on Pacific avenue last night and laid in a tent until nearly noon today before he received medical attention. He had both bones in his right forearm broken and is badly bruised about the face and chest.

Buynard was returning from San Pedro to his tent on a tract near the West Basin accompanied by a companion he knew only as "Bill." The machine that knocked him down did not stop, and the men do not know the name of the owner or the number of the car. Buynard's companion took him to the tent and promised to send a doctor to attend him this morning. He did not return and no physician arrived.

Salesmen for the real estate company found him at noon today and notified the San Pedro police station. He was treated at the Receiving Hospital and later taken to the County Hospital.

GRUDGE ASSAULT.

Because of a grudge James R. Riley, a teamster of Wilmington, assaulted Dr. Charles Cowan, a veterinary surgeon, at San Pedro this afternoon with a blacksmith's hammer. Riley had been drinking and had the hammer concealed under his coat. While Dr. Cowan was petting a dog he struck him in the head, inflicting a painful scalp wound.

Riley was locked up and will be charged with assault. He was recently arrested on a charge of cruelty to animals, and Dr. Cowan was a witness in the case. His grudge was because of the evidence given by Dr. Cowan.

PREPARING BIDS.

Negotiations are under way for cutting down that portion of Nob Hill east of the Harbor boulevard at San Pedro. Three contractors are preparing to submit bids to the several property owners for the work. By cutting this portion of the hill between the boulevard and the water front several blocks of land now suitable only for lodging-houses will be converted into valuable warehouse sites.

Unprecedented.

HOLDS INQUEST BY MEGAPHONE.

SHOUTS ACROSS RIVER AT THE JURY AND WITNESSES.

Tulare County Coroner has a Strange Experience After Drowning of Los Angeles Man in the Hills—Accidental Death Verdict. Body to be Brought Here.

Unprecedented in the annals of Tulare county was the proceeding Friday when Coroner Brooks empaneled a jury and examined witnesses by megaphone for an inquisition into the death of C. E. Butrick of this city, 55 years old, an employee of the Edison Power Company, whose body was found on the bank of the Kern River in Dry Meadows, sixty miles east of Porterville, in the mountains.

The Coroner returned to Porterville from the mountains yesterday, taking the body.

Owing to high water in the Kern River, fellow-employees were unable to cross to the spot where the body was found, and after they had been summoned by telephone through Porterville and Bakersfield, the jury and witnesses remained on the south bank of the river, while Coroner Brooks on the opposite bank administered the oath to the jury and questioned witnesses.

Mr. Butrick started from the Edison company's camp on Kern River, July 2, on a fishing trip, and although search parties worked constantly for two weeks, were unable to find a trace of him. His body was found Wednesday by fishemen several miles below the camp. He had fallen in the river and drowned.

Llewellyn G. Butrick, a son, who lives with the widow at No. 909 West Court street, said last night that he received a long-distance telephone call from his brother, Charles, acquainting him with the fact that the Coroner's jury had brought in a verdict of accidental death from drowning.

The body will be brought to this city by the son now in Porterville.. It is expected to arrive today. Funeral services will be conducted in the Faris-Carmichael parlors tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

PLAN TO OPEN SOON.

Post-Graduate School of Osteopathy Will Locate in Story Building. Quick Work.

The A. T. Still Osteopathic Welfare Association of California is losing no time in organizing for active work. On July 23 the association was formed and yesterday details were completed for the opening of the A. T. Still Post-Graduate School of Osteopathic Principles and Technique.

It was practically decided last night, that the school would be located in the Story Building. Negotiations are under way for the rental of the entire west wing of the seventh floor and as soon as the lease is signed active work of opening the new school will commence.

The new college is the result of the recent disagreement in the ranks of the State Osteopathic Association, when several of the members objected to the curriculum of the College of Osteopathic Physicians and Surgeons of this city, which they claimed was giving undue importance to the study and use of drugs. Finding their objections unsustained by the majority of the members of the association they seceded from the ranks and formed an association of their own.

Dr. Nettie Olds-Haight, president of the seceding faction, will be the president of the new college. Dr. E. R. Lloyd is to be secretary and business manager. Other osteopathic practitioners connected with the school are: L. E. and Grace Wyckoff, Dr. George Burton, Dr. E. M. Robinson and Dr. C. A. Campbell.

I CURE

PILES

Fistula and all Rectal Diseases

WITHOUT an OPERATION

By MY PAINLESS DISSOLVENT METHOD

For twenty-five years I have been curing diseases of the rectum and lower bowel. During that time my experience as hospital and railroad surgeon as college lecturer and professor, has enabled me to develop a method that is superior to others.

My method is not a "home cure" or a "correspondence treatment," but it is an application of skilled treatments administered under the most rigid antiseptic conditions in my office.

I solicit old, severe and obstinate cases of fistula, prolapsus, fissure and ulceration that have heretofore resisted all treatments employed. If you are a sufferer from rectal trouble I invite you to investigate my method thoroughly by talking or writing to any of my cured patients. If you will call at my office I will be pleased to give you the names and addresses of many well-known Los Angeles people I have cured, whom you may interview in regard to my treatment.

Read what a few well-known Southern California people have to say of my method. Many similar letters are on file in my office.

WELL-KNOWN SANTA MONICA MINISTER CURED.

This is to certify that Dr. C. H. White has cured me of a distressing hemorrhoidal ailment of 25 years' duration. His method of treatment is effective, but not severe. He has the appliances, the knowledge and the skill born of many years of specialization in this fruitful source of physical disease. He accomplishes all his claims in his advertising, and at reasonable expense.

I take pleasure in heartily commending the man and his methods.

WESLEY K. BEANS, Pastor First Methodist Episcopal Church, Santa Monica, Cal.

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE SUPERINTENDENT CURED.

My Dear Mr. White: I am thankful for the privilege of bearing witness to your ability to treat, without pain, and with success, the delicate and disabling diseases which result from sedentary work. To all who need the services of a skillful, sympathetic and experienced specialist in your line, I heartily commend you. Very sincerely yours,

ERVIN S. CHAPMAN, D.D., L.L.D., Superintendent State Anti-Saloon League.

PRESIDENT OF WHITTIER COLLEGE CURED.

For more than ten years I was a sufferer from a painful affliction, which nearly ruined my usefulness as an organizer and teacher. Dr. C. H. TO TURN FLOOD MENACE FROM AN EMPIRE OF FAIR GARDENS.

Next Ten Days to See Formal Launching of Gigantic Task in Which Great Fortune will be Spent that Many Fortunes may be Saved to Posterity.

FOLLOWING is a concise summary of the flood-control work proposed to be done in Los Angeles county by county, State and Federal government co-operating. The project is divided into four districts, with the principal divisions of work as shown. The whole work will require about five years and entail an expenditure of over $16,000,000.

Mountain district, $3,198,700 for structures and $670,200 for rights of way; including expenditures of $1,410,000 for impeding dams and contour furrows, $154,000 for rock-fill dams in Pacoima Creek, San Gabriel Canyon, Eaton Wash, etc.; $150,000 for dam across Arroyo Seco at Devil's Gate, and $1,697,000 to spread waters of Pacoima Creek and San Gabriel River to facilitate percolation.

San Fernando district, $1,619,500 for structures and $601,900 for rights of way; including conveyance of flood waters of the Tejungas through westerly channel to Los Angeles River and diversion of Pacoima Creek into main channel of Tejungas, $1,069,800; San Fernando Creek channel, $211,040; Wilson Creek channel, $336,630; riprap protection Los Angeles River, $147,420.

San Gabriel district, $4,381,000 for structures and $583,000 for rights of way, including acquisition of 2800 acres on San Gabriel cone for spreading purposes, channel 600 feet wide for San Gabriel River from canyon mouth to Lexington Wash, diversion of 12,000 second feet of water from San Gabriel into wash and thence to Rio Hondo, widening Rio Hondo to 330 feet. $2,520,700.

Coastal plain or harbor district, $3,625,200 for structures and $1,829,400 for rights of way; includes straightening and diversion of Los Angeles River from present outlet at harbor to Alamitos Bay, including two-mile dam across valley at Dominguez Junction, $3,610,200; straightening of Rio Hondo and San Gabriel to junction with Los Angeles River, $1,526,800.

Grand total of estimated expenditures, $16,508,900.

The Los Angeles County Flood Control District will automatically come into existence the 9th inst., under the provisions of an act passed by the last Legislature. Under this act, bonds with a mean life of forty years may be issued as a lien against the real property of the district, subject to a majority vote of the electorate, to do any or all work in connection with flood control.

For many years, successive Boards of Supervisors have been wrestling with the problem of giving the county protection against floods. But where plans formerly proposed had reference to only two or three of the major streams or concerned selected districts, that now under consideration treats the hydrographics of the county as a whole, with State and national aid as essentials.

The plan, in brief, is to lift the menace of overflow from 215,300 acres of land, valued conservatively at more than $50,000,000, through the expenditure, as estimated by the retiring Board of Engineers, Flood Control, of $16,508,900 in various protective measures.

To assure money for this work, the act passed by the last Legislature erects all of the county south of a line drawn east and west through Palmdale, excluding Santa Catalina and [illegible] Clemente islands, into one protection district, with bonding powers independent of the county, but with the Board of Supervisors as the executive body and responsible for all work.

The lopping off from the district of a small strip of land along the northern body of the county was to render inoperative the constitutional provision that bonds may only be issued against a governmental division by a two-thirds majority of the electorate.

The act also provides that the amount of bonds to be issued shall be determined by the Board of Supervisors on recommendation of the work necessary to be done, by an engineer or engineers appointed by the body, and shall bear interest not to exceed 6 per cent. It is also provided that if the bonds do not carry, the board may levy a direct tax of not to exceed 10 cents on the $100 of assessed valuation to carry forward the work. Such a tax would net $700,000 under present assessable valuations.

TO NAME ENGINEER.

That a flood-control engineer will be appointed by the Board of Supervisors for the district, on or shortly after the 9th inst., is certain. That nothing more than initiatory steps can be taken for some months is equally certain.

In fact, early action on a bond issue is dependent, in large measure, on whether or not the Board of Engineers for Harbors, War Department, sanctions the proposed diversion of the Los Angeles River from the harbor to Alamitos Bay through the instrumentality of a dam across the channel of this stream near Dominguez Junction.

On this score, the report of the Board of Engineers, Flood Control, says: "The authority of the Federal government in protecting navigable waters is such that all efforts to control the rivers higher up must comply with whatever plans may be adopted by the government for the protection of the harbor."

Some inkling of the attitude of the Board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors towards this diversion scheme is assured at an early date, as the members are to arrive here August 14 to spend three or four days. They will be preceded by ten days by

Why Los Angeles county needs flood control.

Several of these pictures were made in different parts of the county during the last high water and graphically illustrate the problem to be met. The Tejunga Canyon picture was made Wednesday of the past week—the first picture of the first actual field work in the giant project. It is of a flood literally made to order by the release of a large volume of water from a reservoir above, reproducing essentially the conditions prevailing in flood time.

SOUTH'S BIGGEST JOB SINCE AQUEDUCT WORK.

Topography and Climate Render Control of Floods Titanic Task.

Short, Steep Drainage Lines, Heavy Winter Rains, with Light Snows, and Whimsical Streams Call for Expenditure of Millions of Dollars and Supreme Effort. Details of Plans.

FLOOD control is not a project of today or tomorrow. It will necessitate the expenditure of millions of dollars and the girding of the loins to a supreme effort. It is the biggest project that has been broached in the Southland since the city manfully laid its hand to the aqueduct enterprise.

Due to topographic and climatic conditions, the streams of Southern California have characteristics distinct from those of the humid portion of the United States. The crest of the Coast range, whose elevations average from 5000 to 10,000 feet, is but fifty miles inland, so that the drainage lines of the streams are short, while the greater portion of the annual precipitation occurs from October to June. Moreover, except in the higher elevations, it is in the form of rain.

Normally the streams have sharp and precipitous gradients in their canyons, debouching upon detrital cones extending over gravel-filled valleys and finally reaching the sea across the flatter floor of the coastal plain. As a result, violent changes in gradients from the steep slopes of the mountains to the gentle swells of the valleys and coastal plains are the usual thing.

Added to this, the streams are generally whimsical in their disposition, due among other causes, to the natural building up of delta-like fans. Because of these detrital deposits, the streams tend to raise themselves above the surrounding country and in good time to break over their banks and make themselves new channels.

In the words of James W. Reagan of the Board of Engineers, Flood Control: "Every Southland stream carries its own construction train. If they don't like their bed they simply throw up a silt deposit and build another channel."

Regarding climate conditions, the mean annual rainfall on the Coast is about fourteen inches, increasing in intensity with elevation as the crest of the Coast range is approached until at the summit it often averages thirty or more inches. The result is about like concentrating a cloudburst on a steep roof, with an inadequate supply of down-spouts. It is certain that some of it will slop over.

As a result, Southland floods are violent, erratic and usually of short duration, passing by in a few hours. In contrast are the streams of Central California, whose sources lie in the high Sierras, where precipitation is almost entirely in the form of snow, and where forest cover affords an absorbent medium.

"The frequency of destructive floods," says the report of the Board of Engineers, Flood Control, "is a matter of great moment in considering the justifiable extent of remedial work."

Combined testimony in the case of Daneri vs. The Southern California Railway Company, Superior Court of Los Angeles county, 1897, was that there were heavy floods in the Los Angeles River in 1825, 1832, 1862, 1867, 1884, 1886 and 1889. The flood of 1889 was the heaviest, with the possible exception of that of 1884. At one time, according to data collected by James W. Reagan, the flood waters of the Los Angeles and San Gabriel rivers covered all the country from the Dominguez Hills to Westminster, in Orange county.

Though it was the property loss in the 1914 flood, estimated at $7,600,000, that dictated the formation of the Board of Engineers, Flood Control, data collected by that body show that the ratio of the 1889 flood and the 1914 flood in the Los Angeles River was as 165 to 100 and that of the San Gabriel River as 177 to 100. Or, put

IMPROVED BUSINESS CONDITIONS REFLECTED IN THE ADVERTISING COLUMNS OF TODAY'S TIMES.

THE UNPRECEDENTED volume of advertising printed in this issue of The Times is indicative of a big, far-reaching business revival in Los Angeles.

Today's Times contains more interesting store news, a greater variety of merchandise bargains, more full-page advertisements, and a larger number of other separate advertising announcements than have ever before been printed in a single midsummer issue of any other newspaper in the United States.

The twenty-two full-page announcements in this issue of The Times exceed by three pages the largest number of page advertisements ever before printed by The Times in a single issue.

Most of the twenty-two full-page advertisements printed today will not appear in any other newspaper, and the significance of their publication in The Times lies in the fact that merchants, tradesmen and other buyers of advertising space watch the results obtained from publicity mediums as carefully as they do their daily receipts, and they use only the newspaper that brings them the quickest and most satisfactory results.

The midsummer season invariably shows a depression in the East, but the enterprising, alert merchants here, recognizing the remarkable purchasing power of high-class newspaper circulation, buy new goods every month in the year and quickly turn them into cash by using The Times' advertising columns.

The Times readers—rational, industrious, go-ahead people—constitute the bone and sinew of Los Angeles and Southern California, and their loyalty to Times advertisers is primarily responsible for The Times regularly overwhelming and submerging all of its local contemporaries and overtopping every other newspaper in the United States in the volume of advertising printed.

MAKING LOS ANGELES A CENTER OF RADIANT CHRISTIAN EFFORT.

The Bible Institute, with Added Physical and Spiritual Equipment, Prepares to Give Free Training to Increasing Army of Religious Experts.

THESE are the main features of the comprehensive and unselfish work performed by the Bible Institute of Los Angeles:

Training is given free to the various specialists in religious work—Ministers, home and foreign missionaries, Sunday-school teachers, pastors' assistants, Bible women, colporters, Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A. secretaries, gospel singers, choir leaders, organists and pianists.

Religious services are conducted in the great auditorium of the institute, seating 4200 persons; on the street, in rescue missions, for seamen at Los Angeles Harbor, in the Mexican and other foreign quarters; in factories, car barns and shops; in the oil fields, in jails and penitentiaries and in near-by towns and cities.

A hotel for men and one for women—with 647 rooms in all; a cafeteria and laundry with service given at cost.

The King's Business, a monthly magazine and official organ of the institute with a circulation of more than 100,000.

A print shop is maintained for printing Testaments, tracts and other religious literature, the profits of which are devoted to the free distribution of religious literature.

A faculty composed of men and women distinguished in evangelistic work: Dr. R. A. Torrey, dean of the faculty, was superintendent of the Moody Institute in Chicago for fifteen years; Dr. William Evans, assistant dean, noted Welsh preacher; Rev. John H. Hunter, secretary of the faculty and instructor, was connected with the Moody Bible Institute for seventeen years; T. C. Horton, superintendent and instructor, successful religious specialist; R. Charles Lewis, superintendent of men, was called from a successful business career; and Miss Mary Bierce Hill, superintendent of women, Y.W.C.A. secretary and twelve years a missionary in India.

Looking upon Los Angeles as a center for radiant religious effort as well as culture and commerce, the Bible Institute, with its thirteen stories of concrete resting on the solid rock of Christian faith, is preparing to exert new energies this fall in its work of training, free of cost, a Lord's army of specialists who will carry the gospel into neglected places, near and far. The institute which is unique among the world's similar institutions will begin the autumn term with greatly extended influence.

The faculty has been increased and important additions made to the physical equipment, the total value of which is more than $1,000,000. As recently announced, Dr. William Evans, the noted Welsh evangelist, has been appointed assistant dean. Other additions will be announced in the near future.

Dr. Evans, who has become known throughout the world for his eloquence and Bible learning, is unquestionably one of the most polished lecturers on the American platform, as well as one of the most thorough Bible scholars, presenting the full gospel in a most attractive and instructive form. He was the first graduate of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, since which time he has spent fourteen years as instructor in the Bible course in the same institution, and has been for many years lecturer under the World's Bible Conference.

Students are enrolling from various States in the Union and many foreign lands. They come to Los Angeles to learn how to best preach the gospel—or sing it. Here they will learn "to tell the story" sweetly, intelligently, effectively.

"I know of no other city on the globe where there is at the present time so great a demand on the one hand, and on the other so great an opportunity and promise for sound and solid Bible work and aggressive Christian effort as in Los Angeles," Dr. Torrey declared. "Not only is Los Angeles to dominate the Pacific Coast of the United States, but its influence upon Japan, China and Korea will be immeasureable for good or evil.

THE CRITICAL HOUR.

"This is the critical hour. Those who believe in the Bible and its peerless power to influence not only individuals but also society as a whole and the commercial life of nations, must seize the present opportunity at any cost. Not only must we proclaim in the power of the Holy Spirit, the pure gospel of Jesus Christ to the hundreds of thousands who have already come to Los Angeles, but we must train men and women to proclaim the same gospel to the millions of native-born Americans and the foreigners from all lands who are soon to flow in upon us.

"Our work is broad. We must also train thousands of our bright and most consecrated men and women to go forth to the two nations who live just across the Pacific, and who are now just awakening from the sleep of centuries, and who promise to be two of the greatest, if not the greatest, nations on earth."

Looking at the fields of opportunity, the directorate of the institute was encouraged to "expect great things from God," and attempt them. The magnificent structure, standing in the heart of Los Angeles, is the monument of their faith, hope and wisdom. In its simplicity and completeness the institute is a lasting honor to the spirit of Christian enterprise, liberality and economy.

The vast fireproof structure is made entirely of reinforced concrete. The two thirteen-story dormitories form the north and south wings of the building, and the dome of the great auditorium reaches to the height of ten stories. The dome, linked with the dormitories, one for men and one for women, make an imposing architectural feature.

The entrance to the building is one of massive dignity. Seven graceful arches, reaching to the height of three stories, give access to the vestibule. Five entrances lead into a spacious and artistic foyer. Three impressive arches of great height connect the foyer and the auditorium. At the extremes of the foyer two taller arches communicate with long cloisters which lead to the platform without attracting the attention of the audience.

The plan for facilitating the movement of great crowds in and out of the building is ideal. The heating and ventilating systems are the result of recent scientific investigation. The shell-shaped ceiling over the platform and the soundproof felt which covers the walls make ideal acoustic facilities.

There are committee-rooms, several smaller auditoriums, and not-to-be-despised kitchen and dining-room equipment with which more than 600 persons may be served at a single sitting. The prices of the institute laundry are below those current in the city, and have provoked a protest from large laundries which are seeking to maintain old schedules.

REACHES OUT.

It is not the physical greatness of this remarkable institution, however, which the managers desire to exploit, although in that respect it is not surpassed in America, if in the world. Founded upon the whole Bible, and with the Divine Christ as its cornerstone, the institute reaches out into every avenue of Christian endeavor, expounding to men and women the old gospel in its entirety.

The Bible Institute's great interest in home affairs is shown by its various departments, full accounts of which are published monthly in The King's Business. Among the most important of the departments is that of the Bible women, of whom there are a dozen or more giving their entire time to visitation in the homes of men and women whose lives, by one means or another, may have been touched by the gospel message.

Noon meetings are held in many of the shops of the city, under the superintendence of David Cant, who likewise gives his whole time to the work. When an ironworker, a railroad man or street car employee shows an interest in spiritual matters his name and address are taken and placed in the hands of one of the Bible women, who follows up the vantage ground by calling at the man's home, and in most cases she is not only welcomed to the home, but becomes a close friend of the woman of the household, and the usual result is to win the man and his family to the better life.

The joint work of these two departments alone is acknowledged to be of inestimable benefit to the city of Los Angeles, in bringing happiness to many homes where the struggle for a livelihood gives little opportunity for recreation or diversion.

YOKEFELLOWS' HALL.

Yokefellows' Hall at Eighth and Los Angeles streets, under the superintendence of William Sloan, holds nightly meetings and feeds free of charge all hungry men who apply. Free lodging is also furnished men who are without a place to sleep. Here the bootblacks' Sunday-school meets every Sunday morning. It is under the patronage of Charles M. Stimson, the millionaire philanthropist, who eats his breakfast every Sunday morning with the boys, and then talks to them on the lesson for the day. The school averages an attendance of about 100, and is developing useful men out of boys who would otherwise prove a menace to the city's welfare.

The Spanish mission on New High street is conducted on the same plan by L. H. Jamison. At Los Angeles harbor, Oscar Zimmerman is in charge of the mission. Mrs. L. Manson devotes her entire time to work among the Jews, which consists of visitation among the families and the maintenance of a Sunday-school among the children. R. C. Isbell and coworkers have charge of the work in the oil fields. Equipped with horses and a camp wagon, they travel throughout the several oil districts, holding meetings in the camps, in a tent erected for the purpose, and doing personal work among the families.

The extension department is under the care of George W. Hunter, who works among the men in the two penitentiaries at San Quentin and Folsom, and is in charge of the booth which the institute is now maintaining at the Panama-Pacific Exposition. All these departments are without any source of revenue except that which comes from voluntary contributions.

OPIUM OR NO OPIUM.

Declaring that he robbed while under the influence of opium and therefore was not responsible for the crime of which he was convicted, Attorney W. J. Ford made an eloquent plea before Judge Cabaniss yesterday for Ernest Lightfoot. Lightfoot was accused of having held up and robbed H. J. Robinson on June 23 of a diamond valued at $200. The attorney stated that Lightfoot has a wife and babies and that he should be admitted to probation as he will leave the drug alone in future and will lead an upright life. Judge Cabaniss sentenced Lightfoot to three years in San Quentin.

The Fishermen's Club.

INSTITUTE GROWS FROM A SMALL BIBLE CLASS.

THE Bible Institute of Los Angeles had its actual beginning nine years ago at Immanuel Presbyterian Church in the meeting of a class of seventeen young men under the leadership of T. C. Horton, and organized under the name of "The Fishermen's Club." From that time until the present the class has met every Monday night without a single interruption. It speedily grew in membership to 150 young men, all its energy being devoted to the study of the Bible and active participation in aggressive personal work for winning their friends and associates to a Christian life. The age-limit for membership in the club, is from 17 to 30 years.

Almost simultaneously with the organization of the Fishermen's Club, Mrs. T. C. Horton organized her class of girls into the "Lyceum Club," which had even a more phenomenal growth than her husband's class. It grew to a membership of about 300 girls, principally from among office and store girls, that number still considering themselves members of the club, although the average weekly attendance is between 150 and 200.

Mrs. Horton and her club of girls have met every Tuesday night without interruption since the organization was perfected, the teacher being mother, companion, counselor and sympathizer, to her intensely loyal and earnest flock. Many a homesick motherless girl has been brought in by friends, and cheered and brightened by the hearty fellowship of the club. It is said that there has never been a meeting of the club at which one or more girls have not for the first time announced their intention to live a Christian life. There are a number of inner circles of five members each, pledged to daily prayer and scripture reading. There are committees to look after the sick and sorrowing members and to visit and send messages to absent members.

From the success of these two Bible classes grew the Bible Institute of Los Angeles, their leaders having succeeded in interesting Christian men and women in the development of the great enterprise, and today it is the greatest institution of its kind in the world. Each of the clubs has a commodious clubroom in the new building, which is open at all times to them and their friends.

Many members of the Fishermen's Club have made their mark as ministers of the gospel, and are now among the efficient men of the pulpit. In their interest in the world-wide mission of the gospel of Christ, they have likewise done perhaps more than their share.

The two clubs combined have sent twelve missionaries to Africa, eleven to China, one to Japan, two to South America, two to India, and an even dozen are waiting to be sent to the various fields.

What a magnificent indorsement this record is of the great work which the Bible Institute of Los Angeles has set out to do—the free education of men and women, that they may give their life in presenting the gospel in far-off lands. It is a record to be proud of—twenty-eight already sent to the world-wide field, and twelve others waiting for benevolent Christian men and women to provide the means for their going!

There have been but two deaths among those sent out. "Tom" Hannay, Jr., who won his spurs as missionary to the men working on the construction of the Los Angeles aqueduct, and afterward going to Africa, was the first to succumb to the fever. "Tom" will be remembered by hundreds of men in and around Los Angeles by his cheerful life among them, after he was won from a wild life and became the Christian friend of men who needed just such a one. The other was Hugh Wallace, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Wallace of Hollywood, whose death occurred in April last, a full account of which was given in The Times.

Which is extending a commanding Christian influence into broader fields, and some of the consecrated men and women who are directing the work of giving free training to a diversified army of religious experts. None of the various departments of the $1,000,000 religious establishment yield a profit to any one except God. The hotel, laundry and printing plant are not yet on a paying basis. The deficit is made up by voluntary contributions. When these departments yield a profit the money will be used in the work of giving free instruction to evangelists and in distributing religious literature.

EQUIPMENT OF ITS WORKERS.

Bible Institute Graduates Have Seven Qualifications for Service.

The main object of the Bible Institute, stated in general terms, is to give its students a practical working knowledge of the Bible and of gospel music. It aims to send out men and women who have at least these seven Christian qualifications: Consecration, brotherly love, familiarity with the scriptures, an appreciation of the value of of music in religious services, willingness to endure hardships, energy and the baptism of the Holy Spirit.

GOD GETS ALL THE PROFIT.

The Bible Institute Gives Expert Training Free from Cost.

It should be understood by the public, that there is no commercialism about the Bible Institute of Los Angeles. Its training school is free to all comers. There is no such thing as profit-bearing stock. The proceeds from its men's and women's hotels, dining-room, laundry and printing plant are not yet sufficient to cover the maintenance expense, the balance being secured from voluntary contributions. Should there ever be a surplus of funds from from any of these sources, it will be devoted to missionary work and the free distribution of religious literature.

Into the By-ways.

"GLAD TIDINGS" FOR THE MANY.

Bible Institute Workers Go to Neglected Places.

Missionary Meets Success in the Oil Fields.

Special Work Among Seamen at Los Angeles Harbor.

Into the by-ways which are neglected by other religious organizations the Bible Institute delights t carry the "glad tidings." R. C. Isabell, superintendent of th work in the oil fields, gives this a count of his labors:

"After closing our work at Co linga, we made a hurried trip to th Kern River field, from whence w had received a Macedonian cal 'Come over and help us.' We preache the same old gospel that Paul pr claimed and have had blessed resul

IN THE OIL FIELDS.

"A large number have joined th church by confession of faith. Chur letters have been sent for for a 'fa ily altar' has been established in number of homes. We could t many blessed incidents in conne tion with our work in this field.

"Mothers, who cared naught f church or God's claim and ran aft dances and all the other attractio the devil has to offer, were sound converted and brought into th church. A man, who was addict to the drink habit and had gone ho and driven his wife out of the hou with a butcher knife, was convert and began the victorious life.

"Another man, who had forbidd his wife to go to church, was so u der conviction that he asked her f giveness for the past and asked th Christians to pray for him. The have been scores of conversions. Th second Sunday about thirty Christi came forward and fully surrende to God. One man expects to prep for the ministry. Many eyes w wet with tears as the spirit broug home the wonderful mercy of th Father. A Bible class has b started."

Recently, Oscar Zimmermann, s perintendent of work at Los Ange Harbor, and his helpers boarded number of new steamers and m hundreds of seamen, most of th unacquainted with religion. In m instances the evangelists were recei with courtesy.

WORK FOR SEAMEN.

"An elderly man was found in h cabin, resting from work down i hot engine-room and seemingly bro ing over something," Mr. Zimm mann said. "He said to the work 'I met you before, a long time a and so an introduction was not n sary. His face was bright a said, 'They will be very happy I'll go to church now when I at home.' "

PRISON BIBLE CLASSES.

The work of the Extension De ment has reached out as far a State penitentiaries. Speaking of work there, George W. Hunter s

"I am hoping to see a well-or ized class at Folsom like the on San Quentin. One difficulty has met with, however, in the fact the Bibles which were availabl the use of the men and which w presented to the prison by the S ramento County Christian Ende Union have no cross references. the study requires constant refe to other passages of scripture would be a great help if the me of the class could be supplied Scofiled Bibles.

"The development of the work San Quentin is steady, new me ing constatntly added as the ones are paroled or discharged. members of the class are doing sionary work all the time, seeking interest the new men in religion.

"It has been my privilege to many new men to Christ during last few months. Members of class find many ways of helping in work. For instance, one who artist paints cards with a pencil passes them to the men in the who appear to be downcast."

BIBLE WOMEN.

The work of the Bible women is directed by Mrs. T. C. Horton of the Superintendent of the Inst is regarded as especially importan the faculty. These missionaries the homes of the needy.

"The woman asked, 'How di happen to come here?' My reply that before I had started out I asked God to lead me to a heart. Then she said, 'Well, He ly must have meant for you to here as I rarely ask a stranger in I rarely open the door to people appear to be peddlers.' God wil our meeting together when He o ed that door so readily to one was in need."

GROCERS PLAN BEACH PICNIC.

Will Spend Thursday at the Water's Edge.

Ocean Park to Turn Herself Over to Visitors.

Special Programme of Many Stunts Arranged.

The grocers are going to shut up their stores next Thursday and have a holiday. The occasion is to be the second annual picnic of the Southern California Retail Grocers' Association, to be held on the pier at Ocean Park, and every grocer in Southern California has been invited to attend, whether he is a member of the association or not.

Mayor Sebastian has issued a request to all the grocers to close shop on that day, and suggests to the housewives that they buy all their supplies for Thursday on Wednesday, just as they buy on Saturday for Sunday. The Mayor has accepted an invitation from the grocers to attend the picnic and is slated for a short talk.

Chief Snively and such of his officers as desire to go are also to be special guests of Secretary N. P. Olsen. Judge Thomas White is to be the orator of the day, and he is to speak on Sunday closing and inaugurate the campaign which the association proposes to make to close all grocery stores on the Sabbath, both because of the moral effect and because the grocers need one day of rest a week to be better fitted to attend to their business.

The pier has been turned over to the grocers for the day, concessions and all, and a song written especially for the occasion will be dedicated to the grocers. It is expected the picnic will be the largest at Ocean Park this season.

The feature of the day will be the marriage of a eugenic couple on the platform of the pier. The pair having the best qualifications will be selected. They will be presented with $25 worth of groceries to start housekeeping.

Following is the programme:

A Hard Luck Story.

[Kansas City Journal:] For a series of genuine hard luck incidents, it would be difficult to surpass those of a young woman resident of Deepwater. Having gone to the cistern to pump a pail of water, the platform broke, letting her fall into the water, which was more than ten feet deep.

When she came to the surface she grasped the pump chain. The chain broke. She next caught hold of the cistern pipe and it gave way. The woman's father then came to her assistance and lowered a rope. The rope broke and she went under again.

Finally a ladder was obtained and the bedraggled maiden climbed to safety.

NETHERLANDS ISSUES CALL.

Members of 1915 Class are Summoned Home to the Colors.

The Dutch government, through H. L. Schutte, acting Vice-Consul of the Netherlands for Southern California and Arizona, has summoned all Netherlanders, born in 1895 and living in this district, to join their colors in the Netherlands. Following is the text of Mr. Schutte's call:

"By royal decree, all Netherlanders living in Southern California and Arizona, born in 1895, have to join the colors.

"All men registered for the 1915 class, unless for some reason exempt, have to serve, as the transcription has been abolished, and report in due time to the Queen's commissary in the province where they are registered for the militia. All others have to report to said commissary forthwith.

Autumn Waists

A mere sprinkling or—but pointing to definite changes

One of the most delightful spots in the store tomorrow will be the waist section.

Only a few of the autumn waists are in—but enough to refresh the mind, and to show the sort of changes we may expect later on.

Georgette crepe is going to be the fashionable fabric for afternoon and evening waists. It has pushed chiffon and chiffon-cloth aside for several seasons, and this coming autumn will be better than ever.

All sorts of soft silk will be worn—what silk departments call Satin de Luxe, and the waist department calls Soiree, is probably second in favor. It is soft and very brilliant in finish, and altogether a charming and delightful shiny silk.

Let us see how fashion has treated these two silks this year:

She has set the sleeve in—or given us what we call the "set-in" sleeve.

The sleeves are all long—convertible collars are still good, and the flat collar is new.

Some of the finest waists are embroidered in very simple but very heavy and effective designs. All waists open up the front.

There are dark silk plaid waists, soft taffeta, generally, and some of Georgette crepe, as dark and serviceable as though they were made of gunny sacking!

And the styles are simple.

The greatest variety will be found at $5, but some of the embroidered waists are $10 and $12, according to their kind.

Autumn Dress Goods Are In

Dress goods are divided in two chief classes; staples and novelties

The staples are those weaves that have been worn, more or less, ever since the flood; the novelties are those marvelous ideas that flash across the mind of a genius, set down and made to live in wool or silk or some combination that serves to express his brilliance best.

Just about a year ago the world stood almost petrified at even the possibility of a war in Europe. Today the war is a year old.

The demand for wool is even greater than it was a year ago, but less wool is grown—fewer men devote their time to producing it—so the prices on practically all grades have risen.

The situation is new. Nobody could say: "When this happened before, wool did so and so." Such a condition never existed before. Every store had to decide for itself what it was going to do about getting its Woolen Dress Goods.

Some stores felt there could be no shortage—that the industries of the various countries would be shielded. Some thought it would be a short war and that by the time they needed more woolen dress goods the war would be over and prices normal. There were almost as many theories as stores. But very few bought for the coming season early enough to take advantage of the prices that ruled a year ago!

We did. We bought our staple dress goods before prices advanced.

We have broadcloths at $1.50 that will be this winter's $2 grade and the colors are the fashionable colors of the coming season.

Our serges—bought before the rise in wool—as good this year as last, at $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 up to $3.00.

These are from 37½c to 50c better in quality than could be sold now at these prices if we had not seen things as we did.

Gabardine, one of the most highly thought of of all dress goods, is here at the old prices in the new colors.

Whipcord, which promises to be one of the leading weaves of the season, is here at less, by a quarter, than if we had waited to buy instead of buying as we did before the rise.

Our patrons will have every penny's worth of our advantage in these staples. Nothing will be marked up because we bought low. Every yard we have — and we have enough for the entire season—will be sold by us as we bought it—at the prices that prevailed before the war.

Shepherd Checks 40c

Twenty-five pieces of 39-inch checks, including black-and-white, brown-and-white, red-and-white, green-and-white, and blue-and-white.

The Extreme New Thing in Corsets

"The Military-Front"

The first real change of importance, since the straight front corset came in, will be found in these higher-busted, shorter-hipped corsets only now arriving.

There is a slight curve at the waist, but the effect is to "set the figure up"—and to give to the diaphragm that support that the corset with the low bust did not give.

The military front comes from Paris, where military clothes are worn on the streets, and where the "princess" fashions bid fair to hold sway at night.

It is the last word—the model that will give distinction to women and gowns this winter—for no gown, however distinctive or costly can be distinguished on a poorly corsetted woman. Ask to see it when you come — $5.00 — made of batiste.

The Basement Salesroom

Los Angeles expects unusual things of this store—taste, quality and a certain standard and character—in the goods we sell that is not generally exacted.

This reputation means that the Basement Salesroom is never off guard regarding these things. That merchandise sold underprice is as carefully chosen as that sold at full prices at the height of the season.

You will see this expressed in the delightfully cool dresses that are to be sold tomorrow at such a low price that mere print fails to represent them fairly. They are not commonplace, in either style or fabric—they are not meant to wear in the kitchen. They are definitely fine and women who need pretty, cool, delightful little dresses for hot days in the country or on the porch will make no mistake in expecting to find just that sort of dress in this lot.

COALING AT SEA.

A Transport Cable Between the Collier and Warship Will Transfer Sixty Tons of Coal Per Hour.

[Tit-Bits:] There are a large number of British battleships guarding the shipping routes on the high seas which must not relax their vigilance for one moment. On this account some means has had to be devised to supply the vessels with coal without the necessity of steaming back to port. As the sea wardens cannot come to fetch their fuel the fuel has to be taken to them, and by means of a very ingenious device tons of coal can be transported onto our battleships whilst they are traveling through heavy seas at twelve knots per hour without their activities being in any way interfered with.

A collier packed to the hatches with coal gets into touch by wireless with a battleship whose bunkers need replenishing. On sighting the mother vessel the supply ship maneuvers until it is about 400 feet astern of the battleship. The collier then dispatches a small boat which carries cables, one set of which stretches from the masthead of the supply vessel. The lines are paid out as the boat advances, and when it reaches the warship the cables are made fast on the port and starboard sides of her stern. The lines being brought to the required tension, the two ships travel in a straight line fastened together, while from the mast of the collier to the deck of the warship stretches a transport cable for carrying coal bags. Sacks of coal, in loads, weighing a ton, are hoisted from the foot of the collier's mast to a platform at its head, below which a net is spread to protect deck hands from falling pieces of coal, which might happen to come loose before the sacks are dispatched. By means of wheels running on the cable the load is forced by automatic winches along the sloping transport line at the rate of 3000 feet per second. On reaching the deck of the battleship the load is automatically released, and the transporter starts on its return journey to the collier. This apparatus enables sixty tons of coal to be carried every hour across the gap of water separating the supply ship from the battleship. The great advantage of the system is that both vessels during the operations can move at the rate of twelve knots per hour. The movements of the loads of coal are controlled by two transport winches mounted on the collier, a single lever operating the forward and backward journeys of the carrying device.

EXIT THE NAPKIN RING.

The Relics of a Departed Age are a Gentle Reminder of a Less Fastidious Generation than the Present.

[New York Times:] It is understood that the National American Suffrage Association takes just pride in the opportunity it has afforded to its members to dispose of their superfluous napkin rings, which is to say all the napkin rings they possess. The whole melting pot plan fires the imagination. In Germany the women and children are bestowing upon the government all the copper and iron heirlooms of the land to be transformed into ammunition. But the suffragists here, like the matrons of the storied past, are fairly tearing from their fair arms and fingers and bodices the gold and silver ornaments which have adorned them in order to raise money to carry on their bloodless war. The sacrifice is splendid, and as the rings, brooches, chains, gold mesh bags and ornamental combs are tumbled into the melting pot these contributors to the cause cannot fail to feel the thrill of joy that is often the only recompense of true heroism.

But for napkin rings. They are relics of a departed age, reminders of the era of the Saturday night bath, the old folks' concert and the painted panoramas of the Nile. They abide now in out-of-the-way corners, tarnished and forgotten, bands of old silver, often affectionately inscribed at the command of givers long since turned to dust. They are the sort of reminders of a gentler but less fastidious generation that we do not like to part with except for some good reason and have no desire to keep. The serial napkin went long ago. To the melting pot, by all means, with the rings, and that they may melt up into millions of dollar's worth of silver is our sincere wish.

THE JEW IN AMERICA.

ness Activities of the United States. Loyal to His Adopted Country.

[Leslie's:] With the large place the Jews have in the life of this country at present we are well acquainted, but we have seldom thought of their activity in the colonial period of our history or in the early years of the republic. At the twenty-third annual meeting of the American Jewish Historical Society, held in New York City, the first day's session was devoted to the activity and influence of Jews, mostly of Portuguese stock, during our colonial and revolutionary periods. One paper brought out the part played by the Gratz brothers, Jewish merchants of Philadelphia, in the trade development of the Ohio and Mississippi valleys. A paper read by Dr. Harold Korn of New York gave the results of a careful study of advertisements in the newspapers of New York and Massachusetts from 1761 to 1789, showing the extent and the varied nature of Jewish mercantile activity at that period. Another paper brought out the part played by a Jew—Moses M. Hays—in the introduction of Free Masonry into the country. Secretary Friedenberg, as the result of extended research, reported that when the revolution came, the Jews, almost without exception, took the American side. "So far as is known," he said, "there were only two Jewish families among the United Empire Loyalists." Scattered over all the face of the earth, it has generally been true that the Jews as a people have been loyal to the land they have adopted, and this sometimes in the face of religious persecution.

The sole reason for The Times regularly printing more classified advertising than any other newspaper in the world is the fact that this newspaper gives its "liner" advertising patrons quicker and more satisfactory results than any other newspaper in America.

AHA! DISCOVERED!

Kansas farmers will harvest 115,700,000 bushels of wheat this year. Now we know what is the matter with Kansas. It is too blamed opulent.

SAFEST IN PRISON.

Wilson insists that Zapata release an American editor in Mexico City. If we were in Mexico City we very much doubt whether we would care about being released there. We might then believe in safety first.

HAVE ALREADY SUFFERED.

A French court has ruled that the two natives on Ivory Coast who ate a commercial traveler must be executed. We should think offhand that anybody who had performed this task had been automatically punished.

CHEAP MONEY.

Carranza dollars are worth 5 cents and Villa dollars are valued at 1 cent each on the New York market. Wall street evidently believes in Woodrow without believing in Carranza and Villa for Woodrow. There isn't going to be any combine.

TRUTH SIMPLY EXPRESSED.

Someone has made an absurd little picture of a half-dozen babies weeping in different keys and twisting their chubby faces in many kinds of distress, while the caption reads, "This Is a Helluvaworld. We Want Peace!" Now this really tells the story of the war exceedingly well. It is the next generation that will perhaps suffer most.

BEING FAIR TO SOCIETY.

We glory in Judge Monroe's determination never to permit a married woman who has been divorced to change her name in cases where there are children. Marriage is for the organization and respect of society, and people who escape a condition that is personally painful must still respect what that relation may have meant to society.

A GRAND OLD MAN.

William Winter is now at work in Los Angeles. We are inclined to regard him with great pride as one of our grand institutions and we want to say that, while his position as dramatic critic of the New York Tribune for fifty years made him the greatest of all critics with the possible exception of Coleridge, he should be equally as dear to the American public for his beautiful verse. America never produced a sweeter minor singer. It is something to the American boy to see this man of 80 under contract to produce at least two books each year.

ANOTHER TRICK.

When the idol of the heathen Hindu fails to respond to the prayer of a good crop the disgruntled farmer pulls the wooden god down from his pedestal and chops him up for firewood. Hiram will escape the hatchets of Progressive nonpartisans because he is unavailable for firewood. He is too green to burn.

Just now Hiram and his bunco organs are frantic with delight because of their discovery that the defeat by referendum of the nonpartisan law will impart vitality to other nonpartisan laws that will make the election of a Senator and Congressman as nonpartisan as that of State and county officers, and that this will put an end to the Republican party.

There is no probability of the Republican party in California being extirpated by any nonpartisan law, because there is nothing in any law to prevent a few Republicans issuing a call for an old-fashioned convention where a platform could be adopted and nominations made.

It is true that the nominees of the convention could not have their party designations attached to their names on the official ballots, but Republicans are fairly intelligent, and newspapers are filled with information, and voters would not lack knowledge as to who had been nominated by their party conventions and would vote right.

FREE TO EXERCISE JUDGMENT.

A local judge has decided that Avalon is a free port. It is indeed well to establish this as a principle, yet, with this principle recognized, it may be as well for the people of Avalon not to accept their freedom as a privilege that may be used against their own welfare. It should never be made the excuse for the frequent landing of all sorts of small craft that are not trustworthy in that somewhat difficult channel. If this is done there will some day be a fearful toll of life in payment of the mistake.

Commercially, Avalon has never found it profitable to escape from the paternal oversight of the company whose enterprise established a town upon this charming island. Whenever they have done so they have suffered discomfort from the company's neglect and the quality of the entertainment they have had to offer to the public has so deteriorated as to be forbidding.

Avalon should be absolutely free and the time will come when this freedom can be put on a most practical basis, but such a thing must never be done in a cheap way; only large boats that are absolutely safe should cross the channel and such boats will bring thousands of people of a good class who will not land for an hour, but will remain for half a day, many of whom will stay over night. The small boat is almost obliged to return immediately in order to make the passage within a given time.

TAXPAYER VS. TAX-EATER.

Curiously and wonderfully framed are some of the arguments advanced by administration newspapers in support of certain pet political measures. They are beginning to abandon their position that in State affairs allegiance should be given to men in place of to measures; their stock of arguments in favor of the Young nonpartisan bills is running pitifully low and appeals to sectional prejudices are beginning to appear.

The Sacramento Bee is of the opinion that the nonpartisan bill will strengthen the liquor forces in the State, for the reason that it will permit them to combine on candidates without any confusion of other national or State issues. In other words, it desires a law that will help keep the State wet, and that such shall be the only test of the fitness of a State candidate. The San Francisco Bulletin favors the Young bill because it will give the labor unions, of which it is the sponsor, an opportunity to combine all their forces on candidates who shall be pledged to swallow whole the legislative programme of the walking delegates. Progressive papers in some of the "dry" counties in this section of the State urge the support of the bill because it will enable the Prohibitionists to make common cause against Demon Rum. The Fresno Republican favors the bill because it will enable electors to vote for men in place of for measures—Editor Rowell is the last to hold to that argument, which has proved unpopular because it is so obviously opposed to common sense. Now comes a local Progressive organ with an appeal to support the Young bill because—

"No one who is familiar with the political history of the State fails to recognize the complete identification of the reactionary elements that are behind this referendum with the evil system of plutocratic government that oppressed the State for many generations."

Such argument has about the weight and density of the material of which diaphanous gowns are made. It is a patent fact that signatures by the tens of thousands can be secured to any bad petition provided its proponents are willing to pay ten cents a name for them. When the red light abatement law was assailed signatures were easily secured for the reason that the interests opposed to that law were willing to pay for names. If these same interests were radically opposed to the Young bills, or if the three-headed giant were desirous of seeing them beaten, the proper number of signatures would have been filed with the Secretary of State weeks ago. Five thousand dollars in cash would turn the trick. This three-headed monster is known to have contributed more than $20,000 to the Progressive campaign fund last year; but the fact that no paid solicitors are working is prima facie evidence that it has not contributed $5000 or any other sum to defeat the Young bills.

There is food for sober reflection in the fact that it was not easy to get these petitions in circulation; that the forces opposed to the withdrawal from the people of the right of free association in politics were not well organized. That there is a strongly-defined sentiment against the Young bills is evidenced by the fact that the circulators of the referendum petitions report that not one person in four approached declined to sign them. But it is in the crystallization of this feeling that the difficulty arises. The administration could secure 46,000 signatures to almost anything in three days. There are 5000 persons on the State pay roll; most of their jobs are controlled from the Governor's office. Four thousand of these could be turned loose with the petitions, as they were turned loose to do politics last year, and they would draw an average of $5 a day each from the State for their work.

This organization of tax-eaters can be combated successfully only by counter-organization. It is to prevent such organization that the Young bills were lobbied by the administration through the Legislature. The big special interests of the State are all organized, and largest of them all is that brigade of tax-eaters that consumes $20,000,000 a year of State money and twice that amount in county funds. Against this army of tax-eaters there must be some organized force of taxpayers or we shall be still more abjectly at their mercy than at present. The whole object of the Young bills is to prevent this organization; that is why his bills were dubbed in the Legislature the "officeholders' delight." If the Young primary election bills are permitted to become the law of the State the triumph of the tax-eater over the taxpayer in California will be complete.

DISORDER "REIGNS IN WARSAW."

Burning her own cities, when she is unable to hold them, is not a new policy of Russia. On September 13, 1812, six days after the battle of Borodino, in which the Russians were completely vanquished by Napoleon, they evacuated Moscow, leaving 11,000 of their own wounded to perish in its hospitals. The Russian troops were given license to pillage the city and they availed themselves of it to the extent of everything that was portable on their backs or could be carried in wagons. The next day the French occupied the city and proceeded to gather such loose property as the retiring Russians had left. That night, while Napoleon was waiting for a deputation of Moscow notables, the city was set on fire by its own inhabitants and the people abandoned it.

A few weeks afterwards, as winter approached, Napoleon, for lack of shelter and food for his army, was compelled to abandon Moscow, after attempting unsuccessfully to blow up the Kremlin and after firing such parts of the city as had escaped the previous conflagration. Historians mark the retreat from Moscow as the beginning of Napoleon's downfall.

The Russians of 1915 are repeating at Warsaw the action of their forefathers at Moscow in 1813.

Warsaw was annexed to Poland in 1526, and in 1572 became its capital. From the seventeenth century possession of it was continually disputed by the Swedes, the Russians and the Austrians. Charles Gustavus of Sweden took it in 1655 and kept it for a year; the Poles retook it in 1656, but lost it again almost immediately. Charles XII took it in 1702, but, in the following year, peace was made between the Swedes and the Poles, and Warsaw became free again. In 1764 the Russians took possession of it. In 1773 the first partition of Poland took place. In 1794 the Russians took it again, but in 1795 the third partition of Poland took place and Warsaw was given to Prussia. In November, 1806, it was occupied by the troops of Napoleon and, after the peace of Tilsit, was made the capital of the independent duchy of Warsaw. The Austrians took it in 1809 and it became independent until 1813, when the Russians took it and have always since retained it.

On November 29, 1830, Warsaw inaugurated an insurrection which lasted until September 7, 1831, when it was taken, after great bloodshed, by the Russian Gen. Paskevitch. Deportations on a large scale, executions and confiscations of the domains of the large landholders followed, and the announcement was made to the world that "order reigns in Warsaw."

For twenty-five years Warsaw remained under severe military rule. In 1862 an attempt was made to secure the independence of Poland, but, after a bloody repression, the Russians again triumphed.

Russia is now compelled to relinquish Warsaw to the German forces, not for lack of soldiers, but for lack of ammunition, and she is signaling her departure by a shameful violation of the laws of war. She is destroying what she is unable to hold. While her armies have been holding back the German forces, she has had hourly trains on six great trunk lines carrying the people of Warsaw, with such of their possessions as are portable, to remote parts of Russia. It is estimated that 350,000 people, or more than half the population of Warsaw, have been thus deported. When all are gone who are willing to go, and all transportable property has been sent out, the Russian army will dynamite and fire public and private buildings, and when Warsaw falls into German hands it will be a heap of ruins. It is announced that as the Russian army retires it will burn barns and growing crops and destroy cattle and flocks along its route so that the Germans will be unable to follow it.

Warsaw, notwithstanding the rigors of Russian rule, has greatly prospered industrially and commercially in the last half-century. Its population is nearly one million, and in manufactures it is the eighth city of Europe.

"THE PARIS OF AMERICA."

Los Angeles as the Paris of America—a better Paris than the Paris of France—such is the dream that Mayor Sebastian would see converted into a reality. And when you get down to solid facts it doesn't need a whole lot of conversion after all. We don't want Anthony Comstocks or Poker Davises as permanent residents; we don't want to be too straight-laced or too loosely-laced; we want and we can have here a Paris as it should be, a Paris on its best behavior, a Paris builded on the larger manner.

In a very short time we shall be known as the musical heart of the universe, a position that after many centuries the French metropolis has only partly filled. The human voice seems to develop singing qualities in the warm, dry atmosphere of California that the same voices could never acquire under different climatic conditions. The famous singers of the future will start their careers in the schools of Los Angeles; the choral parts for all opera troupes will be engaged from Pacific Coast material; and where the singers congregate later on will be found the musical composers. California Massenets are already in the making.

As the resiliency of our atmosphere invokes singing, so its lightness and buoyancy makes it the Mecca for artists. Southern California has already monopolized the greater part of the moving-picture industry, the most wonderful artistic development of the twentieth century. For the film work being produced here at points touches the highest conception of art. The painter with brush and palette will be encouraged by seeing the mass effects in well-composed film scenes. So the Latin Quartier of America will be found somewhere near the Broadway tunnel. From there, by and by, will issue some Leonardo da Vinci, guiltless of scriptural anachronism, painting the West as it is today.

Fashion, too, is already casting inquisitive glances toward the dress creations of the coming American Paris. Fashion will surely cross the ocean and it will not stop at New York, much less at Philadelphia or Chicago. It will reach Los Angeles at a bound, and the styles in men's and women's clothes will be dictated from the city of sunshine, where the colors can be matched and novel designs tried out, where costumes may be harmonized with the brightness of nature. The establishments of the twentieth century Worth will occupy blocks near West Seventh street and from there will be issued fashion plates to be mailed all over the world.

And above all else in importance we, the latter-day Parisians of the West, will be filled with that elixir of eternal youth, that spirit of spontaneous gaiety and unaffected joyousness that has kept the Paris of Europe so young in spite of her hoary age and made her the best beloved city of the Old World.

On account of her age, perhaps, things undesirable in America have crept into the ancient youth of Paris; these we are young enough to exclude from the coming Paris of America. But the traditions for art, music, pleasure, gallantry, the kindly cosmopolitan customs, the delight in street carnivals, the open-air dances and concerts, all the attractions of the old Paris with the added blessings only to be enjoyed in California will find a new expression in the City of the Angels, the last city of perennial youth.

WHITMAN'S POSITION.

The stand of Gov. Whitman in the case of Becker must be respected. He is the Chief Executive of a State where capital punishment is the law. Becker was tried fairly and found guilty and no court in the State would interfere with this verdict. It was not for the Governor to set it at naught. The position of the Governor as a keen lawyer was that of the courts to which Becker appealed. It was that Becker's motion for a new trial never escaped from cumulative evidence into the realm of something new. If his attorneys could have offered the slightest point of new testimony the judges of the Supreme Court showed every disposition to relieve the Governor of the embarrassment of his position. Such evidence was never forthcoming, and Gov. Whitman did the only thing compatible with the law.

THE GREAT WAR'S HIGH EXPLOSIVES.

[CONTRIBUTED TO THE TIMES]
BY HUDSON MAXIM,
Famous Inventor of Explosives.

HIGH explosives had been pretty completely perfected before the outbreak of the great war. Nevertheless, we have received reports of most astonishing effects produced by the French Turpinite and the Austrian Skoda shell. It has been reported that so dreadful is the concussion produced by the detonation of the new high explosives that troops are killed by the mere concussion even to a distance of a hundred yards.

Such results are impossible, for it is impossible to make a high explosive which will develop more force than results from the volume of gases liberated and raised to a high temperature by the chemical reaction of detonation.

Picric acid and nitrogelatin come very near to the limits of the possible in power of high explosives. Turpinite is probably picric acid or a picric acid compound, but on account of the scarcity of picric acid at the present time, it is probable that the more easily available tri-nitro-toluene is largely used instead.

Tri-nitro-toluene, although not so powerful as picric acid or nitrogelatin, is yet exceedingly powerful. It is also so insensitive that not only may projectiles charged with it be fired with perfect safety from cannon at high velocity, but also projectiles filled with it may be fired through armor plate without being exploded by the impact, so that they will pass to the interior of a war vessel to be exploded by a delay-action detonating fuse.

It is not at all strange when a body of men is stormed with high explosive projectiles such as are employed in the destruction of trenches, in the present war, that many may be found in sitting posture without any visible injury who have been killed merely by the concussion of an exploding shell. This may be accounted for as follows:

The velocity of flight of a projectile, given to it by the propelling charge of gunpowder in the gun, may be from two thousand to three thousand feet a second, while the fragments of a projectile exploded by a high explosive bursting charge are not hurled with a velocity anything like as great as this. When a shell explodes in flight, the forward velocity of the shell being so much in excess of the velocity of its fragments, those fragments are not thrown backward at all, but all of them continue to move forward, some of them, of course, very much faster than others; and, as they move forward, they spread out in the form of a cone. Therefore, a projectile exploding in flight, just as it has passed a soldier, will kill him by the concussion, without a single fragment of the shell hitting him. In short, it matters not how close to his head the shell might explode, as long as it actually passed his head before exploding. Though it should not hit him, his head might be blown from his shoulders by the shock or blast of the exploding shell.

The present conflict may well be termed a warfare of high explosives. The trenches of an opposing force must be actually blasted out of existence. Victory or defeat now depends absolutely upon preponderance of gun-fire.

High explosives are making a new record at sea. The submarine is now recognized as a war engine with which we must seriously reckon. It is the most menacing engine of war ever devised by man.

The effects of high explosives dropped from the air from aeroplanes or dirigibles have, up to the present time, been somewhat disappointing, not only from the difficulty in making hits, but also from the comparatively small effect of high explosives unless confined inside of the structure they are intended to destroy.

The horrible, poisonous, deadly gases devised by the Germans, and employed in the present war, if dropped into a populous city, as for example, into the streets of London, might result in very serious loss of life, but even then the damage would not be so wide as the terrified imagination might fancy.

Should a fleet of Zeppelins drop a hundred tons of poisonous gases into the streets of London in a single raid there would unquestionably result much loss of life, and the loss of life might greatly exceed that which would result from dropping a hundred tons of high explosives; yet the calamity would not be so great or so far-reaching as to become a determining factor in the war.

RIPPLING RHYMES.

THE BARBER.

When to the barber's shop I wander, I always feel a total loss, with whiskers sticking here and yonder, till they'd disgrace a Chinese joss. And as he shaves the barber whistles, or hums some cheerful, lilting air, the while he amputates the bristles and spreads some tonic on my hair. He does not talk to me or bore me, this most discreet of workingmen; he sprinkles talcum powder o'er me and hopes that I will call again. When from his shop, all shaved, I sally, my self-respect again is high; I don't go sneaking down the alley, or shun the keen-eyed passer-by. I'm conscious of a transformation, no more I feel like twenty cents, I ornament my sex and station, I will compare with other gents. If barbers ceased their helpful labors and failed us in the hour of need, then you and I and all our neighbors would lose our grip and go to seed. We would descend to low condition, and in the sinks of sloth abide, for whiskers kill all sane ambition, they're fatal to an honest pride.

WALT MASON.

Europe's Record on Contraband.

["Girard," in Philadelphia Ledger:] The most notable example of one nation selling contraband of war to another is furnished by Germany itself. When America was fighting for freedom the Germans, as Wayne MacVeagh says, sold to King George not only guns and uniforms, but 30,000 soldiers. To this day Hessian is a term of reproach and hatred.

England sold to the Confederacy anything it could ship there.

France violated the Monroe doctrine more viciously than any other country when it sent a big army of invasion into Mexico while the United States was in its great struggle to save the Union.

And it was the Austrian prince, Maximilian, brother of the present Emperor of Austria, who placed himself upon the throne in Mexico City.

So it seems to me that the United States is under no very lasting or immediate obligations to these present-day belligerents. The worst any American exporter has done during this war is mild in comparison with the things France, England, Germany and Austria tried to do to us.

And the bare heath of life presents
bloom;
Sweet Hope! etherial balm upon me shed
And wave thy silver pinions o'er my head

In the long vista of the years to roll,
Let me not see our country's honor f
Oh, let me see our land retain her soul!
Her pride, her freedom; and not f
dom's shade.
From thy bright eyes unusual bright
shed—
Beneath thy pinions canopy my head!

Let me not see the patriot's high beque
Great liberty! how great in plain attir
With the base purple of a court oppre
Bowing her head, and ready to expir
But let me see thee stoop from heave wings
That fill the sky with silver glitterin

And as, in sparkling majesty, a star
Gilds the bright summit of some g
cloud;
Brightening the half-veil'd face of h
afar;
So, when dark thoughts my boding
shroud,
Sweet Hope! celestial influence roun
shed,
Waving thy silver pinions o'er my head.

To Turn Flood Menace.

the Rivers and Harbors Committee of the House of Representatives.

In the report of the Board of Engineers, Flood Control, on the work proposed for the coastal plain district, an item of $1,827,100 for the diversion of the Los Angeles River from Dominguez to Alamitos Bay is set down as "may be borne by the Federal government." This is the only aid that may be expected from the government, as it is an investment that may be carried as a harbor asset.

Regarding State aid, no one is particularly sanguine on this score, though the commonwealth contributed 20 per cent. of the money needed to curb both the San Joaquin and Sacramento rivers. Incidentally, the government's contribution to the carrying forward of these enterprises was also 20 per cent. of the whole cost. If they both did as well by the south end of the State as they did by the north we would save over $6,000,000.

However, there is assurance that no stones will be left unturned to secure both State and Federal aid in the fullest measure.

SOME OPPOSITION.

Opposition to the project as a whole or in part has already crept to the surface. That many persons in the highlands section will stoutly oppose the blanket-bond method of financing the enterprise was made certain by secessions from the Los Angeles County Flood Control Association when that body went on record as favoring it.

There are also mutterings of proposed lawsuits in case the Los Angeles River is diverted into Alamitos Bay. Frank A. Vanderlip, president of the National City Bank of New York City and owner, with others, of the Palos Verdes Rancho, has also lodged complaint against the diversion scheme as tending to rob the ranch property of its underground supply of water.

On this score, investigations made by James W. Reagan of the Board of Engineers, Flood Control, are asserted by him to show that the underground waters are carried seaward under an impervious layer of clay. In other words, the waters enters these channels mountainward and is only coaxed above them by sinking wells through the clay. The almost exact adjustment of the hydrostatic level, in the thousands of wells between the mountains and the sea, to percolation basis and mean tide lends weight to Mr. Reagan's contention that diversion will not affect the underground water supply of the Palos Verdes Rancho.

However, these are more or less minor considerations in the light of the possible opposition of the government authorities to the Dominguez scheme of diversion for the Los Angeles River. As proposed by four members of the Board of Engineers, Flood Control, the Los Angeles River will be returned, from the city limits south to Dominguez, to the channel that it occupied prior to 1889, the Rio Hondo will be diverted to it in the vicinity of the County Farm, San Gabriel joined with the diverted Los Angeles River easterly of Bouton Lake, and the combined waters of the three streams emptied into Alamitos Bay. All this will cost $5,137,000.

ALTERATIIN PLAN.

Opposition to this scheme is based on the contention, already saliently pointed out by Col. William Murray Black, chairman of the Board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors, War Department, that the dam will form a settling basin above it, resulting in the silting-up of much valuable farm land, and that there is a preferable route eastward. This is the route favored by James W. Reagan, with a shallow cutting across the Clearwater divide, thus giving a uniform fall of 8.25 feet to the mile to the combined waters of the three streams, as against a variation in the fall through the dam arrangement, as he states it, of from eight to four feet to the mile.

Mr. Reagan supports his position by the following reasons why the route via the County Farm should be adopted: Because it offers a gradient of 8.25 feet per mile until the flow is past Clearwater Ridge, against the very low gradient through the Clearwater Ridge on the Dominguez route of four feet per mile, because it is more than two miles shorter than the alternate route, has nearly twelve miles of tangent, and because "this route in a very appreciable degree removes the objection raised by Col. Black, when viewing the section on August 12, last, from the top of Signal Hill, realtive to the likeliness of a single flood filling up the basin behind the dam and the water overrunning its top."

Mr. Reagan also asserts that the first cost of the County Farm route will be much less than the cost of the Dominguez route, that it will also cost much less to maintain, will run through land of less fertility, and is in accord with the observations of those who have seen the flood waters of the Los Angeles and San Gabriel Rivers pass over the Clearwater Ridge by this route to Alamitos Bay.

"The dropping of the silt and driven detritus," says Mr. Reagan of the Dominguez route in his report, "will be so great that the writer believes with Col. Black that the dam will create a settling basin, very soon filled and overtopped, thus releasing all its stored silts at one time towards the harbor.

"If such a disaster as described in the preceding paragraph should ever occur it will be very unlikely that there would be any attempt made at the rebuilding of these works. These factors should then be patent, i. e., that the connection of two grades of wide difference, the upper being 100 per cent. steeper than the lower, will form a settling basin that cannot be avoided by this route, and that a three-mile spillway, with a very light fall leading away from the basin, is not practical."

IT'S ALL "MADE LAND."

Los Angeles County Soil Pronounced the Work of Ages of Yearly Floods, Say the Engineers.

Probably every foot of Los Angeles county below the mountain watersheds is made land. In the San Fernando Valley a well may be driven down 1000 feet without striking bed rock. It is a valley made up of the silt of the ages.

Well-drillers on the coastal plain often encounter bits of wood and logs at 100 or more feet below the surface. These were deposited there when the streams, after putting in the foundations for Main and other city streets, sent their detrital delta-cones oceanward.

The same work is still going on—each flood brings down scourings from the mountains to spread over new area. It is nature's way of adjusting variations in elevation, of creating something new, and of adding fertility to the soil. How to aid nature in her great work is one of the problems that confronts the flood-control engineers, particularly as removing the menace from some 200,000 acres of existent land means the loss of other acres of good land that will come down from the mountains.

EVERYTHING PROVIDED FOR.

Nothing Omitted in Flood Control Estimates as Prepared by the Board of Engineers in Charge.

Every contingency is provided for in the collective and individual reports which were submitted the Board of Supervisors by the board of engineers. In every estimate for structures there is a 30 per cent. overhead to cover engineering, legal and general expenses, workmen's compensation insurance, and additional work not specifically mentioned.

Every one of the engineers also suggests types of machinery to be usedin the various districts under consideration. For instance, J. B. Lippincott gives much detail on cost of operating a drag-line excavator in the San Fernando Valley work, while James W. Reagan suggests cable excavator installation for digging the new channel for the combined Los Angeles and San Gabriel rivers and building levees at the same time.

July—Another Big Month

We had the Biggest June Sales in the History of the Company

We are making big sales of homes.

Because

We are giving best values, easiest terms and are showing houses that appeal to the public as being the most beautiful in design, perfect in arrangement and ideal in situation that can possibly be had in all Los Angeles for the money.

A Word to You Mr. Renter

Get out of the landlord's grip; grasp courage and make decision enough now to come out and select a home that you can call your own. This is a decision that possibly should have been made in the past. Today you would have an asset of a part or complete ownership in a home that you could turn into cash if the occasion demanded it. You can borrow nothing on your bundle of rent receipts.

Read this Plan of House Selling.

IT IS A SIMPLE MATTER TO MAKE A START TO OWN YOUR OWN HOME.

Come out to the property, select the home that pleases you in every particular; you will find it priced right. Make us a small payment as a matter of good faith, and the balance can be paid on monthly rental terms, possibly less than the rent you are paying for the house which you now occupy.

This transaction will give you full possession of the house; you get a deed in your own name and abstract of title showing the property absolutely clear. The home is yours.

Telephone one of our branch offices right now that you wish one of our representatives to call in his automobile and show you these houses. You will be under no obligation to buy if we cannot please you in every particular.

MAKE FLOODS AS ORDERED.

Novel Experiments Conducted in Planning Dams for Control System.

Floods made to order, big or little! They started to making them during the week at an experimental station figged up in the Big Tejunga by the Board of Engineers, Flood Control. It was the initiation of work that has a most important bearing on the whole project of flood control.

A rock dam, with an adjustable sluiceway, supplies the apparatus, and five men do the work. The experiments are to determine the mean velocity of varying heads of water moving through channels of certain gradients and the impinging force at relative distances.

By determining all these, engineers will be able to figure out the precise strength of a dam necessary to catch and restrain one or more acre-feet of water moving at a certain velocity. As the plans of the board contemplate many of these impeding dams, costing a total of $1,410,400, the experiments are important. The idea is to develop a type of dam that can be economically constructed in this country.

In the experiments a head of twelve and one-half feet of water was used. A shot was fired when the water was released, and men stationed a half-mile apart checked the arriving time of the water.

The dam itself is of concrete, seventy-five feet across and twenty-four feet high. It has an adjustable gate 5x7 feet.

South's Biggest Job.

it another way, the peak discharge of the San Gabriel River at the mouth of its canyon in the flood of 1889 was 47,000 second feet and in the 1914 flood 26,680 second feet.

ENLARGES TASK.

"The conclusion," says the report of the Board of Engineers, "is that floods 70 per cent. greater than that of 1914 have occurred in the past and plans for flood control must recognize this fact."

As a result the board recommends afforestation and both impeding and impounding reservoirs as means of lessening the ocean-rolling torrent as corollaries to the main engineering work.

In this connection the board earnestly recommends the initiation of comprehensive working field tests of the extent of possible flood control by afforestation and retardation and the prompt appropriation of $500,000 for this purpose. Little difficulty in obtaining the necessary permits for this work is anticipated, as the United States forest service has indicated its desire to co-operate, particularly in the forestry work.

To facilitate matters the Board of Engineers divided its work into four districts, and separate reports were made on each. The work of the mountain district was in charge of F. H. Olmsted; the San Fernando district, J. B. Lippincott; San Gabriel district, H. Hawgood, and Coastal Plain district, Capt. Charles T. Leeds. The fifth member of the board, James W. Reagan, reported on extent and location of menaced lands of the county, with resultant analysis and suggestions for corrective works.

DETAILS OF PLANS.

In the mountain district the largest individual catchment area is that of the San Gabriel River, 222 square miles, with a maximum stream discharge of 45,000 second-feet. It is planned to spend $55,846 on this watershed for rock-fill dams, $272,000 for rebrushing the mountain tops and replanting the canyon sides, and $1,127,600 for spreading the waters of this stream over a percolating basin of 2800 acres where it comes out of the canyon. Spreading basins are also proposed for Pacoima Creek, $257,700 for actual construction work and $312,500 for purchase of land, and the San Dimas River, $13,300.

In addition rock-fill dams are proposed for Pacoima Creek, San Gabriel River and Eaton Wash to cost $154,700; the damming of the Arroyo Seco at Devil's Gate will cost $150,000; while an item of $300,000 is included, under suspense, for building a masonry dam on the Tejunga to impound an immense body of water and so skim the flood crest of that stream and also provide for the replenishment of the underground water supply of the San Fernando Valley.

The Arroyo Seco work is especially recommended by the board, as it will assure the control of flood flow and the substantial replenishment, by percolation, of the underground water supply of the cities of Pasadena, South Pasadena and Alhambra. The Tejunga item was suspended pending further studies of the value of the dam for flood control. The same conditions apply to the proposed construction of an impounding dam near Lordsburg as control for the San Dimas.

Because of the grave danger that the Verdugo Creek, if uncontrolled, may break south through Glendale and Tropico, an item of $754,100 is proposed for the rechanneling of this stream and Sycamore Creek. Rechanneling for Haines and Blue Gum are also proposed, to cost $99,000.

BIG ITEM.

With property valued at $30,000,000 menaced by the flood waters in the San Fernando Valley, it is proposed to expend $2,150,000 in control work in that district alone, and to acquire 3135 acres of sand and gravel land for spreading purposes. It is proposed to convey the flood waters of the Tejungas through their westerly channel to the Los Angeles River and those of the Pacoima in a southerly course from its canyon mouth, past the county rock quarry at Pacoima to a junction with the main channel of the Tejungas, at a cost of $1,069,800.

In addition it is proposed to provide conduits for the conveyance of flood waters from the extreme northeast corner of the valley through to the Los Angeles River, and also from the western portion of the valley to the central depression of the valley south of Owensmouth. This will include a channel from Chatsworth Park and one from Zelzah, and work at San Fernando and Wilson, to cost a total of $759,200. Riprapping and protection of the channel of the Los Angeles River with Phoenix canariensis palms will cost an additional $265,000.

Other expenditures proposed are for $500,000 for spreading the waters of the Tejungas over a percolating area of large size and $127,400 for carrying Newhall Creek through a concrete-lined channel past the town of Newhall to a point near the mouth of Placerita Canyon, and for reinforcing the channel of this stream and the Santa Clara River.

SAN GABRIEL DISTRICT.

The proposed expenditures for the San Gabriel district include $2,520,700 to give the San Gabriel River a channel 600 feet wide, with boulder-faced levees, from the mouth of its canyon to the head of Lexington Wash, and to do work on this wash and the Rio Hondo, and to purchase land for spreading purposes on the upper reaches of the first-named river. In addition blanket expenditures of $1,278,400 for riprapping and other protection along Marengo, San Pasqual, Alhambra, Mill, Rubio, Eaton, Santa Anita and Sawpit creeks are proposed, and $1,265,900 for similar work on Little and Big Dalton, Walnut, San Dimas, Live Oak, Thompson and San Jose.

Across the head of Lexington Wash it is proposed to construct a rubble weir, of the type used on rivers in India, to pass 12,000 second-feet of the San Gabriel River into the Rio Hondo, the upper channel of which is known as Lexington Wash, and to widen the channels of these streams to from 330 to 450 feet.

The Coastal Plain district includes all of the county between the ocean and the Santa Monica Mountains, the Los Angeles River Narrows and the Whittier Narrows. Because the diversion schemes for the Los Angeles, San Gabriel and Hondo rivers are matters of Federal concern and have a most important bearing on the whole project, they are treated in another place. In this division is included, however, proposed work for Ballona Creek which will cost $317,600. The deepening and widening of the channel of this stream is proposed, together with a protection dike back of Santa Monica and Ocean Park, to throw the water southward into Ballona Lagoon at its present natural entrance at high-water mark.

DOES IT FLOW UPHILL?

Flood Control Figuring Brings to Light Curious Facts About the Los Angeles River's Channel.

The Los Angeles River has an official channel 300 feet wide at First street and one forty-eight feet wide between Dominguez Hill and Los Cerritos Heights. In other words, the river is officially bigger uphill than it is downhill.

However, stark necessity of protecting highly valuable property has dictated the confinement of the river in an adequate channel within the municipality. Below it wanders at its own sweet will through a succession of channels, just as it used to wander over all the country between Los Angeles street and Boyle heights.

In the memory of the present generation, the flood waters of the Los Angeles and other Southland rivers lost themselves in marshes bordering the ocean front. Maps of as late a date as 1900 show marshes pretty continuously from below Alamitos Bay to San Pedro and from north of Redondo Beach to the highlands at Santa Monica.

These marshes were good absorbent mediums. They took up the flood waters like a sponge to release them gradually. But with the steady march of harbor and other improvements, the marshes have had to go, and now official channels, deep enough to handle all flood water, are necessary.

CHANNEL FOR ARROYO SECO.

Park Commissioner Suggests that, While We're Getting it, We Get Strips for Parkway as Well.

Parking of strips of land on both sides of the Arroyo Seco from Elysian Park to the Devil's Gate and construction of a road to connect with the proposed crestline highway along the back of the Sierra Madre is suggested by J. B. Lippincott in a supplemental report which he has made the Board of Supervisors. Mr. Lippincott is one of the city's park commissioners.

In his report, Mr. Lippincott points out that an official channel for the Arroyo Seco is desirable and that while land is being acquired for it a small additional investment will secure the property that is needed for the park and read. Unless this is done, he asserts, the Arroyo Seco will degenerate into an unsightly gravel pit, around the borders of which will cluster the slums of the city.

REDLIGHT LAW CASES. The redlight abatement act was brought into operation in four separate instances yesterday when Deputy Dist.-Atty. McCartney filed four suits in the Superior Court against the following: J. Pierrit, owner and Pietro and Lucy Aragno, occupants of No. 419½ South Los Angeles street; P. Fitzwilliams, owner and Mrs. J. H. Ferguson, lessee, No. 300½ South Los Angeles street; J. J. Donovan, owner and Mrs. M. Lynch, lessee, No. 226½ East Fifth street; R. E. Goddard, owner and George Kiao, tenant, No. 542 Ceres avenue.

WHO GETS DRY RIVER BEDS?

Curious Problem of Ownership to Follow Stream Diversion for Flood Control.

Who gets the stream beds that will be left over after the rivers are straightened? Under the law they belong to the owners of abutting property, both when used by the rivers and afterward. In other words, our flood water goes oceanward over private property.

This fact has an important bearing on the whole scheme of flood control, as, to make a beginning in the work of diversion, the district will have to acquire lands for the official channels either by purchase or condemnation. There can be no swapping of one channel for another, as existent channels of any and all kinds are privately owned, except in this city, where the municipality, as successor to the pueblo, owns the river and all its appurtenances.

Wanton Killing Incites

Quick Action.

With the backing of Chanc David Starr Jordan and officers the Wild Life Protective League America, a movement has b launched here to set aside the ch nel islands as fish and game prese similar to the Farallone Islands, der either State or Federal juris tion.

The plan was evolved by Charles Davis, naturalist and student of life along the coasts of Alta and California. It has three objects view one sentimental, another u tarian, the third humanitarian. is now being prepared to present the Legislature in support of the p tective measure.

In former days, the channel isl were alive during breeding sea according to Mr. Davis, with peli cormorants, gulls, and other inter ing seabirds, while the rookeries the homes of thousands of both of the small variety, comm called performing seals, and the fellows that are known as sea- phants.

Today, according to Mr. Davis, sea-elephant has been driven to the islands off Lower Califor while their smaller brothers and ters of the seal tribe, the kind sees in circuses, are rapidly b thinned out through indiscrimi and oftentimes wanton killing.

"Hundreds are ruthlessly sla tered at the breeding season, lea the pups to die of starvation," Mr. Davis, speaking particularly the sealing industry, centering at ta Barbara. "As for the Guadal Islands' remnant of the sea-eleph tribe, the killing is mostly of male get a certain part of the anatomy, rest of the carcass being left to on the sands."

On the sentimental side, Mr. D stated that it is exceedingly desir that as much of the wild life of West be safeguarded for future erations as is possible in the ligh utilitarianism.

"Our seals do not destroy food however," he said. "In fact, the crease in the food-fish hauls off coast is due to destroying the that naturally prey on the stinga and the sharks. There is also a ing off in available bait, due to fact that the sharks, of which waters harbor more than fifty v ties, have increased in such nu as to chase whole schools of bait far offshore.

The decreased number of seal on our channel islands is due, acc ing to Mr. Davis, to wanton gath of the eggs by Chinese.

Under the plan, the fish and preserve will include all the ch islands and certain miles of sea rounding them. The Banning i ests, according to Mr. Davis, ar thorough accord with the plans.

Mr. Davis was the owner of the sea-elephants, the only ones in tivity, that escaped last January their tank was washed off the V pier. They are now at Guada having been traced there by Mr. D through reports of fishermen.

Unaccustomed, after a lengthy finement, to the wide ranges of ocean, the four sea-elephants, M Bill, Nellie and Bob, hung around wrecked tank for a day, then s south, drawn probably by the understood homing instinct po by all creatures of the wild.

A week later they were at Cata three days later at San Clem where they rested for some days fore setting out on the long tri their home in the south. It is known how long it took them t gotiate the distance from San mente to the Guadelupes.

PRISON FOR FLOODS.

Natural Basin East of City gested as Place to Impound Angeles River Overflow.

A reservoir site into which whole Los Angeles River at floo could be turned is described by W. Reagan, in his individual to the Board of Supervisors. It rises a natural basin, 3632 acres tent, on what is known as the Laguna tract, seven miles east of Angeles.

Construction of a dam 2¼ length and 35 feet in height provide storage for 52,?14 acr of water. However, the high of the land in the basin mak project one of scant feasibility time, though many point out th pounding of such a quantity of would create an irrigation supp immense value.

FRAUD CHARGED; TWO ARRESTED.

Prominent Orange Man and a Promoter Accused.

Third Indicted by Federal Jury is at Large.

Local Underwriting Company Affairs Involved.

Harry Z. Adams of Orange, secretary of the Orange County Dried Fruit Association, was arrested at his home yesterday afternoon by Deputy United States Marshal Bassett and brought to Los Angeles to answer a Federal indictment charging him with using the mails to defraud in connection with the affairs of the Western Underwriting and Mortgage Company. He was held in $2500 bond.

J. K. Tennant, a promoter with offices in the Wright & Callender Building, similarly charged with Adams, was located here yesterday with his attorneys, Campbell & Moore, and because of the late hour was given until tomorrow morning to furnish $5000 bond.

These men, with another, unnamed, who is in Texas, were indicted last Friday.

The officers of the Western Underwriting and Mortgage Company are given as: President, Dr. E. M. Fly, president of the People's Bank, National City, Cal.; George A. Lane, president Oceanside Bank; J. R. Hickman, Treasurer of Fresno county; J. F. Avernell, cashier First National Bank, Fowler, Cal.; Charles R. Fitzgerald, capitalist; H. Z. Adams, secretary and treasurer; Charles P. Mullen, capitalist, Tempe, Ariz.; J. F. More, capitalist, Goleta; Dr. C. E. Stoner, Los Angeles.

Federal officers declare hundreds of thousands of shares of Western Underwriting and Mortgage Company stock were sold throughout California, and the total loss is about $300,000.

Mr. Adams took his arrest coolly, saying it was caused by pique on the part of enemies. He declared the issues involved have been tried several times in San Diego county courts and he has been vindicated. Mr. Tennant made a similar statement.

NOT NEW CASE.

The indictments are a revamping of a civil suit begun in the local Federal Court about two years ago that has not yet been heard. The complainant in that suit was L. Y. Ketcham of Ensenada and the defendants were the Western Underwriting and Mortgage Company, E. M. Fly, C. R. Fitzgerald, J. K. Tennant, H. Z. Adams, George A. Garrett, J. E. Jennison, Kate F. Barnes, W. H. Caldwell, J. F. Avernell, J. R. Hickman, H. J. Barnes, E. B. Harvey, O. R. Cross, George A. Lane and C. E. Stoner.

In that action, it was alleged, the defendants, as directors and individuals, should be held liable to the stockholders of the Western Underwriting and Mortgage Company for losses growing out of negligence and misconduct. Ketcham bought 1000 shares of the company, and it was charged that Tennant took 200,000 shares, with knowledge and consent of the directors, for which the consideration was some worthless stock. It was further charged that Tennant sold large blocks of stock of the Western Underwriting and Mortgage Company, representing that the money received therefrom went into the treasury of the company, while, in fact, the money was appropriated by Tennant.

The allegations in the indictment are that the three men, with offices in Los Angeles and San Diego, conspired to defraud the unwary; that they flooded the mails with letters and circulars setting out that they were about to organize and incorporate certain companies with dummy directors, who should be subservient to the will of the indicted men; it was set out that they were in reality to be stenographers, chauffeurs, stock salesmen, book-keepers and accountants; that they later were to be displaced by well-known business men, to give the company a standing, but all the time be subject to the commands of J. K. Tennant.

It is alleged that by these fraudulent representations much stock was sold; that it was fraudulently represented that the money so raised was to go into the treasury of the companies so organized, and that it was to be sold at less than value, to make the investment attractive. Notes were accepted and the investor told if he was not satisfied he could get his money back. It is further alleged that the stock so disposed of was not treasury stock at all, but that of Tennant, who received the money, and that the stock was sold for more than value.

Misleading entries were made in the books, it is declared, and false statements of assets and liabilities were advertised and sent through the mails, certified to by a public accountant who has been indicted; that large dividends were promised, but never realized, and that alleged advances in the value of the stock were not based on its intrinsic value.

HISTORY OF CONCERN.

It is recited that December 24, 1910, Tennant organized the California National Life Insurance Company, with $250,000 capital stock. In 1911 the Western Underwriting Company, an Arizona corporation, was organized, with a capital stock of $500,000. It is alleged the defendants then issued to Tennant 100,000 shares of the Underwriting company stock in exchange for a contract between Tennant and the California National Life Insurance Company for services. It is also charged that Tennant contracted for the exclusive sale of the Underwriting company capital stock.

June 8, 1912, it is charged, the defendants organized the Western Underwriting and Mortgage Company, with a capital stock of $500,000; June 15 they transferred the assets of the Western Underwriting Company to the Western Underwriting and Mortgage Company, and issued to stockholders of the former company stock in the latter, share for share.

It is charged the defendants sent misleading letters to H. W. Wilson, No. 2505 E street, San Diego, and to Joseph Poggi, Nestor, Cal. The alleged false statement was certified by Thurston & Longnecker, public accountants.

Another allegation concerns a deal in stock of the Union Bank and Trust Company of Phoenix, Ariz., and assets of the Western Underwriting and Mortgage Company, by which, it is said, $100,000 of the assets were exchanged for 472 shares of the stock. Tennant some time before bought some of the bank stock at $50 a share.

The allegation is also made that later on the books of the Western Underwriting Company and the Western Underwriting and Mortgage Company were destroyed or hidden in this city, and that the latter company was dominated by dummy directors, and the names of M. I. Wright, F. H. Thompson, H. J. Rickliff, G. G. Smith, L. Powell and E. K. Brown are given as those of stenographers and chauffeurs. These later on were displaced by well-known business men as directors.

Letters written to Miss Elizabeth Toms, No. 760 Fair Oaks avenue, Pasadena; Mrs. C. G. Witt, San Diego, and Mrs. Sue A. McLennan, Escondido, are given as overt acts.

KANSAS SOCIETY PICNIC.

Former Residents of the Sunflower State and Gov. Capper have Big Time at Sycamore Grove.

Speaking from a platform erected for the occasion, Gov. Arthur Capper of Kansas, added the finishing touches to a notable day in the annals of the Kansas Society of Los Angeles.

Over 1000 former residents of the Sunflower State and their friends attended the annual picnic at Sycamore Grove yesterday and renewed acquaintances over the contents of basket lunches.

Early in the morning special trains brought the merry makers to the grounds and by noon several hundred had arrived and were grouped beneath the trees and seeking acquaintances at the various registration booths.

The Governor and his party arrived after dinner and a programme of speeches by the Governor, Frank A. Doster, formerly chief justice of the Superior Court of Kansas, and by Lieut.-Gov. Morgan followed. After the addresses Gov. Capper and his party shook hands and joked with the picnickers.

Among the events of the day were several miniature class reunions among the alumni of various colleges and schools who set up registration booths.

Parties from Long Beach, Pasadena, San Fernando Valley and other out-of-town points attended, bringing the total attendance near the 5000 mark.

WOMAN IS MISSING.

Leaves Home Wednesday, Is Seen Acting Strangely and then Disappears Altogether.

Police throughout Southern California are searching for Mrs. Elizabeth Joliff, who left her home at No. 671 South Bonnie Brae street, Wednesday afternoon and none of her friends or relatives have seen her since. She is believed to be demented from worry over the death of her daughter, who passed away two months ago.

Mrs. Joliff, who lived with her sister, Miss Elle Shive, is 46 years old. She is five fgeet and six inches tall, weighs 130 pounds, is of light complexion and blue eyes. When she left home she wore a black silk waist with a pocket on each side, white lace collar, pleated skirt made of black satin and voile and a sailor straw hat trimmed in white and black. She also wore a marquise ring with stone of dark brown-green.

"When my sister left the house she told me she would be back in a few hours," said Mrs. Shive. "In a short time a woman called me by telephone and said my sister was acting strangely. I told her to send sister home or keep her there until I arrived. When I got there she had disappeared."

Miss Shive said she and her sister had planned to leave soon for their former home in Iowa. They are said to be quite wealthy.

Retrenchment.

FIVE FIREHOUSES ARE SLATED TO BE CLOSED.

Budget Committee Selects Those it Believes Can Best be Spared; Asks Efficiency Commission Opinion—Two Platoon Ordinance Not in Effect Today — Two Hundred and Fifty Lose City Jobs.

BECAUSE the city's finances will not permit an appropriation of an additional $407,000 for putting in effect in the Fire Department the two-platoon ordinance, the following engine and hose company houses have been selected as those that can best be spared, and their doors will probably be closed in a few days:

Engine-house No. 5, Fourth and Towne streets.
Engine-house No. 7, Maple avenue and Twenty-fourth.
Engine-house No. 32, First and Reno streets.
Hose Company No. 1, Griffin avenue and North Broadway.
Hose Company No. 2, Winfield and Union streets.

The ax fell on the three engine houses and two hose companies yesterday when the Budget Committee of the City Council came to the item of salary appropriation for the fire department. A list of the marked houses was given to the Efficiency Commission with instructions to confer with Chief Eley and, after going over the ground, to report whether, in their opinion, these are the five houses to be closed.

Closing of these firehouses would reduce the extra pay roll of the fire department by about $100,000 for the year, through cutting down the number of additional firemen to be employed from the civil service eligible list. The provisions of the two-platoon ordinance require, however, that every firehouse kept open must be manned by a full company on two shifts and at higher salaries. The ordinance also provides for eight battalion chiefs at $175 a month—one to every four houses—but these, in the opinion of the Budget Committee, may not all be appointed. "There's about as much use for eight battalion chiefs as I have for eight legs," was the way one Councilman expressed his views on the subject.

ACTION DELAYED.

In the meantime, the two-platoon initative ordinance adopted at the June election, to go into effect today, will not operate at once. The Fire Commission instructed Chief Eley "to arrange for the placing in commission of the two-platoon system as provided by the ordinance as soon as necessary funds are provided and arrangements completed." This, according to members of the Budget Committee, may mean next week or next month.

Chief Eley, after a conference with Statistician Payne of the efficiency department yesterday afternoon, said that he will not take the initiative in closing any firehouses. "I'll do as I am ordered, but if any firehouses are closed, it will be by definite order of the Council," said Chief Eley. Members of the Budget Committee said that whatever action is taken in the matter will be through an ordinance fixing the number of fire stations that shall be operated and maintained by the fire department.

MANY TO LOSE JOBS.

The next action of the Budget Committee yesterday was to send letters to the heads of thirteen city departments instructing them to discharge about 255 city employees immediately. Most of the men who will lose their jobs because of the retrenchment policy forced upon the Budget Committee are laborers in the parks, playgrounds and street departments. Numerous inspectors and holders of clerical positions are also to be separated from the city pay roll tomorrow. The total number of regular positions to be abolished is 165; the others being those of day laborers, foremen and of similar grades.

The City Attorney's office loses one clerk; one man goes from the Boiler Inspector's office; eleven from the Building Inspection Department; thirteen are dropped from the street assessment office, eight being part-time employees; the Department of Opening and Widening Streets loses seventeen men; the City Clerk's force is reduced by three and the Public Utilities Board also loses three men. Nine regular employees of the Park Department are let out and four regular men are released from the Playgrounds Department, while the appropriation for day labor and team hire for these departments is trimmed $45,000 and $35,000 respectively. The City Prosecutor's office loses one man and the salaries of the Prosecutor and deputies are trimmed $300 a year, all down the line.

NOT THROUGH YET.

At the close of its work yesterday the Budget Committee found that its allowances are $233,000 over the estimated revenues of the city. Deducting about $100,000 for the fire houses that are slated to be closed, the Committee will still have $133,000 to trim. This may yet be reduced by $100,000 if the committee now conferring with the banking syndicate that holds the Normal Hill property is successful in inducing all the banks to postpone the $100,000 payment proposed on the property this year. Members of this committee reported favorable progress to the Budget Committee yesterday and Chairman Wheeler expressed the hope that they will succeed.

This leaves the Budget Committee within hailing distance of its goal and the 1915-1916 budget will go to the Council in a form that complies with the law more closely than has any one recently. Last year, in direct violation of the charter provisions, the Budget Committee started out by appropriating $250,000 from the city's reserve fund to pay current expenses of the year. This will not be done by the present committee.

In trimming the budget this year the committee has followed closely the general programme outlined by the Efficiency Commission in a report which was characterized at first by President Whiffen and certain other members of the old and present Council as "worthless, absurd and preposterous." This report contained a list of thirty-two suggestions for reducing the estimated expenditures for the year. Of the thirty-two suggestions, fifteen have been ordered in effect, three have been partially adopted and ten are pending.

HIS MADNESS IS IN CYCLES.

SO SAYS WIFE WHO ACCUSES HUSBAND OF CRUELTY.

In Separate Maintenance Proceedings Prominent Ramona Acres Man is Described as Almost Inhuman by His Spouse—When Normal is All Right.

"He threatened to break my neck," said Mrs. Amelia Odenthal of her husband, in a separate maintenance suit filed yesterday in the Superior Court.

Hubert Odenthal and his wife are prominent residents of Ramona Acres and have a beautiful home at Garfield and Hillman streets.

"During fits of rage, which apparently come on without provocation," continues the complaint of Mrs. Odenthal, "the countenance of the defendant takes on an inhuman appearance. His eyes appear to bulge from their sockets and during such times he calls plaintiff all manner of names."

Mr. Odenthal's cycles of madness recur intermittently and last at least three weeks, says Mrs. Odenthal. She says that the last outbreak was on July 13 and according to the length of each cycle should still be continuing. She says at other times he is normal, but lapses into madness and threatens all sorts of violence to her.

Mr. Odenthal is accused of going among the neighbors and telling his troubles to them, intimating that he has some mysterious information which, when unfolded, will cause them to shut their doors against his wife. She says she has never done a thing wrong and doesn't know what he has up his sleeve.

Mrs. Odenthal married him at San Diego July 21, 1909. She is 56 years old. She avers that he has a married daughter, who is comfortably fixed, and to whom she says he threatens to leave his property. She says he has an estate worth $11,000 and her property is worth $4000.

She asks for separate maintenance, $25 a month alimony and the home in Ramona Acres. She also asks for an injunction restraining him from interfering with her or from disposing of his property.

SAVES LIFE BY REFUSING DIVORCE.

Anthony A. Minter, head waiter at the Jonathan Club, will not have to choose death in preference to divorce. The suit of his wife, Maria Gertrude Minter, tried before Judge Monroe yesterday, showed that cruelty had not been proved and the court declined to grant a decree.

Mrs. Minter said that her husband had often remarked that he would prefer death to divorce.

"A great many church people say that death is preferable to separation," said Judge Monroe. "That is merely a matter of opinion."

GRASS WIDOW. AND ONLY FOURTEEN.

Rita Martin Ryan, 14 years old, and her kid husband, Clarence, aged 16, were legally separated on the second effort yesterday. Although only a child, Rita has been twice married, each time to the same youth. They went to Santa Ana October 8, 1914, dressed in disguises that made them look older than they really were, and were married. Mrs. Lucy Miller, mother of the girl, learned of the wedding, and took daughter home.

Last December the two met once more and eloped to the State of Washington while a suit for annulment was pending. The nonappearance of the principals resulted in a dismissal of the suit. When the youthful Mrs. Ryan returned to her home shortly afterward she said her young husband had been anything but gallant and chivalrous and the girl's mother brought another proceeding. It took Judge Monroe five minutes to dismiss the action yesterday.

COURT PARAGRAPHS. PROCEEDINGS IN BRIEF.

CIGARS THE STAKE. Sergt. "Billy" Matuskiwiz, property clerk of the police department, triumphed over the Southern Pacific Railroad yesterday before Justice Hinshaw, sitting in the Superior Court. The railroad brought action against the property clerk for the recovery of $500 worth of cigars which have been held at Central Police Station since the arrest of George H. Swartout, a conductor, charged with stealing them. The preliminary examination of Swartout developed nothing and he was dismissed. Then the railroad sued Sergt. Matuskwiz for the cigars. The railroad admitted that it was impossible to identify the cigars as those that were stolen, and the smokes will now go to Swartout.

Kitchener's Influence in Egypt.

[Homer Croy in Leslie's:] Hardly had I got through the customs when I was impressed with the fact that Egypt is a one-man country. On every side one hears this man's name; it's Kitchener this and Kitchener that. Before he came, Egypt was in a rebellious state; fighting, treachery, mutiny, shovel-headed spears. Now it is different. The reason of it all is Khartum. It was there that Maj.-Gen. Sir Horatio Herbert Kitchener taught them where to get their meals. There he threw their last spear into the Nile and made them promise to be good; but he had to kill 20,000 to make them see things his way. Near Khartum the blacks made their last stand. When they surrendered and gave up their last spear and carbine, Kitchener set about making a nation of them. When they came upon Mahmud, the leader, he was sitting on his prayer rug, his head bowed, his weapons around him, according to the custom of the dervishes, silently waiting for the victor's blow that would send his head rolling into the hot sand. When Kitchener told him to go back to camp and get something to eat he was more astonished than he was that the battle had gone against him.

From that day, seventeen years ago Kitchener has been the most feared and best loved man in Egypt. Feared by the half educated effendi and loved by the fellah. The peasant had his ear. Kitchener speaks Arabic, having learned it when he was in the Holy Land as director of the Palestion exploration fund. He knew the people and sympathized with them as no other commander in Egypt had done.

Government land is becoming scarce. Secure a desirable relinquishment among the many advertised in the "Government Land" columns in The Times' "liner" section.

TRAFFIC RULES NEED CHANGING.

CONDITIONS IN NEW TERRITORY NOT LIKE BROADWAY.

Council Instructs City Attorney to Draft Amendment Providing for State Speed Limit in San Fernando District and Other Territory Recently Annexed.

Traffic conditions in the San Fernando district and other agricultural territory recently annexed to Los Angeles are much different from conditions at Broadway and Fifth street, in the opinion of Councilman Conwell, and he presented a resolution yesterday looking toward an amended traffic ordinance which will work better in the new territory. The need for changes was brought to Mr. Conwell's attention, he said, by the fact that there have been several arrests on country roads in the San Fernando district.

The resolution, which passed the Council, directs the City Attorney to prepare an amendment to the traffic ordinance fixing the speed limit within annexed territory the same as that fixed by the new State laws.

The Council adopted a suggestion of the City Engineer to construct drains across Leesmore and Del Rio streets before improvements are made in Leesmore street. The City Engineer was instructed by the Council to prepare an ordinance for sidewalks on Dayton avenue between Avenue 20 and Pasadena avenue.

Appeals from the assessments of the Board of Public Works in the proceedings for improvement of Third street between Occidental boulevard and Virgil avenue will be heard by the Council August 11.

MAY REVOKE LICENSE ON INCENDIARY CHARGE.

A report from Chief Eley on the incendiary fire at the New Poodle Dog restaurant, No. 138 North Spring street, was received by the Fire Commission yesterday and referred to the Police Commission with the suggestion that Fidel Bezmartea, proprietor, be cited to show cause why his restaurant liquor license should not be revoked. The chief told the commission that oil-soaked material was found in a trail leading to the fire, and the proprietor, who was later arrested, asserted that there was no oil in the building.

The application of Dwight F. Sheelman for reinstatement on the eligible list of the fire department was disapproved by Chief Eley. Sheelman resigned from the fire department to join the police force, and now seeks to come back under the two-platoon system.

Mrs. Brainerd Confirmed.

The Mayor's appointment of Mrs. E. R. Brainerd as a member of the Playgrounds Commission was confirmed by the Council yesterday. Mrs. Brainerd succeeds F. B. Silverwood, who resigned recently.

Discovers an Artist.

Mayor Sebastian discovered a real artist yesterday when a gang of trusties came over from the City Jail to decorate his office, and the answer is that the Mayor's private office bears on the east wall a handsome oil painting of the City Seal and the Bear and Star of the territorial flag, while the outer office will be decorated this week with paintings of the Municipal Harbor, a city playground and a park scene.

SANG YANKEE DOODLE.

A Twelve-Year-Old Drummer Boy had to Make His American Cousins Envious by a Daring Feat.

[Washington Star:] Continual exposure to danger breeds coolness. The soldier who nervously dodges the first bullet that whistles past his head becomes indifferent to the fiftieth. Men under steady fire for hours, with comrades dead and dying about them, are callous and self-collected.

At the taking of the Shah Nujeef, in Lucknow, by the British the commandant found it necessary to signal to the English force at the residency to make known his position. For this purpose an adjutant, a sergeant and Drummer Ross, a boy only about 12 years old and small for his years, climbed to the top of the dome of the Shah Nujeef by means of a rope ladder.

There, with the regimental color and a feather bonnet on the tip of the staff, they signaled to the residency, and the little drummer sounded the regimental call on a bugle which he had learned to play.

The signal was seen, and was answered from the residency by the lowering of a flag three times. But the enemy also saw the signaling and the daring adventurers on the dome and turned their guns on them, sending several round shots quite close to them.

Their object being gained, the English descended, but little Ross, ran up the ladder again like a monkey, and holding to the spire of the dome with his left hand waved his feather bonnet defiantly about his head.

Then he sounded the regimental call a second time and followed that by the call known as "The Cock of the North," which he sounded as a blast of defiance to the enemy. When he was peremptorily ordered to come down from his dangerous position he did so, but not until he had sung, waving his bonnet all the time:

"There's not a man beneath the moon,
Nor lives in any land he,
That hasn't heard the pleasant tune
Of 'Yankee Doodle Dandy.'
"In cooling drinks and clipper ships
The Yankee has the way shown,
On land and sea 'tis he that whips
Old Bull and all creation."

When little Ross reached the parapet at the foot of the dome, he turned to the lieutenant, saluted, and said:

"Ye ken, sir, I was born when the regiment was in Canada, and my mother was on a visit to an aunt in the States, and I could not come down till I had sung 'Yankee Doodle' to make my American cousins envious when they hear of the deeds of the 93rd."

The Longest Flagstaff.

[Boston Transcript:] The longest flagstaff produced in British Columbia is soon to be sent to Great Britain as a gift from the Provincial government, and it is planned to place it in the Kew Botanical Gardens, a few miles out from London. The tree from which it was made was a perfect specimen of fir pine, and the staff, which is 216 feet in length, is without flaw.

Where They Had Been.

[National Monthly:] Neighbor's Little Girl: When did you get back, Mrs. Browne? Did you have a nice time?

Neighbor: Why, I haven't been away, my dear.

"Haven't you, really? I'm sure I heard mother say you and Mr. Browne had been at loggerheads for a week."

Marvels.

INTRICATE WORKINGS OF STORES ASTONISH.

Wonderful Organization, Exact and Complete, Makes it Possible for Milady to Shop Comfortably, with Minimum of Thought and Effort, in Big Establishments of Broadway—A Peep Behind the Scenes.

BY OLIVE GRAY.

A LADY dropped into one of the big stores on Broadway quite late in the afternoon, purchased an article and ordered it sent to her home in Beverly Hills. When she reached her house, after dinner time, the package was there before her. She is marveling still over the rapid transit, and has asked herself many times how it was accomplished.

The delivery systems in the big stores furnish but one of the many wonders in the management of these establishments. Each successful store is organized after a system all its own and each has some feature of particular interest to one who looks below the surface.

Let us follow, for example, the gown which you purchased yesterday and see what has happened to it since it was bought a few weeks ago in New York. The head buyer of the ready-to-wear section was probably the purchaser of the gown. It may have come by express or fast freight. There are houses in the city which keep a continuous shipment of expressage in arrival in order to keep up with the very latest modes in garments and millinery. In the big receiving-room, located probably at the top of the store, the box containing the gown was unpacked and the contents were checked and turned over to the one in charge of price marks.

A complete system of book-keeping is in effect in the receiving-room, and in many of the larger houses a price-marking machine stands as arbiter of fates in regard to prices. Once the price mark is affixed, no power can change it in a strictly "one-price" house. The little figured markers upon which you sometimes prick your fingers as you try on a garment are guardians which stand between the seller and the public. It is only upon some special cut-price occasion, decided upon in consultation by the management and duly advertised, that this little mark may be transformed.

IMPORTANT POSITION.

From the stock receiving-room goods, if new, go to the office of the sales manager and then to the advertising manager before being turned over to the department heads. In some instances in the larger stores the sales manager and the advertising manager are one. This position is, undoubtedly, the most responsible in the house, outside the actual membership in the firm. It entails a knowledge of all stock, all values and a verification of each with the other, and, in fact, a general supervision of the selling end of the business, which is the very raison d'etre of the store.

Without losing sight of the maxim that "goods well bought are half sold," we cannot fail to recognize that more than half the selling, as well as the building up of the reputation of a house, lies in the truthfulness of its advertising. The safeguarding of this end of the business is one of the most striking features of modern merchandising.

Time was when, after reading a glowing advertisement regarding certain articles for sale, you would be quite likely to learn, upon repairing to the store, that the goods were not as represented, in even a remote degree, and yet the store went on doing business year after year, and you went on hoping that possibly next time the advertising might be true.

Now, it is doubtful if a store which advertised untruthfully could long remain in business. It has taken the strictest care and attention to bring about this condition. The advertising office is a check on the merchandise for the reason that it must endure censure if goods are not as represented. The wording of the advertisement must be unequivocal. If goods are seconds, it must so, be stated; if half-price, this must be actually so.

COST OF MISTAKES.

In case a mistake is made in price, as sometimes occurs despite checking and re-checking, the error is traced to its source. If it is the fault of the advertising office, it is laid at that door. If it is a fault in the department—or "section," as the better class of store people prefer to call it—the deficit must be borne there. If, on the other hand, the error is the fault of the newspaper in which the advertisement is printed, that paper must bear the loss. In no instance, so far as known today, is the public made to suffer for misstatements in advertising.

For example, if full-fashioned silk hose of a certain description are advertised to be sold for 25 cents at a certain store, and it is proved that the copy said ""75 cents," the newspaper will be called upon to stand the difference between the real and the advertised price. The hose will be sold for the advertised price. If, on the other hand, the error rests with the house, it must "make good."

The claims for advertising space come from the heads of departments to that office and the requisitions for window space are made by the departments upon the head window manager. Often the advertising and the window space go hand in hand. Then there is the matter of sign cards to accompany the articles specially advertised. Space both in advertising and in windows is apportioned equably among the departments in order that all may have a fair chance, for each department is conducted much as though it were an individual store and each head is responsible for the success of that under him. This gives occasion for some good-natured rivalry. After the advertising goes out and before the sales begin, a last checker goes over the entire house, verifying the articles with advertised prices. This last inspector goes on a shopping tour through the house, very much as you or I will do, later, when the doors are open.

DELIVERY SYSTEM.

After the purchase of the article, it goes through many hands, and is checked over and over again, to make certain that addresses are correct, that charges or C. O. D.'s are right, and that the package contains sales slips and whatever else should accompany it. Finally it goes to the section in the delivery rooms whence it will be taken by the delivery wagon or motor assigned to the locality where it is to go, and the man handling it from that time until it reaches your hands is responsible for its safety. Nearly always the delivery department is below ground and promptness is facilitated by chutes, by continuous belts which convey from the main or other floors, through the charge account offices, the C. O. D. offices, the cash or charge transfer desks, and so on.

The automobile has done much to facilitate delivery. I was told in one establishment which has installed motor cars for the main part of its work that a single automobile does the work of four wagons.

But before your gown can be delivered, it may have to pass through the fitting rooms, where alterations are made and where a full corps of dressmakers and tailors is employed—a business in itself maintained.

In case you wish to establish a credit with a store, you are usually expected to give references, or in case you are well-known and an unquestioned resident, this is waived. It is the business of the credit office to ascertain just about what you will expend during each month and it is the mission of the head credit man to keep an eye upon you and see that you do not alarmingly exceed this amount.

Have you ever stopped to think of the cost of keeping the accounts of a big store? How many hands must come in contact with your "bill" before it reaches you and you send in your check? When, in addition to the goods actually purchased, you have the habit of sending home quantities of articles "on approval" or have a mania for "exchanging," as I am sorry to say many women have, think of the expense attached to the handling of those items which nets the store nothing! When this is considered, it is not surprising that some of the large Eastern establishments are considering the discontinuance of the "exchange" and "approval" privileges. Each delivery costs the store something and when goods are delivered and re-delivered, it means dead loss, to just that amount. "The time may not be far distant," said a writer on the subject, "when stores will be obliged, in self defense, to charge for deliveries of goods."

FREE EDUCATION.

The "free" features in connection with large city stores have reached enormous proportions. When you think of the free and elegantly equipped rest rooms, the toilet privileges, the sanitary drinking fountains, the writing facilities and the many entertaining and educational features in connection with the big stores, and contrast them with the dearth of such comforts but a few years ago, you realize how much expense must have gone to bring about the present state of things. In one store in our city, scores of children are actually being educated in special lines, such as declamation, singing, music and the dramatic arts, absolutely without cost to their parents. This plan originated as a mere entertainment for the children on Saturdays, to give their parents freedom to shop or seek recreation, but from a Fairyland of story-telling, it has grown into a genuinely educational opportunity.

Another free feature is the maintenance of a furnished bungalow where good taste in housefurnishing is demonstrated. That the house runs the chance of benefitting by the example and inspiration does not detract from the benefit without expense to the visitors there.

A free dressmaking school is another feature which has benefitted patrons, while almost every store has its bureau of advice on dress.

Free lectures upon nearly every subject of interest to women and to the home are given during the year in nearly every high class store, while the free exhibition of pictures and collections is taken as a matter of course by those who accept without thanks, or even recognition, all that is done for them.

Most of the big stores are in charge, first, of the firm, of course. These men are seldom seen or known to shoppers. Their representatives, however, the men who have taken the place of the one-time mine host of the glad hand who met customers at the front door, are the floor managers. "Floor walkers" is the term which has sometimes been applied to these people, who are, as a matter of fact, among the most important in the house. This term is a misnomer, and anyone who has given thought to the subject will concede the position is probably one of the most important in the entire regime of the modern dry goods establishment. The floor manager must, first of all, look well and be well clad. He must be courteous, intelligent, affable. He must know the stock, its location and its range, and must be acquainted with all special sales. He must have an eye upon all the salespeople within his section, and must see that patrons are well treated and well satisfied, as well as that no harm or insult befalls anyone behind the counters. He is, in fact, the envoy of the firm who comes directly in contact with the trade. It is he who can, better than anyone else, perhaps, tell just how the day is going—whether sales will be large, small or moderate. Upon his tact, his knowledge, depends the friendship extended by the newcomer to the house. If repelled by a lack of information or courtesy, the would-be patron is a patron elsewhere. The floor men must know about the charge accounts and must "o. k." checks.

Great discretionary powers are theirs, for to doubt in the wrong place is as fatal as to repose confidence where it should be wanting. The person who has imagined that floor managers do not need brains has failed to realize all the demands upon these men, and those who invented—in opprobrium—the term "floor-walkers," should remodel their vocabulary.

SALARY AND SUCCESS.

The buyers, in each section or department, are as a rule, the head managers of their departments. The assistant managers of departments sometimes assist in buying and have charge of stock in the departments. It takes a constant look ahead to see that stock is adequate to demands, not only for tomorrow but for the month, the season, the year. It takes judgment to buy just enough and not too much. Many times salaries depend upon the profits shown in departments and always whether fixed or partially by bonus, the salary depends upon success.

In one of the medium-sized stores is employed the highest-salaried suit and gown saleswoman in the city. This woman never tries to sell you the wrong garment. She will not sell you a $100 gown in preference of a $50 one, if it is not suited to your style. She builds not for today's sales, but for next year's patronage and for that of the year following. She makes business for the house and for herself she has created a following which will accompany her anywhere. This is her capital. Her salary has gone up and up again, because of this. She has been bought away from one house and then another because of her ability. It is needless to say that every house wants first class salespeople, since it must depend upon them for its welfare, for its very life. The house which has recognized that upon its treatment of its employees depends their loyalty, their service and, therefore, its own well being, has already gone far on the road to success. Different plans are in effect to accomplish such loyalty. Some houses use the profit-sharing plan, paying to its salespeople a bonus upon all sales over a fixed salary. Others pay higher fixed salaries and allow a bonus upon sales above a yearly amount. Almost without exception, the personal comfort of employees is an important consideration with the stores. Sanitary rest rooms, hospitals, nursing and medical attendance, as well as "sick benefits" and other welfare features, have come to be almost matters of course in the stores. Schools of salesmanship, instruction in the particular ways of that particular house and inspiration for new and enthusiastic endeavor form a part of the regime in many of the stores which are the business educational institutes of their employees, as well as their daily homes. Brains, originality, expended upon the solution of problems around them, mean advancement almost without exception.

FINE EQUIPMENT.

The physical side of the big stores is an interesting one. The great batteries of elevators and the boilers which furnish light, heat and power are located in the depths below the street level. In some cases they extend underneath the sidewalks or even the streets. The electric plant of one of the big stores has sufficient power to light a city of 75,000 inhabitants. This plant cost $370,000. The air cooling apparatus, located on the roof, cost $40,000. One of the members of the firm declared it was cheap at that, for the reason that since its installation and with the improvement in the air breathed by the employees, sickness had been reduced to a minimum. "No more girls fainting by reason of the bad air," said he with satisfaction.

The head engineer, in charge of the depths containing all the machinery, has much to do with the physical comfort of employees as well as that of patrons. A well-heated, well-lighted, comfortable store more naturally becomes the mecca of shoppers than does one less so.

Have you ever thought of the continuous effort it must take to keep a big store clean and in order? There are day and night shifts in charge of such affairs, the size of the squadron depending upon the size of the store, from fifty to sixty or more being employed in the larger place, as porters and cleaners. Then there are the carpenter shops, the paint shops, etc., where especial pieces and wood work for particular displays are constructed. For the Fashion Shows these shops are extremely busy. The superintendent of the store has charge of all workers upon the physical part of the store.

The manager of a store ranks next to the firm itself, representing them to the other employees and in the carrying out of their plans. Then comes the assistant manager. The general superintendent has charge of the help, hiring and discharging. His is no small task when special sales or holiday times arrive. He must select from great numbers of more or less untrained persons and many times the success of the sale depends upon the kind of temporary help at hand.

BOON FOR BEGINNERS.

One of the stores which makes a point of bargain counters is a boon to the job hunter, in that it does not demand experience in a newly acquired employee. Here, then, under kindly, fostering management, many a salesperson has acquired his or her start in life. In this house a very close relation is maintained between the firm and its employees by means of a series of clubs, under the parenthood of that club formed by the heads of the house.

Another house, one of the most reliable in the city and high class in proportion, prides itself upon the personnel of its employees. And in turn, its employees are equally proud of the house for which they work. In fact, in Los Angeles there is no "shopgirl" class, as the term is understood in eastern cities. The women in the stores here are ladies, in the higher sense, and the men are gentlemen in all that the term implies of true courtesy, thoughtfulness and self-respecting conduct. Many coming here from the East have been used to the best that life affords, but through changed circumstances have sought employment in the stores, which give the best to be found in the way of work in the locality. As a consequence, "caste" is absent from Los Angeles business life.

No article dealing with the life of the big stores would be complete without mention of the window decorators, for upon them, more perhaps than upon any others, depends the presentation of the establishment to the public. It is to them that the public looks for its passing glimpse into the newest, the most beautiful in the houses upon the street, not only during the Fashion Shows, but at all times.

Next to "I saw it in the newspaper," comes, "I saw it in the windows." These are the searchlights which throw out to the eyes of the public the announcement of the values housed within the stores.

Many a shopper is lured inside the store by a pleasing presentation of something which she really was not aware of needing, just as many a woman finds in scanning the advertising page, that she can obtain for less than she expected to pay, the things which she knew she would sometime be obliged to have. The window artist thus becomes a writer of advertising, but he presents his "copy" in material form, rather than in words. He must be as conscientious, his signs must be as accurate and his "lay-out" as attractive, while to all he must add originality and the beauty of artistic talent, as well.

OTHER WORKERS.

In addition to the many squadrons of workers which keep the physical part of the stores in motion, there are many individual workers, such as maids in the dressing and rest-rooms, and those who care for the garments, keeping them in repair. Not only efficiency, but honesty as well, is a necessary characteristic in all these employees. Not long ago a lady dropped a $5 gold piece into the cash receptacle in one of the dressing-rooms of a big store and at closing time the maid discovered the mistake and took the money to the superintendent. The gold piece was placed on the "Lost and Found" desk and several days later the lady called to inquire, although with small hope of recovering her lost money. She received the $4.95 which was her due and went away to sing the praises of the honest maid in attendance there.

The "lost and found" departments are not the least interesting of the accommodations for the public, which are among the gratuities in the big stores. There is really no reason why the stores should take care of your parasols or mine, returning them to us after we have done our best to rid ourselves of them. But they take infinite pains in the preservation and care of such articles. A complete system of book-keeping and closeting records the day, hour and place of the loss and when we bethink ourselves of our thrown-away handbag, gloves or umbrella, the patient "lost and found" lady has our property all ticketed and safe in response to our more or less intelligent description.

When we consider the enormous expenses entailed in the maintenance of all the gratuities of the big stores, sober second thought should lead us to wonder not why the cost of living is high, but how it is possible for us to receive so much for our money. As a matter of fact, the actual cost of articles purchased in the big dry goods and department stores is lower as the years go by, and the profits of the stores less in effect and the free conveniences possible only because of the volume of business transacted.

ALLEGES FRAME UP.

President of Chinese Tong Accused by Countrywoman of Spite Work. Would Marry Daughter.

Charging that Wong Quong, president of the Bing Kung tong, framed up a plot to have her charged with grand larceny because she would not allow him to marry her daughter, Mrs. Wong Ching Shem, a pretty Chinese woman, went to jail yesterday for the alleged theft of $1000 in money and jewelry from Fond Shee, another Chinese woman.

The preliminary hearing of the charge took place before Justice Summerfield yesterday and Mrs. Wong was held to the action of the Superior Court under $1000 bond. Chinese friends scurried around all afternoon yesterday trying to raise the money. Mrs. Wong is said to have admitted that she took the valuables from her friend, but she denied it in court. She was arrested at Bakersfield recently.

GIRL'S CHARGES HEARD.

Young Negress Says Music Teacher Invited Her to Beach Party and Other Seances.

When Prof. George Carr, a music teacher in the Mozart Theater Building, caught a mess of fish at the beach he telephoned Beatrice Albritton, a colored girl, 14 years old, who took lessons of him. This was the girl's testimony on the witness stand before Justice Summerfield yesterday in the preliminary examination of Carr on a statutory charge.

The girl stated that week after week, the music teacher took advantage of her. The professor, in a Prince Albert coat and a silk hat up-ended at his elbow, listened to the testimony. Justice Summerfield continued the hearing until Friday morning.

BORN IN THE BLOOD.

Coyote Cannot Be Trusted Even Though Raised as a Pet, Chauffeur Learns.

When R. O. Martin, a chauffeur of No. 307 North Commonwealth avenue, took a coyote home for a pet friends warned him that it is the nature of the animal to turn upon its best friend at the most unexpected time.

He laughed at the advice, but learned its truth yesterday morning when he reached down to pat the little fellow on the head. With a vicious growl he grabbed his master's hand and held on tenaciously. As a result Mr. Martin's fingers were badly lacerated and he was compelled to hurry to the Receiving Hospital to have the wounds treated. The lacerations were cauterized and the coyote was killed.

COURT TO HAVE VACATION.

The United States District Court is preparing to let go for the summer. The vacation season is on. Tomorrow Judge Trippet will hear the law and motion calendar and will probably hold court another day during the week, when there will be a sine die adjournment until September 7. Judge Bledsoe will take up the matter of sentencing Charles A. Elder, W. D. Deeble and George M. Derby, convicted former officials of the Los Angeles Investment Company Thursday, and later in the week will hand down several decisions that he has had under consideration for some time in his chambers. Within a few days thereafter he will be away for a month or six weeks.

THE GORGEOUS LORD NEVILL.

And Other Stunning Visions of the Week at the San Francisco Exposition—Days Devoted to Royalty of all Sorts—Many Southern Californians There to See and Hear the Musical and Spectacular Events.

BY JEANNE REDMAN.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

EXPOSITION GROUNDS, SAN FRANCISCO, July 31.—The exposition has devoted itself largely to royalty this week. There were two crowning events. The Society of Americans of Royal Descent held their annual meeting in the Virginia Building, which is a replica of the Mount Vernon home of George Washington. The organization is made up of members of the Baronial Order of Runnymede, and of the Order of the Crown. All members are related to crowned heads of Europe, though many of them acknowledge the relationship to be rather distant.

This meeting happened to occur in the same week as the presentation of the yacht trophy which King George of England has sent to the exposition as a token of his good wishes.

His Majesty chose such a stunning representative in Lord Richard Plantagenet Nevill, that all San Francisco decided to belong to the royalty, if it were possible.

According to the printed bylaws any member of the Colonial Dames or the Sons of the American Revolution, who will put up $30 is eligible to apply for membership among the scions of royalty. Of the deposit, $20 is used for a genealogical hunt among the applicant's ancestors; if they are found available, the applicant is enrolled; if not, he loses his $30.

Many persons, who had seen the King's representative and found him fascinating, had themselves looked up, with, I believe, entirely satisfactory results, for the most part. I, myself, dropped in to renew my affiliations with my ancestors, and felt much happier after I had had tea in Washington's temporary kitchen, with royalty.

Indeed, royalty has been the rage this week, and if it continues we have every reason to think that there will soon be as many titles in San Francisco as there are in the Duchess' novels.

LORD NEVILL.

Lord Nevill wears a gorgeous apparel of blue trousers with stripes of white and a charming red jacket trimmed with silver mountings on the collar and cuffs, and he has medals all over his breast. He wears a black hat turned up on both sides with a black and red plume sticking up the center. He is a vision and he aroused great emotion in the hearts of those of his countrymen who gathered in the Court of Abundance to see him present the loving cup. Directly back of me sat an Englishwoman and her husband and child, none of whom was eligible to a membership in the Society of Royalty. Whenever one of the speakers would say anything flattering or complimentary of England, the little "person" would lift up her voice and cry, "ear, ear!" and her mild husband would tap her arm with his finger to calm her. She, however, was very hard to calm, and before long she was the center of great amusement for those around her. One man in particular kept his eye on her, and when President Moore addressed the crowd and said that after all, the English red coat was "an agreeable sight to see," the woman shouted, "Hurrah for the Sailor King!" This was too much for the man who watched her, and as he left the court, he whispered in her ear (a very rude thing to do) "Hoch der Kaiser!" She gave him an excruciating glance and hissed out, "Narrow-minded vulgarity!"

People are such sheep. All one has to do to win them over is to play a national anthem or wave a flag. Before the afternoon was over we were all English! The men were so stunning that I move that our men, in and out of service, wear brilliantly colored uniforms.

THE BRASS BUTTONS.

The military and naval element lends atmosphere and color to the exposition, and to San Francisco affairs generally. The military costumes add to the gaiety of the social affairs of the city and exposition, but on the whole, the naval officers are the most ornamental. And they are all over the place.

Maj. Jack Meyers, in command of the United States marines, is one of the most dashing figures at the exposition, with his military cape, lined with scarlet, his white, gold-bedecked cap, and his gold leaves, which, it is whispered, may turn to silver in the fall. Maj.-Gen. George Barnett came out from Washington last week and gave the marines a review and inspection at the marine barracks in the exposition grounds.

THE MISSION PAGEANT.

The most spectacular event of the week was the Mission Pageant given by the players from Carmel-by-the-Sea, of which there are 408 talented artists. The historic struggles of Father Junipero Serra and Don Gaspar de Portola are told through four acts which were given in the Court of the Universe, in the open air. The participants were the authors and artists from the literary colony at Carmel. The initial episode of the pageant deals with the expedition of Father Serra and Portola from La Paz, Mexico, to California. Serra, ill and suffering, is accompanied by Portola and Ramon Ortiz, a subaltern, who leaves his sweetheart behind. The second episode is staged in Carmel in 1769, just before the expedition is compelled to retreat before the Indian attack. The third act reproduces the Monterey Presidio during a festival, and carries out the romance of Serra's efforts to form the chain of missions in California. The fourth act is the Carmel Mission, which was most effectively reproduced.

Another event of the week was "Southern California Day." Seven counties of Southern California played host in their exhibit section of the California Building. The day opened with a band concert and buffet luncheon served free to the visitors. This was followed by a reception and dance in the ballroom of the California Building. In the afternoon fruits were given away and a Hawaiian orchestra furnished a musical programme.

Southern California is represented here this week in great numbers. The hotels are crowded with Los Angeles people, some of whom are the handsomest to be seen on the grounds and in the cafes.

WELSH AND PERSIANS.

This has been the week for the Eisteddfod. The Welsh people of America are giving full sway to their love for music and literature in the music festival which they are holding in the Civic Auditorium. The ceremonies opened with Druidic rites. There were choruses by men and women, and the Boys' Band from Santa Barbara played the overture from the "Poet and Peasant" very creditably. The chief event of the day was the competition for women's choirs. It was participated in by the Haydn Choir of Chicago, a club from Tacoma, the Oakland Women directed by Paul Steindorff and the Pasmore Ensemble of San Francisco. All sang excellently, but the judges agreed that the highest musicianship was shown by the women from Chicago, and to them was awarded the $1000 prize. The second prize of $250 went to Tacoma. The easterners won the prizes on their worth, but the singing of the local choirs was long to be remembered. In delivering his award, Mr. Kroeger told the audience that the German choralists at the Metropolitan Operahouse enunciate English words better than do their American or English colleagues.

The Persian section at the Palace of Manufactures was opened this week with a formal ceremony conducted by Mirza Ali Kuli Khan, the Charge d'Affaire at Washington. The guests were seated in the Court of the Universe, which was cordoned with ropes and hung with hundreds of rugs of the soft texture and marvelous colors for which Persia has so long been famous. Just within the Palace of Manufactures were exhibits equally representative of the Persia of poetry and fable. There were vases of rare mosaic, filled with attar of roses, scrip Korans, printed so long ago that their beginnings are lost in antiquity; rugs and carpets and shawls, brocades of cloth, of gold and silver, green diamonds from the royal jewels of Persia, tapestries and other fabrics of intricate weave. A Persian hound guards these treasures night and day, his vigilance being added to by a corps of exposition guards.

The Shah of Persia cabled the exposition his congratulations upon the opening of the exhibit.

San Francisco receives the compliments of all the world these days, and the good will of humanity, all of which she richly deserves for the tremendous accomplishment of fittingly commemorating the building of the Panama Canal.

LEADER OF YOUNG WOMEN RESIGNS.

Y.W.C.A. GENERAL SECRETARY LEAVES SHORTLY.

Failing Health Given as the Cause. Her Successor is Announced as the Woman Who Headed Minneapolis Association for the Last Twenty-two Years.

Announcement was made last night by officials of the local branch of the Young Women's Christian Association of the resignation of Miss Amelia C. Johnson as general secretary and the appointment of Miss M. Belle Jeffery as her successor. The change is effective September 1. Miss Johnson has been general secretary here for the last three years. Miss Jeffery comes from Minneapolis, where she was general secretary of the association there for the last twenty-two years.

Miss Johnson's resignation was caused by her failing health and it is her intention to start on a long vacation in a few weeks to recuperate. It was with keen regret that Mrs. Willitts J. Hole, president of the board of managers of the local institution, accepted her resignation.

Association members who knew Miss Jeffery in Minneapolis, feel that the Los Angeles branch is very fortunate in securing her services.

WONDERFUL ADVERTISING.

Bullock's Use Nine-Page Advertisement to Tell of August Clearance Sale—Largest Ever Printed Here.

When a firm fills nine pages of The Times in enumeration of the special sales in the forthcoming great August clearance, you may rest assured that if you are interested in sales, it will be well to be on hand to secure your share of the good things offered.

This might not be true, if the store were not one which makes a point of truthful advertising; but not only is it a representative house in this respect, but it is a house which has tested advertising to the fullest effect. That "hard times" are easily transformed into "good times" by advertising is a part of the creed of this house and it is a creed which has made good.

This nine-page advertising is not merely space covering, but it is convincing. No one can read over carefully the presentations made there, without determining that there must be "something good doing" where there is so much good talk.

In the faith, based upon experience, that advertising does bring results, especially when the advertising is backed up by "the goods," Bullock's have engaged hundreds of extra salespeople for the annual sale beginning tomorrow.

"I saw it advertised," is today backed with the full confidence that everything will be found as stated. Therefore big advertising, means big interest from the public, and big sales for the house which advertises.

DEFENDANT DYING.

Paul J. Otto, an attorney for Mrs. Alice E. Hammill, asked Judge Cabaniss for a writ of habeas corpus yesterday for the release of Mrs. Hammill, who is charged with having forged a birth certificate. Mrs. Hammill, who is struggling with the plague in the tuberculosis ward at the County Hospital, is not expected to live. Attorney Otto's contention is that there is no forgery, under the law, according to the section of the penal code under which the information against Mrs. Hammill was drawn. He cites decision in the famous Slingsby case to prove his contention. Judge Cabaniss made the order returnable Monday when the writ will be argued.

WILL COME WILLINGLY.

Postoffice Inspector McHenry of Denver wired Postoffice Inspector Webster, yesterday, that Charles A. Williamson, the fugitive former president of the National Tuna Fishing and Canning Company, had decided not to fight removal proceedings, and that an officer would start immediately with Williamson for Los Angeles. It was expected that Williamson would fight extradition, but he indicated his willingness to return here as soon as he was taken into custody.

Woman's City Club.

The annual picnic and High Jinks of the Woman's City Club, held in Sycamore Grove last Monday, was a tremendous success, marked by a splendid attendance of several hundred women, the Mayor and members of the City Council who "came to see themselves as others saw them," and prominent public officials.

Good humor prevailed from start to finish, and no one enjoyed the mock councilmanic session more than the personages being satirized.

The "session" started immediately following the picnic luncheon, members of the august (?) body being seated on a raised platform, around an imposing table amply strong to withstand the blows which fell from the emphatic wielding of the gavel—Mrs. M. E. Johnson ex-officio. Mrs. Johnson's impersonation of President Betkouski was little short of remarkable, phraseology, dress and even habits—from the combing of her hair to the tie of her "windsor" making an impression. She wore a man's gray suit and hat the exact replica of the character she imitated.

Shouts of laughter continuously interrupted the witticisms injected into the weighty (?) deliberations of the burlesque council meeting, though it progressed with marked speed and was adjourned early in the afternoon.

As Mayor Sebastian, Dr. M. Evangeline Jordon wanted a bouquet of flowers sent him each day by the Park Commission, the latter (Mrs. John H. Francis) jumping to her feet with the statement that he could have but two and no more. Instantly there came an objection from "the Rt. Rev. Glen McWilliams" who protested to flowers in the chambers a-tall on account of hay fever. The matter was referred to the Health Commission.

The sergeant-at-arms (Mrs. Ella S. Miller) had rather a job to remove Efficiency (Mrs. Ferdinand Hickok) from the Council, and it was accomplished only after a severe struggle.

City Clerk Dave Carroll (Mrs Gertrude Brennan) objected to every bill brought up, reiterating repeatedly, "It can't come up today."

All matters referred to the City Attorney (Mrs. Horace E. Montague) met the same fate: "I don't know anything about it—I'll take it under advisement." "Tossie Wright," as depicted by Mrs. J. Bert Stearns, insisted that Mrs. Estelle Lawton Lindsey should have everything she asked for in the council and was called to order. The woman member of the aldermanic body was "taken off" by Mrs. H. S. Darling, who took great delight in asking Mr. Mulholland of the Water Commission (Mrs. Frank Wolfe) if there was enough water in the aqueduct to water the potted palms along Broadway, which nigh caused a riot. Order was restored slightly by the peace advocate, William Jennings Bryan, who armed with a bottle of grape juice, a white "stuffed" dove and a wreath of laurel, made a speech (Mrs. Lewis R. Works) with her oratory of the silver-tongued variety: "I came to the City of the Angels for peace, but all I find is War! War! This is no place for W. J. B." And with a "God Bless You, I resign," he left the riotous body.

Miss Mary Foy, who assisted Mrs. Johnson in the splendid affair, represented City Assessor Mallard, to whom the president of the Council shouted, "If you are waiting down there to find out about that matter, you can go home. The Council knows how it is going to vote."

Mrs. Henry Clay King as the Civil Service Commission, objected to Handley having called it an uncivil commission. Mrs. Emma Reed disclaimed that she was Loren Handley, the handsomest city official, and proved an alibi. But she owned up to being the "city knocker," a unique official she "created" for the day.

The City Mother, Dr. Mary Lou Abbott, "brought up her children," several live ones, and made a clever plea.

Mrs. J. F. Scherfee as Councilman Conwell, who as president of the automobile parade demanded various changes, produced a fine set of rules to govern traffic, as follows:

We, the City Council, hereby amend ordinance No. 99,999 to read:

Article I. Automobiles containing one or more passengers ("Shofers" qualifying as such) shall have the undisputed right of way on all streets and thoroughfares of the city of Los Angeles (Jitney busses not included.)

Article II. All vehicles, to wit: huckster wagons, trucks, delivery wagons, jitney busses and the like, shall be permitted to use the alleys and the less frequented passageways of the city.

Article III. Upon discovering an approaching automobile in such alley way or side street, it shall be the immediate duty of the driver of any such huckster wagon, delivery wagon or of any traffic vehicle of any kind whatsoever to forwith stop offside, alight, and with utmost alacrity cover such vehicle with a cover painted to be in accord with the season, that it may merge into the general ensemble not to disturb the vision or serenity of such autoist as may be compelled to utilize such passageway.

Article VI. It shall not be necessary for autoists to signal nor in any way whatsoever indicate their approach; nor shall it be required of them to slacken their speed for the convenience of citizens presuming to use the city thoroughfares.

If, however, an automobile should run down and fatally injure some such presumptuous passerby, causing him to "linger in great pain," it shall be the duty of the Chief of Police to indite such automobilist a most carefully considerate letter requesting him to exercise greater diligence to the end that a "lingering" demise be avoided.

Upon second offence, offender shall be considerately requested to come before the Chief of Police and repeat the Golden Rule ten times in an earnest tone of voice; upon third offense, offender shall be cited before the municipal court whereupon he shall receive a slap on the wrist."

Coleman House.

Coleman House Settlement Association's regular monthly meeting was a large and congenial gathering, the officers and directors were enthusiastic over the announcement made by Mr. Labrie that the last money on the first payment of the property had been paid. The papers are in escrow and will be ready for the next meeting, leaving only the $5000 mortgage to be taken care of, with the privilege of reducing same at any time, thus decreasing the interest.

Mrs. Myra H. Curtis was elected financial secretary to fill the vacancy left by the resignation of Mrs. Addie Johnson.

Mrs. Ellen McLaughlin, who served so acceptably last year, has been reappointed hospitality chairman. She and her assistant, Mrs. Emily Daniels, served a dainty luncheon on a new set of dishes given the association by Mrs. McLaughlin.

Great preparations are going forward for the rummage sale Tuesday and it is urgently requested that every one will send or bring everything they can. Make up a large bundle and telephone either Garvanza 38 or Main 4933.

New Art.

FINE SHOWING OF MEZZOTINTS.

NEW YORK WOMAN BRINGS HER COLLECTION HERE.

"Nature," "Fountain of Love," "Head of Durer's Father," "Bacchante" and Other Famous Pictures are Strikingly Reproduced. Work of Foremost Artists of Day.

Probably the most comprehensive collection of mezzotint engraving ever shown in Los Angeles is that now on exhibit in the art gallery of Barker Bros. It is only an accident that this group of exceptional pictures happens to be in the city.

Mrs. Paul Braus, wife of the proprietor of the Braus Art Galleries in New York City, known throughout the art world as the principal dealers in mezzotint, came to Los Angeles with her daughter for a visit with friends. A number of these opportuned her to bring some of the works of art here for an exhibition, if nothing more, and she finally consented.

There are several hundred pictures that have been hung in the exhibit, which will last for just a week. Some of the most striking works include "Nature," the vivid depiction of two children painted by Sir Thomas Lawrence and the tint by Sydney E. Wilson, foremost of all modern mezzotint artists in England and ranking with the best American in this branch, S. Arlent Edwards. The tint of "Princess Beaujolais," taken from the painting of Nattier, which hung in the galleries at Versailles, is by the American.

Fred Miller, another of the great names of engravers, is frequently seen in the collection. His "Head of Durer's Father," painted by Albert Durer, is a striking study in natural color, every line and feature being livingly set forth. Others of his works that are striking are "Fountain of Love," the mythological story depicted by Fragonard, original of which was in the famous Morgan collection and now belongs to H. E. Frick; Lady Hamilton's "Bacchante," painted by Romney, and others.

Two striking Gainsborough figures, "Lady Sheffield" and "Mrs. Sheridan," are the reproductions of Alfred J. Skrimshire of England. Aside from these mezzotints, which, because of the quality of their color, rank so high, the Braus collection contains several striking dry-point etchings by W. Lee Hankey. Among these are "The Cave Maiden" and "The Prayer Maiden."

Some very brilliant floral garden scenes from the brush of the noted English artist, Charles E. Flower, and a few pleasingly-delightful oils of Fernandez Gimenez are included in the gallery.

DROWNS IN WESTLAKE PARK.

Peanut Peddler, Tired of a Life of Suffering, Commits Suicide—Body Recovered.

After pinning a note which he had written in Greek to a palm in Westlake Park, Antonio Catsarelas, a peanut vender, 48 years old, leaped into the lake sometime Friday night. His body was recovered yesterday morning after a diligent search prosecuted by policemen and the man's brother.

Friday evening Catsarelas, who had been ill for several months, told a brother he was going for a walk and started in the direction of Westlake Park. Failing to return, the brother instituted a search yesterday morning and found the note. In it the despondent man stated he would rather be dead than suffer any longer. Near the note were his clothes, which he had carefully arranged in a neat pile.

There were no signs as to where the body was and it was necessary to drag the bottom of the lake to discover it. The police say the body was in the water about six hours.

Catsarelas leaves three brothers, George, Peter and Gus Catsarelas. They have been in Los Angeles many years and are well known.

PALM IS SAVED.

One Afire on Broadway Salvaged by Patrolman with a Seltzer Bottle, a la Gin Fizz.

Patrolman Garrot yesterday morning demonstrated that bartenders are not the only persons who know how to manipulate a Seltzer bottle effectively. While he was walking his beat at Fourth street and Broadway he discovered that one of the "ornamental" palms was afire. He knew the foliage would be ruined if he did not act quickly, so, instead of calling the fire department, he rushed into a nearby saloon, secured a Seltzer bottle and dashed back to the fire.

Just as artistically as a mixologist "shoots" a gin fizz the patrolman pressed the lever and immediately the Seltzer enveloped the flames. There followed the familiar sizzle and then the fire died.

The incident created no little excitement on the busy thoroughfare.

A SIBERIAN WEDDING.

Quaint Custom of a Cold Land Where the Groom Gets a Warm Reception During the Ceremony.

[Boston Transcript:] The native Koryak of Kamchatka, far up in the peninsula that is washed by the Bering Sea, can sleep comfortably in a room four feet hight with six by eight feet floor space, and have a fire smoking near all night, while the doors are tightly closed, and then does not object if three others share his apartment with him. Tomorrow he will have chance enough to breathe more cold, fresh air than he cares for, says The Youth's Companion. His picture of the happy hereafter is a snug, cozy place, where every cell of his body can perpetually enjoy warmth and where neither ears, fingers nor toes shall be frozen.

Once in his life, however, things get a little hotter than he can honestly enjoy; and that once he cannot escape if he is to be a man of importance in the community; for it is his marriage ceremony. As soon as the youth falls in love in dead earnest he calls on the maiden's father to find out what dowry she can bring in case of eventual marriage. Since reindeer is the Koryak's medium of exchange, the dowry usually consists of reindeer. If the father consents to the engagement, and his dowry pleases the young man, he interviews the girl, and if she reciprocates his affection he enters her father's service. Chopping wood, tending the herds, cultivating the garden and all other kinds of farm work fall to his share. The period of service lasts from two to three years.

The marriage ceremony begins about 6 o'clock in the evening. There is a building in the village into which the villagers crowd at twilight. A large hall runs through the center of the building, on either side of which are from ten to fifteen little rooms, called pologs. Each polog is separated from the next by heavy reindeer curtains, and the entrance from each polog into the hall is closed by similar curtains. Nowhere in all that building except in the hall could a good-sized man stand upright.

After considerable eating and some drinking, a bass drum begins to beat. At the same time a solemn-faced Koryak passes from one polog to another, dropping willow sprouts and alder branches in each inclosure. Presently the beater of the drum begins to sing, to accompany his slow performance on the drum. Gradually he accelerate his beats and his song. Faster and faster he smites his drum; louder and louder he sings, until within thirty minutes he has worked himself into a state of frenzy, a consummation that is not without its effect upon the villagers. The stolid calm with which they entered, suggestive of an impending funeral, gives place to smiles, to tossings of the head, until by and by the whole crowd are as excited as their leader.

At this point, the front curtain of each polog goes up, and two or three women appear inside. In their hands are the wollow sprouts and alder branches. In a moment the father of the bridegroom enters the building, leading the happy couple by the hand. The noise, the shouting and the whirling now becomes indescribable. At a signal from the groom's father, the bride dashes into the first polog to the right. The women that are within lift the curtain for her, and she passes quickly from one compartment to the next.

Not so with the groom. He dashes after her; but no sooner has he entered the first polog than the women begin to beat him with the willow sprouts and alder branches. He seizes the curtain to enter the next polog, but one or two women hold it down, and if he finally succeeds, there is a hot application of branches on that part of his anatomy that remains longest within the polog.

Meanwhile, the women in the next polog are ready to receive him with equal warmth. They ply the switches energetically, and do not hesitate to thrust out a foot also, in order that the "happy groom" may stumble and afford a more enduring target for their blows.

There is no escape from this experience until the groom has entered and passed through every one of those twenty or thirty pologs. The front curtains are raised, so that the public has a clear chance to enjoy the spectacle.

Of course, he never catches the bride. She has reached the last polog before he is half way through. If she passes out of the last polog, he must work another year at her father's house, and pass through the same ordeal once more. But she usually awaits him in the last polog, and when they meet there the wedding ceremony is finished—they are man and wife.

Sun Baths to Heal Wounds.

[Baltimore American:] Sun baths for the treatment of wounded soldiers are said to have greatly facilitated the healing of wounds. M. d'Arsonval recently explained the system devised by Joseph Vallot to the Academy of Sciences at Paris. The patients are sheltered from the wind, and they receive sky radiations as well as rays of the sun, the air being raised to a temperature of from 100 to 110 deg. Fahrenheit. These conditions are obtained by the use of absorbing screens of canvas painted white and stretched on wooden frames. The bath is formed by three vertical screens, six feet high and five feet wide, set at an angle of 100 degrees so as to reflect the sun's rays inside, the top being left open.

MUSIC AND FLUNKING.

Sweet Strains are a Rest to a Tired Mind, and Will Also Make Cows Give More Milk.

[Philadelphia Ledger:] Harvard men, we are told, are hearing organ recitals of classical music to fortify themselves against the ordeal of final examinations. Not long ago a "model farmer" of New England installed talking machines that sang "Celeste Aida" and "Carmen" while the cows were milked, and a higher percentage of butter fats and casein was the lucrative results. Perhaps the Harvard mentality finds that these "herd melodies are sweet," or perhaps it requires the more sophisticated subtleties of Max Reger, Schoenberg and Richard Strauss to turn examinations into one grand, sweet song.

In any case, music is admittedly a therapeutic agent of potency to the mind diseased or for the lesser ailment of ordinary brain-fag. In many an asylum for the mentally deficient there are bands and choirs among the inmates, and imported concerts are heard with attentive pleasure. So there is hope even for the erudite Harvard undergraduate, that the Pathetic Symphony or the Sonata Appassionata or the Sakuntala Overture may bridge the gap betwixt his flurried preparation under the midnight tantalum and his academic degree.

W .A. Stanley, W.L.S..

Which letters represent "World's Leading Salesman," a title he won by selling more goods in a given time than any other road man. He is here with remarkable accounts of the business the war is bringing to this country.

Significant.

CHINA BUYING WAR SUPPLIES.

Orders Half Million Rifles from Trenton Firm.

"World's Leading Salesman" Here with Hot Tips.

Says War is Making Mighty Prosperity for Us.

The Chinese government has recently contracted with the Ingersoll-Trenton Watch Company of Trenton, N. J., for 500,000 modern army rifles, according to W. A. Stanley, W. L. S., representative of the L. S. Sterrett Company of Athol, Mass., makers of engineering tools, who is registered at the Hollenbeck from New York.

Mr. Stanley, whose "degree" was conferred upon him by Elwood Rice, president of the $1,500,000,000 Rice Leaders of the World Association, in recognition of his feat in selling more goods in a given time than any other salesman (the letters stand for "World's Leading Salesman") declares that he personally saw the big contract, which may or may not mean that the Chinese government is getting ready to fight Japan and her demands.

"It was shown me by George F. Ebberhardt, president of the watch company, and he told me that he had signed it only a few days before," said Mr. Stanley. But it is only one of the big deals of which I have personally known whereby the war is bringing great sums of money and consequent prosperity to the United States.

SOME BIG DEALS.

"While I was in Hartford, Ct., I visited the plant of the Pope-Stevens Bicycle Manufacturing Company, which was recently taken over by the Billings-Spencer Company. While I was inspecting the plant three New York financiers whose names I can not disclose approached the new owners and offered them a signed check, telling them to write in their own price for the plant.

"The day I left New York my cousin, Wade Chance, arrived from London with letters of credit totaling over $2,000,000 and commissioned to buy in the open market automobiles, auto trucks and accessories to that amount, for the Belgian government.

"Some people are wondering what is going to happen to the various arms and ammunition factories after the war. The manufacturers are protected in every way. All orders are accompanied by a sufficient deposit to cover cost of material and work and the balance becomes due and is paid when the bill of lading is presented. If the war were to cease tomorrow the percentage of manufacturers who would lose money on their contracts would be practically nil.

"Regardless of all the talk to the contrary very little new machinery has been purchased for manufacturing munitions of war in the United States, and the factories who have commenced making munitions since the war can with very litte change, resume the manufacture of their former commodities.

WAVE OF PROSPERITY.

"A wave of prosperity, that reaches as far as Denver at present and is sweeping on to the Coast, has affected every branch of the manufacturing industry. Everywhere it is the same. Every available machine is working day and night as fast as operators can be secured to man the additional shifts.

"The manufacturers are crying for men. Experienced mechanics, lathe operators, mill men, etc., are in so great a demand that dozens of the factories are calling in their traveling men from the road and paying them big salaries as machine operators and still the demand is as great as ever.

"My own factory has increased from 800 to 1200 men and are unable to secure additional equipment or there would be a still larger increase. We have contracts with England, France, Belgium, Germany and almost every European nation and if our output was doubled could still place every instrument we make.

"Especially insistant has been the demand for micrometers. Foreign factories everywhere are crying for American tools with which to re-establish their own factories and operations are at a standstill for lack of them. Our micrometers are needed to calibrate the guns, range-finding instruments, projectiles and for countless other purposes. Deliveries of lathes, milling machines, etc., are contracted for eighteen months in advance and delivery not certain even then.

"The Rice Leaders of the World Association is the largest business association in the world. Its membership is limited to one firm from each line of industry so, as all the members are in different lines of business, there is no competition or lack of harmony in the association. Dues are a trifling $7500 a year. If paid for five years in advance the dues are cut to $5000 a year, making $25,000 for the total.

"The membership is composed of such leading manufacturing corporations as the Winchester Repeating Arms Company, the Yale and Towne Manufacturing Company, the Remington Typewriter Company and the like and the total capitalization represented by the forty odd members totals over one and one half billion dollars."

SAME AS LAST YEAR.

Marked Improvement is Shown in the Records of Federal Collectors as to Business Done.

The July returns in the office of the Collector of Customs indicate that the receipts of the past month and for the same month last year are about equal. The figures for July, 1914, were $37,752.63; for July, 1915, $37,226.84. Of this amount Los Angeles furnished during the month just closed $32,737.52. The imports for the last month were $260,281, as compared with $518,830, for the same month of 1914. Los Angeles furnished $142,570 of the first-named amount. The exports for July, 1915, were $224,613, as against $250,885 for July, 1914. Of this amount Los Angeles furnished $139,883, San Diego $6915, Calexico, $57,898, and Tia Juana, $19,322.

The exports to Mexico were the largest of any single country, amounting to $143,000, consisting of manufactures of cotton, cartridges, ice, shoes, malt liquor and lumber. Chile took $43,000 worth of oil, and Hawaii $16,916 worth of oil and gasoline. The shipments by way of the Panama Canal to Atlantic ports were $194,509, as compared with $264,058 during July, 1914.

The July collections of Collector Carter amounted to $210,645.45, as compared with $108,470.65 for the same month last year. The increase in the current collections is due to the collection of the special tax on banks levied on their capital stock, that was not enforced last year on account of some differences in regard to the scope of the law, and the increase in the stamp tax list.

Here's Three Brides and Maybe More.

In honeymoon court,

Huntington Park, Mrs. Alice Cookingham, below, owns the three-cornered strip of land on which abide the three brides—from left to right, Mrs. E. B. Valentini, Mrs. William R. Reece and Mrs. B. J. Foss. Mrs. Cookingham is liable to do something like that for herself if she doesn't watch out.

Refuge.

NESTING-PLACE FOR NEWLYWEDS.

GENUINE "HONEYMOON COURT" AT HUNTINGTON PARK.

Widow Builds Bungalows and Couples with Fresh Marriage Certificates Take Possession Forthwith—Now Rumor has it the Owner is Smitten.

Honeymoon Court, Huntington Park. As long as any mail addressed that way reaches the community, the postman has no hesitation as to where to deliver it.

There is only one place answering the description and there are so many honeymooners about that the whole town has gotten an inkling of it and is having its daily smile over it.

After snaring his victims "Huntsman Cupid" drew them all together and landed them in the three new bungalows owned by one lady, whose heart is also reported to be pierced by the dart of love and who may soon become another victim.

The landlady is Mrs. Alice Cookingham, whose home stands at Clarendon and Stafford avenues, in the suburban town. On the rear of an ample lot she built a dovecote for just about two, and on one side she erected two neat little bungalows.

They were attractive nests, and the first birds to come in were Mr. and Mrs. William R. Reece, who were married by Rev. William J. Burcher the 3rd inst. The preacher, a former Chautauqua humorist, occupied the floral bower prepared for them at the Cookingham cottage, while they stood out in the sun and were joined. Mrs. Reece was Miss Blanche C. Hurlburt.

One couple was married sooner, but returned from the honeymoon trip a few days later. Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Foss were wed June 30, under rather romantic circumstances. They had planned for a much later date, but on the spur of the moment decided on that time to have the knot tied. In order to get the right minister, Rev. Mr. Dowling of Orange, who had married the father and mother of Miss Julia Bond, the bride, as well as numerous uncles, aunts and other relatives, they had to attend a picnic, and the ceremony in Orange County Park was the big event of the day's programme.

The third couple to find the little paradise is Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Valentini. They were married in this city by the Rev. Mr. Meyers the 14th inst., and after a few days discovered the smallest of the cottages, as well as the one most adapted to their needs, waiting for them. Mrs. Valentini, youngest of the brides, was Miss Lotta Harris.

And over all the young folks Mrs. Cookingham is showing a paternal interest, having no children of her own to worry about, although she was married twenty years prior to the death of her husband three years ago. So interested in their guardian are the three couples that they have discovered the possibility of another romance and are wishing the love god luck, since they would like to see a man, instead of Mrs. Cookingham, wrestling with the lawn mower and the garden hose.

Weighing Nebula Gas.

[Pittsburgh Gazette Times:] By studying the light emitted by a luminous gas, it is possible, by purely optical methods, to determine the temperature of the gas and also its atomic weight.

Observations on the nebula in Orion have been pursued since 1911. By studying the lines in the spectrum of the nebula which are due to hydrogen, it appears that the temperature of the hydrogen in the nebula is about 15,000 degrees.

The double ultra-violet line, which is attributed to the hypothetical gas called "nebulium," gives as the atomic weight of this unknown gas the figure 3.

A strong green ray, which is also due to an unknown gas, gives the figure 2 for its atomic weight.

New Welcome.

RECALLS COMING OF THE FLEET.

MIDDIES AND SAILORS WILL SOON BE HERE.

Tentative Programme for the Entertainment of Blujackets Arriving on the Squadron on Practice Cruise Through the Canal is Announced—Old Hospitality Lives.

When the three-ship fleet of the United States Navy arrives at Los Angeles Harbor after a trip through the Panama Canal the officers and men of the Missouri, Ohio and Wisconsin will find that the hospitality some of them became acquainted with eight years ago on the tour of the great American armada around the world has not become something in the past tense.

Rear-Admiral W. F. Fullam, U.S.S. Missouri, received by wireless yesterday a tentative programme, which with his approval will be carried out on August 16, when the fleet arrives. According to this, special electric trains will be waiting the sailors, who will be given shore leave, to take them to Universal City for a day's sport in watching the manufacture of films, partaking of a barbecue dinner and returning in the evening to their vessels.

Machines will be waiting to take the officers to Los Angeles, where they may enjoy themselves through the day as they see fit. The midshipmen will be brought up in the afternoon in time to have them view the electrical parade which will be operated past the Shrine Auditorium, where the main event is scheduled. This will be a naval ball, to which Los Angeles society will be invited for the purpose of assisting in the entertainment of the visitors.

On the following day the officers of the fleet will be taken on a tour of Southern California in machines. They will first visit Pasadena and from there go to the Los Angeles Country Club, where luncheon will be served. They will then be taken to their ships in time for the departure, which is planned for Tuesday afternoon.

It is probable that Admiral Fullam, with his staff officers and the principal ones of the other vessels, will be guests at a banquet on the evening of the naval ball. Plans for this have not been fully completed, and the 1915 General Committee is waiting its answer on the preliminary events.

PREPARE FOR LADIES.

Annex for Them at the Los Angeles Athletic Club Will Soon be Formally Opened.

Members of the Loc Angeles Athletic Club are looking forward expectantly to the opening of the new Ladies' Annex, the completion of which about the middle of August is regarded as the most important improvement to the clubhouse since its opening three years ago. The formal opening of the Annex about September 1 will be attended by a celebration which will be in charge of a committee composed of wives, daughters and mothers of L.A.A.C. members.

The Ladies' Annex was formerly the familiar Beeksteak Room on the second floor. Here many notable luncheons and dinners have been given, and many members view the passing of the room with regret. In its new dress, however, the room will fulfill even a larger function in the social life of the Athletic Club, inasmuch as it will enable the directors to link more closely the family element to the institution. The Annex will be used exclusively by the wives, mothers and daughters of members.

It also will be available for private dances and dinners, and thus will fulfill a demand on the club which becomes more or less acute every fall and winter.

The new department will undergo a complete transformation as far as arrangement and decoration are concerned. The new color scheme will be ivory and gold, and the room will be "feminized" to meet the changed conditions. Over the former cement floor a hardwood floor has been laid to facilitate dancing.

MACHINERY FOR ENGLAND.

Los Angeles Company Makes Two-Carload Shipment—Further Orders Are Expected Shortly.

The Western Pipe and Steel Company, No. 1758 North Broadway, announced through its vice-president, W. F. Howard, yesterday, the shipment of two carloads of oil refining machinery to the Anglo-Saxon Petroleum Company of Thames-Haven, Eng.

This shipment is probably one of the largest yet made by a Los Angeles manufacturer.

"Not alone our company, but other manufacturers of this city are expecting further orders from Europe," Mr. Howard said yesterday. "It means that Los Angeles will also increase her commercial business as well as larger eastern cities. And the beauty of our shipment is that in no way is it connected with the fighting. There should not be a single man killed through our oil refining material."

A GENEROUS PARENT.

Uncle Sam Provides Liberally and in Good Variety for the Native Colony on the Seal Islands.

[Cleveland Plain Dealer:] Uncle Sam, a generous father to the children under his official care, is preparing to feed, clothe and provide proper shelter for the native colony on the seal reserve of the Pribilof Islands.

He will need a vast and varied assortment of supplies. To Seattle merchants this year is given an unusual opportunity to submit bids, which have been asked by the bureau of fisheries.

The specifications for the bidders in Seattle show that the government requires everything from box kites and comic masks for the youngsters in the reserve to arms and ammunition, boots and shoes, furniture and carpets, groceries, hay and grain, paints, oils and glass, clothing, lumber, tools and implements and other supplies and articles of general merchandise, such as would be used by a community of from 200 to 300 persons.

The supplies are to last the long winter through for the officials and natives on the reserve. The specifications in the unromantic way give one item as follows:

"Paper, festooning, suitable for Christmas decorating, in pieces of about thirty feet each, three dozen pieces."

"Baseballs, horsehide cover, rubber center." So runs a line in the schedule of sundries. Little Eskimo kids in the frozen northland are to have the opportunity of every American lad to learn to play baseball.

Forty-eight watches are to be supplied. Among the grocery items is one for 300 pounds of candy, American mixed, in pails. As a luxury there will be in addition twenty-four pounds of first-grade candy, assorted.

Tony Jimine,

A Spanish baby who is having a difficult time in finding a permanent home.

NOBODY WANTS LITTLE TONY.

BRIGHT SPANISH BABY IS IN DIFFICULT QUEST FOR A HOME.

Nobody seems to want Tony. For several weeks his Spanish mother who is not quite sixteen years old, assisted by probation officers, has been trying to find a permanent home for the fifteen-months-old baby. It is more than the mother can do to take care of herself. She loves Tony too much to desire him to share her poverty.

Tony looks the world square in the face with a pair of intelligent brown eyes. He has brains and a good apetite and the officers interested in him say that if he has half a chance he will probably amount to something. He is a fair little flower risen from the muck.

If there is anyone who would like to have Tony for keeps—or both Tony and his child mother—let him or her communicate with Miss Alice McFarland, No. 2203 West Twentieth street; telephone, Home 73155. For the next several days Miss MacFarland will devote her time to the interest of Tony, whose last name, by the way, is Jimini.

CHARGES AGAINST INSECTS.

They Live in the Most Unheygienic Places and Carry All Kinds of Germs About With Them.

[Topeka State Journal:] The investigations of recent years have disclosed the relations of insects to malaria, yellow fever, bubonic plague and sleeping sickness. The striking results already demonstrated in respect to the activity of mosquitoes, fleas, bedbugs and house flies, inevitably raises the question as to the possible significance of other species of insects which may be less abundant but whose contact with man may be occasional or confined to restricted localities. This group includes cockroaches, ants and bees. Their role is as yet purely conjectural; but it is of interest to consider the possibilities as they present themselves to one trained to observe the versatile habits of insects and to recognize the opportunities for infection to which the sanitation must give heed. That an insect which will devour any sufficiently soft substance, from human foods to glue, grease and water colors, and which will live by preference in the cracks of the floors and walls of the houses, bakeries, restaurants, sugar refineries and tanneries, where their bodies come into contact with the filth and refuse that necessarily accumulate in such places, should carry a host of germs about, on and in their bodies and be able to infect our foods, is certainly not surprising. Yet this in the habit of life of the omnivorous cockroach. Roaches probably also feed on tuberculosis sputum and disseminate the bacilli as readily as the house fly. Ants, which are often abundant in houses and are readily disseminated by commerce sometimes become a pest to the housewife, particularly when they get into the stores of food. They have not escaped suspicion as disseminators of pathogenic micro-organisms. Wheeler points out that it thus becomes possible for ants to spread disease in different ways. Finally the bees, lauded for centuries by poet and prose writer alike, have not escaped the accusation of suspicion, says the Journal of American Medical Association. Wheeler has observed the stingless bees visit collections of garbage in the Canal Zone, presumably gathering foreign substances which they knead into the cerumen cells in which they store honey eagerly collected for food by the natives in many parts of tropical America. According to Wheeler, there are records of intestinal disorders or even death following eating of such honey. The suggestion of possible contamination with disease germs collected by filthy insects is plain.

Fewer Servants in England.

[London Daily Mail:] "The scarcity of domestic servants has become acute," said the proprietress of one of the best-known servants' registry offices of South London. "For some months past the number of girls applying to me for situations has decreased by 50 per cent. Many have told me that they felt they ought to be doing some war work, and they are now in munition factories or taking a man's job in some business establishment. Other girls who used to be available for day work are being kept at home to help with the housework and the younger children, as their fathers are earning higher wages and their own earnings are no longer needed. The shortage is further accentuated by the number of servant girls who have married soldiers and by the fact that very few country girls and still fewer Irish girls are now coming to London."

BIG CONVENTION SCHEDULE READY

Grand Encampment, Knights Templars, Programme.

Thirty-third Triennial to be Greatest Ever.

Plans for Entertainment of Delegates Announced.

The thirty-third triennial conclave, Grand Encampment of Knights Templars, to be held in Los Angeles June 17 to 23, 1916, will be the greatest encampment of its kind in the history of the organization, according to plans being laid by the Executive Committee in charge here.

Prizes in cash and valuable trophies in excess of $14,000 will be awarded for excellence in competitive drilling and in the Knights Templars' band contest.

A tentative programme of the encampment has been printed and will be sent to the various commanderies. Representatives from every part of the country are expected to be present and compete for the prizes.

According to the programme, the Grand and Subordinate commanderies will arrive Saturday, June 17. Sir Lee S. Smith, acting Grand Master of Knights Templars, will arrive at [illegible] o'clock and be escorted by the Grand Commandery and constituent commanderies of California to his headquarters at the Alexandria.

Saturday evening there will be a grand electrical parade with fifteen gorgeous floats, 200 beautiful women and nearly 300,000 electric lights.

THE PROGRAMME.

Sunday, June 18, the visiting Knights and their families will be provided with approximately 1000 automobiles and will tour Los Angeles and visit points of interest in the vicinity.

Monday the members of the Grand Encampment and their ladies will be taken on a delightful trip to Santa Catalina Island. Visiting Knights and their ladies will also be entertained by the city of Pasadena. Features of the entertainment will be an automobile ride, luncheon and chariot races. In the evening exhibition drills by Knights Templar Drill Corps will be staged in the Auditorium. A musical programme will also be given.

At 10:30 a.m. Tuesday the Grand Knights Templars' parade of the city will commence. At 2:30 p.m. the Grand Encampment will be officially opened. At 3:30 p.m. daylight fireworks, athletic carnival and wild west sports will be staged at Exposition Park. In the evening the second parade of the magnificent electrical pageant, "The Flight of the Hours," will start at 8 o'clock.

Wednesday, June 21, at 10 a.m. competitive drills will commence. Individual souvenirs will be given to each participant. Members of the drill corps not competing will be taken to Santa Catalina Island for a fish dinner. Venice, Santa Monica and Ocean Park will also entertain the visiting Knights and their ladies with special programmes. Reunion and "Dinner of the Mutuals" at 5:30 p.m. will be concluded in time for a continuation of exhibition drills and other entertainment features at the Auditorium.

On Thursday the competitive drills will be continued, and the members of the corps competing in Wednesday's contest will be taken to Catalina. Long Beach Commandery No. 40 will provide an all-day entertainment at the beach city for members not taking the Santa Catalina trip. At 7 o'clock p.m. a banquet for the members of the Grand Encampment will be given at the Alexandria. The wives of the officers of the Los Angeles and Golden West commanderies will give a dinner and theater party to the ladies of the Grand Encampment. The third and last electrical parade will be held Thursday night.

DAYLIGHT PARADE.

Friday morning, starting at 10 o'clock, what is scheduled to be the most beautiful floral parade ever given in Los Angeles will be seen. It is the intention of the Executive Committee to make "La Fiesta de Las Flores" the most memorable of a series of memorable events during the encampment. In the afternoon a continuation of the daylight fireworks, wild west sports and other events will be staged at Exposition Park. In the evening presentation of trophies will be made at the Auditorium, followed by an invitation ball for visiting Knights and their ladies at the Al Malaikah Shrine Auditorium.

There will be two drilling contests—one free for all and one for novices. Cash prizes of $1000 for first and $500 for second place will be given in the band contest.

It is expected that there will be at least 100 special cars used in bringing the various organizations to the encampment. Arrangements have been made by the Executive Committee to care for the visitors and to afford them every opportunity of seeing as much of the surrounding country as they desire.

KRUPP'S NEW STEEL.

The German Works Have Constructed a Safe that, it is Believed, Cannot be Burglarized.

[Commerce Reports:] A recent number of a Bavarian trade organ, Handel und Industrie, states that the Krupp works have just turned out a steel safe that will put all burglars to shame. It is reported that this famous Essen firm has succeeded in making a steel of such resistability that it withstands the methods of attack and the tools at present known to burglars. At a melting test, steel plates with a surface of 11.8x11.8 inches, and a thickness of 1.57 inches were used, which, in the separate testings, were subjected for a different length of time to an oxyacetylene flame. At one of these tests a hole of 1.968 inches diameter and 1.377 inches depth was burned into the plate, but for this not less than 470 gallons of acetylene and 534 gallons of oxygen were used, and the time consumed was one and one-quarter hours. In order to produce a hole large enough to admit the hand 2643 gallons of oxygen and 2378 gallons of acetylene would be needed, while the performance of this work would require six hours. Consequently it is clear that burglars will never succeed in melting open a safe made from the new steel, because aside from the great cutlay of time needed for this they could not bring with them the great quantities of gas, since four steel cans weighing 154 pounds apiece would be required. The steel plates are very hard and cannot be bored, consequently the holes for the screws and rivets must be made at the start. The new material does not lose its hardness by annealing, and by reason of its tenacity can be bent to a certain degree.

Now Are the Days Children Need Care

Summer Heat Dangerous to Little Ones if Bowels Are Neglected

A mother cannot do better for her child than to train it from early infancy to regular habits, not only as a preventive against much of the illness to which children are more or less subject, but also to insure their health in later life.

Normal activity of the bowels is the basis of sound health. This is especially true with children in hot weather. Do not neglect any tendency they may show to constipation, but promptly administer a gentle laxative, that will carry off the congested waste without shocking the system.

An excellent remedy for this purpose is the combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin and sold in drug stores for only fifty cents a bottle. It does not contain opiates, narcotics, or harmful habit-forming drugs of any description, acts easily and naturally without griping or other discomfort and is positive in its effect.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has been the standard remedy in countless homes for a quarter of a century and thousands of mothers testify to its virtues. If you have never used it, get a bottle from your druggist or write for a free trial bottle to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 453 Washington St., Monticello, Ill.

NEW CROPS AND BETTER ONES.

Discoveries at Government Farm at Bard.

Imperial Offers Rich Field for Such Research.

Fruits, Cotton, Broom Corn and Hemp Promise Well.

BY S. J. ANKER.

Last, but never least, is the showing the Colorado Basin makes in the United States Weather Bureau daily reports. Tourists who have happened through this corner of California and Arizona during the summer have never lingered long enough to become pleased with the temperature. Homeseekers from the East pass through to the coast and buy small ranches from owners who know facts and who in turn become settlers in the Colorado Basin where they recognize the greater opportunities and know that the climate is a valuable asset.

It is a climate that is peculiarly favorable to the production of a great variety of crops, and the future development of the region depends largely on the culture of specialized crops. The region includes nearly 300,000 acres now under canals in several units such as Needles, Palo Verde, Yuma, Imperial, Coachella, Casa Grande and Mexican lands in Lower California. It also includes 1,500,000 acres that may ultimately be irrigated and put into crops which require a warm climate and which are well suited to intensive culture.

At present this region supports a population of about 83,000. If it were as densely populated as Belgium was in 1914 it would support a population of nearly 3,000,000.

EXPERIMENT FARM.

In the interests of the science of agriculture and for the benefit of farmers the Bureau of Plant Industry of the United States Department of Agriculture agreed to furnish the funds for an experiment farm under the supervision of a superintendent detailed from the office of western irrigation agriculture. There are six similar experiment stations on reclamation projects in the United States, all of which co-operate with State departments of agriculture, the two nearest being one at Fallon, Nev., and another at Umatilla, Or. Two other Federal stations are located in the Southwest, one at Indio, specializing in dates, and one at Sacaton, Ariz., experimenting with cotton crops grown under irrigation.

In 1909, when the Yuma Reclamation Project was thrown open to settlers, 160 acres, all of which is irrigable, was reserved for the experiment farm. It is adjacent to the government town of Bard, Imperial county, seven miles north of Yuma, and is reached by a railroad that has the distinction of being the only government steam railroad in the United States.

Operations on the farm were begun in the spring of 1910 and since then experiments have been conducted with a view to improving the cultural methods applicable to crops, to finding superior varieties, and to breeding superior strains of the varieties under test. Much of this work is done in co-operation with other offices of the Bureau of Plant Industry.

The office of Acclimatization and Adaptation of Crop Plants co-operates in the breeding and cultural experiments with cotton and in the work of acclimatizing and breeding Palestine wheat. The office of Crop Physiology and Breeding Investigations co-operates in variety and breeding tests of figs, dates and pistache nuts.

The office of Foreign Seed and Plant Introduction does co-operative work in connection with various fruit varieties, nursery stock, ornamentals. The office of Alkali and Drought Resistant Plant Investigations co-operates in variety tests of pomegranates, and the meteorological observations are made in co-operation with the biophysical laboratory.

TREE LINED BOULEVARD.

Around the whole farm is a 25-ft. boulevard. This is bordered on the inside by rows of vigorous eucalyptus trees and on the inside by date palms. All ditches are culverted. The desirability of an evergreen tree in this climate was borne in mind in selecting varieties of trees for shade and ornamentals and the spacious grounds surrounding the farmhouse and office building. A great many trees that are not evergreen are being given a try-out in other parts but none are found in the company of the evergreens. Last year seventy-five perennial plants representing forty-six different species and varieties were set out. Around the farmhouse are climbing roses in abundance.

The Farm Superintendent is R. E. Blair. He came from San Antonio, Tex., where he was employed as expert and worked with southern fruits and vegetables. He is a graduate of the Kansas State Agricultural College. A college romance came to a climax a few weeks ago when Mr. Blair returned from his annual trip to Washington with a bride.

Mrs. Blair, like her husband, is a product of the Sunflower State. She graduated with honors from the Kansas Agricultural College.

At the experiment farm she has interested herself in different lines of advancement, such as preparing edible dishes from foreign fruits and vegetables just now being tested by the American people. The decorative and classical pomegranate will become a useful modern fruit if Mrs. Blair's experiments along this line prove successful.

Thirty varieties of roses are being studied, and all are doing well. A fifth of an acre of chrysanthemums is producing beautiful and sturdy biosoms.

The crop experiments are regarded as the most important of all. Most sandy soils contain enough silt and possess a sufficient quantity of plant food to produce growth when the moisture content of the soil can be maintained. Experiments show that the water-holding capacity of the soil can be increased most economically by the addition of green manure. Alfalfa is altogether the best green manure crop for this climate and soil. Where time does not permit the growing of alfalfa it has been found that the Whippoorwill cowpea is very desirable as a summer green manure.

A selection of field pea, known as Golden Vine, withstood a minimum temperature of 16 F. during the winter of 1912-13 and promises to be a valuable winter cover.

ALFALFA TESTS.

In a variety test for hay Peruvian alfalfa proved best. Along with hay production experiments for time of cutting and under different soil and water conditions were carried out. Alfalfa for seed is now the most important money crop of the Yuma project. The problem of seed production is being attacked in several ways. Row-planting experiments have not yet given sufficient uniform results to determine the advisability of planting in this manner for seed production. Further plantings have been made to test this method by seeding rows from four to twenty-eight inches apart.

The second cutting gave a 40 per cent. heavier yield than the third. In order to promote pollination tripping is resorted to. Results of the relative usefulness of a regular alfalfa tripper and a board drag are noted. It takes ten weeks to produce a crop of alfalfa seed and this is a staple crop that generally produces a good yield, the maximum being 900 pounds to the acre. At 15 cents per pound this gives most satisfactory returns, as the three or four hay crops more than pay the expense of raising this special money crop.

EYPTIAN COTTON SUPERIOR.

In cotton Mr. Blair is of the opinion that the Egyptian cotton is by all odds superior in production and net returns, so the farm devotes most of its efforts to perfect a strain of this cotton that is especially adapted to the irrigated area of the Southwest. This is done by breeding work through hybridization and selection. Different cultural methods are tested, such as irrigation frequency, different distance between rows, and different spaces between plants in rows. Experiments in volunteering cotton have been continued. A plat of Egyptian cotton was volunteered through the past winter to a stand of 91 per cent.

Seven varieties of grain sorghums were grown in 1913-14 in a combined variety and time of planting test. Feterita was found to excel the Dwarf Milo. The plat of each of the varieties was planted on the same date of each month from March to July inclusive. The highest yield was the plat of Feterita planted April 12. It yielded seventy-three bushels to the acre. For forage or silage the Red Kaffir seems to be the best of the seven varieties. It develops an abundance of broad leaves which remain green until the head is mature. It also withstands the extremely high temperatures better than any other variety tried.

BROOM CORN AND HEMP.

A half-acre planting of broom corn was made in 1913 to ascertain the relative yields and behavior of the varieties commonly cultivated. Three varieties were planted on May 8. The yields of brush were as follows: Standard, .29 ton per acre; Dwarf, .23 ton per acre, and Dwarf Standard, .22 ton per acre. Owing perhaps to the spottedness of the soil, the maturity of the brooms was very irregular within each variety and the crop could not be harvested at one cutting.

Hemp was planted in rows at varying distances and spaced to varying distances within the row, to determine the possibility of and the best cultural methods for producing hemp seed. There being but one small planting of seed hemp in the community, much damage was done by birds, and the yields obtained were not dependable. Hemp plants grown in very close drill rows were examined for fiber, which proved to be of sufficiently good quality to compare favorably with the fiber of hemp produced in rainfall areas.

Sudan grass and Tunis grass, both recently introduced by the United States Department of Agriculture, were grown on the experiment farm during the season of 1913. In both cases seeding was made on May 14, which is perhaps about four weeks later than these crops should be planted. Tunis grass produced the best hay yields when grown in three-foot rows and cultivated. On medium sandy loam soil 4.2 tons of hay per acre were harvested in three cuttings. Sudan grass produced larger yields when seeded broadcast than when seeded in three-foot rows. On light, sandy-loam soil eight tons of hay per acre were harvested in three cuttings. On heavier soils these grasses did not do so well.

There are big commercial horticultural possibilities for the Colorado Basin in specialized fruits. With the peculiar local conditions much is to be learned relative to adaptable varieties. With this in view, a variety test of deciduous fruits and nuts has been established. The following plantings were made in duplicate in 1913: 31 varieties of peaches, 16 of plums, 6 of prunes, 4 of apricots, 1 of nectarines, 1 of plumcots, 1 of cherries, 10 of pears, 6 of apples, 3 of quinces, 4 of almonds, 3 of walnuts, 3 of pecans, 10 of pistaches, 2 of jujubes and 12 of persimmons. Several varieties of grapes and berries were also planted in a variety test.

In co-operation with the office of alkali and drought resistant plant investigations, about 200 pomegranate plants have been grown in orchard form since 1911. The pomegranate is well adapted to the local soil and climate, will bear heavy crops of fruit, and is useful in ornamental plantings.

FIGS AND DATES.

The object of the orchard experiment in figs is to secure a strain of figs which will produce a desirable fruit of the quality of the Smyrna fig without the necessity of the presence of the small wasp for pollinating the young fig, and to secure a more frost-resisting tree. This year 3½ per cent. of the 1400 trees planted have borne fruit without the presence of the wasp.

Nine promising varieties of dates are being grown. Mr. Blair believes Imperial Valley is well adapted to raising dates, the humidity being very low during the ripening season. Six thousand seedling dates from which to select new varieties are grown.

In growing vegetables the farm has not only found out definitely what varieties do well, but also what kinds do not thrive in that soil and climate.

Mr. Blair's results show that many out-of-season vegetables may be grown to advantage. When the marketing problem is solved trucking will become exceedingly profitable.

GARDEN CROPS.

While garden crops can be grown to some extent throughout the year, most plantings are made during the late fall and early spring months. Two methods of culture are practiced in growing vegetables, the bed and the flat systems.

The cool-weather class of vegetables, such as cabbage, kohl-rabi, cauliflower, carrot, parsnip, turnip, beet, onion, lettuce, spinach and pea, when planted in the fall succeed best on beds or ridges, being irrigated in the furrow and the water allowed to soak through, but not to flood the bed. The same vegetables planted in January, when they may be germinated without irrigation, grow well on the flat.

The class of summer vegetables, including peppers, egg plant, tomatoes, sweet potatoes, corn, beans, cucumbers, squashes, pumpkins, okra and roselle, should be planted as soon as all danger of frost is over. With the exception of corn, they succeed best when planted in the bed or by the ridge method.

Most of the varieties recommended for the Yuma project by reliable seed houses have been planted at the experiment farm in comparable tests. Some valuable information as to desirable varieties and cultural methods has been secured from these tests.

Asparagus plants are readily grown in Imperial Valley. Root plantings should be made in furrows in the eary spring, the furrow being filled gradually as cultivation progresses. The cutting of asparagus from established plantings begins in this climate about the middle of February.

Carrots are readily grown both on the flat and by the bed system. Only early varieties of cauliflower do well. Seed sown in September should produce plants for transplanting by October.

The eggplant is very easily grown. The plants may be seeded in the open. All varieties of lettuce will grow well.

Mr. Blair is emphatic in stating that the farm now is handling many crops not as valuable as others that eventually will be grown. He believes that hogs on alfalfa and grain sorghum should be profitable. No hog cholera has ever been reported from Imperial Valley.

A plat of mammoth beans was planted last spring and promises to yield enormously. This crop will be ground to meal and fed to hogs to determine its feeding value. Lack of organization to overcome waste and necessity of desert refrigeration make marketing of perishable crops unprofitable at present so the experiment farm has resorted to crops that may not be injured by high temperature and long hauls and that will pay out while the land is being washed out and reclaimed.

For the County.

PROGRAMME FOR ROADS IS TOLD.

SHALL IMPROVEMENTS BE KEPT UP, AND HOW?

Supervisor Declares to City Club Members that Problem Now is Whether Tax Levy or Bond Issue Shall Meet Cost—Flood Control Plans Involved.

The county's road improvement and maintenance programme was outlined to the City Club yesterday by Supervisor Hinshaw, who said the real question confronting the Supervisors is, "Shall the county good roads work be continued, and how?" Just now, he said, the Supervisors are working on the county budget and their chief problem is whether funds for this road work shall be provided for in the county tax levy or through a bond issue of several millions of dollars. Supervisor Hinshaw said he favors a bond issue because he believes it will be impractical to levy a tax sufficient to take care of the proposed road improvements and also provide for maintaining the present roads.

Mr. Hinshaw estimated that about $400,000 will be needed to complete the automobile truck road from the Municipal Harbor to the business district and, if only a budget appropriation is provided for this work, it will be six years before it is completed.

The county has expended $1,403,700 for roads during the last year and this will be increased to $1,735,000 when present work is completed, Mr. Hinshaw said. This expenditure has all been provided by general tax levy and the situation now is that the county must either raise the tax levy or vote bonds if the good work is to continue.

"The finest scenic section of the State lies at our very doors, but it is not accessible to automobiles at present," said Supervisor Hinshaw.

"About $200,000,000 is spent annually by automobile travelers and we have the opportunity right here for automobile roads to scenic attractions that rival the best in Europe. The proposed automobile road to Antelope Valley will make a second Imperial and it will give the people in Antelope Valley an opportunity to market their products in Los Angeles."

Referring to the recommendation of the County Supervisors that the $4,000,000 bonds be voted for flood control, the speaker said that a considerable part of this money would be used to construct roads which are necessary before work can be done in some of the canyons.

Good roads projects now under consideration as outlined by Supervisor Hinshaw are as follow: The San Gabriel Canyon road to parallel the mountains for twenty miles, the entire road to be sixty-three miles long, estimated cost, $950,000; the Arroyo Seco road northward from Pasadena for forty-four miles, estimated cost, $850,000; Mint Canyon road, near Saugus, estimated cost, $200,000; Harbor truck boulevard, $400,000 necessary to complete; the Pico boulevard to connect Del Rey and Manhattan Beach; the Rio Canyon road from Whittier boulevard, connecting with the Orange county system, estimated cost $60,000.

Cures of Heart Wounds.

[London Chronicle:] The case of the soldier who has been lying in a Munich Hospital for four months with a bullet in his heart serves to show that there is a possibility of recovery after almost any form of injury. Playwrights and novelists usually make their villains die immediately when pierced through the heart, but hunters have often seen bears and other big game run over a hundred yards after receiving such a wound, and in recent wars several cures of heart wounds have been effected.

Wonder.

PLANT ENSNARES AND EATS MOTHS.

DELECTABLE PERFUME IS BAIT FOR UNWARY INSECTS.

Die When Caught by Cruel Carnivorous Blossoms and are Actually Digested, Though Wise Spiders Lurk Near and Make Off With Many Victims of Floral Wonder.

A carnivorous plant that eats live millers and moths flourishes in the experimental garden of Clare Bartlett at Santa Monica. The appetite of this cruel plant is insatiable, but such is the fragrance of the flower in attracting butterflies that the digestive organism of the floricultural wonder is given constant occupation.

This plant, imported from Brazil, is an evergreen climber that seems to flourish in Southern California as if it were a native. It is of the milkweed class and when the vine is broken or bruised, a thick, sticky liquid of the whiteness of chalk flows freely. The seed pod, about as large as and shaped much like a pear, is filled with thousands of jet-black seeds and to each one are attached fluffy wings. When fully ripened, the seed pod breaks open and the seeds, carried on these wings, are borne long distances. Whether this strange plant is to serve a useful economic purpose in ridding gardens of butterflies remains to be seen, for although it makes generous catches, it is not clear whether the number of insects devoured by it is large enough to place the cruel plant in the category of safety-first garden devices.

One of the queer things in connection with the plant is found in the desire of spiders to reduce the high cost of living for their families by spinning their webs between its branches. Here the spiders rest at ease, knowing well that the cruel plant will serve meals regularly for them. Evidently the spiders find it easier to bear away the captured insects than to prepare nets for them and preserve the popular programme of watchful waiting.

The Brazilian araujia has acquired an evil reputation and been nicknamed the "cruel plant" for causes connected with its floral mechanism. The cross-pollination of its tubular flowers is effected chiefly by bumblebees, which find no difficulty in pulling themselves free when their feet get caught in the slit-like notches that guard the way to the pollinia, and thus the pollen mass gets carried off to other flowers. The plant is visited by large numbers of moths, whose complete ignorance of the mechanism of the flowers becomes their ruin. Thrusting their proboscides in the slits to get at the nectar, they are held fast, and all their struggles to liberate themselves only fix them tighter. With their heads in the tubes of the corollas and their bodies and wings projecting, they die a lingering death.

Cruel plants in general cannot digest, but rather absorb the products of the decay of the insects which they capture. Some plants belonging to this family catch their prey by means of a sticky substance—some by tentacle-like leaves which close in upon the insect when they are touched, and others by enticing insects into deep cups with steep, smooth sides, filled with nectar, where the insect is drowned.

BANKRUPTCY PETITIONS. Louis Bergman, a restaurant man, filed a petition in bankruptcy in the United States District Court yesterday. His debts amount to $3,218.13, and his assets to $25. George B. McClelland, a real estate broker, gives his debts as $2864.84 and his assets at $2265. George B. Lamson, a restaurant man, alleges that his debts amount to $1383.49, and that his assets amount to but $22 in a petition filed yesterday.

The "cruel plant,"

Which catches and eats the unwary moths, in an experimental garden at Santa Monica. Here it is seen to have seized a large miller.

ACCUSED OF MURDER.

Aqueduct Employee Who Shot Another During Quarrel is Formally Charged by District Attorney.

Andrew Kelsey, a mule skinner employed on the aqueduct, is charged with murder in a complaint issued yesterday by Deputy Dist.-Atty. Claire Woolwine. He is accused of having slain Arthur L. Wragg, an engineer, also employed by the power bureau Thursday afternoon. Kelsey is in the County Jail with a lacerated face as the result of a quarrel he had with Wragg.

The two men who were employed at Camp No. 8 in the San Francisquito Canyon became involved in an argument which resulted in Wragg hitting Kelsey in the face and cutting the flesh with a large ring he wore. Kelsey is said to have procured a gun and shot Wragg later.

SLAIN WOMAN'S ESTATE.

Mrs. Cretie Carter, who was slain July 20 in a North Broadway hotel by William Warren, a detective, who later killed himself, left an estate valued at $12,000, according to an application for letters of administration filed yesterday in the Probate Court. The heirs named are the woman's husband, and her mother, Mrs. Ruth Gibson of Mesa, Ariz. The application states that she leaves $1000 in a Whittier bank; $2500 in a Los Angeles bank; $2500 in diamonds and jewelry; three lots in Portland and mining stock worth $250.

Earnings of Paroled Prisoners.

[New York World:] During the past year 718 paroles have been granted to the various penal institutions in Michigan. The Pardon Board liberated 674 prisoners and Executive clemency was extended in 44 cases by Gov. Ferris, while 1339 cases were considered by the Governor and the Pardon Board.

The records show that 812 prisoners were paroled from Jackson, 317 from Ionia, 139 from the Detroit House of Correction and 49 from Marquette.

The net earnings of the paroled men, according to reports submitted by their first friends, amounted to $244,262.59. They expended $187,742.17, making their net earnings $56,020.42. The earnings of the men paroled from Jackson amounted to $89,631.36. Those paroled from Ionia earned $97,844, Detroit House of Correction $31,340.27 and Marquette $25,546.96.

Embowered Oil Derricks.

SCRANTON, July 26.—[To Editor Times:] While in California last spring, I called the attention of some of my friends, who live in Pasadena, to the unsightly appearance of your oil derricks in Los Angeles. I made the suggestion that they might plant vines or flowers about them to beautify them. They seemed to think it was a good suggestion and later on I received a copy of your paper giving an account of the Rose Tournament, which no doubt was a decided success and one of the most beautiful displays of flowers ever exhibited in your town or perhaps in any other town. It was at this time that I decided to write your Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce advancing my idea with reference to the oil derricks. My suggestion was received by him and a very courteous letter in answer to mine, saying that the suggestion was timely and that they had been endeavoring to have some of these derricks removed by a city ordinance.

Now with reference to our coal breakers, if you could see some of them during the summer months, I am sure you would say that they compare very favorably with the appearance of your oil derricks. Many of them are enclosed with board fences which are neatly white-washed and many of them have grass plots about the engine room and boiler house together with flower beds, but unfortunately this can be kept up only during the summer months while the rest of the year we have what you call weather, but in California, where you have climate practically all the year around, there should be no excuse in my judgment for having these unsightly derricks scattered through your city. Undoubtedly they have grown up with the town and you and your people do not realize how unsightly they appear but the average stranger sees it instantly.

POPULAR PLAY FOR BURBANK.

"Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm" this Week.

Kitty Gordon is Coming to Orpheum.

George Primrose Minstrels Pantages Offering.

Mrs. Patrick Campbell in Bernard Shaw's "Pygmalion," will be the next attraction at the Mason, opening August 16.

Burbank.

"Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," dramatized from Kate Douglas Wiggins's popular story of the same name, with Ida St. Leon as "Rebecca," will be the offering at the Burbank this week, opening today. Ida St. Leon will be remembered as the charming ingenue who played the lead in "Polly of the Circus."

The play is said to retain all the quaint charm and delightful humor of the story. Louis Bennison, Edmund Lowe, Winifred Bryson, Lillian Elliott, Grace Travers, and other Burbank favorites are well cast.

Morosco.

"So Long Letty" enters its fifth record-breaking week tonight. It is said that there hasn't been a vacant seat in the Morosco Theater since the show opened.

Charlotte Greenwood and Sidney Grant, May Boley and Walter Catlett, Selma Paley, William Rock, Casson Ferguson, and the others of the cast are putting over a show with a jar that has been heard as far as Broadway, New York, where the piece will appear in October.

Orpheum.

Kitty Gordon, she of the famous back, will headline the new Orpheum bill opening tomorrow afternoon. Miss Gordon has won unusual honors in musical comedy, and as star of "Alma" is famous. She comes back again as "Alma," this time in Jack Lait's sketch, "Alma's Return." Miss Gordon has just returned from abroad, bringing with her a sartorial display of feminine apparel calculated to be a sensation. Harrison Hunter plays in support of Miss Gordon.

Another feature of the Orpheum bill will be Jack Wilson, assisted by Franklin Batie, in "An Impromptu Review," a performance in which the two offer a travesty of all the other acts on the bill, said to be most amusing.

Others on the bill will be Britt Wood, the "juvenile jester;" the Four Melodious Chaps, in harmonious selections; and the holdovers, Dooley and Rugel, Norton and Lee, Kelly and Pollock, and Lucy Gillette, in their clever acts.

Nazimova will close her engagement tonight in "War Brides."

Pantages.

George H. Primrose, noted minstrel man, is the star of this week's Pantages bill. He brings with him a jolly company of singers and dancers, including the sextette of clog-dancers which made the Primrose Minstrels famous.

Arline, the gypsy violinist, is another feature of the bill. Still others are Fred Holliday and the Chartres Sisters in "The Shop Girls and the Floorwalker," Peggy Bremen and her brother in "The Imp's Playground," an acrobatic novelty; Rhoda and Crampton in operatic selections; and the photoplays.

Republic.

"The Nude Truth Girls" have the headline place on the new Republic programme which opens tomorrow. They offer an act in posing and dancing.

Other numbers on the bill are "The Master Move," a sketch played by Beresford Lovitt, Florence and Company, said to have a strong dramatic punch; the Eckhardts in a musical novelty; "A Chalk-Talk by Woodrow," given by E. C. Faulkner; a comedy playlet, "C. O. D. $2," offered by William Bence and Company; the Pharoes in "Study in Black and White," a "magic" act; Lee Zimmerman in a whistling number; and the motion picture number, "The Strange Case of Judge Lagarde," featuring an Apache dance as danced by the Paris underworld.

Hippodrome.

Herbert Clifton in his clever impersonations will continue to headline the Hippodrome this week, in the bill opening tomorrow. Mr. Clifton will present a new lot of feminine mimicries.

The remainder of the bill has a circusy flavor. The Florence Troupe of novelty society acrobats will contribute a circus turn, as will also the Juggling Parrotts.

Others on the bill will be Tabor and Green, colored lads and song composers; Lloyd and Whitehouse in burlesque opera; Dale and Weber, skillful violinists, singers and dancers; and the usual pictures.

Mission Play.

The Mission Play is in its sixty-seventh week and begins its 727th performance this afternoon. The two daily performances have proven a huge success. They seem to be just what the tourists wanted. The afternoons always see crowded houses, while the evenings are fully as crowded.

Many of the tourists, especially those with the touring companies, have only planned for a day and a night in Los Angeles. So they spend the afternoon touring and visiting all the points of interest and the evening at the pageant drama. Most of them go out to San Gabriel an hour early and view the old mission and adobe huts in the gathering dusk when they are especially picturesque and romantic.

Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis of Plymouth Church, Brooklyn, is reported to intend to abandon the pulpit for the lecture platform in an endeavor to pay off $100,000 in debts contracted by two nephews who failed in business.

ATMOSPHERE TO MAIN STREET.

Critic Takes In All of Cosmopolitan Thoroughfare and Finds a Treat in Store for Himself—Taste of the Crowds Is Bloodthirsty and Melodrama Reigns Supreme—Girls Also in Abundance.

BY HENRY CHRISTEEN WARNACK.

LOS ANGELES has three streets, although you probably never saw but two of them. Therefore I ask you candidly if you ever saw Main street, and if you have any idea of what Main street sees.

Of course, I know that you have been to the postoffice, and that, perhaps, you are one of those who ride through a portion of Main street every day in order to get to Pasadena, Alhambra or Azusa.

But by seeing Main street, I don't mean enduring it for a few blocks in order to make your escape. I mean to ask if you have ever seen the Main street of the Cherokee gypsy fortune telling booths and of shooting galleries, with pretty, dark girls who will take you on for a match, at the end of which you always pay; the Main street of electric organs and post card galleries; the Main street of the Century, the Hippodrome and a hundred lesser amusements?

You are dimly aware, no doubt, of having passed a greasy patch of color in some hole in the wall, the same having been the Cherokee Indian woman with an unkempt native daughter (native of somewhere,) from one to three years of age, sprawling over the floor.

This lady has nothing to do with my story, other than to occupy a booth on the street of my present argument; but, if you only give her a dime, fate has something cruel in store for you, whereas, if you pay her 50 cents, your destiny gleams like a star of gold in a midnight sky of gloom. For 50 cents your star will not even set by daylight. I advise you, by all means, to get the 50 cent kind.

Let us agree on the essentials first. Main street's neutrality with regard to theaters and the war is immense in its complexity. So are the Main street audiences.

If you will go down to the Plaza Theater you will find yourself surrounded by the representatives of every nation, if not of every station. It will be too dark to tell whether your neighbor in the next seat is Mexican, Hindu or Chinese, but he is one or the other, and he might be a little of all three, not that I advocate amalgamation merely because for the minute I am forced to reflect a little of the color of an amalgamated thoroughfare.

You will have other neighbors, and some will be white and some will be black, while a few will be plain American Indians. But your presence will not be resented, because your nickel is as good as any other man's and, for once in your life, you are in a strictly cosmopolitan atmosphere.

If you are fond of atmosphere, I advise the Plaza Theater. You will get atmosphere thick enough to cut with a knife. You will get atmosphere that is kaleidoscopic. The picture will be worth taking, and the electric organ will send forth sounds you have never heard before, but the atmosphere will be too absorbing for you to pay much attention to picture or sound.

You will note that I have carefully avoided the use of either word melody or music, with regard to that organ. At the same time, you will next day sing a new song and wonder where you picked it up. You didn't pick it. You had it beaten into you. It is inlaid and it will abide with you. Not all the Saengerfest will wash that tune away.

While we are about it, I might as well give you an idea of the picture, although not for a minute endeavoring to set aside that atmosphere. It will not be set. The picture will probably show you a beautiful girl, rather too young for so much wickedness, who lures the handsome young spy into a palace, falls desperately in love with him, yet dutifully feeds him to the lions.

Our second reel shows the fair haired one in her magnificent boudoir, with her hands before her eyes, shutting out the mind's picture of what is taking place below. Then we go back to the hero, entirely surrounded by lions but with one frantic leap he catches the chandelier, swings himself to a window and escapes, only to faint in the street and be carried by innocent passersby back into the house of his horrible experience.

Straight they carry him to the luxurious couch of the fair villianess, whereupon he recovers long enough to denounce her and then faints away. The villainess feels his pulse, thinks that he is dead and overcome by remorse she rushes to the den of lions and hurls herself into the pit.

Your last scene shows the ravening beasts fighting over her sad fragments. The atmosphere thickens. Yea, it curdles. The audience gasps with horrified satisfaction. With an audience that always expects the worst we dare not give them less. As D. W. Griffith recently remarked to me, and I dare him to deny it, "Art is always revolutionary, always explosive and sensational." Where do these geniuses get it? Especially when D. W. never produced an audience like this?

Frankly, Main street is out for blood. Roughly speaking, I should say that it was equally divided between war and Charlie Chaplin. Personally I prefer war. Our dignified friend, Tyrone Powers, refused an offer of $30,000 for twelve weeks on the Orpheum circuit, saying that he was an actor and an artist; that he LOOKS GOOD FOR WINTER SEASON.

MANY GREAT MUSICAL EVENTS ARE ANTICIPATED.

Situation is One that Affords Unusual Opportunities for Securing Good Attractions—Gossip Regarding the Coming Melodic Happenings Here and Others.

The Pacific Coast has been a veritable mecca for musical artists this summer, and it seems that now is an advantageous time to lay plans for one of the most brilliant winter seasons that has ever been witnessed, for many of the musicians have been no mere casual visitors, but have remained here for perhaps weeks and months, a few even intending to stay on permanently. The war has overcrowded the concert and operatic field of the East and many artists will drift westward during the next few months, of which the local field will get its full share.

The grand opera bee has been buzzing around as a result of the stimulus accorded by the recent productions of "Fairyland." Semi-permanent organization is talked of in some quarters, but so far no definite attempt has been made toward an objective of this character. It seems pretty well assured that there will be one or two good operatic organizations paying a visit to the city, the Bevani being mentioned.

In the realm of orchestral music, chamber music, Philharmonic soloists, etc., the winter promises to be one of unexcelled magnificence.

It is now the off season, for the Saengerfest marks the closing of the summer activities of a larger order. The interest during the coming week will veer to San Francisco, where the big Beethoven festival is to be held, with Alfred Hertz conducting. There will be an orchestra of 100 pieces and a chorus of 500 will be used in rendering the Ninth Sympathy of Beethoven.

M. H. Hanson, manager for Marcella Craft, writes from the north that Dr. Horatio Parker has made a special orchestral arrangement of Rosamond's "Rose Song," from the second act of "Fairyland," which, with a special introduction and finale, is too be used at one of the concerts in San Francisco.

Philharmonic Events.

More definite information regarding the dates for the coming Philharmonic events is now at hand, although of course the tentative outline for the season is subject to change. It is expected, however, that the first Philharmonic course, which will be given on Tuesday evenings throughout the year, will open in October, with Emmy Destinn, the well-known dramatic soprano, of the Metropolitan Opera. It will also include the most capable of women violinists in America, Maud Powell, November 30; Emilio de Gogorza, the celebrated baritone, January 11; the great Moritz Rosenthal, pianist, February 8; Mme. Frances Alda, the Metropolitan soprano, with Frank LaForge at the piano, March 7, and will close with the well-known chamber music organization, the Kneisel Quartette, April 25.

The second Philharmonic series, which is to be given on Thursday evenings, will have as its first attraction, Fritz Kreisler, violinist, who will probably appear October 14. The other events will be recitals by Johanna Gadski, the famous Wagnerian soprano, December 9; Ossip Gabrilowitsch, January 20; Mme. Matzenauer and Ferrari-Fontana, March 16, with the ever popular John McCormack to close the series early in April.

The matinee series will include the following: Mme. Emmy Destinn, October 9; Fritz Kreisler, October 16; Tina Lerner, November 13; Tilly Koenen, Florence Hinckle or Mme. Frances Alda and Frank La Forge, or John McCormack or Schumann-Heink for the other places in the course. Several other possible attractions have been mentioned, including the Fuller sisters, in old English music programmes; the New York Philharmonic Orchestra, under the leadership of Walter Damrosch, and Charles Wakefield Cadman and the Princess Tsianina.

For Popular Opera.

In an article by Dr. P. J. Grant, entitled "How Can We Make Opera an American Institution," which appears in Musical America, some pointed remarks on the subject of keeping American singers in the background in the operatic world are made.

"Opera will be impossible as long as we employ high-priced foreign impresarios who speak scarcely two sentences of our language correctly, who are not in sympathy with either our ideals or our needs," he says. "Who, after a lot of high-sounding buncome addressed to the admiring gentlemen of the press about the 'bea-u-tif-ful' American voices, offer the owners of these same American voices $50 per week, while they cable an offer of $1000 a night to an old lady, whose voice flew up the flue aeons and aeons ago.

"Many of these beautiful American voices were paid twice that amount for a single performance in Germany—prophets in Germany, the land of music—while here they are mere freaks.

"Admit it? No, they dare not. You see they are single units whom the foreign manager would trample into nonexistence if they dared to open their mouths. Whereas, united, they could kick Mr. Foreign Manager into that oblivion from which he never should have emerged."

Mr. Grant is very optimistic with regard to the possibilities for opera in this country. The following are some of the statements which he makes in this connection:

"Is opera practically possible in America? I wish I could find a word strong and emphatic enough to express my abiding and absolute belief that it is. But before we can make it a success we must realize that the task ahead of us is not an easy one; in fact, it is a herculean one.

"The opera must be given in English. I am perfectly willing to admit that it loses a great deal in translation; the English language has not the smoothness of the French or liquidity of the Italian; but the loss will be far and away offset by the gain. The people will understand.

"Will it pay? In some ways, immeasurably so. Financially, I am afraid not, at least not at first. For the first three years we must expect a deficit, but we must have patience.

"Every step upward of our people means less money spent on jails, saloons and police. Every legitimate means of enjoyment withdrawn from the people, whether it be public music in the parks or public bands, means so much more time for illegitimate pleasures, and therefore an increase of crime, and increase of crime means an increase of city expenses.

Debussy's Work.

The following is the summing up of appreciation of the work of Debussy, as manifest in his "Pelleas and Melisande," which is given in "Musicians of Today," by Romain Rolland, the great French critic and thinker, and which is of interest to admirers of the distinguished impressionistic composer:

"There is every reason to believe that the composer has not been as acutely conscious of his musico-dramatic reform as his disciples have been," says Mr. Rolland. "The reform with him has a more instinctive character, and that is what gives it its strength. It responds to an unconscious yet profound need of the French spirit. I would even venture to say that the historical importance of Debussy's work is greater than its artistic value.

"His personality is not without faults, and the greatest are perhaps negative faults—the absence of certain qualities, and even of the strong and extravagant faults which made the heroes of the art world like Beethoven and Wagner. His voluptuous nature is at once changeable and precise, and his dreams as clear and delicate as the art of a poet of the Pleiades in the sixteenth century, or of a Japanese painter. But among all the gifts he has a quality which I have not found so evident in any other musician—except perhaps Mozart, and this quality is genius for good taste. Debussy has it in excess, so that he almost sacrifices the other elements of art to it, until the passionate force of his music, even its very life, seems to be impoverished.

"But one must not deceive oneself; that impoverishment is only apparent, and in all his work there are evidences that his passion is only veiled. It is only the trembling of the melodic line, or the orchestration which, like a shadow passing before the eyes, tells us of the drama that is being played in the hearts of his characters.

"In our contemporary music, 'Pelleas and Melisande' is at one end of the pole of our art and 'Carmen' is at the other. The one is all on the surface, all life, with no shadows, and no underneath. The other is below the surface, bathed in twilight, and enveloped in silence. And this double ideal is the alternation between the gentle sunlight and the faint mist that veils the soft, luminous sky of the isle of France."

Famous artists

Who will appear here early during the approaching musical season. Emmy Destinn, the well-known operatic singer, will open one of the Philharmonic courses about the middle of October, and Fritz Kreisler, the great violinist, will follow during the same month.

MUSIC NOTES.

A composer and coaching artist who recently came to Los Angeles and who has decided to remain here is Miss Leonore Elizabeth von der Lieth. Miss Von der Lieth recently composed a setting for Cecil Fanning's poem, "Sicilian Spring," and wrote the music for the "Rose of the Wind," a fairy fantasy, produced at the Little Theater by the Channel Club. At present she is assisting Anthony Carlson.

A series of Sunday night musicales will be given by Miss Irma Guthrie Wright at the Los Angeles Athletic Club. Miss Wright is a soprano of the Royal Italian Opera Company, and was a protege of Queen Elena of Italy.

The programme for tonight, in the series of Sunday evening musicales being given by Miss Ethelyn Harrison at the Hotel Ingraham, will be presented by Thomas Govan, baritone, and Marie Reed Lourre, reader, with Miss Harrison at the piano.

A recital was given by pupils of Miss Matilda Gunderson recently at Trinity Auditorium. Each number on the programme was given a hearty reception and the pupils responded to many encores. Miss Gunderson is a pupil of Mme. Kein Hensel.

Mrs. Estelle Heartt Dreyfus gave two special programmes during the past week at the residences of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Eddy, and Mr. and Mrs. Torrey Everett, respectively, residents of Pasadena. She sang groups of selections in various languages.

Giacomo Puccini has a new opera nearing completion, bearing the title of "The Swallows." This work is of a much lighter order than anything he has ever done, it is said.

Richard Strauss is to be represented in the repertoire of the Chicago Grand Opera Company for next season by at least two operas, "Elektra" and "Die Rosencavalier." Florence Easton Maclennan, the American soprano of the Hamburg opera, has been selected to sing the title role in "Elektra."

Mme. Louise Edvina, soprano, who has been engaged to appear with the Chicago Opera Company during the coming season, recently had the unique experience of singing in the French trenches, according to a dispatch to the New York Sun. She was among the women who were distributing necessities to the soldiers at the time she was prevailed on to sing. One of the officers played the accompaniments on a battered piano.

Mary Garden is to appear on the concert stage this season, and may pay a visit to the Pacific Coast.

Richard Strauss has just had published a new orchestral work, entitled "Symphony of the Alps." This will be given a performance next fall in Berlin.

KIDS IN MOTION PICTURES.

BY GRACE KINGSLEY.

TINY tragedians, cross-section comedians, half-portion heroes and heroines, these are the children of the movies. Because children express themselves naturally in action, a new race of actors is springing up.

David Griffith once said: "It's because of their little piping voices, because they haven't sufficient opportunity for acting, that children so often fail on the speaking stage. Just give them a chance to make play of anything and they're all right."

All of us have at some time or other marveled at the acting ability of some child on the screen; but when we look back at our childhood, we remember that imagination glorified every common act of life, every stick and stone, and the most sordid task became exciting in the light of some dream applied to it. In other words, we were acting a part every minute. So it's not to be wondered at that the screen offers a glorious opportunity for children to express themselves in art.

RAH FOR DAVE.

David Griffith as usual was one of the first to make use of a big truth. The Reliance studios have inaugurated a new policy in producing child drama. A large company of juvenile actors, ranging from the age of 4 to 12, are staging kid comedies or melodramas at the rate of one a week. The stories of these tell real tales of kid life; there are no prigs, no "Little Rollos" or "Dismal Dellas" or "Prissy Prues" among them. Grown-up characters are introduced whenever necessary to carry out the plots. Some of the most delightful comedy complications have been introduced with the children acting as subtle foils for the grown-ups.

The Reliance child company has as its principals George Stone, leading "man," Violet Radcliffe, heavy, always starred in boys' roles, and Carmen de Rue, leading "woman." The ages of these children are 4, 8 and 6 years old, respectively. In addition to these is the very versatile emotional child actor, Francis Carpenter, aged 4, who joins the child company when he is not specializing in child parts in some of the big dramas. C. M. and S. A. Franklin, distinguished for their work in this field, direct the productions. Bernard McConville, who writes the stories, "shows he hasn't forgotten his own kid days.

ALL FIXED UP.

The juvenile company at the Reliance has its own nursery and dressing-rooms. Between acts they can play dolls or games and they have certain hours for study under a private teacher. A maid has charge of the little ones during their off hours.

Little Georgie Stone, the leading man, carries himself with all the heroic swagger attached to a grown-up film idol. In all arguments, Master Stone is the peace maker. Also if too much childish levity is indulged in, little Georgie reproves his co-actors with fine gravity.

Miss De Rue occasionally indulges in fits of temperament quite equal to those of grown-ups. In "For Love of Mary Ellen," Miss Carmen was cast for the star role, but she was commanded to do her pretty curls into ugly pig-tails. She wept strenuously and refused. Violet Radcliffe was given the part, but when informed of that fact Miss De Rue stamped her feet, stormed upstairs to her dressing-room, reappeared in the desired pig-tails, and pushed the small and surprised Violet right into the discard.

TOMBOY.

Violet Radcliffe, who plays boys' parts, is an expert little boxer, swimmer and baseball player. However, on occasion, she can don a white dress with her skirts "flummed out," go to a kid party and behave as demurely as any little miss in the crowd.

Olive Johnson and Billie Jacobs are two delightful children who have appeared together in many kid comedies, Billie being featured as Olive's lover. Olive can cry or laugh at a moment's notice, and has a wink that rivals the Tanguay's. She is 4, and has been on the stage all her life, appearing at first in a drama in Boston when two weeks old. Billie Jacobs is now with the Keystone company, and is one of the most delightful of the kid comedians.

The Morosco-Bosworth Company boasts a number of child actors. Baby Hess, 18 months old, has just finished "work" with Maclyn Arbuckle in "The Reformed Candidate." He has a scene where he is supposed to crawl under a large bell and go to sleep? How did they make him do it? Rehearsed him with a chocolate candy lining to the bell. It didn't take him long to learn his lesson, and when you see him cooing and laughing and reaching his little hands out, it wasn't because the angels were whispering to him, or he was looking at "the birdie." No, sir-ee. It was that chocolate candy that was doing the business.

CLEVER KIDS.

There are two very clever youngsters with the Lasky Company. One is lovely little Marjorie Dawe, 12 years old, but very grown up in looks and ways, who has done some remarkable work in "Out of the Darkness," with Charlotte Walker and with Ina Claire in "The Puppet Crown." She is the little girl who played the small sister of Blanche Sweet in "The Warrens of Virginia," and who also appeared as "Innocence" in the "Hypocrites."

Marjorie was always a very serious-minded little girl, and about two years ago she decided in her child mind that she must choose a career. She sat down and thought it over, and made up her mind that the life of an actress appealed to her most. Without saying a word to anybody she went over to the Universal one day and told them soberly that she would "accept a position as an actress." Lois Weber overhearing her, was drawn to the child because of her beauty and evident characterfulness, as well as amused by her naive assurance, and she engaged the girl, who subsequently appeared in several of Miss Weber's film stories.

STILL ANOTHER.

Gerald Ward is another Lasky genius, who played the youngster in "The Captive," with Blanche Sweet. Gerald went into the business from purely commercial reasons. One day last winter he demanded a bicycle of his dad. The bicycle was not forthcoming. Next day Gerald played hookey from school and made the rounds of the picture studios, winding up in luck at the Lasky, where they chanced to need some children in "The Warrens of Virginia." He went home late that night with a $5 gold piece clasped tight in a very warm and dirty hand. The maternal slipper was ready, but it is surmised that its action was much eased up when the $5 part of the tale was told, for Gerald has been playing in the pictures ever since.

The Universal has many children in stock. Clara Horton, one of the favorites, was an artist's model when she was 2 years old, an artist seeing her on the street in New York stopping her mother, and asking for the child's services. The little girl was dancing at the time, as children will along the street, and had struck a pretty pose just as the artist's eye lighted upon her.

AT THE "CITY."

Rina Sorter, 9 years old, and Georgia French, 4, are both children of young "extra" women employed at the Universal, and both show decided talent. Georgia recently took a beauty prize in a kid contest.

Benjamin Suslow, also of the "U," 9 years old, took destiny into his own hands last summer, walked out to the big Cahuenga plant, and told them he would play in animal pictures or any old thing. They took him at his word, and he never squealed even when the big lion looked right at him; and has been one of the pets of the place ever since. Of course, they had a keeper and a big policeman watching the scene all the time, but Benjamin didn't know that—in fact, he never asked. He just showed "grit," and went through with his little stunt.

Doris Baker, of the "U" appeared in several pictures with Mrs. Leslie Carter, and is considered ont of the best child actresses of the "U." Others are Bordon Griffith, Dorothy Moulton and Nora Dempsey, all of whom are said to possess unusual ability.

Baby Marie Kiernan is one of the loveliest children on the screen. Not only is she a clever little actress, but she dances divinely. Though only 5, she can do a number of fascinating ballet stunts, and some very pretty lyric dances, lending her own interpretation to any music she hears. She is with Pathe.

Bebe Daniels, now the youngest leading woman in filmdom, playing leads with the Pathe, is but 14 years old. She is a lovely girl, and has been a favorite of filmdom for some time, as well as appearing on the speaking stage since babyhood. She appeared with William Desmond, Dustin Farnum and other leading actors in various plays, at one time appearing in Shakespearean repertoire.

There be scores of other clever little ones whom lack of space does not permit me to mention, but who seem destined for big things in the film world.

WILL YOU GO DOWN TOWN THIS MORNING WITH ME?

BY OLIVE GRAY.

Now is the time to buy:

Odd pieces of furniture, in the great furniture clearance sale, to refurbish the house for fall and winter.

The "between-times" suit or frock, in the great August clearance. The prices are such as to be nil in comparison to the saving of your better clothes.

Anything, everything for the household, in that annual "clean sweep" which offers such great savings.

Practical Suggestion.

Upon the "as is" counters where are offered odd cups, lidless sugar bowls and dishes minus their covers, you may pick up at a few cents apiece, receptacles for jellies and jams which are pretty and practical. These cost less than jelly glasses and are better for the gift of sweets for the sick friend or for the Christmas box. When protected with a tightly pasted paper they are as air-tight as the regulation jelly glass, too.

A Broadway Garden.

Greensward, a plashing fountain, cool marble seats and growing plants with vines trained against a lattice work, and birds singing majolica songs in wicker cages suspended on high! A pebbly pool with water-lilies blowing and sunny fishes and cunning gray turtles cuddling underneath the shelter of (to them) concealing rocks. Sounds coolly inviting, does it not? And when you picture all this right in the midst of Broadway, is it any wonder to you that crowds stop there to refresh their eyes and their jaded thoughts? That it is in a window and in miniature, goes almost without saying. And I need scarcely tell you which window, for the artist who plans such innovations, in a jewelry-house well known, is so full of surprises for you that you really are not surprised at anything which he does. What I wanted to know—and perhaps you will—is how that fountain is made to perpetuate its refreshing tinkle, right there in the window. So I went inside and was shown a minute pump, attached to a miniature dynamo which forces the water through a small rubber hose to-and-from the window garden outside. The beauteous marbelry, the white fountain baby, the settees with their resting figures, all invite the thoughts to rest, while at the same time suggesting, to the one of investigating mind, the exploration of the within, where there are, of course, more such lovely marble seats, fountains and dainty beautiments for the luxurious home. The butterflies perching upon flowers and foliage, are winged in glass spun to a fine thread in all the gorgeous coloring of the real butterfly wings.

First Fall Suits.

All the burning questions in regard to the new fall suits were answered by those which I saw yesterday in one of the leading stores. "Will jackets be long or short?" Both. "Will jackets be boxed, or tight fitting?" Both. "Will skirts be full, medium or scant?" All. "Will sleeves be large or small?" Both. "What will be the principal colors?" All. "Smooth or rough materials?" Both. Could the latitude be greater? And yet do not imagine that you can wear just any old thing and be in the mode! Not at all. There are new features innumerable, which distinguish the season's styles from those of last season or the one before. For example: A suit of heavy whip cord in the new shade of brown which is neither tete de negre nor yet seal but a commingling of both, had a coat on rather full, box lines, but it was almost waist-short at the front and fell gracefully to a much deeper line at the back. The medium full skirt was trimmed around the lower edge with a ten-inch band of black velvet, overlaid with bands of herculese braid in black in graduated widths. The same trimming graced the lower edge of the jaunty jacket. A suit of fine French broadcloth in hunter's green owned a coat cut in many narrow breadths and fitted closely to the waist, then allowed to flare to about half-way above the knee. A dark blue French serge was also trimmed in black braid and the jacket was quite short and boxish. Skirts are short—even shorter than at present. It is because of this curtailment in length that few women will accept extreme fullness, for there is no denying the fact that almost any woman looks podgy in a full, short skirt and women of good taste will persist in regarding their own appearance rather than adhere servilely to the extreme in mode.

A Come-for-table Bed.

In that store which, during the coming week, will hold a great annual furniture sale, I saw a new kind of bed. Among all the furniture which masquerades as something else, this is the most surprising. It is, to all appearance, a fine library table of the craftsman type. At one end is a pocket for magazines and papers, and after spending your evening beside the library table, when bedtime arrives, you sweep the books and papers into that pocket, pull out a table-drawer and lo, your bed is ready. The springs are comfy—or look so—and there is ample room for bedding "between decks." I never did see why a bed should be continuously around in plain sight and this one seems to fulfill every requirement of a bed and is endowed with the "helmet of invisibility" besides.

Cedar Chest Your Clothes.

"Could anything be more opportune," cried Evelyn, as she conned the advance advertising. "A sale of cedar chests for half. I have chased moths until I am fairly cross-eyed and I scarcely sleep nights for fear the creatures will eat my best furs. I shall indulge my taste and rest my nerves by purchasing one of those chests."

Hot-cold and Cold-hot.

"Bob has always wanted a thermos bottle to take on motor trips and—let me tell you a secret—" whispered Mabel, who has to do with the advertising department in one of the big stores. "We are to have a sale of them for just about half, on Monday; so better be on hand."

"So Cousin Bob will have his wish, you may rest assured.

Thermos Cookery.

By the way, did you know you could actually cook in a thermos bottle? A married girl who is an artist and who just couldn't bear to give up her profession and so made it a condition that the housekeeping should always be secondary to her art, tells me that she has made a sort of half-way fireless cooker from her thermos bottle. She utilizes it for the morning cereal, "setting" it the previous night; and in it she makes soups and cooks dried fruits and many other articles which are improved by long, slow cooking. "I just didn't mean to have that old thermos bottle standing around idle while the rest of the family was at work," said she, "so I thought I would give it one task and if it did that well I would give it more. I like the results," she concluded.

Her New Complexion.

Imogene did not use to be so very pretty. I am sure she will excuse my saying so, in view of the fact that she has so greatly improved in looks during the past three months. I could not refrain from remarking about it when I met her on Broadway the other day and I am certain she did not object for she forthwith invited me into the nearest sweeterie for "something." It was over our favorite "cool" that she confided to me the fact of a certain treatment which she had been taking. It was all a matter of complexion, she declared; and come to analyze it, I saw that it was so. She used to have rather a thick and blotchy skin, but now it is smooth and fine and transparent with just a faint flush of rose. "All due to the creams and lotions," she declared. "And really, they are delightful to use," she added. "And I am not the only one who has been using them," she said, and whispered the names of several girls. I am anxious to see them, to learn if they are as greatly improved as she.

STATESMEN, POLITICIANS.

Simeon E. Baldwin, former Governor of Connecticut, who was a candidate at the Baltimore convention which nominated President Wilson, is now suggested as the successor of Robert Lansing as counselor of the State Department. Gov. Baldwin is now 76 years old, and has had long experience in legal affairs.

Unless a post card canvass of Kentucky is sadly off, former Congressman Owsley Stanley of Henderson, that State, will be the Democratic party's candidate for Governor at the primary election.

Representative Claude Kitchin of North Carolina, who in the next Congress, will be chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, the tariff initiating body, is touring New England. He is said to be endeavoring to clear up some unfavorable impressions of himself by denying a remark attributed to him, to the effect that if he had his way he would move the cotton mills down South and the grass would grow in the streets of the cotton mill cities of Massachusetts.

Ex-Congressman Samuel W. McCall of Massachusetts has filed nomination papers as candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor.

"If the flag of the United States is insulted on land or sea," said Gov. McCreary of Kentucky, in an address at a review of the National Guard of the Blue Grass State, "I am ready for war, and in the event of war I shall exercise my prerogative as commander in chief and go to the front with you."

Stephen French of Athol, Mass., secretary of the Progressive State Committee, has announced that in the State campaign he will work for one of the regular Republican candidates. He has given time and money to the Progressive cause, but now says he believes "it is for the best interests of the commonwealth for the rank and file of the voters to support some one of the Republican nominees for Governor in the coming primaries and election."

Ex-Gov. Hadley of Missouri is reported to have decided to make the run for United States Senator.

IN THE LIMELIGHT.

Simon Lake, the submarine inventor, says that in 1905, when he was in Germany after making submarines for the Austrian government, Admiral von Tirpitz, head of the Admiralty, told him the Kaiser wanted offensive weapons of warfare. Capt. Lake submitted to Admiral von Tirpitz specifications for two models, one of a small craft, intended for defensive war use, and a second larger boat for offensive warfare. "I am not interested in your small boat," he said Admiral von Tirpitz told him. "I am more interested in your larger boat, for that is for offensive purposes."

Frederic Carl Frieseke, winner of the grand prix in the department of fine arts at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, is a native of Michigan, and comparatively young. He studied at the Art Institute of Chicago, the Art Students' League of New York, the Pullen Academy, and the Whistler School in Paris. His pictures have been exhibited in the Gallerie-Modern of Venice, the Luxembourg of Paris, the Modern Gallery of Odessa, Russia, and throughout Germany and the United States. He won a gold medal in Munich in 1904, a silver medal at the St. Louis Exposition, and has had honorable mention at numerous societies and academies.

Albin Polasek, whose recent effort, "Aspiration," was awarded the Widener medal for the best work in sculpture at the Pennsylvania Academy, was born in Moravia, but came to this country at the age of 22 years. Later he began to study at the Academy of the Fine Arts in Philadelphia. In due course he was enabled as a Prix de Rome man to study the old masters of Italy, and the influence of these years is apparent in several of his finest pieces, notably the "Fantasie" at the Metropolitan Museum in New York, and his "Young Roman Girl."

Sylvester Long-Lance, who has just been appointed to West Point, is the first full-blooded Cherokee Indian who has been so honored. He is a graduate of the Carlisle Indian School, which he entered when he was 12 years o'd. Some time ago he determined upon an army career. President Wilson became interested in him, and several weeks ago Long-Lance received notification that he had been selected as one of the six Presidential appointees to the military academy.

John McLaren, who is working as a stone cutter in Cambridge, Mass., is the possessor of A. B. and A. M. degrees from the University of Glasgow, and is said to have run away from a $50,000 job to become a stone cutter at $2.50 a day. In England he was a chum of George Bernard Shaw, Socialist thinker and dramatist; hobnobbed with H. G. Wells, author and literary rival of Shaw; was a close adviser and associate of Keir Hardie, the labor leader, and a friend of Mrs. Pankhurst. "This is the life," said he; "the only satisfactory life. Every man needs hard labor to curb the devil in him. Here I am free to think and act. I have given up that life," and he waved a hand in renunciation.

ACTIVE WOMEN.

Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt has been chosen as honorary president of the American committee of Le Vestiaire des Blesses, a French society which cares for the wounded soldier after he leaves the hospital.

Dr. S. Josephine Baker, director of the department of child hygiene of the New York board of health, has under her over 300 nurses and 100 doctors.

Miss Susan Strong, who starred in the Metropolitan Opera Company has been doing the work of a cook in one of the field ambulance units of France.

Dr. Pearl J. Stevens, who has just been graduated from the Tennessee College of Medicine with the highest average, was the only woman in a class of sixty-seven.

Miss Irene Chancellor recently broke the women's collegiate broad jump record when she cleared fifteen feet one inch during a dual track meet between Howard Payne College of Mexico, Mo., and Stephens College of Columbia, Mo.

Probably the youngest markswoman with records over the traps that gets equal recognition is Miss Beatrice McKay of Brooklyn. Miss McKay does not compromise on divided skirts, but wears out and out trousers like her brother marksmen.

Miss Dita M. West directs over 100 trains entering and leaving Atlanta, Ga., every day.

Miss Alexa Stirling, the Southern woman's golf champion, is only seventeen years of age.

Mrs. Mary Bohnefeld has been a police matron in Atlanta for thirteen years, and in all that time she has lived at police headquarters.

VIOLA ALLEN IN "WHITE SISTER."

Clune Auditorium Presents Star in Films.

Marguerite Clark to be at Tally's.

Charles Clary at Woodley in "Strathmore."

Commencing tomorrow afternoon, Viola Allen will appear in "The White Sister" at Clune's Auditorium. This announcement will please hundreds who remember this artist in her portrayal of the leading role on the speaking stage. The genius of Viola Allen is said to have lifted the drama into a real work of art, vivid with life and action.

The story is of a young officer and a princess, bound by an infinite love, brought suddenly to the realization that they are forever separated. Disinherited under the Italian law, her lover reported dead in Africa, heartbroken and weary of the world, Donna Angela Chiarmonte becomes the White Sister, devoting her life to good works. Called to nurse her dying aunt, Angela learns she was disinherited because the aunt stole her father's will. fter five years her lover returns as om the dead. Seriously injured in explosion at the barracks, where e is stationed, he determines to die less Angela will marry him. She fuses because of her vows as the hite Sister. A prince of the church ervenes and promises to obtain from Holiness the Pope a dispensation t will free her from her vows and w her to marry. "Strathmore," one of the best- n of Ouida's novels, is the pic- drama to be presented at the dley Theater this week, beginning rrow, with Charles Clary in the g role. This old-fashioned story h has been read by millions of le is appealing in its romance and in its intrigue, passion, re- and regeneration. A thrilling scene is in the play, also the t danced as in the days when ge IV. ruled England. candal," a five reel photodrama n and produced by Lois Weber, declares the film contains more "naked truth" than did her ocrites," is the picture offering at Miller's this week, beginning tomorrow.

The story has to do with the trouble into which innocent people may fall through mistaken acts of kindness and willful twisting of events by evil-minded people.

The added feature during the first part of the week will be the eleventh chapter of "The Goddess," and the extra attraction the rest of the week is the new "Romance of Elaine."

Palace of Pictures.

When Katherine Brenton, raised as theaverage young girl of modern society is raised, ran away from the unwelcome attentions of the owner of a yacht and was cast upon an island where she met a man who had lived there from the time he was a tiny child, a unique situation was formed that gives the chief charm to "The Island of Regeneration," which opened yesterday at the Palace of Pictures. The powerful play is by Cyrus Townsend Brady and is the second of the Vitagraph blue ribbon features. Because of the great demand to see it, the Palace of Pictures advanced its opening two days.

Edith Story, in the role of Katherine Brenton, enters thoroughly into the unusual characterization and is ably supported by a well-chosen cast. The scenes are beautiful, one of the most artistic being where the heroine bathes "au natural" in a clear pool. The plot and scenic beauty, however, are not the only points of appeal in the play as there are several spectacular scenes, including a fire at sea and an earthquake. The latter part of the programme is filled in by late Pathe News pictures.

Superba.

For the week beginning Monday the Superba presents Carlyle Blackwell, the distinguished young film star, in "The High Hand" a feature film, after Jacques Futrelle's successful novel of American public life. "The High Hand" was Mr. Futrelle's last work before he was lost on the ill-fated Titanic. Carlyle Blackwell has been aptly styled the Adonis of the movies. His youthfulness is contagious, and this quality of appeal coupled with his well-earned success in pictures, has erected for him a prestige that can well be considered monumental in these eliminative theatrical times. Mr. Blackwell is supported by Miss Neva Gerber and Douglas Gerrard, two capable artists well-known in Los Angeles.

Clune's Broadway.

"The Mystery of Mary," will be the feature offering of Clune's Broadway, during the first half of the present week beginning tomorrow. The mystery surrounds a beautiful girl who is seen by a young man to be running toward the moutn of a railroad tunnel, where a train was likely to come through at any time. A young man follows her, learns the secret of her predicament and promises to keep it quiet. The mystery is solved and the young man helps run down and punish her persecutors.

Another feature of the bill will be Flora Finch, Kate Price and others in a comedy, "Some Dual."

Not Lacking in "Kultur."

[Chicago Herald:] Corn crop nearly three billion bushels; wheat crop nearly a billion bushels; oats crop a billion and a third; other crops in proportion; not a drop of blood required to produce them. We don't seem so lacking in "kultur" after all.

Warnack's Gossip.

tried to be the best actor he knew how, and that he refused to appear on the same stage with performing seals and trained fleas. Yet Tyrone Powers is here, starring in moving pictures, when that branch of art openly and flagrantly offers its shelter and actual encouragement to Charlie Chaplin, not to speak of all the imitating Charlie Chaplins that parade up and down in front of moving picture houses, not at all to warn the people away, but actually as a bait to lure them.

Yes, Main street delights in battle. I stopped at the Grand a minute. Several hundred people who are also accompanied by their atmosphere, and were rapidly manufacturing more atmosphere, of unquestionable quality, were gasping as two stalwart youths struggled upon the verge of a precipice over the sea.

Finally one hurled the other from him and went down to his death in the waters. We were all in at the death. We saw the eddies ripple above his lifeless form. We were delighted. Nay, we were edified (I don't mean by the eddies) and transported.

But we still had a capacity for sensation not yet sated. Breathlessly we awaited the unfolding of the author's genius. We knew that a man who had given us so much would surely give us more, and we were not disappointed. Art has its limitations, but they were not yet exhausted in this instance.

A posse of armed men, who had nothing to do but lie around the movie studio and wait to be summoned by such a call to arms, hastily appeared with rifles, shotguns and clubs, to pursue the villain. And they pursued that villain, and pursued him and pursued him until he climbed a tree and leered out above them.

We gasped as he made impudent faces at them. Would they never look up? Would he fall dead at their feet the next instant? Heaven forbid! We were out for his blood and we were going to have it, but not yet, not yet. Let us prolong the agony, we prayed, and prolong it we did.

Night came. The posse had moved on. Cunningly and with stealth and apprehension the villain descended. Slowly, and with more apprehension, more cunning and more stealth, he made his way to his mother's cabin and peered through the window pane. She was peacefully paring potatoes.

And now what happens? Can you ask? Years ago the mother had been frightened by a lion that had crept to her window, and she had gone mad as she felt its warm breath in her face.

Now, as she looked up suddenly into the face of her murderer son, the old fright came back to her. Her son's face took on the semblance of that of a lion. She saw not her boy, but the beast of the jungle.

Cautiously she went to the door facing and took down from the rack above the lintel the old army musket. Ah, now we have it! A fitting sequel, indeed! Death at the hands of his own mother. How exquisite! The face appears and disappears—agony prolonged to the last degree of ecstacy. Then a lifting of the fowling piece by the unsteady old hands, a flash, a muffled roar (business of a thump on the bass drum) and, outside, the victim groveling in the dust.

Fine! tremendous! Just what we needed—dust and a victim to grovel in it. What would life be without them?

Enter the surprised posse, stumbling over the dead body and gazing with fascinated horror on the smiling face of the foolish old mother.

I tell you this art is nothing if not uplifting.

We arrived at the Grand much too soon. There were two interesting stocks between the Plaza and the Grand, on the western side of the street. Let us not forget that it was Main street, and North Main into the bargain. We are not much the wiser for one stop. At No. 371 North Main one is greeted by the words "Para Hoy." Beneath that we read that El Grandioso Compania de Drama y Zarzula la Nacional is presenting pour el actor Sr. Adolfo Guterrez in El Grandioso drama "Juan Jose."

A company of thirty Mexican people are presenting melodrama here once each night, with matinees Saturday and Sunday afternoons—presenting it in their own language, with plenty of the hot tamale, chili con carne and all the rest of it, in song and dance, during the interludes between the thrillers.

You don't have to know Spanish to enjoy this show. All you need is a cultivated taste for the drama. Why patronize Nazimova and miss Para Hoy?

Now we can go back to the Grand and then cross over to the Regal and the Republic. At the Regal you will get melodrama, comedy, burlesque and vaudeville. The tired chorus girl is in her glory.

At the Republic you will get more of the tired chorus girl, only in larger numbers, with two or three vaudeville sketches, as clever as you will find them anywhere, with the exception of the Orpheum itself. You are also getting downtown into the bigger audiences.

Across the street is the Hippodrome, a big house doing a big business, and offering a big bill; much of it excellent. One of their features of this week I saw with Anna Held at the Majestic eighteen months ago, and, instead of deteriorating, it had improved. This was, "The Act Beautiful," being poses in living pictures by a white horse, a man and a woman, and some sensitive, intelligent, beautiful dogs. They also have an act by a man from tne Ziegfeld Follies.

Next comes the Century, which advertises that it is 90 per cent. girls, and, while not posing as an authority, it is my humble opinion that the advertisement is not misleading. They have the girls, all fifty of them, and some of them are peaches at that. I can heartily recommend the Century to the tired jitney bus driver, and the tired anybody else.

I might go further and fare worse, and for fear of doing so I will stop right here.

BITS OF VERSE.

The Path of Dreams.

When evening stills the tumult of the day,
And Time turns o'er his glass of shining sand,
From day-long toil and task hearts haste away
To seek the waiting home, love's out-stretched hand.

But what of him whose lonely feet must find
A lonely haunt where love waits not for him,
Where heavy shadows intricately wind,
And distant lights throw in a radiance dim?

Though round him throb the city or near by
May flow the brooks of some still countryside,
Far o'er that path, beneath another sky,
His spirit can speed on in journey wide.

The path of dreams from out the humblest door
Runs out to kingdoms of the earth, and leads
To goals where hearts have what they hungered for,
Where vanquished victors are, and wishes, deeds.

No more the lonely heart need fear the night,
But hand in hand with dreams may venture far,
Walk humble ways once loved or on long flight
May thread thought's spaces to its last, dim star!
—[Arthur Wallace Peach, in Boston Transcript.

Land of "Pretty Soon."

I know of a land where the streets are paved
With the things we meant to achieve.
It is walled with the money we meant to have saved
And the pleasures for which we grieve.

The kind words unspoken, the promises broken,
And many a coveted boon
Are stowed away there in that land somewhere—
The land of "Pretty Soon."

There are uncut jewels, of possible fame,
Lying about in the dust,
And many a noble and lofty aim
Covered with mold and rust.

And, oh, this place, while it seems so near,
Is further away than the moon!
Though our purpose is fair, yet we never get there—
The land of "Pretty Soon."

It is further at noon than it is at dawn,
Further at night than at noon;
Oh! let us beware of that land down there—
The land of "Pretty Soon."
—[The King's Own.

Invocation.

O thou whose equal purpose runs
In drops of rain or streams of suns,
And with a soft compulsion rolls
The green earth on her snowy poles;
O thou who keepest in thy ken
The times of flowers, the dooms of men,
Stretch out a mighty wing above—
Be tender to the land we love!

If all the huddlers from the storm
Have found her hearthstone wide and warm;
If she has made men free and glad,
Sharing, with all, the good she had;
If she has blown the very dust
From her bright balance to be just,
Oh, spread a mighty wing above—
Be tender to the land we love!

When in the dark, eternal tower
The star clock strikes her trial hour,
And for her help no more avail
Her sea-blue shield, her mountain mail,
But sweeping wide, from gulf to lakes,
The battle on her forehead breaks,
Throw thou a thunderous wing above—
Be lightning for the land we love!
—[Wendell Phillips Stafford, in the Atlantic Monthly.

Only a Year of War.

Only a year of battle—
A year of fraticide,
With brothers' knives for brothers' lives,
Since brothers' love has died!
A year of rifle rattle,
Of worshipping of Thor;
A year all bad; a year gone mad!
Only a year of war!

Only a year of killing;
Only a year of pain,
Where each day fled is crossed with red
By the sword-pen of Cain!
Only a year of drilling,
Of tireless training for
The death brigade, the ghost parade!
Only a year of war!

Only a year of weeping—
A year of mothers' fears,
Of rage and rout, of hope drowned out
By butchered babies' tears!
A year of gloom, on-sweeping
'Mid deeds the saints abhor;
A year of wrath down hell's own path!
Only a year of war!

Only a year of sorrow—
Twelve tombs, one after one;
Where days arise in blackened skies
And in red skies are done!
And what of the Tomorrow
Out through Time's corridor?
Must we still cry to Him on high,
"Only a year of war?"

OVER THE SEA.

The Duke of Aosta, who commands one of the five Italian armies, is by profession a soldier. He is a cousin of the King of Italy and brother to the Duke of the Abruzzi, the commander of the Italian fleet.

The Marchioness of Tweeddale, whose name is pronounced Tweedle, is called the most beautiful woman in the British peerage. She is the daughter of a famous Greek family now Anglicized.

Gen. Von. Mackensen, hero of Galicia, who has engineered the German forces in the war with Russia, is reported to be the grandson of an American. He is said to be the son of Gen. James McCaleb of the Mexican army, who was ordered to be shot by Gen. Santa Ana during the Mexican War because he would not fight against the United States, his native country. He was, however, exiled to Germany, where his name was changed to Mackensen.

The Kaiser's personal losses owing to the war are about $20,000,000. These are mainly due to the depreciation of stock in shipping and manufacturing concerns, in which he is a large investor. The works of two great beer firms in Saxony and Bavaria, in which the Kaiser is one of the principal stockholders, are closed down. The Kings of Bavaria, Saxony and Wurttemberg and the Grand Duke of Baden, as well as other German princes, also have lost heavily.

King Ferdinand of Bulgaria, who may not be able to keep out of the war, like the King of the Belgians and King George of England, belongs to the House of Saxe-Coburg. His father was the late Prince Augustus of that successful race, and his mother, Princess Clementine, a daughter of Louis Philippe. His title has been a matter of gradual acquisition. He was elected prince by the National Assembly, which later confirmed the titles of Royal Highness and King or Czar.

Frau Hedwig Heyl is the most powerful woman in Germany and the government depends largely upon her to analyze and test substitutes offered for various foods, where the supply is short, and when recommended by her, directions are given for adoption by the police.

Alfred Lehne, an engineer from Duderstadt, is believed to be the heaviest soldier in the Kaiser's armies. He is slightly more than six feet tall and weighs 316 pounds.

Queen Wilhelmina of Holland weighs as much as the kings of Spain and Italy combined. Why shouldn't she? The following is said to be the typical menu of her majesty: 8 a.m.—Coffee with whipped cream; a dozen pieces of cut bread and butter. 10 a.m.—Two hot meat or fish patties; cheese. 2 p.m.—Lunch, usually hors d'oeuvres, fish, roast beef, fowl, dessert, wine. 4 p.m.—Tea; ham sandwiches. 7 p.m.—Dinner, consisting of eight courses. 10 p.m.—Biscuits, liquors and bed.

Just Like a Woman.

[Chicago Herald:] Lady: What will you charge me for the use of a horse and buggy for a few hours?

Liveryman: It will cost you $2 for the first hour and $1 for each additional hour.

Lady: Well, I'll use it for two additional hours. I've got some shopping to do and will not require it for the first hour.

ART AND ARTISTS.

BY ANTONY ANDERSON.

The Priestess.

(To the Venus of Milo.)

The sunny hills of thine enamored Greece
Gave breathing marble for thy breathless form;
But not their warmth could ever wake the charm
Confined in thee, nor could thy limbs release;
No can our passions mar the pallid peace;
Untouched thou standest through the burning storm
Of thy swit ritual, and the loving worm
Feeds not on beauty that can never cease.

Yet what availeth such eternity?
Ripe, rich with love, love thou canst never know!
Thou teachest to all living things that be
A joy thou feelest not—What greater woe
Than thus to live in bare virginity,
Priestess of purity's thrice fruitful foe!

—[William Foster Elliott.

Portraits in Plaster and Paint.

Strong friendships between young American art students are often formed in Paris. Sometimes they even survive the ensuing transplanting period, when the students have become artists seeking to take firm root in their native soil, and to bourgeon in their familiar air of home.

Two such young artists have recently opened a studio in a pleasantly reconstructed barn at No. 702 West Twenty-seventh street. They are Elizabeth Edmond and Helen Blum, the one a sculptor, the other a painter. Miss Edmond was born in Maine and Miss Blum in Chicago, but Paris joined them for two years, and Los Angeles has at last completed the circle of their friendship. Miss Edmond has occupied the Twenty-seventh-street studio for a year. Miss Blum, coming from Chicago to Pasadena, sought her out six months ago.

Miss Edmond worked in the Colarossi school under various masters. Miss Blum studied, for the most part, under Henri Martin, though before that time she was a student of the Art Institute in Chicago and of Edmund Tarbell's painting class in Boston. The training of both young artists, as you see, has been of the best, and their work shows it. They are thoroughly modern in their methods, yet they have steered clear of all the freakish fads of the moment—cubism and futurism and what not. And to keep finely sane in the mad world of today is less easy than it sounds.

On a recent visit to the studio I found much to interest and delight me. Scattered about, on easels and on tables and shelves, were many portraits in plaster and paint. The casts, in low relief and high, and in the round, were by Miss Edmond, the pictures were by Miss Blum.

One of the most beautiful of Miss Edmond's portraits is that of Robert Conran Gillis of Los Angeles, done in low relief. The greater part of the figure is shown. The profile is keenly cut, that of a man at once imaginative and practical; the fine, flexible hands are authoritatively modeled. Indeed, Miss Edmond is always strong in the realization of her sitters' hands, and is right in ranking them with the face in the expression of character. I found—or thought I found—suggestions of the color of her models' hair and complexions, and the young sculptor admitted that she believed this could be indicated in clay.

Among other notable portraits is that of Harmon Northrop Morse, professor of chemistry at Johns Hopkins University, in unusually high relief, because of the size and bulk of the sitter; that of Mrs. H. R. Boynton, in low relief; a small bust, in the round, of Miss Caroline Risque. Still others are medallion presentments, remarkably simple and forceful, yet subtle, of James Ramsay, H. R. Boynton, Jr., and Thomas B. Hamilton of St. Louis.

But Miss Edmond's sculpture work is not confined to portraiture. On the contrary, some of her best efforts have been in nude figures and in the field of pure fancy and imagination. A particularly effective composition is the panel recently completed for Robert Conran Gillis. It is ten feet by three in dimensions, and contains fourteen figures in relief, twelve of them being Indians, young and old, among them several nude infants, who are carrying the grains and fruits of autumn to two seated padres. Behind the figures, which move like an impressive pageant, are the arches of a mission. Miss Edmond had not seen McGroarty's "Mission Play" when the panel was executed, yet the work has much of the impassioned beauty of that idyll of early California.

Even lovelier is "In Arcady," which was modeled in Paris and exhibited in the Salon, where it was purchased by Mrs. Pethick Lawrence of London. Miss Edmond's replica shows us five young girls dancing in a ring, while two small boys are playing for them on Pan's reedy pipes. Youthful gaiety and innocent abandon are found in all the graceful lines of this panel.

Much subtle grace with marvelous compactness of composition may be noted in "Woman With Rabbit," a crouching nude figure which less skillful hands would have made clumsy. The dreamy abstraction of the woman's face is like the withdrawal of the women of Burne-Jones. Even greater grace is seen in the life size figure for a fountain, a charming nude boy of 8 bending back and lifting above his shoulder a deep basin with a carved brim. The firm, rounded limbs are modeled with a poetic appreciation of their beauty, and seem, in the plaster, as yielding as flesh itself, and the backward fling of the head is as free and fine as that of a young satyr.

The three portraits by Miss Blum show that her years of study with Edmund Tarbell have done much for her in bringing forward her own talent for color, refinement and subtleties of mood and expression. The pictures have all the qualities I have enumerated, and yet they are strongly individual. Tarbell has not been imitated in any way, he has only influenced an alert and responsive temperament.

Perhaps the most interesting of the three extremely interesting portraits is that of George Wishart Edmond, at one time instructor of chemistry in Johns Hopkins University, now pursuing the study of geology in Los Angeles. My first thought was that the father of Elizabeth Edmond looks very much like Robert Louis Stevenson, and the sculptor admitted that the resemblance has been remarked on more than once. Decidedly, though Mr. Edmond has been a scientist all his life, he has also been a poet, though he may never have written verse. Miss Blum has modeled with rare feeling the strong nose and sensitive chin, the supple, capable hands. The section of green sweater pulled over the coat collar brings out the rich colors that Miss Blum has used in painting the face.

"Natalia" and "Eleanora" are portrait studies of two young Mexican girls. Natalia's expression is strangely elusive. The girl is gowned in white, and carries a fan and her pomegranate coloring shows the rich Spanish strain much more strongly than the yellower tones of Eleanora's rather stolid face. But both portraits are typical, giving evidence of Miss Blum's searching sense for character.

Awards at the Panama-Pacific.

The awards of the international jury in the department of fine arts at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition have just been announced by the superior jury, of which Dr. J. F. V. Skiff, the director in chief of the exposition, is the president.

Despite the war conditions existing in Europe, the department of fine arts of the exposition has assembled an international exhibition of pictures and sculptures comprising over 10,000 exhibits, which in the opinion officially expressed by the international jury is the best art exhibition ever held in the United States.

The department of fine arts was organized and its exhibition made by Hon. John E. D. Trask, for many years director of the Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts in Philadelphia, and the United States commissioner-general to the fine arts exposition held in Buenos Aires and Santiago, Chile, in 1910.

In addition to the regular awards made by the jury, a special commemorative medal was voted to Frank Duveneck of Cincinnati, whose accomplishment in painting, in sculpture and in etching seemed to the jury to make him peculiarly fitted for the honor, and whose wide influence upon the artists of America and whose service to the cause of art generally seemed to the exposition to merit the highest award which it could make. In the fine arts department an entire gallery is given over to a comprehensive exhibit of the works of Mr. Duveneck.

A special feature of the exhibit which received most praise from the jury is a series of galleries given to one-man shows of the works of John Sargent, James McNeil Whistler, Howard Pyle, John McClure Hamilton, Joseph Pennell, John H. Twachtman, William Keith, Edmund C. Tarbell, Edward W. Redfield, William M. Chase, Alson S. Clark, Childe Hassam and Gari Melchers.

An evidence of the popularity of the fine arts department has been the attendance of over 4,000,000 people to the Palace of Fine Arts, and the sales by the department which have already been made amounting in total to over $30,000, and comprising over 200 separate works.

The awards of the jury in the sections comprising the United States, twelve foreign nations and an international section are: Ten grand prizes, forty-seven medals of honor, one hundred, and seventy-five gold medals, three hundred and thirty-one silver medals, one hundred and eighty-one bronze medals, and eighty-four honorable mentions, a total of eight hundred and twenty-eight awards.

The grand prize in the United States section goes to F. C. Friesecke.

The list of awards made to California artists is as follows:

In oil paintings, gold medals to H. J. Breuer and William Ritschel; silver medals to Carl Oscar Borg, Maurice del Mue, E. Charlton Fortune, Armin Hansen, Herman G. Herkomer, Bruce Nelson, Joseph Raphael, Mary Curtis Richardson, Guy Rose, William Wendt, Frederick V. Dumond; bronze medals to A. Bremer, Maynard Dixon, Florence Lundborg, M. Evelyn McCormick, Perham Nahl, Gertrude Partington, Lee Randolph, Frank J. Van Sloun, Robert Wagner; honorable mention to Betty De Jong.

In water color, miniature paintings and drawings, silver medals to Mary Harland, Lucia E. Mathews, Donna Schuster, Clare Shephard; bronze medal to Percy Gray.

In etching and engraving, gold medal to Cadwallader Washburn; silver medals to Clark Hobart, Perham Nahl, Worth Ryder; bronze medals to Benjamin Brown, Ernest Haskell, Isabelle C. Percy; honorable mentions to Pedro J. Lemos, Xavier Martinez.

In sculpture, gold medal to Arthur Putnam; honorable mentions to Robern T. Paine, Ralph Stackpole, John Bateman.

California artists now residing elsewhere: In oil painting, medal of honor, Emil Carlsen; gold medal, Ellen Emmet Rand; silver medals, William L. Carrigan, Edward Cucuel, G. L. Noyes; bronze medal, Julia Heinemann. In sculpture, silver medals, Robert Aitken, Chester Beach; honorable mention, Edgar Walter.

The group jury on paintings made the following comment in reporting to the superior jury:

"The awards in the United States section, the general excellence of which is worthy of all praise, would have been much greater but for the fact that the works of artists to whom individual galleries have been given by the department of fine arts were declared 'not in competition!'"

In the Bentz Gallery.

A score of small quick sketches from the brush of Karl Schmidt are now on exhibition in the Bentz gallery, No. 213 West Fourth street, where they will remain for several weeks. A beautiful collection of Rhead's pottery is also being shown there.

Schmidt's pochades come from various places—California, Brittany, England and the coast of Maine. They are broad and free in treatment, often remarkably rich in color. "A California Evening," painted at Santa Barbara, is in dark green tones under a pallid yellow sky; it is very simply and effectively done. Effective, too, is "The Quay at St. Ives," a gray sky touched with brown fog and bending above the yellow wharf that is reflected in quiet waters.

The trees in a study of a satyr chasing a laughing nymph have the umbrageous coolness of Corot's. "In Montecito" gives us a yellowing summer soil under a vast blue sky with white floating clouds; the color is like that of a collection of jewels. "Carthew From the Beach" is in pink and brown tones; "Under the Oaks," in the greens of spring; "Porthmear Beach," in lovely grays.

A fine vitality pervades all the sketches of the young artist, a feeling for the essential spirit of the scene he portrays.

Murals by Lon Magargee.

An exhibition of the original studies that Lon Magargee made for the mural decorations now in the State Capitol at Phoenix, Arizona, will open tomorrow in the Kanst gallery, and will remain on view through the month of August. About a dozen interesting as it is important. The studies will be shown.

This exhibition will prove to be as studies are all of Indian life and desert scenery, and are delightful in color and strong in execution. Magargee, who was once a cowboy, and is almost entirely self-taught, has a studio in the desert about fifty miles outside of Phoenix.

THE HELPING HAND.

"How far that little candle throws his beams!
So shines a good deed in a naughty world."

Mr. Ellis A. Gimbel, head of th firm of Gimbel Bros., Philadelphia, recently made the 200 children inmates of the Jewish Foster Home of the Quaker City his guests for a day at the country club. A special train took the children to the club grounds, where they played games on the lawns, ate lunch at noon under the trees and played all through the afternoon. Not for one minute did the children forget that Mr. Gimbel was their host. They couldn't. He was in every game they played, frollicking with them like a boy. Late in the afternoon he umpired the second baseball game, together with President Mayer of the Jewish Foster Home.

At the end of the afternoon the tired and happy children gravely shook hands with their host, climbed aboard their special train once more, and were carried back to the home. Too sated with the day's pleasure to even think of more, they climbed into bed without a regret.

"Gee," one of them murmured, as he snuggled against his pillow, "this certainly was some day."

"You bet," answered the boy across the way.

The craft will measure 215 feet in length, by 48 feet beam, and will have capacity for 1200 patients. Dining and storerooms will occupy the lower deck. The main deck will be fitted with benches for mothers and children and hammocks for the smallest.

There will be four wards and other hospital rooms and accommodations for the staff on the deck above, and on the hurricane deck will be a quarantine ward and quarters for the officers and crew. The boat will be fitted with heating and lighting apparatus and may be kept in service in the winter months if desirable.

The new craft will cost $100,000. Mrs. Juilliard gave the present floating hospital to the guild and the present floating service has cared for 1,571,361 babies, children and mothers.

Four men chipped in $2.50 apiece and bought the little cottage at No. 4627 East Tenth street, Kansas City, for Mrs. Elizabeth Bowman. She must find a place on which to locate the house, as it was one of 100 dwellings sold at public auction by the City Comptroller to make room for the extension of Van Brunt boulevard.

Mrs. Bowman lived in the cottage and she became attached to it. She told the army of bidders she was too poor to participate in competitive bidding.

"I just dote on the little place," she said.

"Make a bid and we'll not raise it," promised the crowd.

"Ten dollars," said Mrs. Bowman to the auctioneer. There were no other bids.

"Sold for $10," exclaimed the auctioneer.

"We've made up $10 for you; pay it with this," volunteered one of the four men who turned the money over to Mrs. Bowman.

At the risk of his life, Harry Duey, aged 25, of Tyrone, Pa., snatched a boy from the very jaws of death.

Duey was the front brakeman of a heavy freight train coming down the Pennsylvania Railroad from [illegible] Shoe. Rounding the curve at Clar[illegible] Engineer A. Rowe saw a child playing on the track. "My God!" he cried.

Duey, who was in the cab, climbed out on the running-board to the pilot just in time to catch and drag the lad from under the train.

Many Kinds of Sausages.

[Pall Mall Gazette:] There will be consternation in Munich at an order issued by the military authorities prohibiting the manufacture of sausages, in order to limit the consumption of meat. It is at Munich that the sausage flourishes in all its glory; at least 400 different varieties being obtainable there, and even this formidable number represents only a fraction of what Germany can do in the sausage line.

At an exhibition organized five years ago at Berne, 1785 varieties of German sausage were displayed. Harper's Weekly tells of a young Prussian who, after an expensive training as a chemist, shut himself up in his laboratory and, instead of devising a new dye or explosive, evolved a wonderful and totally original sausage from pork, veal, olives, pepper, fennel, old wine, cheese, apples, cinnamon and herrings. He amassed a comfortable fortune from its sale.

Hen Breaks All Records.

[Baltimore Star:] When a cover was removed recently from an abandoned well at the home of [illegible]more Dupree, in Macon, Ga., after the well had been closed for over [illegible] months, in it was discovered that a hen, which had been missing for over nine months, was at the bottom of the well.

The hen made her presence known by her clucking, and was rescued by L. D. Palmer.

In addition to the hen, Mr. Palmer brought up twenty-seven eggs which the hen had laid during her confinement. The fact that there was plenty of worms and bugs in the well enabled the hen to keep alive.

The Bright Side of Sunshine Land—People and Their Doings—a Hundred Happy Affairs.

A DEBUTANTE'S LETTER.

LOS ANGELES, July 30.

darling:

I just must write and tell you what a perfectly charming wedding Juliet and George had. An arcadian garden wedding, soft and dainty and sweet and graceful in all its details, and Juliet looking a veritable picture of happiness. There was such a youthful air about it all, not a hint of blase society splendor, not a shadow of "display," but a pervading freshness and naturalness that leaves a sensation of wholesome sweetness behind. That wedding supper on the lawns, beneath radiant canopies of flowers and gay lampshades, would have made a furore as a scene in a play. Even Mrs. Sar[illegible] wore white with a hint of forget-me-not blue.

Little Josephine Cook has made a very early unofficial social debut, hasn't she? She played no small part in the charm of that wedding and bore herself with such a quaint little self-possession, doubtless acquired as the youthful hostess at those sumptuous parties at the country club, where she is quite the recognized leader of infantile society.

Weddings have been in the air again this week. Natalie and Ray were married on Wednesday evening amid a regiment of friends. That baby, Margaret Hyden, who is only three, was another self-possessed young lady who played no small part in the picture, I can tell you.

Then there was Dixie and Robert, who were married in Hollywood, a quiet little wedding, and Lucile [illegible]ge became Mrs. J. K. Williams at the Trinity Auditorium, and Enid [illegible]dyside shed her maiden name to become Mrs. Earl McCann.

[illegible]enna Barber married Willie [illegible]er on Wednesday evening; the [illegible]ileys announced Maria's engagement to Ted Bowen; and of course there was the operatic wedding which I first heard of at Madame Schumann-Heinck's reception, Louise Gunning and her neighbor, Oscar Seiling. Both musical stars of national reputation who bought picturesque ranches next door to each other without knowing it.

I had such a funny letter from Blanche Danton, who is in London and considers she is helping settle the war. One of the pleasant duties of the society feminine population is to minister sweetness to the convalescent wounded. They go to the hospitals with their machines and plenty of comfy rugs and pillows and take batches of soldiers out for an airing. The park—Hyde Park—is, she says, a wonderful sight from 10 a.m. to lunch time.

But the uninitiated might imagine all sorts of possible romances which are not so." Blanche .sahs she has taken seven different batches out so far and their social status ranged from a dustman (the English equivalent of a garbage man) to a West End hairdresser's assistant. She takes them to tea in Kensington Gardens, under the huge Japanese umbrellas, and lets them feed the impudent little birds that flock there and jump right on one's table with the least encouragement. "Gorblimey!" remarked one of her guests, "Blest if the blasted little blighter ain't pecking at me game arm!" Then in cons[illegible] alarm, "Begging yer pardon, mum."

Blanche insists that they are so touching, that she finds endless entertainment from her good deeds, and that she really believes that officers would not be half so interesting. Officers, of course, have dozens of personal friends to look after their airing, so the casual volunteer for that particular kind of "work" is unlikely [illegible] a scion of a noble house and [illegible] a possible romance, should her aspirations happen to be so inclined. At all events that is the fashionable way to spend one's vacation this year. If one does go away it's good form to take half a dozen convalescent heroes with one and give the housemaids the time of their life! All the great country houses of England are arranged on an agreeable sanatorium plan.

Honeymoons this year are going to be severely expositiony, from what I hear. The young people feel it their duty to kill two birds with one stone, as it were, and there is scope for some specially arranged entertainments for the amusement of pre-occupied couples. They wander round trying hard to take in the educational attractions, poor dears, but the more sophisticated amongst them devote an hour a day to the exposition with conscientious abandon—and then proceed to have a good time.

I accused Birdie of being engaged last week and she was mad. "Why, my dear, what nonsense! He has worn a toupee for fifteen years," she retorted acidly, as though that settled the matter. We ventured the suggestion that perhaps that was why some girls were still on the shelf—most girls have worn a switch for quite [illegible].

"That," she remarked, caustically, "is very different. We wear ours because we don't really need them. He wears his because he could not [illegible] without it!" Which is, of course, conclusive.

There seems to be quite a slump in society frivols lately. I suppose we feel we have done quite enough for the Elks and Shriners. But there appear to be numerous charities crying out for aid and there doesn't seem any other way of successfully luring the dollar without some semblance of quid pro quo for their money. But there is talk of another society vaudeville show in the fall, which will be on an immense and scintillating scale if it comes off. Society has taken to private theatricals with feverish zest, hasn't it? There are at least half a dozen smart amateur clubs now and quite a little competition for the talented ones. I hear that that handsome fertilizer hero, Pat Thornton—fancy an Adonis like that being in the fertilizer business!—is being much sought after in consideration of his life-like presentation of the husband's friend who declined to steal [illegible] husband's wife notwithstanding considerable temptation and opportunity. He certainly has "stage presence"—and it is quite as masculine a game as bridge anyway.

Such a jolly crowd is going up to Del Monte for the golf tournament September 4, and if the tennis one is held there as they are trying to arrange, pretty well the whole of our sporting section of society will be concentrated up there during September. Just a score from Santa Monica. Mary Browne is staying down there now—quite a tennis community. She has grown so pretty and dresses so much more sympathetically—indeed she even bosses the other girls in the matter of clothes now and takes firm stand against certain unbecoming styles. It isn't usual for a national tennis champion to shine sartorially, you know. May Bundy never makes the most of herself by a long way—she would be one of our reigning beauties if she did. Her two babies are gems of infantile loveliness—one of the best bits of evidence for the [illegible] they have ever had.

Fancy our irrepressible bachelor, Y. [illegible]tt beating Dr. Spinks in the tournament. It is positively his first offense as a golf star, although he has long shone as a society bachelar par excellence. It was really funny because he gave a dinner party the night before and stood the President's Cup in the middle of the table, making a fine bluff that it was already his. And he bluffed so well that poor Dr. Spinks shrivelled up with depression and hopelessness. Just shows what can be accomplished with a magnificent manner.

So long, dear,

yours lovingly,
BETTY.

THE WEEK.

PARTIES, RECEPTIONS, DINNERS, WEDDINGS AND THE LIKE.

SMART society is leaving the Nightless Lane behind and seeking its motor, its mountain hammock, its yacht.

Some of the most sought-after members aren't gregarious this year, they are seeking the quiet of distant mountain resorts; some are for the nonce going in for the extreme of the simple life and taking the motor trips across, through and up and down the country, with an alluring exposition at either end of the journey.

Indeed the trend is strongly in this direction; for the year social has been marked by its strenuosity, with all the visitors to be wined and dined. Milady's own inclinations have hung mid-air until now.

Of course, those who have summer cottages will occupy them, but nearly everybody is planning for a quiet few months ere the winter season starts in with fresh vigor. Only the younger set are going in for gayety, principally in the way of dancing.

By the middle of August the exodus will have been complete. The blinds will be down in all the palatial residences, cobwebs will gather in the garages and brown holland will drape the furniture like mourning for the gay season that was so reluctant to die.

The society of the West is like this; its votaries prefer family gatherings in seaside cottages and mountain camps to foregatherings in the big seaside hotels.

As the summer season wanes into early fall, still more people are being attracted to the delights of "expositioning."

Nearly everybody one meets is either just going or returned.

Mr. and Mrs. Emory C. Brace, who reside at No. 5456 Hampton Court, were in San Francisco for last week, going later to the Yosemite for two weeks' camping. Mrs. Brace is actively interested in club life, being a member of the Friday Morning Club and one of the organizers of the Dickens Fellowship.

Mrs. Alexander Campbell has just returned from the north, after several months' visit in San Francisco and Oakland. She was the guest of honor at many social affairs.

The James Tabor Fitzgeralds also have motored up north, and taken an attractive apartment for a month or six weeks. They are to tour to Lake Tahoe and scenic places of worth.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hervey Pettingill are also north for a few weeks, Mr. Pettingill being a delegate to the Portland congress of the Sons of the American Revolution. He attended the International Congress of Genealogy in the exposition city en route, as a delegate from the Society for the Preservation of New England Antiquities.

The Willis H. Booths have been north for several weeks, Mrs. Booth and son Ferris staying on as guests of Mrs. E. Hildreth, her sister, and who was entertained here for several weeks previous to their departure. Mrs. Hildreth is a prominent woman in the college life around the bay, and known for her philanthropies.

Old Father Neptune sways his sceptre tellingly, these days, and the beach resorts are at their gayest. And so with the mountains. The beckoning sea and the mellow warmth of the pine-fragranted mountain resorts are causing society to flit and scurry in countless machineloads to the joyousness of midsummer's out of doors. They are also going by boat and by train, each week-end witnessing an exodus.

Midsummer glories are ours!

The Leo Chandlers, with Dan and Tommy, and Mrs. Dan McFarland are enjoying life at Santa Monica. The J. B. Winstons, with the Misses Caroline and Marguerita, are to spend much of their summer at the same resort.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Avery McCarthy and the two boys, E. Avery, Jr., and James Howard McCarthy, have closed their town house and gone to their Redondo Beach home, where they are dispensing hospitality al fresco with abandon.

The Paul Shoups are also occupying a cottage on the Esplanade at Redondo Beach, and mean to divide their time at the fairs.

Other prominent summer residenters at Redondo Beach are Mrs. George Wilshire and her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wolcott, who upon their recent return from San Francisco flitted away almost instanter to their summer home.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Montague Ward (Margaret McGaffey) went long ago to San Pedro to join Mrs. Ward's parents, all going later to San Francisco.

The G. Allan Hancocks, Bertram and Rosemary, are living temporarily during their stay north at Stratford Court, San Francisco.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Saurret have planned a trip to San Francisco for this month, sailing for Honolulu ere their return.

The Dean Masons also have planned their summer, to be spent in Del Monte and San Francisco, with perhaps the northern resorts to be included in their itinerary.

The Harry Chandlers are at Balboa, where they are enjoying swimming and outdoor life. The girls are fine swimmers, and the quiet bay offers ample opportunity for water sports.

Mr. and Mrs. Sydney I. Wailes and their adorable little daughter are at Santa Monica, and near-by are the Eltinge Browns.

All the Bannings plan to spend much time at Avalon, as will many of the prominent society folk, who find the Island an ideal yachting trip.

Long Beach offers much in the way of summer enjoyment, and the Virginia Hotel was just about the liveliest place during the recent tennis tournament. Social features a-plenty were introduced by W. P. Nestle, the affable man of affairs, a tennis dance being held on the courts last Wednesday night, a plunge party causing merriment Thursday evening, a card party the following night and the week's festivities coming to a brilliant close with a ball in the gold salon.

These Saturday night dances are becoming the mecca for many town people who motor down purposely to enjoy them. The William J. Dorans of Harvard boulevard entertained dinner guests there last night, as well as the week previous, Miss Dorothy Williams having over a hundred at that time, as well.

Among those who participated in the tennis tournament were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas C. Bundy, Miss Mary Browne, Miss Florence Sutton, Miss Florence Ackerman, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pattee of Riverside, Mrs. Avery of Covina, Miss Buchanan of San Antonio, Mr. and Mrs. Kingsley McComber, Miss Pinita Drake, Mrs. Jean Drake, the Scott party from St. Louis, Mrs. H. F. Frank, Mr. and Mrs. Davis, Miss Merle Hanna, Mrs. Harris, and Messrs. Clifford Herd, Earl Weller, Simson Sinsabaugh and Elia Fottrell of San Francisco.

Miss Leah Russell who has been a guest at the hotel for a month is going to San Francisco soon. Miss Russell has lived abroad for many years and is a linguist of exceptional ability, having spent much time in the translation of French and Italian works.

At Huntington Lodge.

The high Sierras of the Fresno district are this year the vacation goal of many persons prominent in Southern California society, who are deserting their regular haunts on the coast for the mountains and streams at Huntington Lake.

Before the middle of August Huntington Lake Lodge will be filled with members of the Los Angeles social set, who are glad for the first opportunity to visit the new San Joaquin resort.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Griffith, leaders of the Los Angeles Country Club set through Mr. Griffith's presidency of that organization, left Los Angeles last night for Huntington Lake, in company with Mrs. William E. Dunn, Mrs. Granville MacGowan and Miss Eleanor MacGowan.

From the Pasadena set goes the Frank Dales, Mrs. C. M. Kellogg and the D. D. Morgans, while Charles H. Lippincott of Hollywood, with Mrs. Lippincott, Gardener Lippincott and daughters will take the northern trip within ten days.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Groenendyke, Mr. and Mrs. William Bayly and Mr. and Mrs. William Bayly, Jr., and the Keith Spauldings have already returned from the North.

W. H. Holabird, Harry Chandler and O. F. Brant leave Los Angeles tonight for a ten-days fishing trip in the Huntington Lake basin, while Clarence Drown, vice-president of the Orpheum circuit, will "head a northbound party within a few days.

H. R. Noack and sons and J. J. Reed of the San Francisco Bohemian Club also will join the party at the lake.

From the San Joaquin Valley are the Francis Sayres of Madera and a party headed by George Roeding of Fresno. In this party is also John G. Johnson and family of San Francisco, while a party that is planning an extensive trip deep into the mountains from the lake consists of Dr. Harry Craycroft, Dr. Trowbridge, George P. Beveridge and Prescott and Frank Lymann.

Trailing Worthy Project.

A project of notable interest to a large local colony of Eastern Society folk and to the horsemen and horsewomen of Los Angeles is that which has been put under way by the Boots and Saddles Club, an organization formed of a group of enthusiastic horse lovers residing at the Bryson.

The plan is to be worked out in ities for a esmall appropriation to build and maintain a bridle path paralleling Wilshire boulevard in its outlying section and to connect it by this means with the excellent systems of bridle paths which are now a feature of Griffith Park.

In the view of local riders, the chief handicap to the enjoyment here of the sport which has made New York's Central Park famous is the fact that it is next to impossible to ride on our present motor-congested boulevards. Given proper facilities by which equestrians can reach Griffith Park from the fashionable quarters of the city it is argued that a great attraction will be added, at comparatively slight cost, to our already long list of popular outdoor sports—one which will insure the permanent residence here of a considerable number of wealthy and influential people whose only objection to Los Angeles now is its lack of opportunity for enjoying their favorite pastime.

The plan is to be worked out in detail and, with an expert estimate of the cost involved, will be presented to the Council at an early date. Among those sponsoring it are Mrs. Sheldon Ballinger, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Haggarty, Mrs. James Haggarty, Mrs. Lee Perry Kauil, Mrs. Frank S. Wise, Mrs. M. C. Levy, Miss Henrietta Olney, Mrs. John Edgar Maurer, Paul Maurer and William H. Millspaugh.

The Rands Leaving Shortly.

Mrs. Charles Wellington Rand, than whom there is no more stunning society woman in the city, with her cultured young debutante daughter, Miss Lilian, have in prospect some delightful plans for travel and enjoyment. They are leaving the last day of August for San Francisco, where they contemplate spending the month of September—expositioning for the most part. October 1; they will go on East to Washington, D. C., New York, Boston, Philadelphia and other important centers, where they will answer the dictates of their own wishes most happily as regards the time of their stay.

During the interim they are dividing their time between their Wilshire boulevard residence and the Rand rancho, the latter occupying a beautiful site south of the West Adams district and midway between the city and beaches. They have a most attractive ivy-colored old English manor-house—Loma Lodge—at the rancho, surrounded by forty acres of sightly land, in which they are taking special delight in developing into a veritable park. The landscape gardener has included some unusual features in his extensive plans of beautification.

In the past, the Rands have spent many seasons abroad. Mrs. Rand is a brilliant harpist, fond of good literature and possesses the graces that make for a perfect hostess, her functions being among the prettiest recorded on society's calendar.

Mrs. and Miss Rand were among the twelve guests who on Tuesday were entertained by Miss Helen Mathewson of No. 569 Ardmore at luncheon, honoring Mrs. Carlton Wisebrough of New York who before her marriage was Miss Frank Leslie of the noted literary family. Mr. Wisebrough and his cultured wife, who are old-time friends of the hostess, were her house guests for a fortnight, concluding their stay Tuesday night.

Miss Mathewson chose old-fashioned cornflowers, white Marguerites and maidenhair fronds for her exquisitely beautiful board, the central floral mound being accentuated by the same flowers artistically arranged in individual Dresden holders, garlanded from them to the place cards.

Off to the Mountains.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick A. Jungquist motored Friday to Idyllwild, their beautiful mountain home, to spend three or four weeks. They will go to San Francisco for the exposition before their return, and also go on to San Diego.

Dr. L. Weber and his daughter, Miss Agnes, who are Mrs. Jungquist's father and sister, are going North to join them on Tuesday.

Engagement Announced.

Mr. and Mrs. John S. Valley, No. 2452 South Flower street, announce the engagement of their daughter Miss Maria, to Edward R. Bowen.

Los Angeles Country Club.

Wednesday evening was especially gay at the Los Angeles Country Club, where two large dinners were being given for the younger set.

Miss Amy Busch had eighteen guests in compliment to her beautiful young house guest, Miss Dorothea Stephens of Moline, Ill., a debutante. A large rustic basket filled with vari-toned dahlias was used decoratively for the handsomely appointed board, and following the elaborate menu, dancing was enjoyed.

Miss Daphne Drake also entertained guests, who for the most part were members of the Sartori-Wallace wedding party. Coreopsis was used for her table in artistic arrangement.

Miss Stephens is the niece of Mrs. Charles H. Lippincott, who entertained for her on Wednesday at an unusually pretty luncheon all in delicate pink tones. Sweet peas and Gypsophila executed an effective decoration, with pink place cards. There were covers for eight.

The young ladies have informal picnics and luncheons and dancing parties galore to take up every moment of their time, and many more are in prospect.

For the Younger Buds.

Two beautiful young girls not yet out, the Misses Ruth Hoyt of Pasadena and her house guest, Miss Blanche Cutrer, of Memphis, furnished the motif for a merry dancing party Tuesday evening, given by Mr. and Mrs. Dean Mason.

The younger college set, who will soon be returning to their various schools after a summer full to overflowing of gayety, together with the debutantes and their escorts to the number of sixty, shared in the delightful hospitality of the Masons. The personnel danced in the music-room, just off the lovely lanai—an enchanting rendezvous between dances.

Supper was served buffet, and the music was par excellent.

The interior of the home was converted into a floral bower for the pretty event.

Mrs. Strong Hostess.

At a board resplendent with crystal and centered in richly colored flowers, Mrs. H. W. R. Strong presided over a beautifully appointed high tea yesterday afternoon at the Alexandria, honoring Mrs. John W. Dwight of Washington, D. C. The charming event was stamped by its informality, and covers were placed for a dozen guests.

Motor to San Diego.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell McDonald Taylor, accompanied by their house guests, Dr. and Mrs. David Braden Kyle of Philadelphia, left Friday morning for Coronado Hotel and the San Diego Exposition, motoring down. They are to only spend the week-end, planning to return home on the morrow.

Will Leave This Week.

Concluding a happy visit in the parental Emil Bilharz home at Sunset and Fairfax boulevards, Hollywood, Miss Harriet Bilharz will leave this week for San Francisco, en route to her home in Iowa. Miss Bilharz is a prominent banker in Iowa, and was in Germany with her parents at the time war was declared. She has been here less than a month.

For Interesting Visitors.

Miss Margaret W. Brown of the Huntley has during the past week contributed two pleasant 5 o'clock teas to the social calendar, with several distinguished visitors the motif of entertainment.

Tuesday, Miss Brown honored Miss Alice Tyler, director of the Western Reserve University Library School of Cleveland, O., and formerly secretary of the Iowa Library Commission, together with Mrs. Elizabeth Clay Pole Earle of Indiana, prominent in the General Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. Warren Garst, wife of ex-Governor Garst of Iowa; Mrs. T. J. Fletcher and Mrs. Gertrude R. Nash, both former presidents of the Iowa State Federation of Women's Clubs and prominently identified in General Federation work—the list being supplemented by many other brilliant ladies of the city.

Yesterday afternoon Miss Brown gave a second pleasant function, Miss Tyler and Miss Ethel Bartholomew sharing the pretty social courtesy. Miss Bartholomew is editor of an architectural magazine in Indiana, and is an unusually clever woman.

Both teas were informal in nature, the tea tables being decked in garden flowers.

Luncheon by the Sea.

In a tile-floored, airily-curtained room built on the beach, Mrs. Charles Sumner Kent, who is occupying a pretty summer cottage midway between Venice and Playa del Rey, gave a number of friends added delight by entertaining at luncheon on Tuesday—one of a series of summer entertainments which this well-known hostess is extending most informally while temporarily ensconced by the ocean.

Mrs. L. M. Turner was the honoree. Following the elaborate menu, the coterie of ladies played auction or visited as their fancy dictated.

Mrs. Pennybacker Honored.

On Tuesday evening, Dr. and Mrs. Josiah Evans Cowles of West Adams street entertained dinner guests, complimentary to Mrs. Percy V. Pennybacker, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs. Others attending were Miss Ruth Pennybacker, Miss McClellan of Richmond, Va., and a classmate of Miss Pennybacker at Vassar, Bonner Pennybacker, Mrs. Clara Bryant Heywood and Dr. Sidney L. Gulich. The latter is lecturer of the Imperial University at Tokio and professor of Boshisha in Kioto, who is in America for a short time in the interest of peace, having just issued a book upon "Fighting for Peace," a few copies of which arrived in Los Angeles last week. He is soon returning to the Orient.

Holywell-Bartholomew.

The West Adams Street Presbyterian Church was the scene of a quiet though pretty wedding at high noon Thursday, when Miss Olive Lorraine Holywell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Clay Holywell of this city and grand-daughter of the late Thomas Holywell, M.D., of Peterborough, Ontario, Can., became the bride of Dr. George Harbert Bartholomew, son of Mrs. Hattie Bartholomew, also of Los Angeles. The Rev. U. H. Fishburn officiated, in the presence of relatives and immediate friends only. The bride was given into the keeping of the bridegroom at the altar by her father.

Following a wedding breakfast at the parental Holywell home, the couple left for an extended wedding trip. Dr. and Mrs. Bartholomew will be at home to their many friends after September 1 at No. 3207 Roseview avenue.

Going East.

Miss E. H. Terrill and Mrs. D. B. Biggs are leaving Wednesday for Newport, R. I., for a four weeks' sojourn.

Prominent Missourians Here.

Mr. and Mrs. I. D. Reynolds, Miss Lotta Baily and Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Spalding, all of Kansas City, are in the city, guests of the Alexandria. The three ladies are sisters, and all are prominent in the social or business life of their home city. Mr. Spalding is Fire and Water Commissioner. The party will visit both expositions and tour the State.

The Kohlers to Have Guests.

Mrs. Frederick Washington Kohler of No. 1821 North Normandie has just returned from Chicago, where she was much entertained by friends.

This popular matron and her husband are soon to have for house guests Mr. and Mrs. E. Warren Everett of Chicago, who are coming via the Panama Canal within perhaps a fortnight. They will motor to San Diego to meet them, and after thoroughly touring the Southland, the four will go on to San Francisco.

To the Country.

Southern Days Recalled.

Redolent magnolias and sweet honeysuckle permeated the air for the delightful Southern Day, held by the Los Angeles Chapter, Daughters of the Confederacy, on Wednesday afternoon at the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. C. Q. Stanton, No. 448 Andrews boulevard—a home in which are enshrined art treasures and heirlooms galore from the Old Dominion, and fit to center so charming an event.

The spacious rooms and pretty garden were filled with prominent society and club women and gentlemen—for the masculine contingent generously patronized the happy affair—a most important happening on the social register of the week.

A beautiful tribute was paid to old-time memories and dear old "Mammy," given by these Southern ladies of "Quality." Mrs. Stanton opened the programme with "Reminiscences of Old Black Mammy," given in her own inimitable way, with a catch in her voice and a tear in her eye as she remembered her own old Mammy's "Pore Li'l Lamb." Mrs. Emma Porter Makinson followed with a beautiful "Lullaby," and gave as an encore "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms." Capt. Thos. Davis of San Diego Military Academy gave some of Gov. "Bob" Taylor's darky dialect stories; Mrs. Minna Hance proved her leadership by winning everyone in the audience to join with her in the chorus to "Old Folks at Home." She responded to an encore by singing one of Mrs. John C. McCoy's songs. Then came A. C. Dessendorf's clever impersonations of "Ol' Mammy" and the carriage horses of ol' Missus, "whose foot ain't never got acquainted with the groun'." Mrs. John C. McCoy was called to the stage to share the applause given her compositions as sung by Mrs. Stanley Ross Fisher. Mrs. Fisher also gave an encore. Mrs. Grantland S. Long read a "Good-by to Mammy." Mrs. Makinson demonstrated her ability as a versatile artist by closing the programme playing her own accompaniment on the banjo with "Dat Watermilion Smiling on the Vine," and as an encore "Dem Golden Shoes."

The last number was heard out in the garden where a real Uncle Remus and all his pickaninnies sang camp meeting songs, and so delighted the visitors that only lengthening shadows sent them home. Refreshments were served by a Mammy in a white cap of other days.

Mrs. W. I. Hollingsworth and Mrs. Bayless F. Shepherd were at the door in colonial costumes and powdered wigs. They were assisted by Miss Marie McCoy and Miss Byrd Wallis. Other hostesses were the chapter president, Mrs. Thomas Jefferson Douglass, and the members of the committee, Mrs. Mary L. Koyer, Mrs. Long, Mrs. Makinson and Mrs. Samuel Cary Dunlap.

The perfect afternoon was given for the benefit of the organization's philanthropic work, and swelled the treasury $80.75.

Christopher's Quality Ice Cream

THE keeping qualities of ice cream are very important both from an esthetic as well as hygienic standpoint. Christopher's quality ice cream is not only thoroughly frozen but is specially hardened under a low temperature to give it the greatest possible keeping qualities. This is particularly true of our Neapolitan ice cream bricks, which will keep hard for an hour after being taken from the ice.

Society has been enjoying many charming dinners and dances and other gaieties well in keeping with the golden glow of the perfect summer days. One of the most delightful of recent affairs was the entertainment of the Merry-Go-Round club at the home of Dr. and Mrs. R. Parmelee on South Second street. The members of the delightful social club were asked to dinner and in the midst of perfect appointments and attractive decorations an excellent menu was enjoyed by the guests. BEAUTY DOCTOR TELLS SECRET

Detroit Beauty Doctor Gives Sample Recipe to Darken Gray Hair and Promote Its Growth.

Miss Alice Whitney, a well-known beauty doctor of Detroit, Mich., recently gave out the following statement: "Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home, at very little cost, that will darken gray hair, promote its growth and make it soft and glossy. To a half pint of water add 1 oz. of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ oz. of glycerine. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It is also fine to promote the growth of the hair, relieve itching and scalp disease, and is excellent for dandruff and falling hair."

San Gabriel.

IN THE "noisy stillness" of the summer air, filled with the hum of birds and the drone of bees, the quaint beauty of the old pueblo city has had its luring call unanswered by many of the town-tired ones, who have sought its grateful informal joys as a relief from the more strenuous social pursuits of city life. One of the most delightful of the week's diversions was the quite informal meeting of the members of the San Gabriel Woman's Club at the home of Miss Maude Summers. Taking as the timely topic for discussion the "Birds of California and Their Habits," the members of the organization and their friends enjoyed a delightful and profitable afternoon at the home of the gracious hostess. At the conclusion of the programme, which was one of rare worth, cooling and attractive refreshments were served by the Miss Summers.

The afternoon was one of the happiest and most profitable of the many meetings of the busy organization and Mrs. Small's attention to her guests made the occasion one of unusual pleasure for all.

Delighted with Southern California and its many charming environs is Professor Ira Buell of Beloit, Wis., who was visiting with friends on San Marco street last week. Among the professor's pleasures was the Mission Play which he pronounced the most wonderful pageant he had ever seen.

The young folks left early in the week and will not return until time to take up their books in the fall.

Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Chandler have returned from a pleasant week-end visit at Venice, where they were happily domiciled as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Chandler, and Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Murray, enjoying all of the pleasing diversions that the gay beach resort offers to the visitor on its shores.

Azusa.

RUSTIC retreats, verdant nooks where the air is filled with the heavy scent of the pungent pines, and the breeze carries in its wake the music of the feathered songsters of the woodland, have been the favored spots for the pleasant happenings of the socially inclined during the desultory days of July. Informal dinners and luncheons with the afternoon filled with conversation and needlework have been the chief delights of those who have been bidden to many of the hospitable homes of the community. One of the recent delightful social courtesies was extended by Mrs. W. R. Powell, who entertained the members of the Embroidery Club at her home on Wednesday afternoon. The congenial coterie of guests assembled on the spacious porch of the Powell home and in the coolness of the shadows enjoyed an informal hour or two of conversation while innumerable stitches were woven into the dainty bits of needlecraft, which the members of the club had brought with them. Later a delicious luncheon was served adding to the pleasure of the day.

Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Heth, accompanied by the members of their family and by Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Gates and family, have gone to Camp Heth for an outing. Evans and their daughter, Miss Francis, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Heth at a pleasantly arranged 1 o'clock dinner.

One of the most delightful affairs of the month was the "Chair Tea" given by the Woman's Club House last Tuesday afternoon. About fifty ladies, members of the organization and their friends, spent the afternoon most delightfully in the pleasant environ of the charmingly cool and picturesque bungalow, in merry conversation and needlework, and at the conclusion of

TODAY'S BEAUTY HINTS

To whiten and beautify the complexion permanently we have found no better preparation than a lotion made by dissolving four ounces of spurmax in one-half pint hot water, then adding two teaspoonfuls glycerin. This removes any pimples, shiny, muddy or sallow appearance, and will make anyone's skin clear, smooth and velvety. It does not show or rub off like powder; in fact, it seems a part of the skin; and for removing tan and freckles is unequaled.

It is necessary to shampoo more frequently in the warmer weather because of excessive dust and the fact that the head perspires more and is usually more exposed to the weather. The easiest-to-use and quickest-drying shampoo that we can recommend to our readers can be prepared very cheaply by dissolving a teaspoonful of canthrox, obtained from your druggist, in a cup of hot water. This rubbed into the scalp creates a thick lather, soothing and cooling in its action, and very beneficial to scalp and hair. After rinsing the scalp is fresh and clean and the hair dries quickly and evenly and takes on a bright luster and soft fluffiness that makes it seem very heavy.

THE great out-of-doors, beautiful in its garments of green and riotous colors and fragrant with the odors of many flowers, has been the setting of many informal gatherings as July sings in space. The picturesque grounds of the Herbert Alleman home, in Willowbrook avenue, was the scene Thursday of one of these brilliant out door affairs of the month. Quantities of blooming flowers, strings of varicolored lights, and red bells swinging in the trees, added to the natural beauty, and playing and eating under the stars and crescent moon proved most enjoyable to a large coterie of friends invited for the celebration of a triple birthday shared by Mrs. Alleman's sister, Miss Eurena Carey, and the Misses Fern and Vern Brinkerhoff. Large jardiniers and baskets of Shasta daisies and pepper foliage made the rooms of reception attractive and Japanese lanterns were hung about the veranda. The birthday feast with its cake and candles—eleven pink ones arranged on the outer edge and a larger white candle in the center of the cake, followed an hour or two of frolics in the bright moon light and the free indulgence of innocent indoor sports. A musical programme, consisting chiefly of pianola selections, was enjoyed. Another of the week's pleasant diversions and one that was acclaimed with glee by the younger element was the ice cream social, presided over and arranged by Mrs. C. Cluett recently. The affair was one of the most delightful and was largely attended.

BROKE OUT IN SMALL PIMPLES

Distressing Sensation. So Bad Could Hardly Endure It.

HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"My family was all troubled with an itching which broke out in small pimples and caused a distressing sensation. The pimples were in a very small festered spot and itched until one could not resist scratching, and when scratched they caused a large sore eruption. The clothing irritated the eruption and they finally became so bad that we could hardly endure it.

"Then we bought some Cuticura Soap and Ointment. In one week the itching was stopped and in less than a month we were healed." (Signed) Mrs. Chas. Rasmussen, Box 32, Downey, Idaho, Feb. 1, 1915.

The men were invited to enjoy the dinner spread on the tables under the pepper trees at 6 o'clock. In the afternoon the ladies had a business meeting and heard reports from the various sections. In the evening a short programme was given by members of the union.

The ladies of the First Baptist Church have decided that they will not give up the missionary meetings altogether this summer, but will meet once a month at the homes of members of the societies. Mrs. F. B. Matthews was the hostess at the last meeting. "Negroes of the South" was the topic, and Mrs. Sawyer was the leader. Mrs. Moberley, Mrs. A. E. Frost, Mrs. J. E. Williams and Mrs. Truesdall had papers. Others talked informally about the conditions there.

Mrs. J. J. Suess and daughter, Miss Dorothy, have gone to Catalina Island to spend a month. Miss Grace Callahan has gone to the beaches for a month. Dr. and Mrs. W. B. Craig have left for Colorado, where they will spend several weeks. Mrs. John Bowley and daughter, Miss Mabel Duerst, and D. Davenport of Chicago have returned from a stay at Forest Home in Mill Creek Canyon. Prof. and Mrs. H. C. Emm are spending their vacation in the mountains. Mr. and Mrs. Edward Allen are with Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Whitney at Kamp Kill Kare in Mill Creek Canyon. Mrs. George Chittenden and daughter, who have been visiting here from Meridian, Ct., have gone to Los Angeles and the beaches before going to the exposition at San Francisco. Mrs. Mamie Wood has returned from a trip to Utah, visiting the exposition at San Francisco on the way back. Mrs. N. A. Johnson has returned to her home at Long Beach after being the guest of Mrs. I. E. Mills. The Misses Lena Blanche, Madie and Jessie Dague, and Miss Marie Carroll have returned from San Francisco, where they spent two weeks at the exposition. Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Olmstead and family have left in their automobile for Middletown to spend the summer. A. G. Hubbard and family have gone to Big Bear Valley for a few weeks. U. F. Lewis and family have left for San Francisco by automobile.

La Habra.

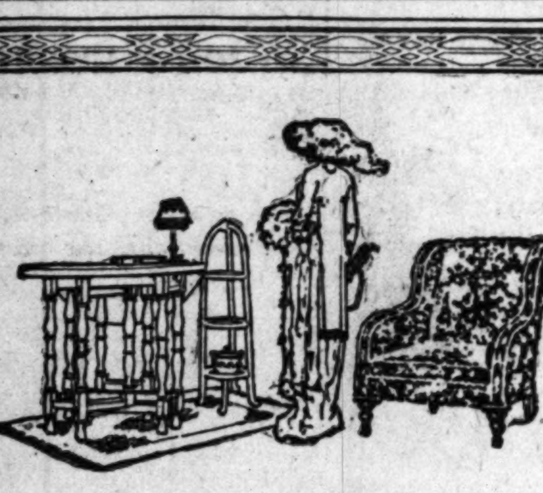
MRS. C. H. HART of Jasmine, formerly of La Habra, is visiting old friends and will remain a fortnight with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Nunemaker of East Whittier.

The summer guests at the hospitable Wester home on Idaho street have departed after a six-weeks' stay, Mrs. Daisy Olmstead, nee Wester, to her home in Idaho, and Mrs. W. F. Bowling, a niece, to Tennessee. Miss Mary Wester of Chattanooga, Tenn., will be the next arrival.

This is the year of long-distance travelers, and everyone appears to be entertaining visitors or going to the fairs. W. L. Rhodes and family devoted several days this week to the San Diego exposition.

Among those who ventured into the stream of motor traffic flowing south were Mr. and Mrs. McGill and son. They spent a few days at Balboa, returning Sunday.

Tuesday afternoon Mrs. J. G. Launer entertained members of the Embroidery Club at her home on



A Los Angeles Showplace
That Your Guests Will Greatly Enjoy

HUNDREDS of travelers make it a special point each season to visit the interesting display at the California Furniture Company. Because of its distinctively different character it has become known far and wide as one of the showplaces of Los Angeles.

The California Furniture Company is more than just a "furniture store." It is a depository of Art's most beautiful and practical offerings in fine furniture and home furnishing accessories—gathered personally in the leading shops of the country.

You will feel proud for having brought your friends; and they will be most welcome whether they buy or not.

Should they, however—like numerous others—wish to make for themselves or for someone else back home a selection from this distinctive display, delivery to Eastern and Middle Western points will be made at the same prices as obtain here.

By all means see the gift section on the mezzanine floor—one of the most unusual gift offerings in the West. It contains hundreds of home furnishing accessories of a class not carried by most other stores at all, yet priced from as little as a dollar or two up.

The "California's" windows always mirror the season's newest thoughts.

Lime Starvation Causes Tuberculosis

In the Medical Record (New York) of December 18, 1909, Dr. John F. Russell says: "The condition which is recognized as preceding the active development of tuberculosis in the adult may be considered as due to lime starvation. Among inorganic substances lime salts appear to be of special physiological importance, but if the salts are not in organic combination, it is difficult to suppose that the cells can appropriate them for food.

Years of widespread use confirm our belief that the success of Eckman's Alterative in tuberculosis is due largely to its content of lime, in such combination with other valuable ingredients as to be easily appropriated by the cells.

Doubtless this has had much to do with the results in many cases which appear to have yielded to it. As it contains no opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs, it is safe to try. Your druggist has it or will get it.

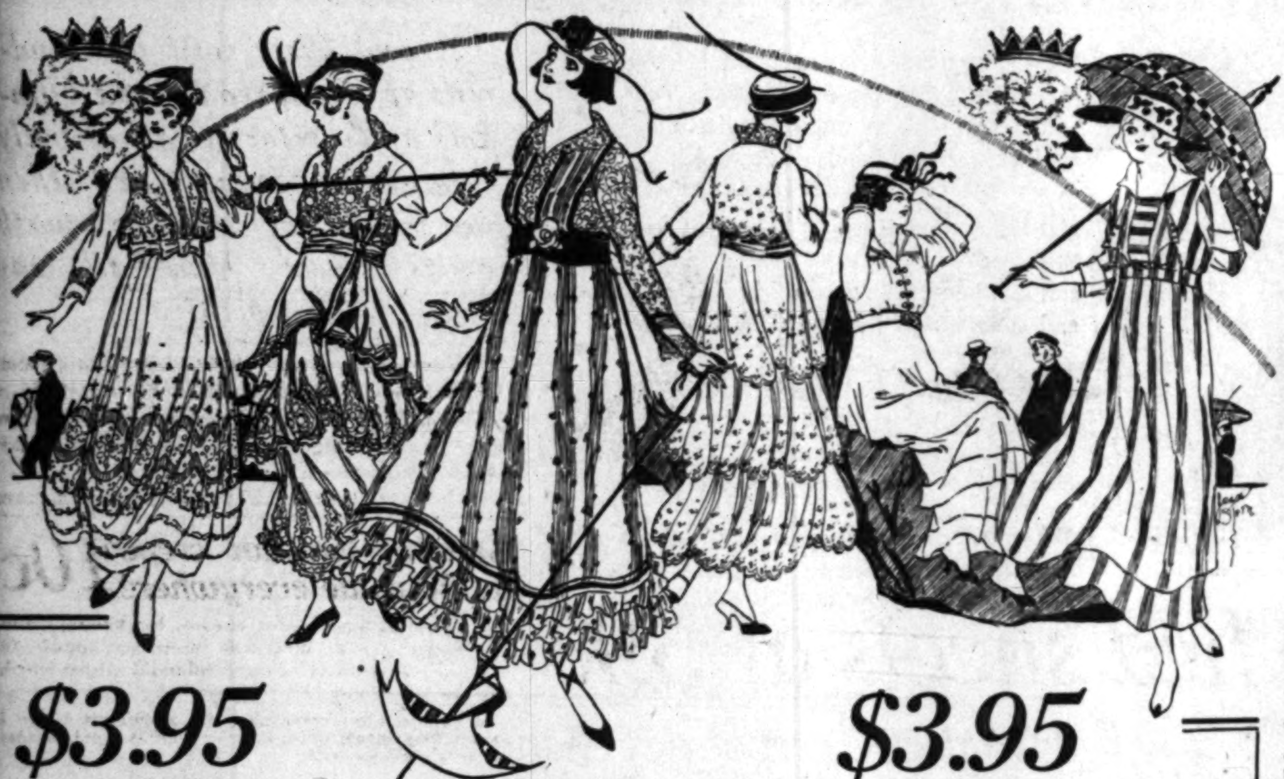
New Autumn hats—a regular find—$3.95



$3.95 $3.95

King Cotton said that just because there was no Cotton goods in the Millinery department was no reason at all for their not having a record day. And so he went scouring around with the great millinery houses of the country in search of values that would be in keeping with his great Cotton Goods offers.

The pictures at the right tell you the story of how he succeeded. There are about a hundred other hats that are equally as unusual as these.

No one would! And it's a mystery to us how he found them to sell at such a price. Why, do you know that these dresses are so truly remarkable that we've had to take dozens and dozens of dresses out of regular stocks and mark them down to $3.95 because they were practically the same kind of dresses that came in King Cotton's special purchase.

There are dresses of dainty voiles—of embroidered Swisses—of crashes and of linens—there are dresses in pure, snowy white—there are some in solid colors and there are others in very daintily tinted patterns. They are dresses the like of which we have never had before—dresses that should start all Los Angeles talking—

Undermuslins—a wonder purchase and sale

It has been no easy task to choose the best ones of all the thousands of limericks sent in—but you'll agree that this is a good one!

Today's Prize winning Limerick

King Cotton once whistled a tune,
And laughed, as he said, "Pretty soon
I'll have such a sale
That I'll utterly fail
To count all my coin for a moon."

Miss Maud Raynes,
417 South Boylston Street.

Check of $2.00 has today been mailed to the author

Another prize winning limerick is printed in another paper today—others will follow in our daily advertisements—watch for them!

300 of these girls' $1.25 middies at . . . 63c

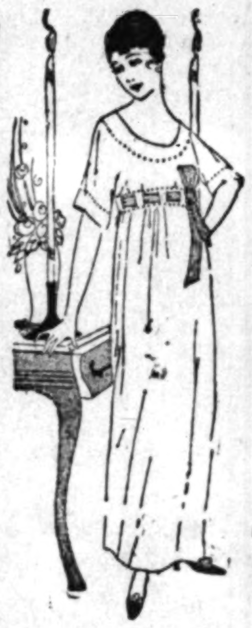
When they came we marked them 79c and 98c and we thought we were marking them extremely low at that, but King Cotton said that every department has got to come forward with a big sales total—and so he's reduced them to 63c.

And they should melt away like snow before a Summer sun.

There are six styles—some of them are of heavy twill—others of Jene cloth—many of them are trimmed with fast colored galatea—there's a full range of sizes 6 years to women's size 44.

$1.50 novelty middies $1.19

There are twelve different styles of twill, of galatea and of mercerized poplin—those of poplin are made with sailor collars and sport ties of corded silk—another particularly pleasing model is finished with Blazer striping in black and white. Fourth Floor—Jacoby's.



King Cotton knew that you would expect out of the ordinary values in undermuslins—and so he went hunting the country over for values that would come up to your expectations. And to tell you that he found wonderful values is to tell you the story in very mild terms indeed—for he bought thousands and thousands of garments for a mere song—and he's going to sell them in a way that will make Los Angeles women fairly gasp with astonishment.

Below we are listing in a small way just a very few of the garments that will be included in this event—hundreds of others will be piled high in great snowy drifts in our windows today—and still hundreds more will be drifted on tables and counters on the 2nd floor Monday—

Need we tell you more to start you buying corsets at Jacoby's Monday morning? There are so many different models and so many different materials and in such a complete range of sizes that it will be quite as easy for you to choose a corset as tho you were buying from regular stocks.

Exquisite crepe de chene blouses that bring $3.45 to $5.00 ordinarily $2.89

No one but King Cotton would think of putting such a low price as $2.89 on such waists as these—but then we can't expect him to fully appreciate the value of things not cotton:

—But you'll not have to look twice to understand how really wonderful these waists are at $2.89—and how very conservative we've been in quoting them as $3.45 to $5 values.

Among these waists are some with long sleeves and some with short sleeves—some that are neatly hemstitched and some made with convertible collars—there are some in a pure snowy white—and others in a delicate flesh pink.

SOCIETY.

Central avenue. Although Christmas is some distance away, needles were very busy. Eight ladies were present, and after work was laid aside refreshments were served by the popular hostess.

Mrs. C. A. Goodell of Wisconsin, who is spending the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Hart, has made several enjoyable side trips, with more in prospect. With her mother, she recently visited C. H. Hart and wife of Jasmine, after which she continued north to see the fair and meet other relatives before returning.

Mrs. F. R. Aldrich induced her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Manning, to leave their summer quarters at Huntington Beach for a few days at the Aldrich home on Cypress street. They were escorted back again Wednesday by members of the family.

Santa Paula.

THIRTEEN of the 1915 senior class of the Santa Paula High School assembled at Glen Tavern Friday evening, and enjoyed a dinner party, followed by an evening at the theater. Reminiscences of high school days, recently closed, and, for many, college days, soon to begin, filled the time for conversation, which seemed, to the school friends, all too short.

Those responding to the invitations of Citrus Lodge, Fraternal Brotherhood, for Thursday evening's recital, were treated to a most enjoyable evening. Miss Araminta V. Schoch of Los Angeles appeared in a series of readings, and music was furnished by the Glen City Orchestra. After the recital, dancing was enjoyed. A number of guests from Fillmore and Ventura were in attendance.

Mrs. Lincoln Hall entertained at her beautiful valley home Thursday evening with a dancing party, in honor of eleven young ladies of Lincoln High School, Los Angeles, who have been camping in the canyon. The spacious veranda covered with climbing roses and hung with ferns made a delightful dancing parlor, and later, at a bon fire in the orchard, a wienie roast, and college songs, completed the evening.

Unique among social events of the week, was the children's costume party presided over by the Misses Jessie and Reta Balcom in their beautiful new home. The affair was a "ladies' dressup party," each guest appearing in costume, among those represented being the colonial dame, Dutch girls, Egyptian maidens, and nurses, and a novel feature was that every guest brought some article of refreshment appropriate to the character chosen. Mrs. Henry Balcom, mother of the young hostesses, served ice cream and other refreshments at the close of a merry evening. Cecil Brunner roses were effectively used in decorating the home.

Large bouquets of pink trumpet flower were used in beautifying the Eastern Star lodge room in the Masonic Hall, Tuesday evening, for the regular meeting. After the business session, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Foster were presented with a handsome set of silver spoons, in token of the esteem of their fellow-members. Music by Miss Hazel Clayton and readings by Miss Helen Hardison made up an enjoyable programme, which was followed by the serving of refreshments at tables effectively decorated with large baskets of red geraniums.

The members of the Wednesday Embroidery Club were charmingly entertained by Mrs. C. C. Teague Monday afternoon, there being several out-of-town guests invited, in addition to the club members. Among the guests were Miss Augusta La Kant of Chicago, Mrs. Bernard Ruggles of Buffalo, N. Y., Miss Shaw of Massachusetts, and Mrs. Anita Bates of South America. The afternoon's pleasures closed with the serving of delicious refreshments.

The Epworth League of the Methodist Church held their monthly business and social meeting Friday evening, when a merry time was spent in playing various games. Instrumental solos by Miss Lucy Smith and vocal solos by Miss Marion Richardson, added to the evening's enjoyment. Red and white, the league colors, were effectively used in decorating. Punch and cake were served during the evening.

Anaheim.

MRS. C. LACEY entertained the Pastime Card Club at her beautiful home south of town on Thursday afternoon, the Misses Florence and Hazel Lacey, assisting. Cards were enjoyed and the first prize was captured by Mrs. Fred Snyder, and Mrs. G. W. Sherwood won the second. Later in the afternoon dainty refreshments were served to the guests. Those present besides the hostess were Mrs. A. B. McCord, Mrs. G. W. Sherwood, Mrs. Fred Snyder of Fullerton, Mrs. W. L. Finney, Mrs. J. C. Callaway, Mrs. O. W. Clark, Mrs. Henry Tuffree, and her mother, Mrs. Normandy, Mrs. R. J. McFadden and Mrs. D. McClellan.

Mrs. R. B. Herman entertained with a 6-o'clock chicken dinner at her ranch home on North East street Wednesday evening. Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Craft of this city and Miss Senson of Bloomington, Ill., who is visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Craft, were the guests. An informal social evening was spent following the dinner.

Mrs. W. M. Chambers and daughter, Miss Olive, of the Miraflores ranch south of town, entertained in honor of Mrs. Chambers's mother, Mrs. A. Fenner, on Friday afternoon. Auction Bridge and Five Hundred formed the afternoon's entertainment. Delicious refreshments were served. The guests were Mrs. D. McLellan, Miss Nina McLellan, Mrs. A. Wolcott, Miss Wolcott, Mrs. A. B. McCord, Mrs. Edgar Hartung, Mrs. G. M. Simpson, Mrs. R. B. Herman, Mrs. O. W. Clark, Mrs. J. C. Callaway and Mrs. J. A. McCulloch.

The Girls' Friendly Society met Tuesday evening at the home of Miss Frieda Janss. The evening was spent pleasantly playing Rummy. Refreshments were served to the Misses Kathleen Loly, Helen Easton, Inez Elliott, Katherine Hiles and Lillian Bennerscheidt.

The Bumble Bee Buzz Club met with Mrs. Herzler at her ranch home on North East street on Monday afternoon. The house was decorated in pink roses and carnations with ferns. Thirty-six members enjoyed the afternoon with sewing and conversation. Cooling refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Miss Anita Herzler.

A dinner party was given in honor of Louise Elliott's fourteenth birthday anniversary at her home on Monday evening. The house was decorated in flowers and ferns. After the dinner the Misses Louise Elliott, Inez Elliott, Alice Ingram, Vivian Petermann, Edna Schlotter and Dorcas Neff composed a theater party.

On Wednesday evening the Helpers' Guild of the St. Michael's Episcopal Church gave a social at the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Carter on East Center street. Several Corona friends were present to meet a large number of the members. Cards furnished entertainment until a late hour, after which refreshments were served. Miss Mildred Carter sang a solo.

The Anaheim Band boys serenaded Mr. and Mrs. Ben Ter Best at their new home on Southwest street on Thursday evening. A number of selections were played for the newly-married couple, after which the band boys were invited in and entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Ter Best.

Colton.

AN engagement of the week to interest many friends was that of Miss Anna Doty and Jefferson Powell, the announcement being made informally by the bride-elect's mother, Mrs. Ida Doty, at a gathering of the Neighborhood Club Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Charles Craigmiles. The news of the betrothal comes as quite a surprise. No date has been announced for the wedding, but it is surmised that it is but a few weeks away and hence prenuptial attentions are being arranged by friends. Following their marriage the couple are to go to Sansom, Tex., the former home of the groom-to-be, the trip to be made overland by auto.

Complimentary to a group of relatives from Texas and Los Angeles, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Isbell entertained Sunday with a prettily appointed dinner party, inviting several additional guests to enjoy the occasion. Those for whom honor places were laid were Charles McDonald of Austin, Tex., Attorney-General of the Lone Star State; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Knox of Los Angeles and William Hammon of Riverside, others in the merry circle being, Mr. and Mrs. Privett of Long Beach, Mr. and Mrs. John Miller, Mrs. McKnox, Miss Thelma Isbell, Ralph Emery and the host and hostess.

A "measuring" party was the method used by the Christian Endeavor Society of the First Presbyterian Church to add to the pledge to the building fund, the affair being held on the adjoining lawns of the Araiza and Harry Potts homes Thursday evening. To every person who arrived the tape measure was applied, and for every foot they were tall 5 cents was demanded, with a penny for every inch over five feet. Games and refreshments constituted a large portion of the evening's entertainment for the many guests.

Wedding bells rang Tuesday in Los Angeles for Miss Margaret Smith, the pretty eighteen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Smith, and Ralph W. Roderick, who until a month ago was head baker at the San Bernardino County Hospital. Following the ceremony the young people returned to Colton for a visit at the home of the bride's parents, after which they are to go to San Fernando, where the groom has purchased a bakery. His people recently came out from Illinois and settled at Long Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. I. M. Knopsnyder, who are located at Seal Beach with their children for several months, entertained over the week end with a jolly house party. Their guests were Attorney and Mrs. Robert McHargue and little son of Colton, Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Rucker and Mrs. M. A. Shumate of Los Angeles, all former local residents, and Miss Clara Burgess of this city.

A distinguished visitor the past week was Dr. J. E. Wallace Walin of St. Louis, Mo., who stopped off here for a reunion with a cousin, J. F. Walin, en route to the San Diego and San Farncisco fairs where he is to hold clinics. Dr. Walin is a noted psychologist and is a graduate of Princeton and Johns Hopkins. At one time he was associated on the faculty of Princeton with President Wilson.

The Misses Jennie Mullen, Vivian and Winifred Arborn, Gretchen Ebert, Gertrude Brown, Daisy Mann and Thelma Muschewske form a bevy of girls who have established a cosy camp for a week in Lytle Creek Canyon below Glenn Ranch. Mrs. W. J. Arborn is chaperon.

Latest arrivals to join the relatives gathering at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Baldwin are Prof. and Mrs. Theodore Baldwin of Vici, Okla., the former being head of a school at Vici. The Baldwins have ten children scattered between California and Georgia, and they anticipate having the sons and daughters and the grandchildren all under the parental rooftree at one time later in the summer.

Claremont.

Calvin Sugg, Maurice Rockwell, Eugene Platt, Warren Powell, Alvin Hickox, David Maynard, Charles Vaile, Hillis Smith, Miles Allen, Fay Gillette, Halstead White, Dee DeLapp, Wayne Gardner, Charles Cooper and Paul Bentley.

Miss Elizabeth Wood and Misses Mabon are in Berkeley for two or three weeks stay.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Haskins and family of Brawley are visiting in Claremont at the home of Mrs. Willis Hoskins.

A very delightful reception at which a large number of the community were present was that held at the parish-house Tuesday evening in honor of the acting pastor and wife, Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Wark and three Pomona College alumni who leave soon for missionary fields—Miss Elva Henry '11, Dr. Augusta Lassen '06, and Mr. Lloyd Lorbeer '11. After a pleasant social hour a short programme was given. Dr. Lassen spoke of the work she is to take up in China as medical missionary and Mr. Lorbeer described his future work in India. Rev. Wark also gave a short talk and Miss Edith Hitchcock completed the evening's programme with several charming vocal solos.

Mrs. Cora Rutherford of Pomona, and Misses Gretchen Fitkin and Helen Powell enjoyed a few days outing at Camp Baldy last week.

Russell of Sausalito, Cal., who is Mrs. Jones's sister. The guests were Mmes. Hal May, Will D. Bender, Roy Pleasant, Frank Gline, Dean Starritt, John Goodchap, Frank McIntyre, I. M. Thompson, Harry Hayes, Frank Miller, A. L. Post, D. L. Taylor, Harry Rhinehart, J. R. Witter and F. E. Sargent.

Santa Ana.

THE Ross-street home of Superior Judge and Mrs. Z. B. West was the scene of a charming luncheon on Saturday, given by Miss Marguerite West in honor of Miss Helen Austin, soon to become the bride of George Ash of this city. Former Pomona College classmates of Miss West and Miss Austin were the guests, places being marked for Miss Lillian Reid of Long Beach, Miss Mary Hatch of Alhambra, Miss Florence Wheeler of Los Angeles, Miss Irene Cogswell of El Monte, Mrs. Verenda Williamson and Hester Billingsley of Orange, Miss Helen Bacon and Mrs. Arthur Briggs of Claremont, Mrs. Ross Roth of Pasadena, Miss West and Miss Austin. Little Misses Elizabeth Bullen and Martha Oakes were the winsome waitresses, and the decorations, suggestive of the approaching nuptials, included a wedding bell over the table, and a canopy of ribbon, under which a miniature bride and groom in wedding garb were the cynosure of all eyes. A drive to the pretty bungalow Mr. Ash is building for his bride to be was an interesting feature of the afternoon, following the luncheon.

At her attractive apartments at the Padgham on Tuesday afternoon Mrs. J. B. Roberts entertained charmingly in honor of Mrs. Charles Edwards and Mrs. Robert Gray of Weaverville, Cal., who are visiting Mrs. W. R. Edwards. Mrs. Gray is a daughter of Mrs. Edwards, and Mrs. Charles Edwards, a bride, is a daughter-in-law of the latter. Mrs. Roberts initiated her complimentary affair with an exquisitely appointed luncheon, yellow being the dominant note in both table and house decorations. Conversation and music beguiled the afternoon following, the musical numbers being contributed by Mrs. James S. Rice, locally famous as a vocalist, and Mrs. A. J. Padgham, who is a brilliant pianist. Those invited to meet the complimented ladies included Mrs. Rice, Mrs. Padgham, Mrs. Samuel W. Nan, Mrs. W. R. Edwards, Miss Rosa Boyd, Miss Katherine Edwards.

On Monday evening Misses Blanche and Lulu Minter entertained with an auto ride and picnic at Balboa Beach. An appetizing supper was spread on the sands near the thundering surf of the Pacific, and just as the meal was concluded a monster wave sent the party scurrying to higher and drier ground. It was an exciting incident of a merry evening, the amusement programme of which included a boat ride over Newport Bay to lovely Corona del Mar, and a moonlight climb over the hills of that picturesque spot. The picnic party included Misses Viola and Lucy Hill, Misses Sallie and Irene Catland, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Brakeman; Messrs. Ray Catland and Viola Hill, and the Misses Minter, who proved most efficient hostesses.

Miss Ruth Collins, a popular bride-elect, was the central figure in a pleasant affair given by Miss Gailene Finley at the beautiful home of her parents, Col. and Mrs. S. H. Finley, on Tuesday evening. The guests were the members of the Sunday-school class to which Miss Collins and the hostess belong, and of which W. W. Hoy is the teacher. Mr. Hoy's charming wife was also a special guest. Each attractive girl had brought with her a mysterious package, and after a delicious spread, which opened the merriment of the evening, Miss Collins was sent on an exciting search for the packages that had been hidden in various places over the spacious house. Her quest was rewarded with the discovery of many gifts for the new home she is soon to be mistress of. Besides the hostess and the bride-to-be, there were present Col. and Mrs. Finley, Mr. and Mrs. Hoy, Misses Eva Tidball, Nellie Wilson, Josie Eilers, Marjory Magee, Mary Henderson, Mildred Cook, Katherine Smiley, Elsie Raitt, Margaret Wylie, Miss Grace Patterson of Huntington Park.

An evening picnic on the grounds of the Moesser home in West Second street was the novel entertainment offered by Miss Grace Moesser on Tuesday evening to the members of the Happy Hours Club. Easy chairs, rugs and couches made a charming nook of a cement court, and various signs directed the guests respectively to the court, a pavilion and a park. One sign announced a conceit in the pavilion where talented club members, Mmes. Kays, Warne, Graham, Sauers and Misses Fennison and Weld, rendered a choice vocal and instrumental gramme. Supper was served i grape arbor, gay with lights, and toons of pink and blue crepe pap Smilax, carnations and innumer Kewpies adorned the table. Those whom unique place cards w marked were Mmes. Leonard C Walter Sutton, Charles Graham of Angeles, Harlowe Billingsley of do, E. T. Brannon, John Sau Harry Warne, William Kays, Ar Humphrey, Misses Belt, Meyers, son, Stroud, Dismukes, Mrs. and Moesser.

The Cheat

By SARA MOORE

Tragedy? In a tea-room?

No. But straws of conversation pointing to domestic drama. To be forced to overhear talk at the next table was like glimpsing but one act of a French play.

"Had I Fern's courage I'd turn to Howard" said the woman who was "keeping up" on English breakfast tea.

Her companion gestured horror.

"What else can I do?" begged the speaker. "I can't go on never having anything. I want to live, to really live, just a little—bit—before I'm old."

"But—why deceive your husband? Why not leave him?" asked the other woman sipping a highball.

"There are the babies— And it would kill mother—'

"And what would people say?" mimicked the other with open contempt.

"You scorn the speech of people, because you have never been bound up in one inter-related small town set. All I know are people I have been brought up with. If I broke up my home—"

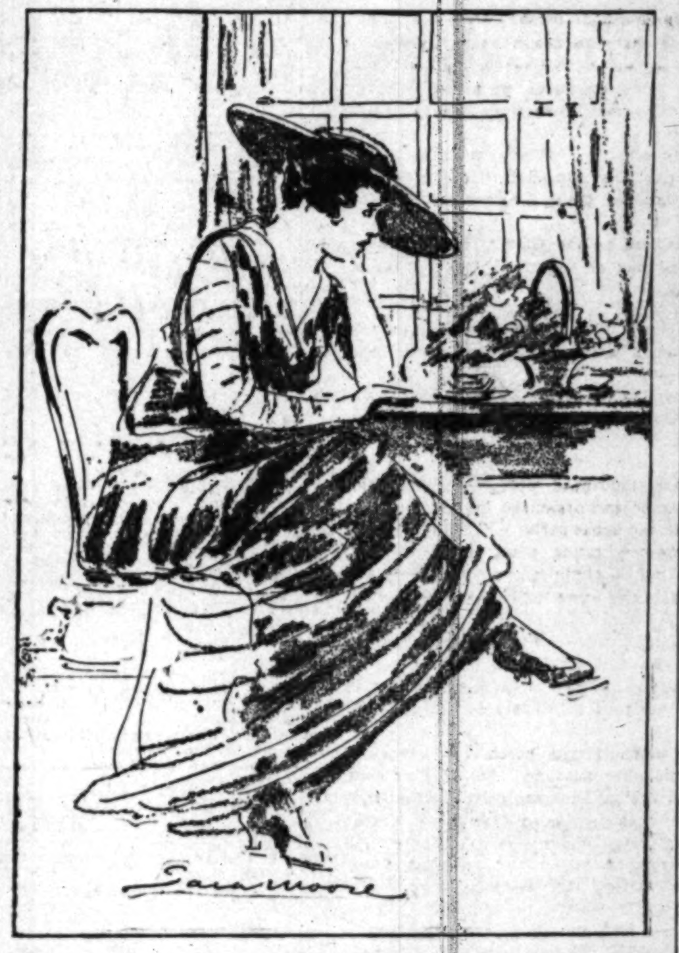
"But you wouldn't be mean enough to cheat! Any love worth having is worth sacrificing."

"Cheat?" stormed the matron. "Don't you think I have been cheated? Cheated out of everything that means life? Don't you think my husband, my mother cheated when—"

"Deliberately?"

"I wasn't 18. I married him, believing no nice girl loved a man until after marriage. He was good looking, successful, a catch. My family urged it. He is a good husband but—he is so matter of fact. He wouldn't understand if I told him."

"He loves you in his way. He only asks you to be a good wife and mother. He gives you everything money can buy. He is playing the best game he knows. If you cheat—"



"I refrain, not from any sense of honesty" half sobbed the other. "I'm probably just afraid of being found out." Don't you see I can't face it out, as you would? I couldn't do without—things. I've never earned a dollar and I'd die if I had to live in a boarding-house as you do. I've never even been downtown alone, unless in the limousine."

"But surely Howard isn't dishonest and cowardly enough to—"

A waiter interrupted and when the listeners had disposed of check and fingerbowls, the two figures in the little tragedy had left.

THE "OTHER WOMAN'S" VIEWPOINT.

BY ALMA WHITAKER.

OF COURSE she is an entirely reprehensible person. We look down our respectable noses and assume that she has no case. The law, the church and society are all against her, she is regarded quite definitely as a common poacher. She has no rights, no status, no name. By her competition with the legal incumbent of the man's affections she has automatically placed herself without the pale.

Monogamy as a theory has been accepted by Christian nations. And, in theory, for their reputation's sake, they must uphold it at all costs—the while they practise a back-door polygamy and thank God they are not as the infidel Turk.

The other woman is virtuously sacrificed on the altar of respectability. We cannot afford to recognize her, she has no argument that our smug social standards can concede.

We are not discussing the professional "other woman," but rather the amateur, who was, like the wife, reared in a tradition of monogamy, the natural monogamist whom Fate has cheated.

And while we cannot concede that she has any argument, it is interesting to consider the argument she thinks she has. And, shocking to admit, she thinks she has a pretty strong one.

To begin with she asserts that men don't choose their wives, but are chosen by them, caught, trapped, bagged, kidnapped, enslaved. That they are the victims of a social system, designed and organized for the scientific procurement of husbands, beginning with the debut party.

She maintains that society is a close corporation, a match-making trust, run by worldly mothers to secure first call on eligibles for its female members. That every known device is exercised to bring influences to bear upon the selected victim, a careful cultivated tradition, public opinion, social prestige, family influence—and the law, nicely garnered with alluring clothes, impressive houses, expensive food, fashionable amusements, so that a very large percentage of men are merely hypnotized into thinking themselves in love with the young persons who are designed by society to become their wives.

The average society wife, the other woman insists, has a vast network of cleverly organized assistance in obtaining her husband. That 75 per cent. of them marry for name, position, income; that they are grafters; that they play at love with hideous calculation; that they trade on their sex as despicably as any prostitute; that they take all and give as little as they dare; that children are rare and generally the result of an accident; that when the marriage was a love marriage and the children are love-children, the other woman is automatically eliminated.

Whereas the other woman depends solely on her personal charm and character; no match-making mamma, no legal traditions, no social hypnotism, no family influence, no entertaining is brought to bear on her behalf to attract her man. Fate and her own charms bring him to her side and the [illegible] of her keeps him there. She maintains that the wife who has won her position with all the aid of social sanction and tradition cannot hope for exclusive possession if she cannot provide inclusive attraction. That a woman will not put up with a lover or husband who ceases to have any attraction, either personally or materially, unless circumstances force her to, and that it is a little unreasonable to expect the man to practise loyal altruism to the point of foregoing all sentiment and romance, to adjure water forever because the stream had run dry.

This other woman's argument is the man's argument, or would be if he dared argue with any but himself. Modern writers like H. G. Wells and Cosmo Hamilton are venturing boldly to put his case before a shy public, but it can't be done with any conviction without first censuring the wife. To make the case good, the wife must appear sadly faulty, yet in our hearts we know that she, too, is but a victim of social usages. But sympathy must be alienated from her before the reader can give the case for the other woman [illegible] a hearing. Our unctuous virtue demands a villain, a scapegoat.

The French view of la petite amie, from which the word "demimonde" originated, is interesting. We have come to use demimonde as indicating the prostitute, but as a matter of fact its French acceptance is for the much higher status—for her who is a faithful wife in all but name. She is invariably an educated, well-bred, quietly gowned young person, refined and well-mannered. She may be recruited from the best families whose fortunes have fallen upon evil days and who therefore cannot provide the necessary dowry for marriage. She has a certain social status, amounting to just about half that of a socially secure matron, hence the demimonde, but by no means subject to social ostracism as in this country and England. Her status requires a properly maintained establishment and quite often the wife is satisfied to know that la petite amie of her husband is a self-respecting, exclusive young woman.

All of which is very shocking to our point of view and yet holds a measure of justice, in a country where marriages are frankly "arranged" on a business basis with a self-respecting quid pro quo on both sides. Even as ours—minus the quid pro quo.

No one would dream of advocating French morals; smug hypocrites like [illegible] would never dare; but the fact remains that France has a unique and comfortable domesticity, tolerant, comprehensive, workable, thrifty, just, by which the wife, who contributes her dowry to the family exchequer holds a recognized partnership, and the petite amie is only admitted when the wife does not happen to be the lover as well.

Most of the French Barbary Coast resorts are maintained and supported chiefly by foreign visitors, Englishmen and Americans. Divorce is a rare thing in France.

All these "wife vs. other woman" arguments would seem to place man on an enviable pinnacle, showing strenuous competition for his favors. But it would be well for him to see the other point of view. They also seem to indicate that he is legitimate prey for woman, a fine lucrative field for commercial enterprise to be exploited by the most subtly perspicacious, whether she be endowed with the recognized advantages of society and the law, or with personal attractions alone.

It would take a brave soul to recommend the official recognition of the other woman in this country, but if hypocrisy is the heinous sin, and polygamy out of the question, we may come to it for our conscience's sake. And sportsmanship almost demands it. There is plenty of room for a reconsideration of our convictions.

Marriage for love is the ideal, the sublime indubitable perfection. But barring that, why add hypocrisy to our other sins?

TRAITS OF CHILDHOOD.

May be Found in Events of Mature Life, Particularly the Desire for Admiration.

[New York Sun:] "And yet," said one of the group of men who had been discussing the new feminism, "in some things I believe all women retain certain traits of children. You know how a child, building a house of blocks, for example, will call on you to watch every step of the progress of his work, and then, when the structure has been completed, expects you to admire as though it had an instant burst upon your sight.

"There is my wife, who is fond of embroidering, work which she really does in a superior manner. Purchasing a new pattern from the store, she invariably shows it to me, explains the beauties of it, tells just how the work is to be done and what it will look like when filled in and embroidered. I am expected to admire it.

"Every pattern, of course, is composed of a reduplication of certain designs, sprigs, flowers, series of holes and what-not and a scalloped border. Each design, as it is completed, my wife will exhibit with pleasure, if not pride, and I must admire and exclaim at its possibilities and the excellence of her handiwork.

"After it has been in her hands night after night, sometimes for weeks and sometimes for months, depending on the size of the pattern and the style of embroidering, it is finished. Then I must examine the stitching and the general effect of the whole thing, as though I had not done so in part a dozen times or more.

"You may say that this would be all right and is to be expected from a young bride, but it has been going on in my home for twenty-five years, and I firmly believe that if I did not admire and exclaim and make comparisons between one piece of my wife's work and another she would either give up embroidery or lose more than half her pleasure in it. And I have noticed the same condition in the home life of other long-married couples of my acquaintance.

"There are other things in which women show their retention of childish characteristics, but this will do as an illustration. None of us, I guess, would like them all to disappear. For my part, I hope this and others will continue to be present until my eyes can no longer see to make the stitches and aged hands fall idly beside the work that gives my wife so much pleasure."

PRICE OF CHINESE EGGS.

Can be Purchased by Exporters for Less Money than the Hen Feed Would Cost Here.

[St. Louis Globe-Democrat:] We are indebted to Commerce Reports, a daily issued by the Department of Commerce, for interesting information as to why the Chinese hens can, at such long range, compete with those of Missouri. Vice-Consul Barrett of Shanghai tells all about it. For many years China exported eggs to Japan, Russia, Siberia, Hongkong and the Philippines, but only since the Underwood tariff went into effect have its shipments to the United States reached "noticeable proportions," as Mr. Barrett phrases it. Shanghai alone sent 3,600,000 dozen eggs from brown Leghorn hens to the United States in 1914. The withdrawal of certain merchant vessels from the Pacific, as an incident of the war, caused a great decline. Prior to that decline Chinese eggs were sold in St. Louis. Everbody who has heard Gov. Major's pean on the Missouri hen has marveled at the ability of a hen in a heathen country, thousands of miles away, to compete with the most civilized and highly developed hen in the world. But Mr. Barrett solves the mystery. The conditions in China are responsible.

The chickens are fed principally on rice. There are no great egg farms. Production of eggs is "somewhat incidental to the other principal agricultural activities of the Chinese farmer." Mr. Barrett adds, without apparent relevancy: "The daily wage of a Chinese farm hands amounts to, approximately, 10 cents." The Chinese farmer generally sells his eggs at about $4.60 a thousand, according to Mr. Barrett. This is a little over a nickel a dozen. Nanking farmers do not do so well, according to Vice-Consul Gilbert, writing in the same issue. Eggs there are sold at from 40 to 42 cents a gross, or from 3 1-3 to 3½ cents a dozen. Fresh eggs are consigned from there to San Francisco at $0.046 a dozen, while eggs frozen in tins are consigned to New York at $0.03 a dozen. Missouri poultry raisers should cheer up. If they can only find cheap enough rice to feed the chickens and can induce farm hands to work for 10 cents a day, they can defy competition.

THE RUSH HOUR.

BY EUGENE BROWN.

"Well, Chief, it looks as if I would have to tackle it myself."

"Does it?" exclaimed the new head of the police department. "If you're thinking about opening up a new poker game you may as well forget it. You'll never have a chance to deal pasteboards in this town as long as I'm on the job."

"Poppycock!" snorted I. "I'm talking about this blooming street traffic business. I'll have to show you how to handle it."

"Is that so," replied the Chief with sarcasm. "What are you going to handle it with, pink mittens? Anyhow, I hadn't heard that Butler had quit."

"He hasn't," said I, "but this thing is getting too big for you or him. It's running away from you and I'll have to straighten it out."

"Put it in splints, eh?" interrupted the Chief. "Let me tell you something. If you had this traffic problem on your hands you'd be in the padded room at the nut factory, on the second day out."

"Nothing to it," retorted I, with some scorn. "I've got a system that will have the street traffic moving as smooth as a circus parade."

"You're another one of these guys with a system? Did you dream it or get it in a school of correspondence? What could you do with a crowd, anyhow? The push would simply walk over your dinky little frame and you'd disappear like an ink spot in an ammonia bath."

"Say, Clare—or Clarence—your name is Clarence, isn't it?"

"Yes, it is," replied the Chief testily. "What of it?"

"Well, I can't stand for a cop named Clarence, even in moving pictures. I'll have to call you Maud or Lottie for short. I had a girl named Lottie once. She was short and sweet like a peppermint lozenger."

"I don't care what you call me," roared the Chief, "but I'll not have you calling me down. We don't want any of your systems. You don't know any more about handling the street traffic than a nigger baby does about the white slave act."

"Shucks!" snorted I in derision. "I'm the man that showed the German army how to fight. I've been a great organizer ever since I played the organ in Sunday-school when I was a kid. You think you have a system of your own, but it isn't a system, it's a joke. Two wigwags and the once over; that's about all."

"Nobody's kicking now," commented the Chief.

"Oh, isn't there?" exclaimed I. "You think that taming a few jitneys settles it. You just let the crowd wander around at its own sweet will and when the street fills up you go home and call it a day. No one can see the corner cop in the crush, and he has no tools of terror. Put him in a uniform that you can spot for a mile. Give him a white coat and scarlet pants—that's the stuff. Then make him carry a sword, and you'll get results. If a 200-pound policeman holds you up with a long and shiny toadstabber you are going to behave, even if you have an eight-cylinder car and a frolicsome jag!"

"I think I see Duffy in red panties," grinned the Chief.

"He'll be crazy about them," said I. "Nowadays every chick of a girl thinks she can hold the officer for ten minutes while she finds out the best place to buy fudge. If she sees an awesome person with gold braid and a gleaming sword she won't bother him. The trouble is that people think they own the streets. Some of 'em fancy they can camp out in the middle of Broadway and have a picnic spread. I had a man stop me at the intersection of Fifth and Spring streets yesterday and start to tell a funny story —that is, he said it was funny. Just as he got to the point a motorcycle took him under the fifth rib and bowled him over. Now, I'll have to guess what the wind-up of the story was. If a man is walking on a crowded thoroughfare and happens to see a free lunch sign across the way he is apt to cut right over in the middle of the block, dodging the buzz wagons from both directions, and scooting in and out between the cars. That careless chap ought to be pinched for his own good, unless his wife needs the insurance money. They don't allow such irresponsibility in some of the really big cities. You can't flit over except at the regular crossing, and there you have to travel when you get the word. There's no reason why foot passengers should not keep to regulations the same as vehicles. South-bound traffic on Broadway should be on the west side of the street, while north-bound pedestrians should be required to keep to the walk across the way. It's the continual butting into one another of people headed in opposite directions that makes the congestion of traffic."

"Why doesn't the wise boy take the town apart and put it together again?" snapped the Chief.

"It would be a heap sight better if I did," retorted I. "It wouldn't wander all around and fall over itself, and I'd have the streets wide enough so that two men could wipe their noses at the same time. They call Broadway what it is, because it is ninety feet wide, but do you know that in little old Detroit, where the gasoline chariots come from, the business avenues are all from 120 to 200 feet wide. Think of Spring street being 200 feet in width, with 120 feet of pavement and forty feet of sidewalk on each side—and then go out and weep for your town! And Detroit is over 200 years old at that. Were you ever in Egypt?"

"No, but I have been in Niland."

"Well, this is different. There are towns in Egypt where the streets are only six or seven feet wide and when a man wants to carry a growler to the corner, he has to flag traffic for a block ahead of him. But even with the narrow streets there is no congestion. You must fit your regulations to your conditions. If you have a crowded, bustling city, with many transients and narrow streets, the rules must be more severe and restrictive than where the thoroughfares are all 120-foot boulevards. That is why the jitneys here ought to be required to run on other streets than those used by the car companies. Everybody in the city seems to bring up on Spring, Main or Broadway at some time during the day and you have a jam that can only be duplicated at the Brooklyn bridge. Until you have a subway to take the car service out of the congested district, there will always be a crush with its attendant accidents and killings. I'd be afraid to drive a load of hay through Spring street on Saturday night. It would make a sensation and when everybody is staring, nobody gets out of the way. The other day a man tried to take a trunk from the Alexangelus Hotel to the depot in a wheelbarrow. Twenty years ago this was a very ordinary incident, but this guy did it on a freak bet and it drew a crowd that came near being a riot. If you're going to make the streets safe for pedestrians, the folks on foot will have to furnish the safety by conforming to rules that are sensible, but at the same time revolutionary. They can't wander around from one side of the street to the other, or stop to listen to funny stories or the cries of the barkers or agitators. It's got to be a case of move on and shinny on your own side."

"Sure," assented the Chief "and we have also got to keep derelicts and suspicious characters off the street—and that reminds me. Somebody called up about you a while ago and said you were over at the hotel trying to sell a man a half interest in a prune mine. You've got to cut that out. You sneak quietly home and I'll see that the traffic doesn't run over you. When I want any advice from you I'll send you a pretty little postal card."

"You mean that you don't want me to run the traffic business for the town?" said I, amazed.

"Why you couldn't run a coal bunker in South Hades," said the Chief.

"Say," exclaimed I. "You're from Illinois aren't you?"

"Yes," admitted the Chief.

"Well, so am I, and all I've got to say is that you're a bigger sucker than I am."

"I should hope so," answered the Chief shortly.

STONES THAT SPEAK.

[Washington Star:] One of the most remarkable of singing stones is to be found in the southwest coast of the Island of Hawaii, in the group of islands bearing that name. This is a sand bank. It appears that a tone like that of a melodeon is produced by moving one's hand in a circle through the loose sand. If the observer kneel, with both hands in the sand, and slide down the bank, the sound becomes louder and louder until it resembles distant thunder. The greatest sound is produced from this sand bank when one lies prone on it and another person drags him by the heels down the bank, carrying a large quantity of sand down with him.

Blake discovered, by microscopic examination, thin section of the grain, which are of volcanic origin, and that each grain was perforated by a narrow canal which, as a rule, was closed at one end. These peculiarly formed grains of sand seem to act as resonators, the air inclosed in them being brought into vibration by the mutual friction of the grains. When the sand is damp the sound is not produced, because the friction is diminished and many of the tubular cavities are filled with water.

The singing sands of Mount Sinai probably admit of a similar explanation. Wellsted has described the sand as yielding beneath the feet of a Bedouin climbing down the slope, not flowing down in a continuous stream, but breaking away in large masses. At first the sound resembles the faint tones of an aeolian harp stirred by a gentle breeze, but as the motion becomes more rapid the sound is like that produced by a wet finger rubbed on the rim of a wine glass, and when the sand arrives at the foot of the mountain it makes a noise like thunder, which shakes the rock on which the traveler sits.

This description is so similar to that of the singing sands of Hawaii that the presence of hollow grains of sand would account for the phenomena of Sinai as well as for the other. On the other hand, Schubert has said that the Diebel Kanus, or Bell mountain, 400 feet high is composed of sandstone boulders loosely thrown together and covered with loose sand. When disturbed by the foot this sand falls into the interstices between the rocks, producing a sound that resembles a distant chime of bells and terminates in a roar. From this it appears that the falling of the sand between the boulders is at least a contributory cause of the sound and it may account for the whole phenomenon, even if the grains of sand are solid. According to Schubert, the Bedouins believe that the sounds come from the bells of a ruined Christian monastery.

Sounds of a very different character and origin are emitted by certain rocky cliffs in the Hartz Mountains and in the Pyrenees. Two precipitous cliffs in the Hartz, near Schierke, are called "the Snorers," from the peculiar sounds which the southwest wind draws from them. The faces of these cliffs are marked by deep gullies, which roughly resemble organ pipes open in front, and occasionally the front is practically closed by a stratum of air held motionless between the cliff and the trees which graze it, while the wind blows freely through the gullies, or organ pipes, behind. Similar phenomena, due probably to a similar cause, are observed on Mount Maladetta, in the Pyrenees, where at sunrise certain cliffs emit plaintive sounds, which resemble those of a harp and are known locally as "the matins of the damned."

Singing stones of a third category are found in various parts of the world. Fraas, journeying from the Red Sea to the Nile, saw a round, thin fragment an inch in diameter resembling a shell, split off, with a peculiar sound, from a flint which lay baking in the hot sun at his feet. This observation is very remarkable, and perhaps unique, for flints split gradually as a rule, but the violent and noisy rupture of the last bond under the influence of the sun's rays and in the presence of an observer does not seem impossible.

Broken flints are common in the desert. Many persons have heard the noise caused by similar fractures of hard rocks and have seen the fragments roll down mountain slopes. Behm had told of the basalt columns of the Bamangwato hills, in South Africa. In the evening, after a hot day, it was not unusual to hear the basalt crack and fall with a peculiar ringing sound, from which the natives inferred that the rock must contain iron. Here one undoubtedly finds the most frequent cause of the singing of stones and the explanation of many of the observed cases. The phenomena are most conspicuous in hard rocks, which ring under the hammer, and especially the basalt and granite. They have been observed most frequently in Egypt. There have been heard emanating from the huge granite blocks of the great temple of Karnak ringing, cracking sounds, and similar sounds have been heard in the temple at Philae and in the granite quarries at Assuan.

Interesting in this relation are the musical stones of the Orinoco. These are granite cliffs, situated at the confluence of the Orinoco with the Rio Meta, which occasionally emit at sunrise sounds resembling the tones of an organ. Humboldt explained them as a result of the difference of temperature between the cool morning air and the air contained in the numerous very deep and narrow fissures of the rock, which still retained much of the heat absorbed from the sun's rays during the preceding day. He stated that he often found the surface of the rock, at night, twenty degrees warmer than the air outside, and he conjectured that these organ tones, which are heard when the ear is placed on the rock, were caused by the outrush of warm air through the narrow fissures which are partially obstructed by elastic laminae of mica.

French explorers in Egypt, on the other hand, attribute the sounds which they heard not to air currents, but to sudden displacements occurring within the stone. Jollois and Devilliers assume that the superficial layer, heated quickly by the sun's rays, separates from the deeper and colder layers. Roziere speaks of the formation and extension of cracks between harder and softer minerals. Cordier assumes separation of quartz and other crystals from the surrounding magma, and finds an analogy in the sound emited by ice exposed to sudden changes in temperature. Herschel compares the phenomena to the crackling of an iron grate when heated.

All of these conceptions and analogies, it has been pointed out, are legitimate, but it is very doubtful whether they are adequate, for the question is not only with sounds that are heard only when the ear is laid on the rock. In Karnak and Philae the sounds have attracted the attention of persons who were not listening for them. Cordier admits that many little cracks would be required to produce the sound. To others it appears more likely that a fragmant of stone becomes detached and falls on a projection below. This supposition accounts for the ringing quality of the sound. Possibly, however, a similar sound might be produced by an internal fracture.

"I suggest," said a sprightly little blond, "I suggest that we discuss it while we play."

WELLSIAN SATIRE.

BOON: THE MIND OF THE RACE: THE WILD ASSES OF THE DEVIL, AND THE LAST TRUMP. Being a First Selection from the Literary Remains of George Boon. Prepared for Publication by Reginald Bliss. With an Ambiguous Introduction by H. G. Wells. George H. Doran Company, New York.

MR. WELLS may not have written "Boon." He may have dictated it. He may not, as he says, have read all of it. The stenographer may have added a word or two when she and Mr. Wells conspired to foist the blame onto one Reginald Bliss.

As the book of the unknown and unknowable Reginald Bliss, "Boon" is scarcely worth reading—no more so than the more or less commonplace depreciatory opinions of any unknown man on contemporary novelists would be. But as a volume disclosing the animadversion of H. G. Wells it has an extraneous value more important, far more important, than the inherent satire and amusing literary form.

But Mr. Wells wrote the book, or enough of it to make him—figuratively speaking—criminally responsible. Take these few sentences, descriptive of Boon's agnostic friend: He is "a militant agnostic, and a dear, compact man, one of those Middle Victorians who go about with a preoccupied, caulking air, as though, after having been at great cost and pains to banish God from the universe, they were resolved not to permit him back on any terms whatever. He has constituted himself a sort of alert customs officer of a materialistic age, saying suspiciously, 'Here, now, what's this rapping under the table here?' and examining every proposition to see that the Creator wasn't being smuggled back under some specious new generalization."

The book is full of stuff just as Wellsian. Then Mr. Wells vainly hopes to throw people off the trail by anticipating being identified as the author; by saying that he hasn't read all of it, and "it seems to me an indiscreet, ill-advised book."

Indiscreet and ill-advised it is, if Mr. Wells has any objections to making a few of his fellow-literarians peevish. Otherwise it is quite harmless, harmless as G. Bernard Shaw's pugnacious frivolities.

In George Boon, Mr. Wells has created a popular novelist who turned his face to the wall and died of outraged sensibilities when the Germans bombarded Scarborough. In Reginald Bliss, Mr. Wells created the literary executor of Boon, who finds stored in barrels in the attic the literary remains of "The Mind of the Race," "The Wild Asses of the Devil" and "The Last Trump"—curious fragments all.

Excepting "The Wild Asses of the Devil," which has a slender thread of narrative describing how the asses escaped, transformed themselves into men and succeeded in getting into Parliament and elsewhere, there is little to interest the casual reader. The book is purely a literary satire with a few digs at the politicians with whom Mr. Wells is not in accord; Sir Edward Carson for instance.

"The Last Trump" is nothing more or less than the polished novelist's way of saying: "Oh, hell! What's the use of anything at all?" The other peculiar and absorbing fragments describe the foolishness of literary folk, of Henry James's labyrinthine style, of George Moore's gossipy egotism, of the praise Americans give Mrs. Humphry Ward while neglecting Mary Austin, of Marie Corelli's, Hall Caine's, Stephen Phillips's deficiencies in filling the gap left by the death of the Victorian giants, of Parliament's inability to distinguish when it is addressed by a man and by an ass. Then in conclusion we have "The Last Trump"—a satirical, moderate, but seemingly sincere damnation of everything and everybody.

The last trump—the one reserved for Gabriel's exclusive use—accidentally falls out of heaven and finds its way into a pawnshop. It is ignorantly blown, but the effect is transitory; people are puzzled for a moment, then the world goes on its old, plodding, selfish, harum-scarum way.

Boon's purpose, says Mr. Wells through his imaginary literary executor, was to show that the distresses of the war had for a time broken the mind of the race.

"Boon" is decidedly a book for the elect. Fictionites who must have their stories done to a crisp will be wasting time to creep between the covers. The satire is extravagant, but clever, enjoyable, and even more esoteric than satire generally is. Eccentric, twisted and gossipy, wandering about pretending to get to no place in particular, "Boon" covers a deal of territory and sets at liberty more opinions, all of them tipped with hot little stings, than one would reasonably expect from an author deliberately antagonizing other authors.

And when Mr. Wells wrote the introduction he was probably reflecting on the possible retaliations offended and well-equipped craftsmen might make, for, having enjoyed the zest of loosening his own opinions, he evidently began to contemplate the zest others might have in doing likewise. "I do not wish to escape the penalties of thus participating in and indorsing his (Reginald Bliss's) manifest breaches of good taste, literary decorum and friendly obligation, but as a writer whose reputation is already overcrowded and confused and who is for all ordinary purposes of every day known only as a novelist, I should be glad if I could escape the public identification I am now repudiating."

And he can keep on repudiating until the last trump, recovered and in Gabriel's hands, sounds again for all the good it will do him.

LUXURIANT SIMPLE LIFE.

MR. EATON undoubtedly has not been actuated by motives ulterior to the novelist in stirring up those back-to-the-soil emotions that the agent of real estate is eternally trying to reach with photographs and word pictures of his incomparable tract.

But for the common fellow, hankering after the simple life, the flaw in the idyl is the $30,000 Prof. Upton has with which to reconstruct the old farmhouse into a palace of dreams. The real estate prospectuses never put the necessary financial equipment that high—from $300 up, is more like it.

However, this isn't a prospectus, but an idyl; one that arouses the desire to go forth, as the young Prof. Upton does, and buy a farmhouse with many goodly acres round about, to study government bulletins on agriculture, trim orchard trees, put in lawns, set up the sun dial, remodel the old house and unpack the loads upon loads of books in the big room with the twin fireplaces.

Of course, after the young doctor in philology comes to board with the neighbor and rest from the labors of lexiconic compilation, life becomes all the more interesting for Prof. Upton. The young word doctor isn't a man at all, but a woman with the celestial name of Stella—and entitled to it. There is nothing at all Bostonese about these erudite youngsters (for years don't count in an idyl; and besides neither of them is over thirty,) and he who has growled because women are always given advice, begs her to keep busy making suggestions.

He doesn't want to marry; rather feels that a wife would be a nuisance and all that sort of thing. So Stella goes back to the city to chase elusive etymological facts to their obscure hiding places, and the professor wanders lonesomely around his broad acres and wonders what is the matter with the old world, anyway.

Needless to say, the old world recovers its brightness and flowers bloom for him and her as they bloom at no place else in the country. The reader doesn't have the door of Twin Fires shut in his face until after being allowed to pry and peek into every nook and corner and to watch for some time Stella and the professor and the other little fellow who comes to rule the household from a cradle.

A HOST OF HEAVENLY VILLAINS.

PIRATES OF THE SKY. By Stephen Gaillard. Rand-McNally Company, Chicago.

MR. GAILLARD has set out with a grim imagination puffing strenuously to give the reader the thrill of his young life.

These sky pirates are terrible fellows; they threaten to blow out this little candle of civilization because, being anarchists, they are determined to end the governmental barbarities of Russia.

However, instead of dropping bombs upon the head of the Czar until he promises to be good and make reforms they want, these buccaneers of the heavens bombard American cities, then swoop below and plunder banks, thus getting funds to carry on revolutionary work in Russia and wherever else the seat of authority is on the neck of the prostrated proletariat.

The Chicago Curier, being an enterprising sheet, sends its star man, Tommy Baldwin and the nation's best aviator, William Grahame, out to look for these sky devils. In the fight that follows, Baldwin falling out of his own machine and landing on the top of the pirate craft, is carried off as a prisoner to the impregnable stronghold in the Andes.

Baldwin is a handsome and courageous lad (he tells two-thirds of the story himself, and Grahame, in the other third, corroborates him, and tells of some interesting exploits also) and wins admiration from the pirate chief, who, after being fed slow poison by the traitorous lieutenant, confesses to Baldwin that the depredations have been a mistake and asks him to carry a woman to God's country and away from the lustful lieutenant.

Just as Baldwin is ready to fly away, he stumbles face to face with his own sweetheart, also a prisoner, who he believed was safe back in the States. Fight? Tommy Baldwin is as heroic as a moving picture actor in the leading role of a film melodrama he has written himself. Even the villain, so Baldwin relates, is carried away with admiration and cries: "By God, you are a gamecock, after all, Tom Baldwin. . . . I say that you are a damned bold man," etc.

The hysterical complications culminate in a "terrible" aerial battle, and the villainous sky-pirates are exterminated. The Curier gets the greatest scoop in the history of journalism and Tommy Baldwin—still the chronicler—is cheered to the echo by the whole of Chicago and swamped with letters and telegraphic congratulations.

The book is designed to be a thriller, a rip-snorting thriller, and succeeds in being turbulently melodramatic without however, having much of the vivid, gripping quality.

FOR THE DISILLUSIONED.

THE SCARLET FAIRY BOOK: Clowns Courage. By Patrick Scarlet. Richard G. Badger, Boston.

AND now comes one who gives his name as Patrick Scarlet—too colorful it is for a patronymic, so we ken very well he's looked about him and taken what pleased fancy for his alias in Fairyland. Into Fairyland he has gone and come back with a book, as he says by way of introducing himself, "for Wise Children, Sick People and the Half Grown. A breviary of rising inflections for the Disillusioned, for the Compleat Sinner a whimsy-missal and a petty psalter for the wee small voice."

And what shall be done with one who introduces himself thus, making curious nonsense that seems pregnant with subtle meanings, elusive, tantalizing?

This teller of tales has strange visions, more like a poet's than a man's; and sometimes he is impish with his words and again his whimsy is up jostling the sublime, as when the dead woman comes to the Empress and says: "If I could thrust my pink wise hands between the hinges of heaven's gate, then God might ask, 'What are these fluttering betwixt door and jamb?' And I should say: 'Father, even my hands that were white—reddened in Thy world.' And God is so strange, perchance he then would say: 'Sure it is not fit the gate should be opened so narrowly where the world is so wide.'"

And now and again we know him to be mocking the world for all of his radiant phrases, as in "The Foreign Tutor," when the monkey, who is a foreign gentleman, is engaged to teach the pigs of Mrs. Sow, "one of those awfully well-known Berkshires."

Then sometimes his irony melts into sadness, as in the "Princess Wearybrows," a fanciful allegory of the college campus (where Tomorrow was beyond its frontiers, and "the spirit of the land was Alma Mammy, a voodoo woman who had always been" and who gave her sons "stars to play with.")

The mists of fancy drift and rise about these curious inventions of Patrick Scarlet. His fairy tales know nothing of the correspondence school's technic, and one can't inspect his visions closely nor get a sustained focus on them. Again and again he flutters playfully close to the absurd, dips his wings into stillness, then up and away to the sublime, where he flutters as sportively.

And thus we have a book of tales for the wise children; or, as he calls it, "a breviary of rising inflections for the Disillusioned" who have learned that heavy-footed, shrill-voiced, insistent Logic is deceitful as well as tiresome.

BIOGRAPHICAL.

GREAT MEN AT CLOSE RANGE.

CONTEMPORARY PORTRAITS. By Frank Harris. Mitchell Kennerley, New York.

MR. HARRIS tells something of his meetings and acquaintanceship with distinguished men of the present and past decade; and among other portraits, has taken care to draw himself as a clever, deep conversationalist, who was often more than a match for Carlyle, or Renan or Whistler.

He not only treats Meredith, Browning and Swinburne as mortals, but as mortals in whom the flaws were not inconspicuous. Browning was cold, difficult to know. Mr. Harris tells of an incident that purports to reveal Browning's jealousy of James Russell Lowell, and repeats the whispering of gossips to the effect that Mr. and Mrs. Browning were not happy.

Meredith, he found, was one of the most lovable and altruistic of men. "I could fill a book with instances of his generous appreciations and helpful kindness," Mr. Harris writes; and at once relates instances when he was not generous and helpful. Mr. Harris shows the bitterness he felt toward Meredith because the latter, the foremost novelist in England at the time, would not sign a petition for the remission of a part of Oscar Wilde's term.

Swinburne is drawn as a brilliant poet with poor judgment on matters literary. "I have never met anyone whose knowledge of Greek, English and French poetry was at all comparable to Swinburne's; as soon as you begin to quote any fine passage he would take it up and go on declaiming endlessly. There was no elevation in his mind; no humor in his outlook; no width of understanding; no fertility of ideas. He never seemed to have grown mentally after his seventeenth year."

John Davidson's inopportune and self-induced death causes Mr. Harris to take himself severely to task for not having more effectively assisted the poet; and the suicide of Richard Middleton brings a scorching arraignment against the people and the government that has allowed so many of its poets to live in poverty while politicians fatten in retirement on swollen pensions.

Sir Richard Burton, who may poetically be called the last of the Elizabethans; Matthew Arnold, Anatole France, Paul Verlaine, and Oscar Wilde are others whose meetings with Mr. Harris are recorded in interesting chapters. De Maupassant, Maeterlinck, Fabre and Rodin are also given attention, less personal however, than the others.

It is an interesting, exasperating book. Mr. Harris has been provokingly determined that we should see the clay feet of his friends, and while protesting the greatest admiration and love for them, has bared their weaknesses and flaws. Being a realist, he evidently does not wish truth to wear even a veil as an ornament, much less for modesty.

RALPH WALDO EMERSON.

RALPH WALDO EMERSON. By O. W. Firkins. Houghton Mifflin Company, Boston.

THE number of men, women and children who have previously written on Emerson in no way invalidates Mr. Firkins's book, which is a study of the man Emerson and his work, not a contribution to the Emersonian legend.

In this day of ostentatious bluntness, with realism on the throne and flowery language being treated as weeds, for a reviewer to call a biographer's prose "beautiful" is likely to get both himself and the biographer suspected of affectation, tinctured with sentimentality. Go to. Mr. Firkins's prose is beautiful.

He has made use of the ten-volume edition of Emerson's "Journals," the publication of which was first completed last year, and which, for the biographer not content with mere chronological events (things of scant value of the study of Emerson) is material of unprecedented intimacy.

Emerson, one of the most modest of men, first gave marked indication of dispassionate self-confidence in the secret record of his impressions of Landor, Coleridge, Carlyle and Wordsworth, whom he met during his first trip to Europe, when began the memorable friendship with Carlyle. He wrote: "I shall judge more justly, less timidly, of wise men forever. Especially are they all deficient, all these four in different degrees, but all deficient—in insight into religious truth."

Mr. Firkins remarks that "the quiet young fellow had not overstepped his rights; the sentence was sharp, but the court had jurisdiction."

Regarding the first meeting and subsequent friendship with Carlyle, the biographer whimsically points out: "The good genius which brought them together for a day benignly parted them upon the morrow; they separated before the inevitable dissonances had time to emerge; and the trusty Atlantic Ocean mounted guard upon their friendship."

The vital influences in Emerson's life, and nothing unessential, receive attention. Most satisfying, indeed, is the commendable manner in which Mr. Firkins shows him to have been a man not addicted to all the aenemic pieties ascribed by student clubs and worshipful commentators of recent years. Though gentle and dignified, sympathetic and sincere, as nearly flawless in character as perhaps any man of the century, still he was far from being without human characteristics.

Not the least valuable of Mr. Firkins's estimable work is that part of it devoted to an analysis and discussion of Emerson's prose and prosody, to the texture of them, as well as to the sentiments and philosophy.

It may be said accurately, Mr. Firkins has shown that a biographer may praise without laudation, and with carefully balanced moderation may criticise without fault finding.

POLAND'S GREATEST KING.

THE LIFE OF KING JOHN SOBIESKI. By John Sobieski. Richard G. Badger, Boston.

MR. SOBIESKI has written of his illustrious forebear with enthusiastic eloquence — the enthusiasm expected from an exile reviewing the record of the most famous of his line, and eloquence that has long distinguished the author on the lecture platform.

Historians, others than his descendant, affirm that Sobieski, a colossal figure in European affairs, probably saved Europe from Turkish domination by raising the siege at Vienna—and incidentally preserving the kingdom of an avowed enemy whose country was later to assist in obliterating the national integrity of Poland.

Sobieski rose from comparative obscurity to the crown with great rapidity through cumulative successes in war. As a general he was a Napoleon of the north, outnumbered on practically every occasion and seldom free from a campaign, yet never decisively defeated. Once a jealous king marked his estates for confiscation and himself for death; but Sobieski, generous as he was bold, repelled an invasion of Tartars and Turks while under the death penalty.

His place in history has been somewhat obscured by Poland's loss of place among the nations, but nevertheless is resplendent.

Mr. Sobieski himself has led a remarkable, adventurous life, being exiled in infancy as the result of his family's and ancestors' patriotism. In reviewing the life of King John, the author has obviously sought to keep from making him a demi-god, but quite naturally has nothing but unsparing words of praise for the national hero.

BOOKS ON SUFFRAGE.

CHAMPION OF WOMEN'S RIGHTS.

"COMMON SENSE" APPLIED TO WOMAN SUFFRAGE. By Mary Putnam-Jacobi, M.D. Introduction by Frances Maule Bjorkman. G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York.

"'COMMON SENSE' APPLIED TO WOMAN SUFFRAGE" is less revolutionary, but no less valuable to its purpose than when it appeared some twenty years ago. Victory has attended the standards of women in many States, but in New York, where Dr. Jacobi was foremost in the fight, the situation remains doubtful—with the women, however, growing in numbers and in enthusiasm, and the "antis" in the last ditch desperately postponing the inevitable at each election.

In the introduction something is told of Dr. Jacobi, who died in 1906. She was among the first women of this country to study medicine, and was the first woman to gain entrance to the School of Medicine in Paris. In 1876 she took the Boylston prize of Harvard for original work.

Twenty years ago, on behalf of the women of the city of New York, she addressed the Committee on Suffrage of the State Constitutional Convention. The address is in an appendix to the present volume, and has, as Mrs. Bjorkman says in the introduction, especial interest, as "today, another constitutional convention is sitting, and the question of women's political rights is again to be argued. But in other respects the situation is no longer the same. Today the Legislature has already placed before the voters of the State a measure enfranchising the women, and the convention is asked merely to take whatever steps may be deemed necessary to render the action of the Legislature valid."

This notable advance in the fight for suffrage has been made largely with the arguments incorporated in Mrs. Jacobi's "Common Sense." That does not imply that she originated the arguments—but she made use of them with a clarity of expression, a logical presentation, that has perhaps never been excelled. Adaptations have been made to meet varying situations, but the facts arranged are still as forceful as when she drew on historical evidence and "common sense" to state the rights of women.

Trivialities are absent; good nature—often resembling satire delivered with a smile—combined with close reasoning, give reading a zest that is unusual in books of an argumentative and informative character.

SATIRES FOR SUFFRAGETTES.

ARE WOMEN PEOPLE? By Alice Duer Miller. George H. Doran Company, New York.

"FATHER, what is a Legislature?"

"A representative body elected by the people of the State."

"Are women people?"

"No, my son, criminals, lunatics and women are not people."

"Do legislators legislate for nothing?"

"Oh, no; they are paid a salary."

"By whom?"

"By the people."

"Are women people?"

"Of course, my son, just as much as men are."

Thus does Mrs. Duer present her text, and follows it up with satires in rhyme and prose.

She says that an Indiana judge has recently ruled that the husband has a right to decide on the location of home, and that "home is where the husband is."

Mrs. Duer sings:

"Home is where the husband is,
Be it near or far—
Office, theater, Pullman car,
Poolroom, polls, or corner bar—
All good wives remember this—
Home is where the husband is."

The little volume is wholly in a satirical vein, sharp, clever and an amusing plea for the right to let women play politics.

PUBLISHERS AND AUTHORS.

"The Helmet of Navarre" has come almost to typify the romantic fiction of a decade or so ago. But now we have the announcement from the Century Company that Bertha Runkle has written a novel called "Straight Down the Crooked Lane," dealing with people of today in "high society" life at Newport and in military circles. Naturally, she hopes to duplicate her first success, which was one of the big penstrikes in recent fiction.

Holman Day, having sent "The Landlopper" to press (Harper & Bros.,) has gone for a fishing trip in the Maine woods. Lucky man.

Dr. J. William White, emeritus professor of surgery in the University of Pennsylvania and one of its trustees, is receiving flattering attention in England, where he has been entertained by Premier Asquith and other officials. Dr. White, in "America and Germany: A Text-book of the War" (John C. Winston Company,) gave Germany what may be called a "nonpartisan" roast.

Margaret Widdemer is having success with "The Rose Garden Husband" (J. B. Lippincott Company,) her first novel. It has gone into its fifth edition, and is being reported as a "best seller."

Sir Gilbert Parker was the recipient of one of the six baronetcies conferred by King George on June 3.

Irvin S. Cobb, who has been seriously ill, but who is now recovering, recently learned a new story about his articles on the great war, published in "Paths of Glory." The family of a Connecticut judge are devoted readers of Mr. Cobb, and the old colored mammy in the family must have picked up a copy. At least when the judge happened to ask her how long she thought the war would last, she promptly replied, "Jedge, dat wah gonna last jes' three years."

"How'd you find that out?" asked the judge.

"De King o' Europe done told Ty Cobb."

"The Devil in a Nunnery" we are assured is not a book of naughty tales. But what a title for such a book! E. P. Dutton & Co. explain that it is a collection of "medieval stories written in the very choicest short-story style—quaint, piquant, yet feudal and primitive, material handled with a delicate, artistic touch and rich, quiet humor."

Prof. Thomas R. Lounsbury, author of "Studies in Chaucer" and "The Standard of Pronunciation in English," who died recently in New Haven, used to say that the first attempt to fix a standard of pronunciation took place nearly three thousand years ago. The account of this difficulty he quoted from the Bible, how the men of Gilead slew "forty and two thousand" of the Ephraimites because they could not pronounce the word Shibboleth. With the death of Prof. Lounsbury passed away, the critics will probably agree, one of the best of living authorities on Chaucer.

An unusual picture in Stephen Graham's forthcoming book, "Russia and the World," shows a Cossack holding up a silver coin on which is engraved the Czar's head, while around it several other Cossacks are dancing, and, according to the author's caption, are singing the national anthem. Still another cut in the interesting series in this volume is that of a party of men on the way to the point of mobilization shortly after the call to arms. The photograph was taken 1000 miles from the nearest railway station and 4000 miles from the battlefields of Poland.

CALIFORNIA MAGAZINE.

The appearance of the first number of the California Magazine impels us toward all manner of laudatory generalizations. If not the largest, it is certainly one of the largest magazines ever issued; and the illustrations, typographical effects, importance of articles and contributors, suggest the permanent volume rather than a serial.

The California Magazine will appear quarterly. The first issue is called the "Cornerstone Number," and with good reason. It contains 672 pages, and not ten of them are devoted to advertisements. Advertisements are not solicited, says R. L. Bernier, president of the California Publishers Co-Operative Association (publishers of the Magazine) in his introductory statement. That attitude alone is unique in the history of magazines.

E. J. Wickson, the editor, is well known for his books on horticulture and agriculture, and is professor of horticulture and former dean of the Agricultural College of the University of California.

Over 140 contributors are represented, and the articles are segregated under such general divisions as "Why California?" "Educational," "Natural Resources," "Development," "Waterways by Panama," "Panama-Pacific International Exposition," "California's Women," "California Fruits," "Co-Operative Marketing," "Field Products," "Live Stock," "Dairying," "Food Manufacture" and "Poultry Industry."

Among the articles by well-known contributors are: "What California Can Do for the World," by David Starr Jordan: "Human Factor in State and National Development," by Franklin K. "SONGS AND POEMS."

A sweet-voiced singer of simple songs is recognized in "Wayside Memories," by Edward P. O'Leary (published by the author, Los Angeles.) The verse is of humble themes, commonplace as flowers, children and friends, vibrant with affection, warm with love of life, but unmistakably colored with soft melancholy, the Celtic strain, as:

"When songs that cheered us in youth's golden hour
No more we hear along life's varied way,
And dreams we cherished when love's first sweet flower
Bloomed but to fade, in one fair summer day."

Almost a half of the book (170 pages) is taken up with songs and devotional rhymes. The songs are carried with a rhythm especially adapted for the lullaby chant when intended. And the songs of love, as with the verse, while lacking the classic grace, have music in them.

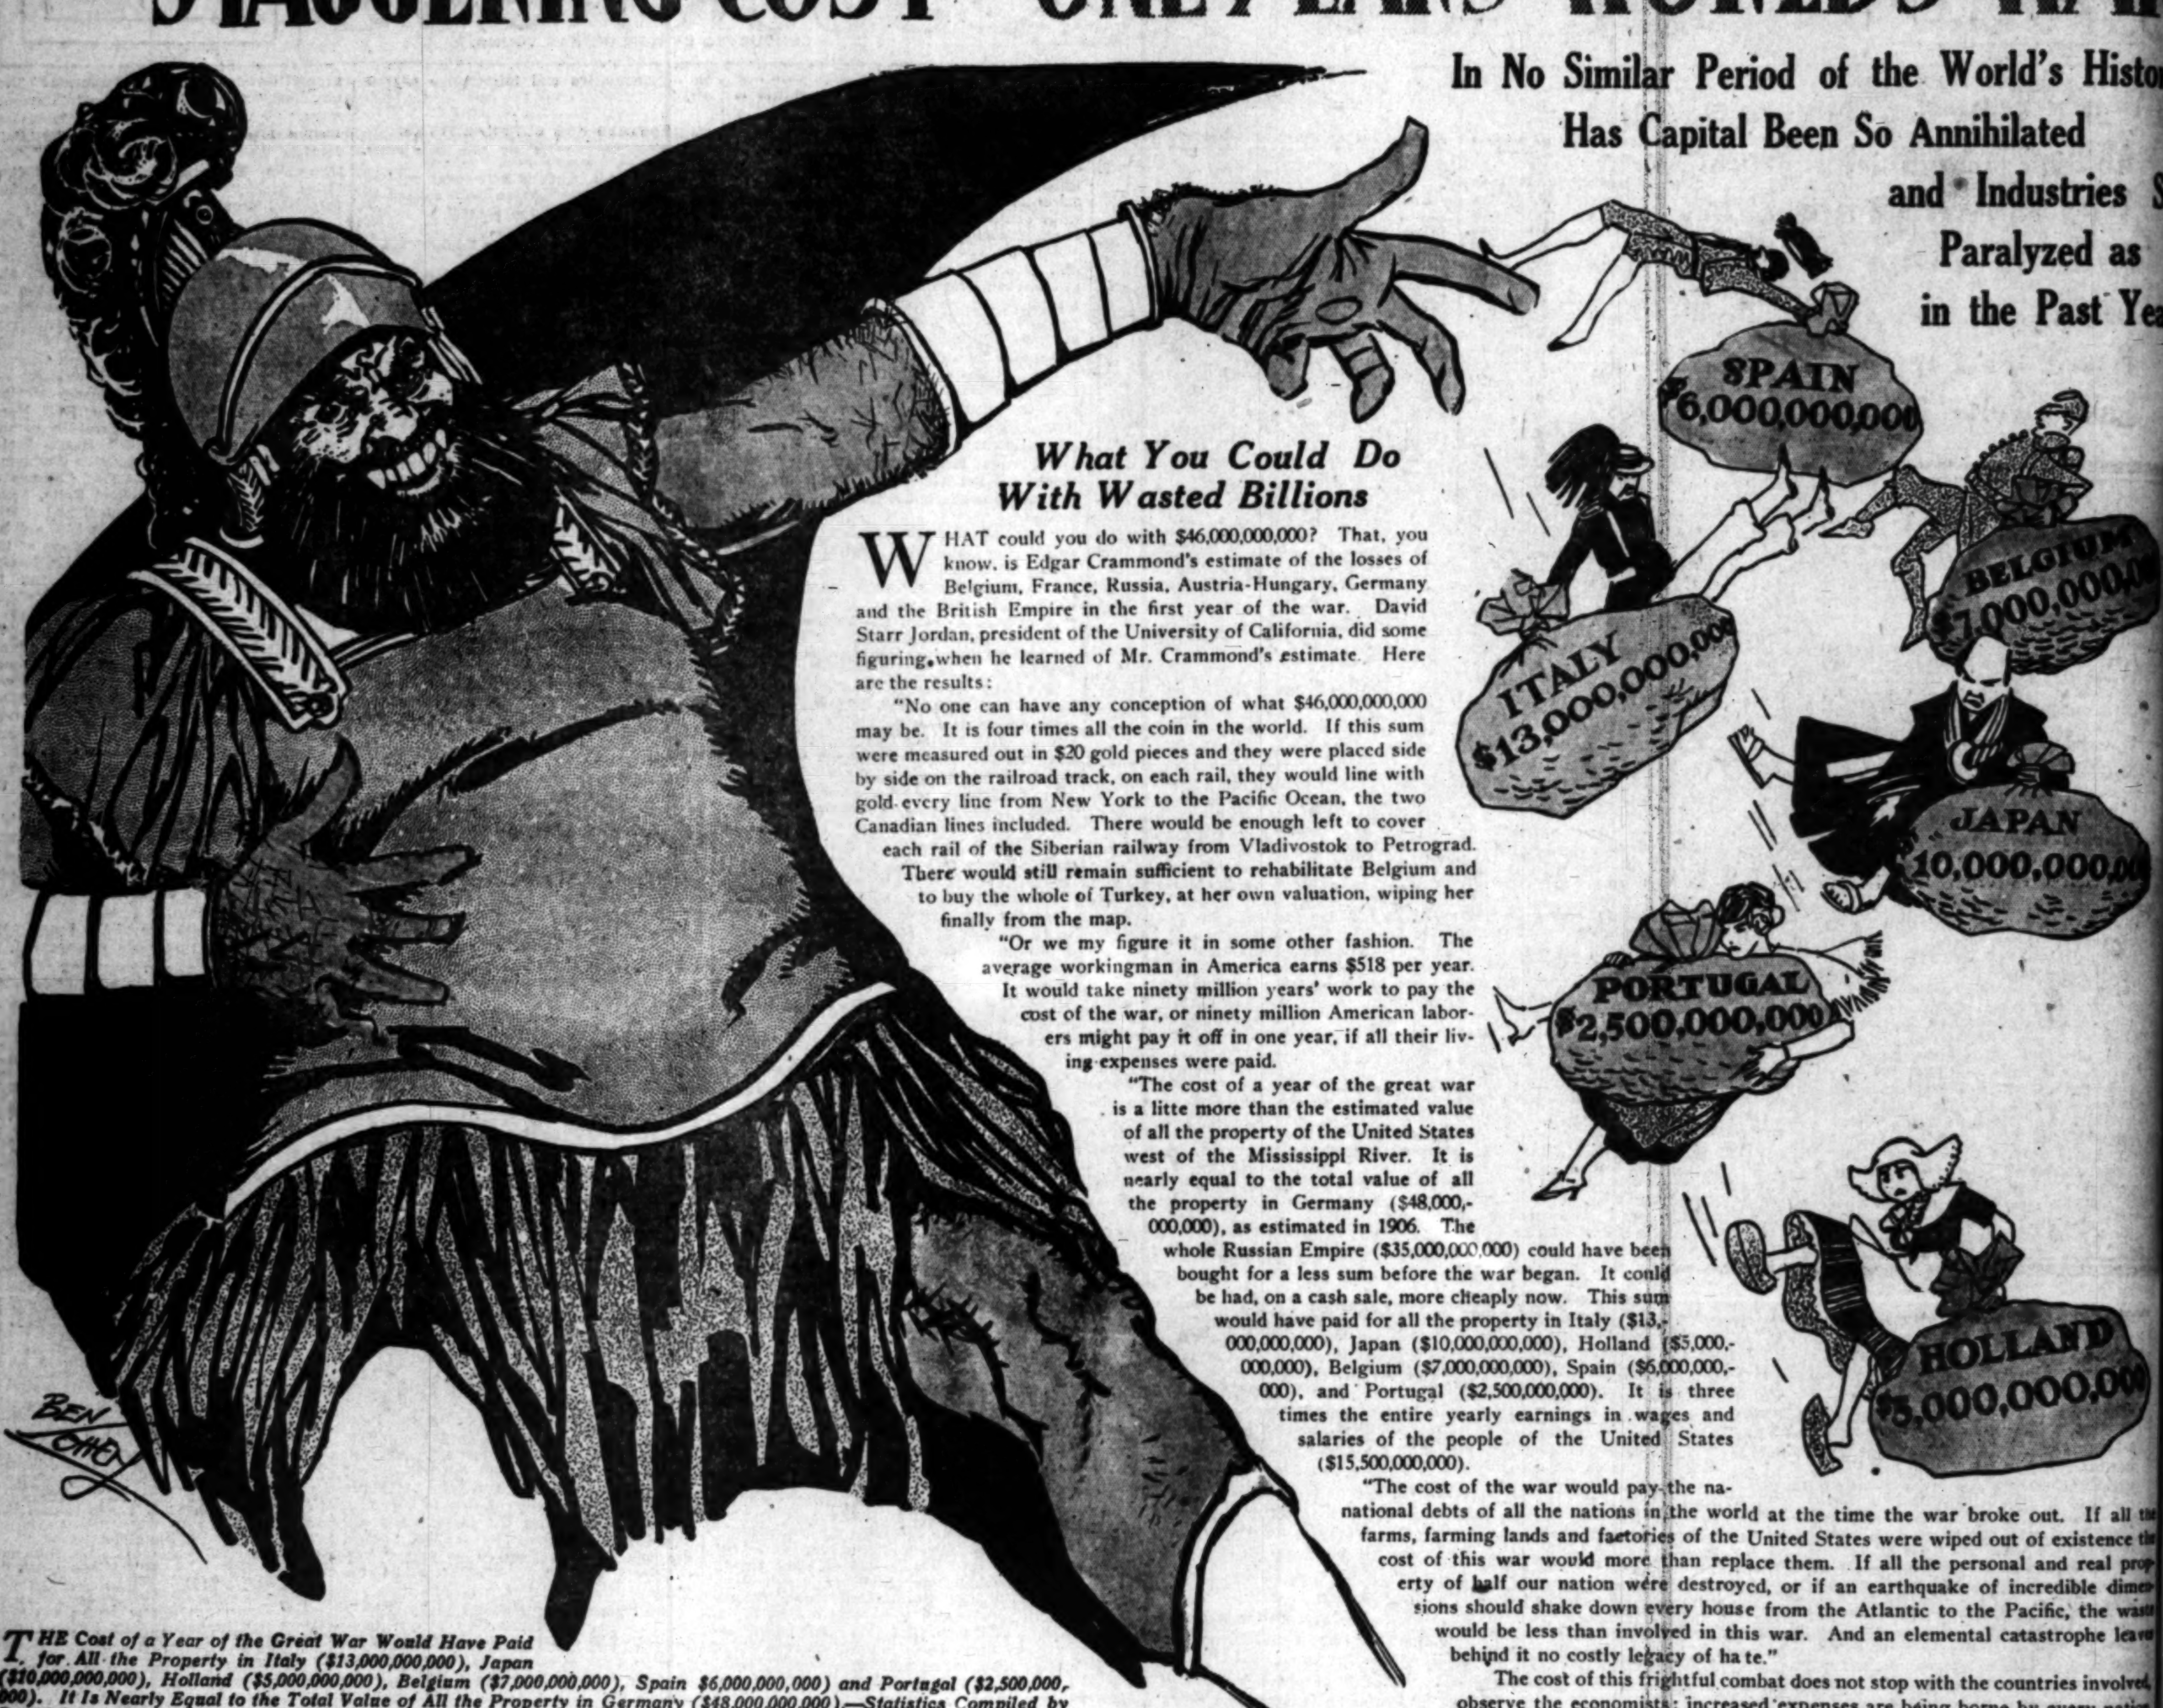
"THE SABBATH DAY'S JOURNEY."

Mrs. May Botts Dilley has more respect for the Bible than for science, and in "The Sabbath Day's Journey" (published by the author, Los Angeles,) has held closely to a literal interpretation of the Word. She writes clearly, without anger or argumentation, displays familiarity with theology's varied facts, and has constructed a book of unquestionable interest for conservative Christians.

John Jay Chapman, whose writings on the war have created much comment both in England and in this country, will publish in the near future a book entitled "Memories and Milestones." This volume is chiefly composed of the author's reminiscences of well known people of New England—Julia Ward Howe, Charles Eliot Norton, President Eliot, Martin Brimmer and other equally well-known figures are pleasingly touched upon. There are a variety of other subjects under discussion, such as "The Modern Drama," "Church Schools," "Modern Art," "Greek as a Pleasure" etc., etc. The whole is treated in Mr. Chapman's peculiarly intimate and fascinating style. Most of his readers remember with delight such of his works as "William Lloyd Garrison," "Causes and Consequences," "Emerson and Other Essays," "Practical Agitation," etc., etc.

The STAGGERING COST of ONE YEAR'S WORLD'S WAR

In No Similar Period of the World's Histor Has Capital Been So Annihilated and Industries S Paralyzed as in the Past Year



THE Cost of a Year of the Great War Would Have Paid for All the Property in Italy ($13,000,000,000), Japan ($10,000,000,000), Holland ($5,000,000,000), Belgium ($7,000,000,000), Spain $6,000,000,000) and Portugal ($2,500,000,000). It Is Nearly Equal to the Total Value of All the Property in Germany ($48,000,000,000).—Statistics Compiled by David Starr Jordan.

What You Could Do With Wasted Billions

WHAT could you do with $46,000,000,000? That, you know, is Edgar Crammond's estimate of the losses of Belgium, France, Russia, Austria-Hungary, Germany and the British Empire in the first year of the war. David Starr Jordan, president of the University of California, did some figuring when he learned of Mr. Crammond's estimate. Here are the results:

"No one can have any conception of what $46,000,000,000 may be. It is four times all the coin in the world. If this sum were measured out in $20 gold pieces and they were placed side by side on the railroad track, on each rail, they would line with gold every line from New York to the Pacific Ocean, the two Canadian lines included. There would be enough left to cover each rail of the Siberian railway from Vladivostok to Petrograd. There would still remain sufficient to rehabilitate Belgium and to buy the whole of Turkey, at her own valuation, wiping her finally from the map.

"Or we my figure it in some other fashion. The average workingman in America earns $518 per year. It would take ninety million years' work to pay the cost of the war, or ninety million American laborers might pay it off in one year, if all their living expenses were paid.

"The cost of a year of the great war is a litte more than the estimated value of all the property of the United States west of the Mississippi River. It is nearly equal to the total value of all the property in Germany ($48,000,000,000), as estimated in 1906. The whole Russian Empire ($35,000,000,000) could have been bought for a less sum before the war began. It could be had, on a cash sale, more cheaply now. This sum would have paid for all the property in Italy ($13,000,000,000), Japan ($10,000,000,000), Holland ($5,000,000,000), Belgium ($7,000,000,000), Spain ($6,000,000,000), and Portugal ($2,500,000,000). It is three times the entire yearly earnings in wages and salaries of the people of the United States ($15,500,000,000).

"The cost of the war would pay the national debts of all the nations in the world at the time the war broke out. If all th farms, farming lands and factories of the United States were wiped out of existence th cost of this war would more than replace them. If all the personal and real prop erty of half our nation were destroyed, or if an earthquake of incredible dimen sions should shake down every house from the Atlantic to the Pacific, the wast would be less than involved in this war. And an elemental catastrophe leav behind it no costly legacy of ha te."

The cost of this frightful combat does not stop with the countries involved, observe the economists; increased expenses are being borne by every natio

IN NO twelve months of the world's history have so many lives been lost, so much productive capital been annihilated or made less profitable, so many industries demolished or rendered inoperative, as in those that close the first year of the present titanic war. Former wars have concerned hundreds of thousands of men and millions of capital. The cost of this war will be reckoned in millions of men and billions of capital.

In times of peace the armament bill of Europe has in recent years been 1,500,000 men and $5,000,000,000 taken from productive employment, the former representing a loss of wages of $750,000,000. In regard to the year now gone by in bloody conflict of arms, the prodigious cost not only to the belligerents but to the entire world can neither be demonstrated nor calculated.

To the number of troops now actually at war must be added those mobilized by neutral European countries, each maintained by extraordinary war credits and all representing a loss in wages and national production reaching billions. And to these totals should be added the enormous losses to the industry and commerce of belligerents, as well as the neutral nations—for no people have remained untouched by the disaster-bearing effects of this world catastrophe.

Although neither science nor art, mathematics nor the imagination may now present even an illusion of the reality of the losses sustained by the world, attention may be focused on certain results which have been reached by experts, after careful deduction.

Edgar Crammond, who is a widely recognized authority on war finance, concludes that the cost to Belgium, France, Russia, Austria-Hungary, Germany and the British Empire for the first year has been $46,000,000,000. His total was arrived at by figuring the direct cost to the six nations specified, the destruction of property, the capitalized value of loss of human life and the loss of production.

Add to this $46,000,000,000 the drain on Italy, Turkey, Japan, Servia and Montenegro. Statistics prepared by war financiers other than Mr. Crammond estimate their combined expenditures and losses to date as $5,000,000,000. They fix the loss to neutral nations—loss in commerce and domestic labor disturbances, and in money to provide for an increased number of troops at $3,000,000,000. Thus the total exactions made by wars since one year ago, when Austria-Hungary declared war on Servia, amount to $54,000,000,000!

Mr. Crammond estimates that the total cost to Belgium amounts to $2,632,500,000, which total is made up as follows:

Direct expenditures of Belgian government, $182,500,000.

Destruction of property, $1,250,000,000.

Capitalized value of the loss of human life, $200,000,000.

Loss of production and other losses, $1,000,000,000.

The direct cost of maintaining the army of France in the fighting line and in the reserve, Mr. Crammond fixes at $7,500,000 a day. The indirect losses of France have been very great. Practically the whole of the male population between 19 and 50 has been withdrawn from production, and Mr. Crammond estimates the total loss of production at $3,125,000,000. During the first five months of the war the foreign trade of France had decreased as follows:

Imports, $425,000,000, 60.7 per cent.
Exports, $395,000,000, 67 per cent.

The total cost to France of one year's participation in the war Mr. Crammond estimates at $8,432,000,000, made up as follows:

Direct expenditure of French government	$2,767,000,000
Destruction of property	800,000,000
Capitalized value of loss of human life	1,740,000,000
Loss of production	3,125,000,000

The total cost to Russia, according to this statistician, might be estimated at $7,000,000,000, namely:

Direct cost to the government	$3,000,000,000
Destruction of property	500,000,000
Capitalized value of loss of human life	1,500,000,000
Loss of production	2,000,000,000

Mr. Crammond places the cost to Austria-Hungary for the first year at $7,510,000,000, as follows:

Direct expenditure of government	$2,810,000,000
Destruction of property	500,000,000
Capitalized value of loss of human life	1,200,000,000
Loss of production	3,000,000,000

The statistician says that there is no parallel in modern history to the economic conditions which vast displacement of labor has produced in Germany, and states that in his opinion Germany's loss of production amounts to at least $4,790,000,000.

He further estimates that the average cost of maintaining the German troops is $10,000,000 a day, or $3,650,000,000 a year. The naval expenditures for the first twelve months he estimates to be at least $250,000,000. Summing up, Mr. Crammond's figures on Germany:

Direct cost to government	$ 4,690,000,000
Loss of production	4,790,000,000
Capitalized value of loss to human life	4,395,000,000
Total	$13,875,000,000

Mr. Crammond estimates that the total expenditure of Great Britain to date total $3,540,000,000. The total direct and indirect cost, he says, might be figured thusly:

Direct expenditure of the government	$3,540,000,000
Capitalized value of loss of human life	1,500,000,000
Loss of production, etc.	1,250,000,000
Total	$6,290,000,000

The above aggregate represents about one-fourteenth of the national wealth and about one-twentieth of the wealth of the British Empire.

Cause of the War.

[Indianapolis News:] Here is a war's causes, as published in a Chinese student's summary of the Shanghai paper: "Now there is a great battle in Europe. This began because the Prince of Austria went to Servia with his wife. One man of Servia killed him. Austria was angry, and so write Servia. Germany write a letter to Austria: 'I will help you.' Russia write a letter to Servia: 'I will help you.' France did not want to fight, but they got ready their soldiers. Germany write a letter to France: 'You don't get ready, or I will fight you in nine hours.' Germany to fight them, pass Belgium. Belgium say: 'I am a country; I am not a road.' And Belgium write a letter to England about Germany, to help him. So England help Belgium." Who can do better in the same space?

History Says.

FIFTEEN BILLION HAVE GIVEN LIVES TO MOLOCH.

FIFTEEN BILLION lives have been lost in war since the beginning of authentic history, if the exhaustive researches made by Benjamin F. Trueblood, LL. D., are to be accepted. That the ancients also employed vast armies in time of conflict is proved by the following figures:

Ancient Thebes, it is said, could send 10,000 fighting men out of each of its hundred gates.

Ninus, the Assyrian King, in the twenty-second century B. C., led against the Bactrians 1,700,000 soldiers on foot and 200,000 mounted.

The old historians credit Xerxes with land and sea forces counting up to 2,641,000, with enough attaches, hangers-on, women, sutlers, etc., to make a host of more than 5,000,000.

Artaxerxes had at one time, before the battle of Cunaxa, an army nearly a million and a quarter strong.

Darius of Persia brought more than a million soldiers to Arbela.

Tamerlane is said to have met Bajazet's 1,400,000 with a force of 1,600,000.

Terah, King of Ethiopia, had 1,000,000 soldiers to call to his standards.

Compared with the extended battle line of today in Europe, the array of forces at ancient Canna was but a skirmish formation. There were 86,000 Romans and allies against 50,000 Carthaginians.

Hannibal is recorded as having destroyed 300,000 men during his campaign in Italy. Just before his time that country could send 1,000,000 men into the field.

Xerxes, in his attack on Greece, marched forward with an army of 600,000 warriors and a navy of 4200 ships.

KIN AGAINST KIN.

One of the anomalies of the present war is the fact that the heads of some of the nations engaged are closely related by blood ties or marriage. This is especially true of England, where the royal family is connected by descent or marriage with many of the German imperial, royal and ducal houses. The King of England, for instance, is a cousin of the German Emperor.

King George is also at war with his cousin, Duke Karl Eduard of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha; his second cousin, Duke Ernst August of Brunswick; his third cousin, Grand Duke Adolph Frederick of Mecklenburg-Strelitz; his third cousin, King Friedrich August of Saxony; his third cousin, Archduke Charles Francis, heir to the Austrian throne, and his third cousin, Erust Bernhard, Duke of Saxe-Meiningen.

The Czar of Russia is at war with his brother-in-law, Grand Duke Ernst Ludwig of Hesse. King Albert of Belgium, who is King George's second cousin, is at war with his brother-in-law, Prince Charles of Hohenzollern, and King Albert's wife is a Duchess of Baden.

WAR EXPLOSIVES.

Different Classes Must be Selected for Use in Guns and Bombs and Gas Volume Measured.

[Chicago Herald:] The history of modern explosives used in the great war dates back to 1888, when smokeless powder for service work became a possibility. Up to that time gunpowder had been the explosive used both as a charge for the gun and as a bursting charge for shells, and, although, as a result of thirty years' work, the forms of gunpowder used had be n so beautifully fitted to the work that had to be done as to render the powder charge a "propellant," the result of the firing of which could be absolutely predicted, the fact that more than one-half the weight of the powder was driven from the gun in the form of smoke became an insuperable objection.

In 1886 the largest guns we had weighed 110 tons, fired a charge of 960 pounds of prism powder, threw a shell weighing 1700 pounds, and were 16.25 inches in diameter, being, therefore, larger than the 16-inch guns the Germans are supposed to possess, while our own larger guns are now the 15-inch on the new superdreadnaughts, throwing a 2000-pound shell with 50 per cent. greater muzzle velocity than the old 16.25-inch gun using gunpowder. The secret of this increase in efficiency is that the charge of the old 110-ton gun had not only to draw out the projectile, but also some 500 pounds of smoke, while less than 50 per cent. of the charge was effective.

The introduction of rapid-fire machine guns made the smoke trouble still more serious and rendered a smokeless power a necessity.

In any successful explosive certain conditions have to be fulfilled. One must be able to concentrate in a small space bodies which will act upon each other independent of the air with enormous rapidity, forming the l est possible volumes of gas, wh having to find way for itself, the explosive effect. If this ch takes an appreciable time the can be used as a "propellant" i gun, and gunpowder is of this ch acter. When, however, the cha takes place practically instantane it cannot be used in a gun and is in high-explosive shells, bombs, pedoes and mines, and such b we call "high explosives," gunco and nitroglycerin being examples this class. When, during the for tion of the gas from the solid in plosion, other solid compounds formed as well, the solids are bl out in fine particles and form a cl smoke. But if only gases are duced the explosion is smoke Gunpowder on being fired gives m than half its weight as solids, therefore, forms a cloud of sm Guncotton is resolved entirely gases and gives no smoke.

No Smoke on Battlefield.

[Popular Mechanics:] One of marked features of the European c flict that distinguishes it from wars of the past is the absence smoke on the firing lines. Owing the use of smokeless powder, smoke is made when a rifle is charged, while the heaviest artil throws off nothing more than a mist and disappears within a few onds after the gun is fired. when shrapnel or a shell explode the enemy's lines is there anyth visible in the way of smoke, the purpose being to conceal the tion of the guns throwing the jectiles while making the where the projectiles explode visible. The expression, "the of battle," so faithfully descriptive the wars of the past, has little ing when applied to a modern

PERHAPS the most outstanding phase of the war at the end of its first year (July 28) is its un-precedented horror, and it shall be object of this article to bring it fore the mind of the reader as arply and graphically as possible the use of a number of vivid illus-ations and by the arrangement of atistics in a novel fashion. These il-strations and statistics were com-ed by A. E. Stilwell, an American ancier of renown, for use in his ok, "To All the World."

"In the French and German war 1870 there were, in both armies, over 1,700,000 men engaged. The ortality lists in both armies were out 300,000 killed, or about 19 per t., which ignores the number that d from wounds and exposure with-say, six months of the conclusion hostilities—about another 5 per t. To be conservative, however, and on the side of underestimation, we l say that the total casualties unted to 20 per cent. of the con-ding forces.

ONE-FIFTH MEET DEATH.

"But how different is this war from others. The war of 1870 was decid-within a few weeks, excepting the ge of Paris, where hunger was as at a factor as shot and shell. Also, was fought entirely on land; and, ther, the implements then used re by no means as destructive as se now employed. There were no igibles, no aeroplanes, no '75,' and Krupp guns were very inferior to se of today. Indeed, the death could safely be estimated at 20 cent. We must remember the cas-lties incident on sea engagements the destruction of the merchant rine, deaths from hunger and sui-among women unable longer to the strain imposed on them. To err on the safe side we will as-e that there are 27,000,000 men the armies and navies of the con-ing nations, and that the death will not be 20 per cent., as before, 15 per cent. This implies a list of

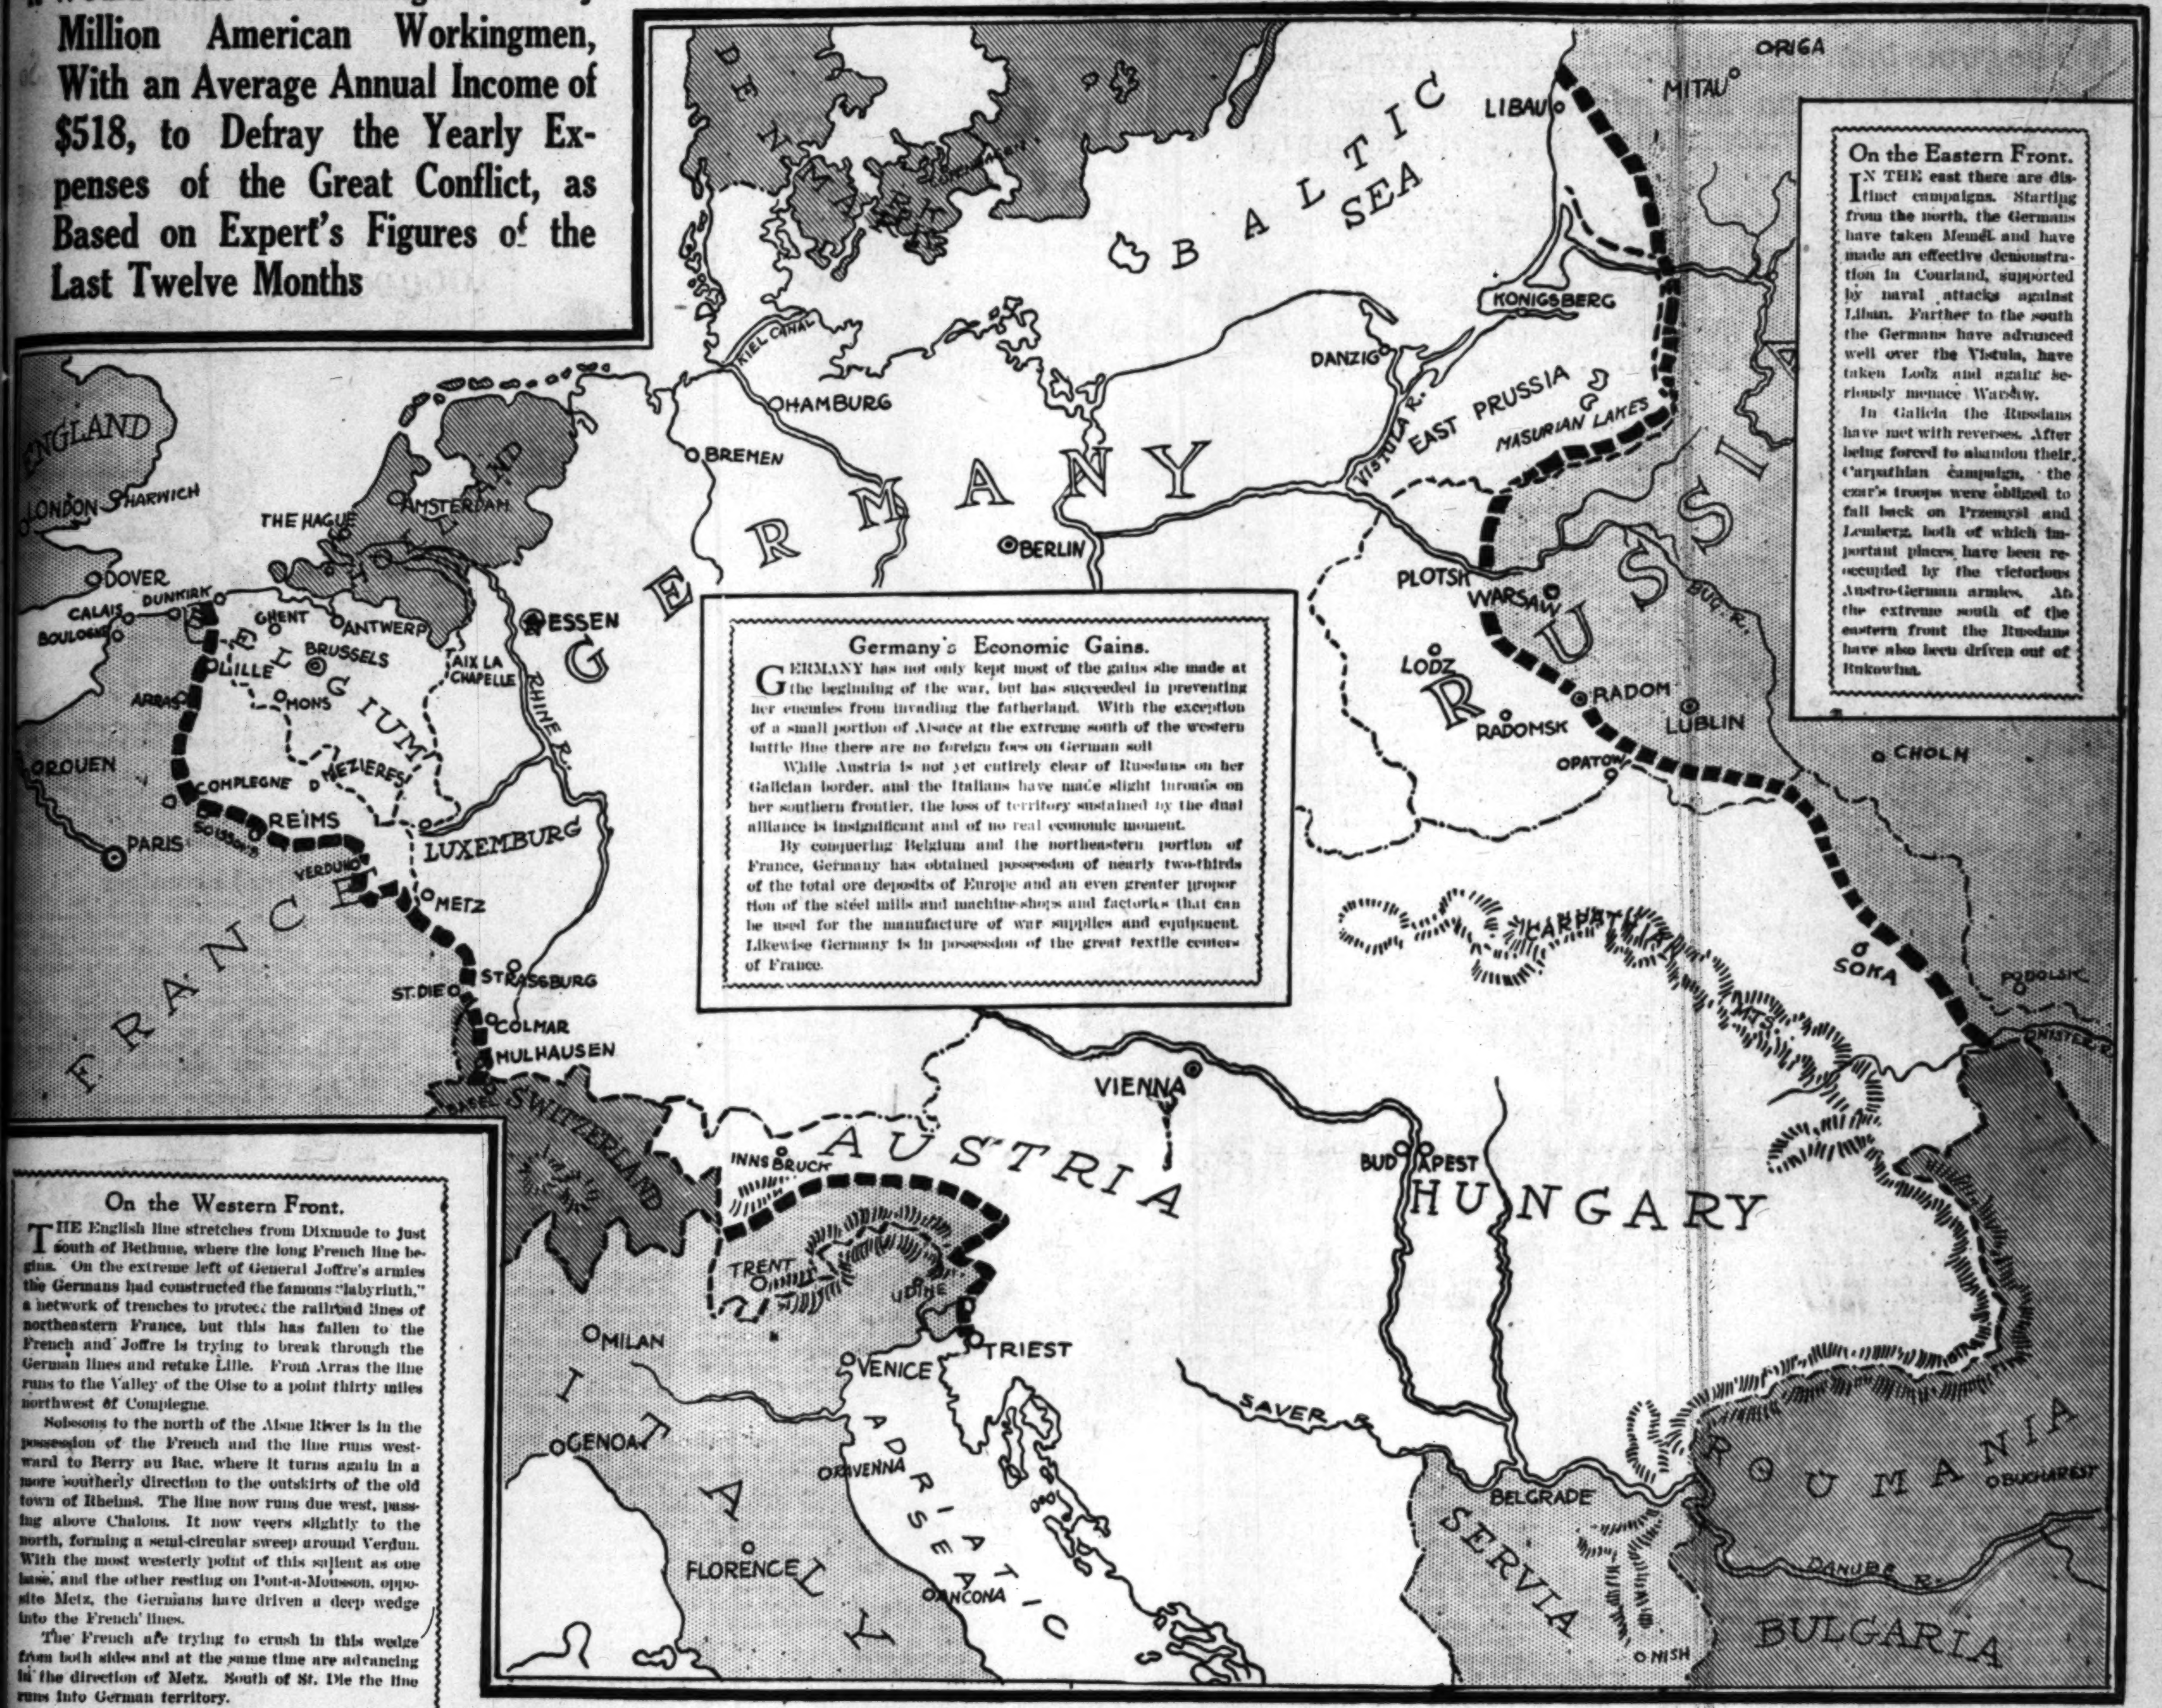
The Results as Shown by the Changed Map of Europe



On the Eastern Front.

IN THE east there are distinct campaigns. Starting from the north, the Germans have taken Memel and have made an effective demonstration in Courland, supported by naval attacks against Libau. Farther to the south the Germans have advanced well over the Vistula, have taken Lodz and again seriously menace Warsaw.

In Galicia the Russians have met with reverses. After being forced to abandon their Carpathian campaign, the czar's troops were obliged to fall back on Przemysl and Lemberg, both of which important places have been reoccupied by the victorious Austro-German armies. At the extreme south of the eastern front the Russians have also been driven out of Bukowina.

Germany's Economic Gains.

GERMANY has not only kept most of the gains she made at the beginning of the war, but has succeeded in preventing her enemies from invading the fatherland. With the exception of a small portion of Alsace at the extreme south of the western battle line there are no foreign foes on German soil

While Austria is not yet entirely clear of Russians on her Galician border, and the Italians have made slight inroads on her southern frontier, the loss of territory sustained by the dual alliance is insignificant and of no real economic moment.

By conquering Belgium and the northeastern portion of France, Germany has obtained possession of nearly two-thirds of the total ore deposits of Europe and an even greater proportion of the steel mills and machine-shops and factories that can be used for the manufacture of war supplies and equipment. Likewise Germany is in possession of the great textile centers of France.

On the Western Front.

THE English line stretches from Dixmude to just south of Bethune, where the long French line begins. On the extreme left of General Joffre's armies the Germans had constructed the famous "labyrinth," a network of trenches to protect the railroad lines of northeastern France, but this has fallen to the French and Joffre is trying to break through the German lines and retake Lille. From Arras the line runs to the Valley of the Oise to a point thirty miles northwest of Compiegne.

Soissons to the north of the Aisne River is in the possession of the French and the line runs westward to Berry au Bac, where it turns again in a more southerly direction to the outskirts of the old town of Rheims. The line now runs due west, passing above Chalons. It now veers slightly to the north, forming a semi-circular sweep around Verdun. With the most westerly point of this salient as one base, and the other resting on Pont-a-Mousson, opposite Metz, the Germans have driven a deep wedge into the French lines.

The French are trying to crush in this wedge from both sides and at the same time are advancing in the direction of Metz. South of St. Die the line runs into German territory.

ERHAPS the most outstanding phase of the war at the end of its first year (July 28) is its un edented horror, and it shall be object of this article to bring it e the mind of the reader as ply and graphically as possible he use of a number of vivid illus ons and by the arrangement of stics in a novel fashion. These il ations and statistics were com by A. E. Stilwell, an American ncier of renown, for use in his "To All the World."

n the French and German war 1870 there were, in both armies, over 1,700,000 men engaged. The tality lists in both armies were t 200,000 killed, or about 19 per , which ignores the number that from wounds and exposure with- ay, six months of the conclusion ostilities—about another 5 per . To be conservative, however, and on the side of underestimation, we say that the total casualties nted to 20 per cent. of the con ing forces.

ONE-FIFTH MEET DEATH.

ut how different is this war from thers. The war of 1870 was decid ithin a few weeks, excepting the of Paris, where hunger was as a factor as shot and shell. Also, as fought entirely on land; and, er, the implements then used by no means as destructive as now employed. There were no ibles, no aeroplanes, no '75,' and Krupp guns were very inferior to of today. Indeed, the death could safely be estimated at 20 ent. We must remember the cas s incident on sea engagements the destruction of the merchant e, deaths from hunger and sui among women unable longer to the strain imposed on them. err on the safe side we will as that there are 27,000,000 men armies and navies of the con nations, and that the death will not be 20 per cent., as before, per cent. This implies a list of 4,000,000 men killed or dead from wounds received—a very conservative estimate. Twenty-seven million men engaged in one war; while the total of all the men engaged in all the wars of the world since 1793 is only 18,500,000. If the mortality lists of the present war run as high as 20 per cent. the loss of life will be commensurate with that of all the wars of the last 122 years.

A GREWSOME PICTURE.

"Let us look more closely at this picture of slaughter. The average width of a man's head from ear tip to ear tip is about nine inches. Suppose that the heads of all the killed were placed together in a line, each head covering a space of twelve inches. This would mean 4,000,000 feet of heads—say, 800 miles—forming a human hedge from London to Berlin. Remember, these are not the heads of the weak and sickly and useless, but, in 90 per cent. of the cases, the heads of youth and strength, the flower of their respective nations.

"Let us regard it from another angle. Say that the average height of each soldier is 5 ft. 9 in. If each one of the dead were lined up, occupying six feet of space, they would form a line 4800 miles long, near one-fifth of the world's circumference. If the average speed of a train be thirty miles per hour, that train would require nearly six days, running continuously, to pass this line. Again, if these 4,000,000 dead were laid in rows of 500 and stacked body on body in tiers, the stack would be over a mile and a quarter high.

"Take another illustration. Say that four feet is the distance from tip to tip of the outstretched hands of the average person. We may take it that 50 per cent. of these dead are married, and, on this basis, if all the widows caused by the war were to join hands the line resulting would be 1600 miles long.

"Each of the dead no doubt had one parent living, which gives us 4,000,000 bereaved parents, who, grouped in the same way, would form a line 3200 miles long. Then there will be at least 4,000,000 fatherless children, who by joining hands, would stretch for 2400 miles. Thus we have a total of 7200 miles of mourners—wives, parents and children.

"These illustrations are undoubtedly ghastly to contemplate, but if the victims could endure the suffering and death that came to them in battle surely the reader can endure to contemplate these conditions.

SHOCKING TOTAL MAIMED.

"It is estimated that 1 per cent. of the men engaged will lose one or both arms, and that the same proportion will lose one or both legs. Let us figure, however, that less than one-half of 1 per cent. of these 27,000,000 will be deprived of an arm and the same number of a leg. The average length of the human arm is eighteen inches. Even at this modest figuring if each amputated hand could grasp the stump of the next the result would be thirty miles of arms. If the legs were similarly placed they would extend for forty miles; and arms and legs, lining each side of the road, would reach from London to the sea.

"When the present cataclysm has spent itself, and the nations are appalled at the increased taxes that must be borne by every citizen of any of the countries involved, we must not forget the many men minus arms and legs, and with livings reduced to a mere pittance. We must remember also the 2,000,000 helpless wrecks, insane, blind, wounded, dismembered, or too ill ever to work again.

NO ESTIMATE OF ANGUISH.

"One more illustration. Grant that the average age of the 4,000,000 either killed or dead from exposure and disease was 30 years. The expectation of life at that age, according to mortality tables issued by the insurance companies, is another thirty-five years. Calculating on this basis, we have 140,000,000 years of life that have been taken from the world, leaving out of account the other 2,000,000 whose lives will probably be shortened by the privations of campaigning. Altogether we may say that the tax on years of human life will amount to 200,000,000 years snatched from the lives of young and vigorous men.

"Perhaps the most tragic feature of this war is the suffering of the women. Is it difficult to conceive of their anguish? The mothers, bowed with years, standing at the portals of the next world, awaiting the last call, their heads with halos of white born from the long toil and sacrifices for their loved ones; and now, when peace should be their portion, their manly sons, in answer to their country's call, are taken from them to fight in distant lands. Where are they tonight? Perhaps suffering in those mud-soaked, germ-producing trenches, or shot or left dying alone on the battlefield. Are their names among the missing? Are they dead, buried in unknown graves? Are their bodies floating, with hundreds of others, in rivers and seas? Or have they been burned on some obscure field? The nights are long and almost drive them mad, and the morning brings no relief.

"Millions of women, too, are driven from their homes by the advance of the conquering force, or left in the district with their homes utterly destroyed and themselves forced to herd in fields and hedges with the cattle. Surely their lot is far worse than that of the soldier in the trenches. He has the Red Cross to attend him when he is injured, because he is a fighting unit, of value to the nation, fodder for cannon, and they feed him and care for him so that he may fight again.

THE PENSIONER'S FATE.

"Take the case of the young wife. Before her were years of hope. Her husband was able to earn a good living, and their home was partly paid for. One or more children have blessed their union. How bright was the future with its store of years, its untrodden paths, hopes and ambitions! Now she is alone, with nothing to live upon but the beggarly pittance granted by the government. If her husband is killed out into the world she must go—perhaps to starvation, the future a blank. Or he may return to her a helpless invalid, able only to sit and watch her and his children in want."

These are the thoughts that must come to one as the first anniversary of the world's greatest war draws near. And the end is not yet in sight.

THE FEEDING OF BELGIUM.

Appreciation of the Spontaneous Relief Movement Started and Maintained in the United States.

[Manchester Guardian:] Among the entirely good and noble things which this war has brought about is the extraordinary work of relief carried out by the people of the United States in Belgium. Among her countless trials, Belgium has not had to face starvation. Yet by the end of September she was running short of flour and other staples; and by the beginning of October whole districts were without supplies or hope of securing them. The Belgian committees for helping victims of the war, which were formed in August, had done their best. Belgian bankers, manufacturers and men of business had dipped to the bottom of their pockets in their efforts to save their land from a fate worse even than overrunning by Germany. Local bodies were formed up and down the devastated country to take care of the various communes. Despite the violence and cruelty of the German onslaught the proportion of the Belgian population that fled to Holland and to England in August was under 15 per cent. The fate of those that remained seemed certain to be a terrible one. The 20,000 francs or so a week that the wealthiest of the communies could afford in relief was lamentably insufficient, and it was clear that Belgium would starve if left to herself. Her need was desperate, immediate and apparently impossible to meet. America worked a miracle by creating in a week or two, from nothing, one of the biggest and most amazingly efficient business concerns the world has ever seen, and applying it to charity. It is the allies' part to avenge and rehabilitate Belgium. America has kept Belgium in being to await her regeneration. Her neutrality gave her the chance, but such a chance would have found any other nation paralyzed at the magnitude of the task. We are apt sometimes to smile indulgently at the pushful and "hustling" methods that mark American business. The slower-moving peoples will not in future forget that the spirit they call American saved Belgium from starvation; that America "made good" where an ounce less of well-directed hustle might have cost 1000 lives. The record of the commission will be one of the most inspiring pages in American history.

HISTORICAL MONUMENT RUINED.

The Famous Bronze Lion at Waterloo Said to Have Been Converted into Projectiles by Germans.

[Washington Star:] A little more than a century ago, June 18, 1815, the battle of Waterloo was fought, one of the world's most momentous conflicts. Since that day the field has been visited by countless thousands of tourists, who have studied the small space within which the fortunes of Europe were settled in a fight that, compared with the hostilities of today, was a mere skirmish in point of numbers and area.

Of chief interest at Waterloo—the battle was, in fact, not fought at Waterloo, but some distance south of the village—is a great mound of earth surmounted by a bronze lion, made some years after the battle to mark the spot where the Prince of Orange was wounded and to commemorate the defeat of Napoleon by the British and German allies

The mound is 200 feet high, composed of earth taken from the surrounding fields. The bronze lion at the summit weighs twenty-eight tons, and was cast from the metal of captured French cannon. It is related that in 1832 the French soldiers, marching across hte field of Waterloo on their way to Antwerp, hacked off part of the lion's tail to indicate their disapproval of this conspicuous token of a French defeat.

Word has lately reached this country that the bronze lion, which has been accepted by the Belgian people for nearly a century as a symbol of their independence, has been removed from its pedestal by the Germans and melted into ammunition for use against the British, French and Belgian forces. If this be true, the French cannon of 1815 have passed by a strange metamorphosis into German projectiles, used by one of the allies of the Waterloo campaign against another of the allies and their common foe of a century ago. The removal of this crowning feature of the Waterloo "mound" will be deeply regretted by all who have visited the field.

Ethical and Oral Righteousness

All disease manifests itself in the mouth. The tongue is a telltale, even when it does not talk.

The gums indicate the condition of the circulation.

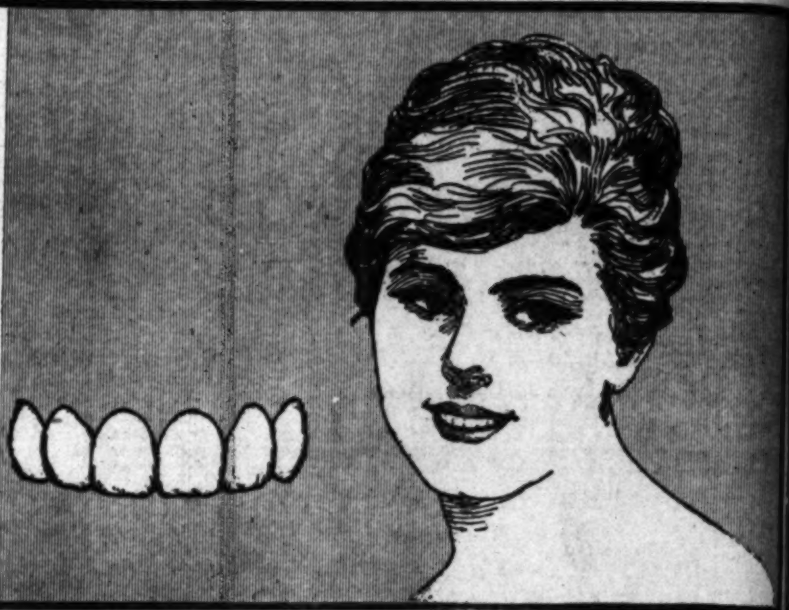
The breath is an advertisement of what the man is. An unclean mouth means thoughts to match.

The liar and cheat usually has a dirty mouth. Truth-telling people are not fevered. Also, they prize cleanliness, for cleanliness is not only next to godliness—it is godliness. We can't all be pure but we can be sanitary.

Do You Know

Dr. Charles Mayo

World famed surgeon, claims the next great step in medicine must come from the dentist. The newer and advanced methods of dentistry are explained by Dr. Homer exclusively in The Times.



BRIDGEWORK SHOWN HERE IS THE NEW KIND THAT EXPOSES NO METAL.

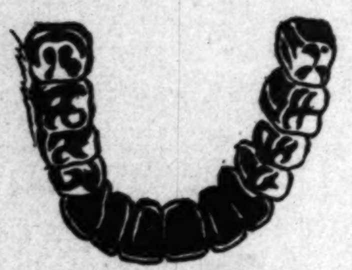
Recently Associated with Dr. Younger of Paris, Member Sixth International Dental Congress of London, Patron to His Majesty King George V.

The idea of the "ethical" dentist who refrains from advertising is founded on the proposition derived from the medicos that advertising is fakery. This no longer applies.

We are living so fast, and inventing so fast, and there are so many of us, that to advertise is not only a convenience, but a necessity. He who does not advertise is left to the spiders, the cockroaches and the microbes. And this applies to dentists and doctors as much as to druggists and drygoods dealers.

What the world needs is more publicity, not less.

He who has nothing to advertise is a dead one, whether he knows it or not.



Old-style bridgework as it appears in the mouth. Note how the gold comes down to the cutting edges of front teeth. Back teeth are all gold.

But the man who advertises now must be able to produce the goods. When he surprises a customer he must surprise him by giving him more than he expects.

Exaggeration, misstatements and misleading propositions lead straight to the bankruptcy court.

The legal maxim Caveat Emptor (let the buyer beware) no longer applies to the successful advertiser. He must tell the truth.

The world is tired of lies and is now trying the truth.

I believe that there is a beautiful, gracious, kindly, effective way of practicing dentistry. That way is analgesia.

The ambition of every good man in the world is to be a good public servant.

My ambition is to serve an intelligent clientele in the best possible way.

Analgesic

The safest and best method I have found of making all work on the teeth painless is by means of my local Analgesic. Analgesic is not a relative of cocaine, morphine or any other dangerous drug. It is practically harmless to men, women and children. It is simple and easy to apply, one of the secrets of its success being in the method of administering it.

"Through the use of Analgesic I can control the sense of pain in any particular tooth I wish. For example, if you should come to me to have a sensitive tooth filled, I would apply a few drops of Analgesic to the gum, and after two minutes you could not feel the slightest twinge of pain. You would stay wide awake all the time and retain full control over yourself, yet you could not feel any pain.

"Analgesic enables the dentist to prepare a sore or sensitive tooth for filling or crowning, to remove a live nerve, to cut off and grind the teeth and to extract or treat teeth without causing a particle of discomfort. No matter how sensitive the teeth or how difficult the work, Analgesic gives you absolute freedom from pain.

"I realize that to many people the term 'painless dentistry' means nothing. Everybody knows that charlatans have advertised painless dentistry ever since the discovery of ether. Of course, lots of people were fooled by these schemers, and when a dentist comes along with the real thing the public is skeptical and has to be shown before it will believe.

"That suits me perfectly, for I like nothing better than an opportunity to demonstrate my painless method to persons who are skeptical. If you could sit in my office for a few hours and watch the stream of patients entering and leaving, you would soon decide that I have been pretty successful in convincing people that my Analgesic is all I claim it to be. My practice is the largest in the city. Thousands of patients are treated by myself and assistants each year. Surely I could not acquire this enormous practice unless I really and truly had something of merit to offer my patrons.

"In years gone by, any dentist who extracted teeth painlessly advertised himself as a 'painless dentist.' Extracting teeth is not all there is to Dentistry.

"When I say that Analgesic makes dentistry painless, I refer not merely to the extraction of teeth, but to filling and crowning and all other dental work as well. Every dentist who employs gas or cocaine can extract your teeth painlessly, but when it comes to drilling out the cavity of a sensitive tooth for a filling, removing a nerve or grinding a tooth for a crown, it is entirely a different story."

"Fear of pain is responsible for thousands of people neglecting their teeth."

"The bravest man alive is a coward when it comes to visiting the dentist. Dread of suffering is a natural instinct with all of us, and no one can be blamed for wanting to avoid terrible jaw-splitting agony in the dental chair.

"People of a nervous temperament and those whose nerves are upset by the least suggestion of pain, will find Analgesic a blessing, indeed. Think what a relief it must be to walk into a dental office without fear, knowing absolutely that you will not have to endure a moment's discomfort.

"The advantages of painless dentistry over the old methods are many. In the first place, it saves the time and nervous energy, both of the patient and the dentist. It enables the dentist to do his work in a more thorough manner, owing to the patient's quietude when free from pain. It makes it possible to straighten crooked teeth with perfect ease, to treat diseased and abscessed teeth and to perform the most difficult work on highly sensitive teeth that could not be done under ordinary conditions without causing unbearable suffering.

"Consider, too, what a great thing Analgesic accomplishes in overcoming children's fear of dentists. Pain affects the sensitive nerves of a child far more than it does a grown person. For this reason, if for no other, parents should not force their children to endure torture in the dental chair, when it can easily be avoided. I have never seen a child or a grown-up, either, who was afraid to return to my office after having one tooth filled.

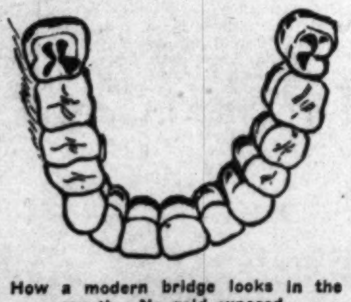
Perfection in Bridgework

"While many opportunities are offered by the dental profession for making beautiful and useful bridgework, there are many failures and disappointments. These are often due to the fact that the patient insists upon economizing to the extent of a few dollars, thereby prohibiting the use of the best materials in constructing the type of work best suited to the individual.

In no branch of dentistry has greater skill and ingenuity been displayed than in the perfection of artificial teeth and bridgework. Thirty or forty years ago the loss of the teeth was considered a grave misfortune, as there were no satisfactory substitutes in those days. It was almost inconceivable that the time would come when woman's beauty could be preserved and in many cases enhanced by the use of artificial teeth.

Thanks to modern dentistry, the loss of teeth no longer means the loss of beauty and youthful appearance. It is now possible to construct artificial teeth that cannot be distinguished from the genuine. In many cases the work of the dentist surpasses the work of nature, so far as beauty is concerned.

Not long ago a wonderful improvement was made over old-fashioned bridgework. Dental science succeeded in devising a bridge that exposes no gold. Prior to this invention bridgework was made unsightly by the vulgar display of gold used in the construction. Only the front teeth had any resemblance to natural teeth, being faced with porcelain. However, this did not conceal the presence of the bridge, because the metal showed at the top and bottom of each tooth, and the supporting teeth had to carry full gold crowns. No doubt you have seen people with old-style bridgework whose mouths had the appearance of a small gold mine.

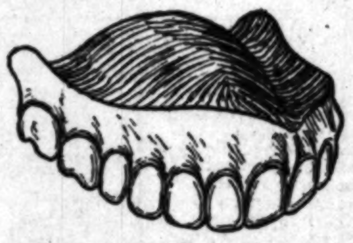


How a modern bridge looks in the mouth. No gold exposed.

The new kind of bridgework permits the restoration of missing teeth without bringing any metal into view. The gold crown or anchor teeth can be done away with, so that the whole set when completed presents an even row of natural-looking white teeth. Even the grinding surfaces of the teeth can be of porcelain, to match the remaining teeth, whereas in the old-style bridgework the grinding surfaces were of gold.

Bridgework is for people who have lost a few teeth and want to avoid the use of a partial plate. The partial plate is often a source of much annoyance, but this new bridgework offers a perfect substitute for the missing teeth. It is attached permanently in the mouth, and there is nothing about it to remind the wearer that he has artificial teeth.

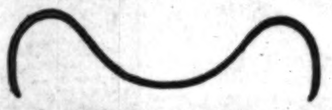
No person who has teeth missing should go about with vacancies in his jaws when he can have full set of teeth that will serve every purpose for years to come.



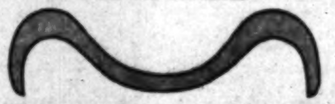
The new Metal Plate with gums carved to give natural appearance.

Rubber Plates Unnecessary.

In past years the wearer of false teeth got very little satisfaction out of them. At best, most rubber plates were hardly more than shopping blocks, and as for appearance, any one could tell at a glance that they were "store teeth." About all a person could do with them was to chop up his food so that it could be swallowed without choking him, but there was no way of grinding it up.



Section of ordinary rubber plate. Note the thickness.



Section of Metal Plate. Only ¼ as thick as rubber plate. The tongue comes nearer the palate, preventing that whistling noise "so common to rubber plates" when you talk.

Dentistry has so perfected the art of working metal that you can now get a plate which, for all practical purposes, is just as good as a set of natural teeth. The new metal plate is constructed so that the wearer can chew with a grinding motion insteal of the up-and-down chop peculiar to the old rubber plate. Furthermore, Metal Plates are free from the offensive odor all rubber plates have.

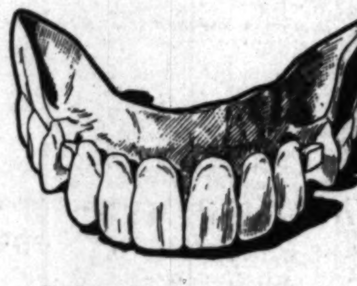
Metal is a perfect conductor of heat and cold; therefore it keeps the gums healthy, and prevents them from shrinking.

Very few people know why a rubbed plate becomes loose and wobbly after it has been used a few months. The reason is that the rubber plate does not carry off the heat generated under it, with the result that the tissues become shrunken. The shape of the gums and roof of the mouth are altered, and the plate no longer fits properly.

My new metal plate is so moulded that a more permanent suction is obtained than is possible with rubber. This, together with the extreme thinness, helps your speech and prevents the whistling noise when you talk. The gums are faced with vulcanite or porcelain to match the natural gums, and are carved by hand to give them a lifelike appearance.

One of the best features is its extremely light weight. It weighs less than half as much as the average rubber plate, is far thinner and yet practically unbreakable.

It will usually last a lifetime where a rubber plate, as a rule, can be used for only a few years at best. It is made to fill out the face and eliminate lines and wrinkles. It makes the wearer look years younger and gives pleasure and comfort in eating.



Roofless plates may be made if two teeth remain in either jaw.

Teeth Without Plates a Dental Triumph.

The Alveolar System of tooth restoration is applicable to cases where ordinary bridgework cannot be used. This remarkable method of replacing teeth without the use of plates was perfected by Drs. Martin and others several years ago, to which I have recently added improvements.

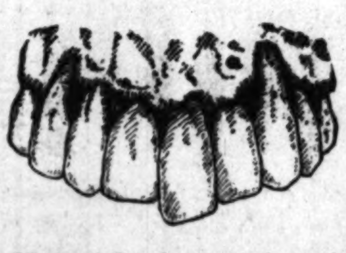
Alveolar teeth can be installed in any mouth where there are at least two sound natural roots left. Of course, when all the teeth are gone there is no way to avoid plates, as there would be nothing to hold the Alveolar structure in place.

The beauty of Alveolar teeth is that they look just like real teeth and are put in the jaws to stay. Once in the mouth they can be used as effectively as if they had grown there.

The perfection of the Alveolar System is considered one of the greatest achievements of dental science.

Pyorrhea, the White Plague of the Human Mouth, Now Curable.

How loose teeth can be saved and the soft, spongy or recedin gums restored to normal conditions.



Effects of Pyorrhea upon the teeth and gums.

The most insidious scourge that afflicts the teeth is known as pyorrhea or Riggs' disease, formerly regarded as an incurable malady. It is also called recession of the gums, inflammation of the gums and plain "sore gums."

There are three stages of pyorrhea, but the disease is seldom detected before the third stage is reached. The first indication of the trouble is usually a reddening of the gums at the margins, scarcely visible except upon close examination. This inflammation has its origin, not in the gums themselves, but in the membrane surrounding the roots of the teeth. Here is where the germs of pyorrhea do their destructive work, spreading from one tooth to another, until all the teeth are affected. As the disease progresses the membrane is destroyed, the gums recede and the teeth become loose in their sockets. In advanced cases pus forms around the teeth, oozing out under pressure, the gums become sore, spongy and bleed easily, holes called "pockets" appear between the teeth, and the affected teeth finally drop out.

There is never any pain in the first stages of pyorrhea, and for this reason the patient is seldom aware that anything is wrong with his teeth until pus exudes or the gums begin to shrink. Then, too, the disease usually has its start in a single tooth, and its progress is so slow that the slight symptoms pass unnoticed.

The old method of treating pyorrhea is called "scaling." It consists of scraping the roots of the teeth by means of a sharp instrument, which is passed between the tooth and the gum. This treatment alone is not sufficent to cure pyorrhea, because the inflamed and spongy condition of the gums need additional attention to restore them to health.

My new treatment is painless. Under ordinary conditions the process of scaling is very painful. However, the use of Analgesic does away with all discomfort and makes the operation a simple one.

It has been recently claimed that the germ responsible for pyorrhea is the same one that causes dysentery, also cases where the latter ailment was present it invariably disappeared as soon as the pyorrhea was cured.

No person afflicted with pyorrhea should permit his teeth to be extracted without first consulting a reliable dentist.

Compensation.

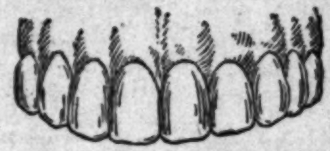
Just so much skill and energy as is expended upon the patient, just so much compensation should the professional man receive, and unless the dentist receives a fee that will repay him for his knowledge, skill, time and improved material, the patient should not expect the best.

"Decayed or neglected teeth are the means of spreading many infectious diseases through the community, including diphtheria, cholera and tuberculosis. By the act of coughing, sneezing or clearing one's throat there are projected by many of us into the air drops of mucous moisture containing countless tiny living organisms which, on coming in contact with respiratory organs incapable of resisting them, are the cause of a fresh infection. Decayed and imperfect teeth are reservoirs of germs in those who scatter infection.

"Remember that proper cleaning of the teeth and massaging the gums will prevent decay in most cases, and that when it does occur it can be stopped by a dentist.

"If people would consult the dentist as soon as their teeth begin to decay, they could save themselves a great deal of suffering and expense. It is quite true that a decayed tooth is a fertile field for disease germs, and much serious illness could be avoided by keeping the teeth in good condition.

"When the cavity first appears in a tooth is the time to have it filled. If promptly done it will last a lifetime, but if you wait until the tooth is like an eggshell you must pay the penalty for your neglect. Some people never pay any attention to a decayed tooth until it begins to ache, and then rush to the dentist to have it extracted. The loss of teeth in such cases is nearly always unnecessary. Nowa it is possible to make use of even badly deca teeth by crowning them.



How Dr. Homer's treatment causes the gums to heal up and return to normal condition.

"Suppose you have a tooth that is decayed a broken. A good dentist can crown it with gold, porc lain or enamel so that the tooth will be as serviceab as it ever was. If you have it extracted only an sightly vacancy is left, and you will soon be in l for artificial teeth."

Our Laboratory

It is a fact not generally known that city de tists make it a rule to do the filling of teeth the selves, and sometimes the extracting. But wh other work is required they take impressions a send these impressions out to have the work ma up in what are called dental laboratories.

These laboratories, or workshops, employ a lar force of men and boys who are known as den mechanics. They make up the case from the i pression the dentist sends them; but as they ne see the patient, their work lacks individuality a proper expression.

Under such circumstances, of course, a good fit, close match in color, or an artistic effect is the e ception. And yet in large cities a large percenta of bridgework, artificial teeth, crowns, inlays a regulating appliances are made this way.

We have our own laboratory and the man w makes the plate or bridge may always see the p tient, thereby insuring the highest grade of work.

Wife of Managing Editor of The Los Angeles Examiner Says:

"I am glad to say the new bridge Dr. Homer put in for me is just as good as the natural teeth. This is very gratifying when the operation was pronounced impossible by another Los Angeles dentist of long experience."

Intense in Its Own Individuality—Annual in Occurrence—Its Character and Importance is recognized throughout the Southwest

—From its inception in August, of 1907, to its great success in August, 1914, each year has served as a milestone and has seen Bullock's Clearance increase in magnitude, establish precedents and win New Friends—

—Because of the seriousness with which Bullock's has always regarded this Clearance---the thoughtful consideration that has always been given its conduct in every detail---it has won the confidence of thousands.

—And now the 9th in the series of these great events---commencing on Monday and continuing throughout August. With a knowledge of the items that have been provided, we believe we are conservative in stating

This 9th Clearance should prove to be the Most Important Sale that has been advertised in Southern California. Every section of the store will contribute—"Value Opportunities."

—The earnestness with which Bullock's devotes every energy to the building up of regular stocks, to the provision of sterling regular values, to the creation of "Service" and the avoidance of exaggerated radicalism in merchandising should emphasize the meaning of the words "Sale" and "Clearance" when Bullock's vouches for them.

—But twice a year, during Clearance in August and the week between Christmas and New Year's does Bullock's advertise Comparative Prices—Appreciate them.

—Last year the Silk Sale of Bullock's 8th Clearance was advertised to be "the greatest Silk Sale that Bullock's ever held"—It surpassed even our expectations.

—The record established then remains the record now—because of the remarkable values that were put forward in that great month — the radical reductions of "Once a Year"—

—This year we print another prophecy—

—"Monday—and the succeeding days of August—the Best Sales Records that were ever made by Bullock's Silk Store are to be Broken"—

—We make that statement with confidence because we know the silks that are here—the values that are here—the large variety and yardage of different silks.

—because we know how perfect is woman's appreciation of unusual silk values—

—because we know of the great number of new friends who have been won by Bullock's Silk Store during the past year and who —are looking forward to this sale with eagerness—because we know the demand for beautiful silks at regular prices as demonstrated by the great regular silk business that Bullock's is doing.

—Reductions have been taken that seem absolutely reckless—(they provide comparisons in prices that one can hardly help regarding with incredulity—

—Purchases have been made that have been peculiarly fortunate—

—Black silks—Colored Silks—Fancy Silks and Velvets have been secured in a wonderful array—We wish we could put just a few of the pieces here—so that you could gain an idea of the——Thousands of yards of simply Magnificent Silks and the Ridiculously low prices at which they are to be sold

—When we showed some of the offerings to some of the women in the store they fairly gasped in astonishment—they could not believe their eyes—

—Monday morning every woman in the Southwest who is within reach of Bullock's should plan to be at the store bright and early—ready to buy silks and to benefit through the other great opportunities that will be presented throughout the store—

—(See the windows today—know these comparative prices to be exactly as the silks have been or would be marked in Bullock's regular stocks.)

—"Isn't it fine that we have such a great, big portion of the second floor to give over to this sale of silks and dress woolens—and that the new arrangements have been made?" Yes, indeed it is. We appreciate every bit of the splendid room that is to help us render "service" in this sale.

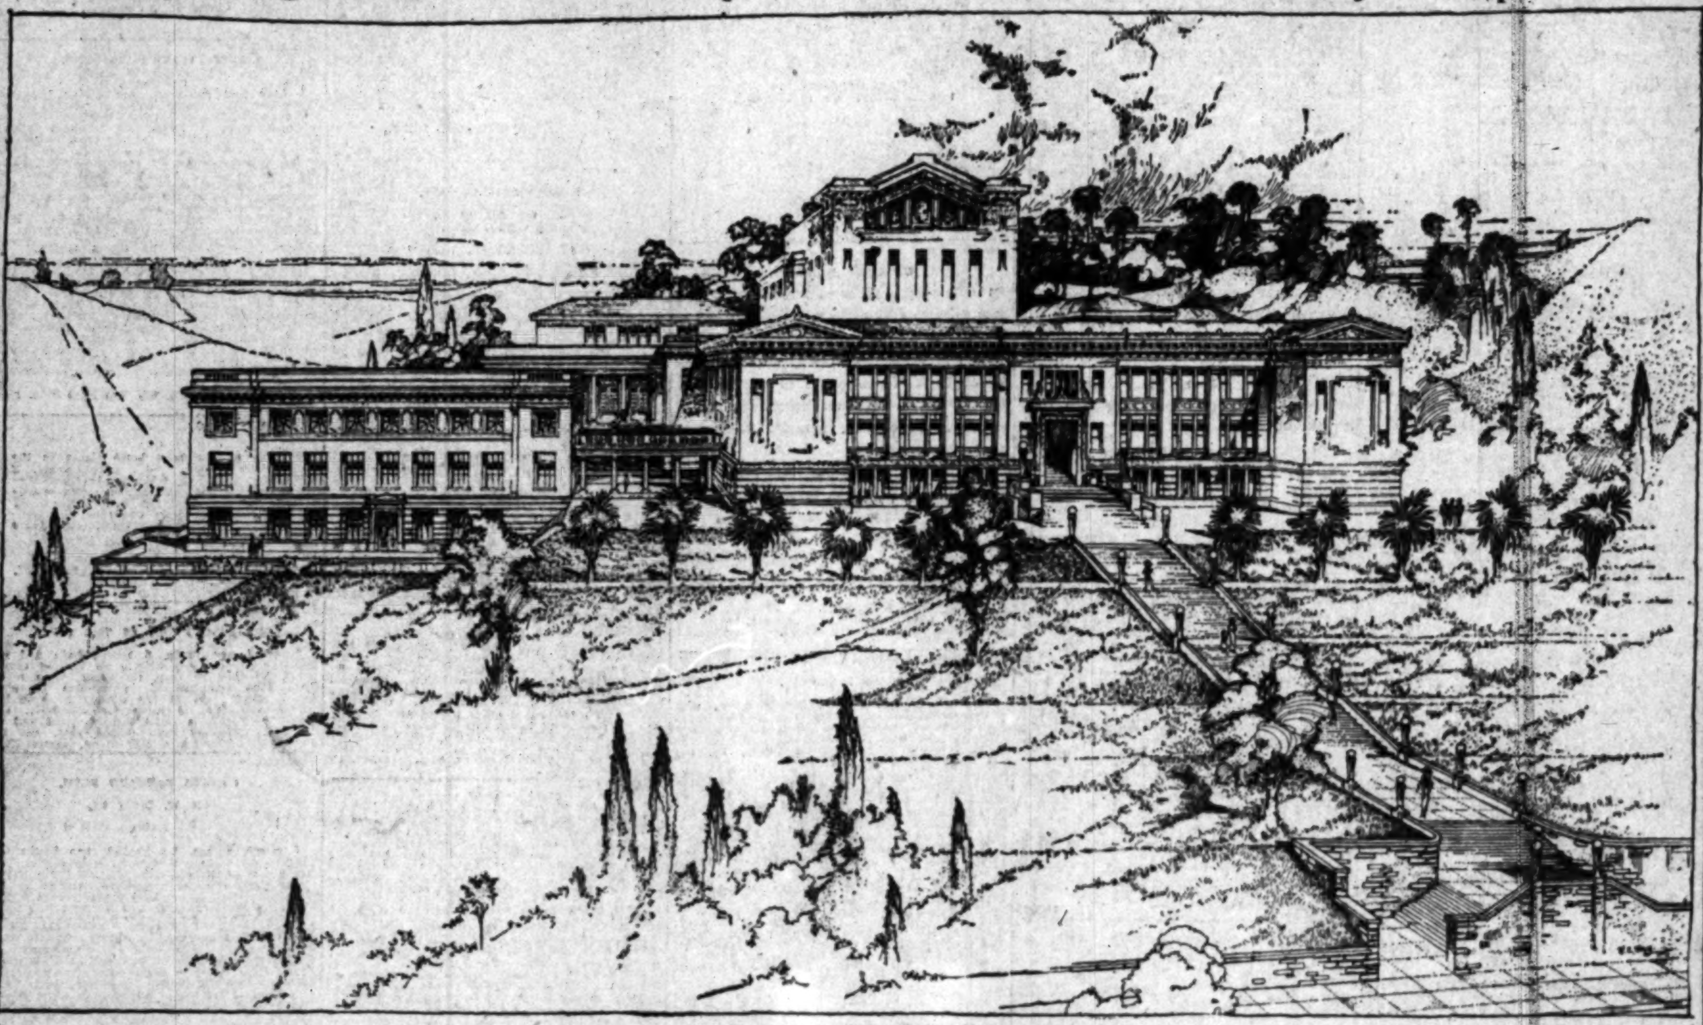
THE EVER-HIGH TIDE.

XXXIVTH YEAR. SUNDAY MORNING, AUGUST 1, 1915. THE MART: Transactions in Houses and Lots. Bargains in Blocks and Squares.

Imposing Educational Group to Rise on North Broadway Acropolis.



Lincoln High School, with contemplated additions.

The two structures in the foreground are the Administration building (right) and the Science Hall (left), both completed a year ago. Rising back of the former is the projected auditorium, which is to be flanked by the library and music buildings. Plans for the three last named edifices have just been completed by Edgar H. Cline of Needham & Cline, architects of the entire scheme.

FACT AND COMMENT.

"Clean-up time" is here again. Owners of weed-covered, rubbish-littered lots are receiving the annual order from the city to put their properties in decent condition. The same numbers of notices, to judge by all appearances are going into the waste-paper basket. The same owners who always respond to these summer memory-jogs are out with grubbing hoes and rakes putting their places in order. When it is all over and the notices quit going out, the city's official cleaning squads will clean the same lots at the expense of the same careless and indifferent owners, eventually ceasing operations for the same old reason—lack of funds. This fall Los Angeles will be the same patchwork of alternating neat and slovenly properties.

Last fall and even in the early part of the present year there seemed to be an unusual amount of enthusiasm for neatness all over the city. The appeal of various civic organizations and of the newspapers, generally, for a tidying up of the city before the heavy 1915 travel began met with a really encouraging response.

For a time it looked as though Los Angeles was going to be for once in its existence the most presentable city in America. Even the billboards that deface so much of the city appeared to be threatened.

Then came a general weariness of the whole subject and the thing was practically dropped. At about the same time the county officials seemed to lose interest in the rose bushes they had caused to be planted at intervals all along the county highways and the city fathers or the 1915 General Committee, or whoever it was that lined our downtown streets with huge cement pots, to conceive the idea that the palms therein could thrive without water.

"Here and Now."

Nineteen-fifteen is "here and now" (even if "prosperity" isn't), but the clean-up movement has lost its punch. Right now Los Angeles county, Los Angeles city, and many of the people that live in the city do not apparently care what the visitors who have thronged and are thronging here think of the community. The usual summer crops of weeds is flourishing where all may see, and the efforts of the conscientious and public spirited citizens who have enough pride in their city and themselves to really do their share toward brushing up the unsightly places are again being discounted by the indifference of their neighbors. And if only that enthusiasm could have been sustained a little longer all this need not have been! There's the sad part of it.

It is time the laborers for civic ideals quit worrying on the score of weed-grown lots, and turned philosophers. In the first place, it is all too apparent that the worrying will do no good and in the second place, the condition is one that can not last many years longer. All ~~of these lots will~~ some day be improved, and not a week goes by but sees many of them covered with buildings. The ugliness will be automatically blotted out sooner or later, as investors come to realize the wisdom and importance of building up the closer-in portions of the city. After that Los Angeles proper will be so infinitely more attractive that the people need not care what goes on in the outlying districts.

The Alternative.

There is only one other alternative to waiting for all the vacant lots to be filled in and that is to provide the Board of Public Works with funds sufficient to see its annual "clean-up" campaign to a finish. That, of course, is just a little drastic by comparison with the hap-hazard methods of the past, but it would probably work. The laws on the subject of weed and rubbish covered lots are fully adequate for all purposes if only the officials could be provided with the means of carrying them out.

Every year the "clean-up department" runs out of funds just about the time it gets in full swing. The preposterousness of the whole situation is all the more evident when it is considered that the law actually provides that all costs shall come back to the city in the form of a special tax upon the properties attended to.

But this is getting into the subject too deeply. If the public generally was really interested in municipal neatness, there would be more of it without any compulsion. Let's drop it!

TRADES FOR GROVE.

An exchange involving property valued in the aggregate at nearly $80,000 was closed last week when M. C. Hodge of this city traded a 45-room apartment-house on Westlake avenue for a 13-acre grove at Corona owned by J. E. Hilt. The grove went in at $2700 an acre, or $35,000, while the valuation of the apartments was put at $37,500. The deal was handled by P. J. Whitten of Corona.

Growing.

THREE NEW BUILDINGS FOR LINCOLN "HIGH."

Auditorium, Music Hall and Library to be Added to Imposing Group on North Broadway — Plans Completed and Bids All In — Still Other Structures Contemplated in Future.

THREE additional structural units in the comprehensive scheme for the modern and imposing Lincoln High School group on North Broadway will be started at once, according to the present plans of the Board of Education. Drawings and specifications for the contemplated new buildings have already been completed by the architect, Edgar H. Cline, of the firm of Needham and Cline, who planned the existing structures of the institution. The F. O. Engstrum Company is "low bidder" on the contract and will probably receive the award this week when the board meets to take the various bids under advisement.

The admbinistration building and science hall of the school were completed a year ago. Both are stately classic structures of the most up-to-date construction and appointment. With the cost of the commanding hill site at North Broadway and Prichard street figured in, the big educational project represents to date an outlay of about $175,000. Now it is proposed to spend another $100,000 or more in additional buildings and equipment.

The structures projected at this time are the auditorium, library and music hall, all three of which were contemplated in the original plan and spaces for which were mapped out on the ground scheme for the whole group. A future appropriation is expected to provide for the completion of the entire group plan through the construction of a manual arts building, a domestic science building and a gymnasium.

The auditorium will be 100 feet square and will contain an assembly room, seating 1500. This large hall will serve not only for school purposes, but for enighborhood and other public meetings in northeast Los Angeles. The building will dominate the entire group not only in an architectural sense, but on account of its elevated position with respect to the other structures. It will stand directly back of the administration building.

The library will contain, in addition to the customary reading and book rooms, three class rooms for instruction in English. It will stand to the rear of the science hall. The music building will be almost identical in size and appearance with the library and will occupy a space just back of the area set aside for the future gymnasium.

The three new edifices will stand on the level of the second story floor line of the present buildings. They will practically enclose on three sides a paved court 150x40 feet in dimensions.

Surveys are also being made at this time for an athletic field at the upper end of the school site. Just how extensive the immediate work on this feature of the general plan will be has not as yet been determined.

The auditorium of the Lincoln High School promises to be one of the striking buildings of Los Angeles, as well as a landmark of the north side. The roof line of the structure will be fully 250 feet above the level of North Broadway, making the white-walled edifice visible from far and near.

FRENCH HOSPITAL WILL BE MODEL.

NEW NORTH END INSTITUTION TO BE MODERN IN CONSTRUCTION.

Plans for the proposed new hospital of the Societe Francaise de Bienfaisance Mutuelle de Los Angeles have just been completed by the architect, W. S. Garrett, and work on the building is to be started at once. The structure is to be located on the plot of ground at the northwest corner of College and Castelar streets, now used by the society. The present brick building will remain unchanged. A frame building now used in connection with the hospital is to be converted into a home for nurses.

The new hospital building will be of reinforced concrete construction throughout, and will cover a ground area of 160x44 feet. The exterior is to be of cement plaster, the surface being relieved by tile inserts and wrought iron railings on the balconies.

The building will have a reception room, offices, examination-room, nurses' rest-room, two sun porches, diet kitchen, a four-bed ward and eleven private rooms on the first floor. The second floor will be divided into one four-bed ward, nine private rooms, diet kitchen, nurses' rest-room, maternity-room, nursery and an operating wing. The latest hospital appliances will be installed throughout.

PLANTS LARGE TRACT.

The Janss Investment Company reports that . R. Murdock of this city, a recent buyer in its Corona Farms tract, has just completed the setting out of thirty acres of Eureka lemons on his purchase. Later, it is announced, Mr. Murdock will build a country home upon the property.

NEW PLANT FOR CULVER CITY.

PLANS OUT FOR EXTENSIVE AUTOMOBILE TIRE FACTORY AT SHORT LINE TOWN.

Plans and specifications have been completed for the erection of an extensive and modern factory building on Pico boulevard in Culver City. The plant will be used exclusively for manufacturing automobile tires, according to Leslie Cranbourne, sales manager of the Harry H. Culver Company, through whose efforts the location of the new industry at the Short Line town has been brought about. Mr. Cranbourne states that the concern will make a new non-skid tire from which the usual type of non-skid tread will be eliminated.

The building will be 100 feet wide and 120 feet deep, and is intended to be the first unit of a still larger plant. Construction, it is announced, will be started at an early date.

A studio building is now being erected on McMillan avenue in Culver City for the Consolidated Motion Picture Company, a new concern that recently completed a plant at the town. A modern brick and tile building now being erected on Main street at the same place will be occupied by an electrical supply house.

HOLLENBECK HEIGHTS.

The Braly-Janss Company reports the following sales in its Hollenbeck Heights tract: to C. [illegible] Orr, four-room house, $1550; Mrs. Olive Ray, four-room house, $1800; F. C. Dennis, four-room bungalow, $1500; A. S. Hart, five-room bungalow, $2450; J. C. Kuhn, four-room house, $1500; Mrs. A. Costakos, five-room bungalow, $2250; Julia Eichner, four-room house, $1750; M. Hermann, house and two lots, $1500; Walter Brown, five-room house, $2250; W. Penney, four-room house, $1500; A. Cochrane, four-room bungalow, $1850; S. Barber, four-room house, $1775, and Geo. Watson, two lots, $1[illegible]00.

TO KANSAS CITY MAN.

Emil Firth reports having sold to John S. Pennekamp of Kansas City a six-acre parcel of land at Orange Cove, in the foothills near Burbank, for a consideration of $2292. The buyer, it is stated, will plant the plot to lemons. The same firm reports the sale to Chester S. and Lizzie B. Merrill of a five-acre piece in the same vicinity, the price being given at $2183.

WITH THE BUILDERS.

Flats Continue Popular Form of Investment in Residence Districts. Contracts Let for Several.

The construction of flat buildings continues to be a feature of present-day building operations in Los Angeles. These income improvements as a rule contain four apartments each and are of frame construction. They are erected almost entirely in residence districts and there is an ever-growing tendency among builders to give buildings of the flat type the appearance of large private homes. Thus has much of the early prejudice against flats been removed in the better neighborhoods. Following are a number of flat projects now shaping:

The contract was let during the week for a flat to be erected by Harry Gray at No. 1228 Fourth avenue. The building will cost about $10,000. A permit has been issued for a flat projected by J. K. Lloyd at No. 637 North New Hampshire avenue. Work will be started this week on a flat for Nellie Wainwright on New Hampshire avenue south of Clinton. The contract has been awarded for a flat to be built by L. A. Grant at No. 306 South Bonnie Brae street. J. A. Kirchgraber will begin work at once on a flat on Fourth street near Bixel avenue. W. M. Bray is about to start a flat on Sunset boulevard just west of Highland avenue. Bertha B. Denick has had plans drawn for a flat at No. 420 South Sichel street.

FILM MAN BUYS HOME.

Head of "Movie" Company Acquires Large Residence at Ramona Acres. Library Completed, School Under Way.

The Janss Investment Company reports the sale at Ramona Acres in the San Gabriel Valley, of a nine-room house on a corner acre opposite the new Methodist Church on Hellman avenue to Benjamin F. Moffat, president of the Major Film Manufacturing Company. The consideration is stated to have been $15,000.

The Ramona Improvement Association has completed the new Ramona public library on Garfield avenue and will have several thousand books in place on the shelves by the end of the week. Work is also being rushed on the new $40,000 school near the corner of Garvey boulevard and Del Mar avenue, which will serve the same district.

BUYS VALUABLE SITE.

Retired Lumberman Pays Large Front Foot Price for Westchester Place Corner. May Improve Lot.

A valuable residence site in the Westchester Place tract, comprising 150x150 feet at the sotheast corner of Westchester Place and Twelfth street, was purchased during the past week by J. C. Rives, a retired lumberman of this city, for a given consideration of $18,750, or at the rate of $125 a front foot. The Westchester Place Tract Syndicate was the seller. Robert Marsh & Co. acted as agents.

The site adjoins on the west the attractive home of Guy V. Barham and is directly across the street from Mr. Rives's own Westchesteh place mansion. The new owner is said to contemplate the early erection of a fine residence on the lot and the placing of the improved property on the market.

FOR SALE—
BIG BARGAIN.
IN A BIG LOT!
50x200.
50x200.
ACTUALLY WORTH $1600.
BUT
MY PRICE IS ONLY $1000.
ON ANY EASY TERMS.

This is one buy in a thousand, and possible the only by dealing direct with owner. When I say "ACTUALLY WORTH $1600" I do not mean on the basis of some real estate agents' price list, or even because adjoining lots have brought that price—as they have. But because it is a large, roomy, closein and in every way wholly desirable home site, IT IS WORTH $1600, and will again—SOON— bring that amount of money. However, I am turning everything into cash or contracts, and for QUICK SALE $1000 takes this big $1600 lot. To a reliable person who I am satisfied can make his payments I will make any reasonable terms, but no "trust deed, building loan, get-the-money game." This fine homesite fronts northeast with view of mountains, good elevation, but perfectly level, close to car line and within 20 to 25 minutes of downtown. Straight 5-cent fare. I also have a smaller lot, 50x150, which is larger than they make them now, that I'll sell for only $850. WORTH $1250 if it's worth a nickel. If you're in the market and know a BARGAIN when you meet it, write owner for interview. POSITIVELY NO AGENTS. Address K, box 77, TIMES OFFICE.

FOR SALE—BEAUTIFUL CRENSHAW BOULEVARD.

Single lots, closely held at $2500. A beautiful homesite at a sacrifice price. Will sell one or both lots or exchange equity for a good $2150 clear property elsewhere, on which $1000 can be borrowed.

WANT CLEAR RESIDENCES, $15,000 UP.
WANT CLEAR RESIDENCES, $15,000 UP.
Now is the time to make an advantageous deal with that clear residence. It is a well-known fact that on straight sale a high-class residence has to be sacrificed almost as much as an automobile. Present conditions give those who are willing to assume an opportunity to convert residence property into BUSINESS PROPERTY, at full value or even a small profit.
I have in mind three promising strictly business vacant lots, and two just as well located with nice income and a future, whose owners will take your residence. They are but a short walk from this office. Look at them with me this week and seriously consider the advisability of making such an exchange. RARE MINERALS, METALLURGY AND CHEMISTRY

You are politely requested to submit samples carefully wrapped and tagged, with letter accompanying stating what tests are desired. Make samples of small size. There is no necessity for big chunks. Correspondents offering matter for analyses with card, or scrap of paper, intended to show that the stuff is from Jim Jones, for instance, with no marks of identification on samples, will, hereafter, receive no attention whatever.

Some Gold Ore.

GOLDFIELD (Nev.) July 10.—Q.: Am sending you under separate cover a sample of gold ore. Please analyze and let me know through your paper what other metals it contains, and what per centage. In panning this rock I find plenty of gold, but assays run fifty-six ounces only. R.

A.: Fifty-six ounces ($1157.52) per ton ore; that should be satisfactory. The sample carries no platinum. Antimony oxide (bieinierite) is present. The yellowish matter, other than the antimony oxide, does not carry vanadium; it is simply ferrous and ferric oxides. Zinc traces. Not tested for silver.

Sulphates.

SANTA MONICA, July 10.—Q.: Enclosed find sample which has been sent to me from Oklahoma. What is it? Has it any commercial value? G.

A.: The sample is a mixture of gypsum with epsomite, and has a low commercial value in ton or carload lots.

In Part Kaolin.

NOGALES (Ariz.) July 10.—Q.: Under separate cover I am sending sample which I hope you will analyze for me. Has it commercial value? The specimen was taken from a deposit in Northern Sonora. R.

A.: The sample carries over 40 per cent. silica, with 28.10 per cent. alumina; iron, 4.2 per cent; manganese, 1.20 per cent. Rather a doubtful money-maker from locality stated.

Platinum Absent.

LOS ANGELES, July 10.—Q.: From Goodsprings (Nev.) mining district and supposed to run well in platinum. Please test sample. M.

Doubtful Showing.

GILA BEND (Ariz.) July 10.—Q.: I have a large deposit of No. 1. Has it any value? Is No. 2 an epidote capping? What values would you look for under this capping? What kind of rock is No. 3, and could I expect sylvanite with such rock? Some say that No. 4 has tin in it. No. 5 is a dyke of something that we have been trying to crosscut through; it is over forty feet and not through it. We hope to find a rich ledge of ore when we come to the contact. Some people tell me that No. 5 is the same mineral that was on the hanging wall in the Cresson mine in Colorado. Thanking The Times for past help in the great way you have helped me and others. MRS. R.

A.: Glad to hear from you. No. 1 is a silvery and shaly limonite; zinc trace only. No. 2 is not epidote. It is a calcareous froth, as it were, and it is not easy to predict what might come forth from under such a capping. No. 3 is an altered trachyte. Potash trace, lime present and not a good indicator for sylvanite. No. 4, tin absent; the sample is quartz with granite, and carries microscopical sulphides of iron and arsenicum. Pyrrhotite present. Platinum absent. No. 5 is a calcareous and feldspathic rock.

Zinc Present.

LOS ANGELES, July 10.—Q.: Enclosed find samples of ore. Please state contents and values if any. B.

A.: No. 1 is ferruginous quartz; pseudomorph matter after pyrite in the mass, manganese present. No. 2 is dolomitic rock carrying dendritic manganese (forest rock.) Iron present. No. 3, iron, manganese, quartz and lime. No. 5, quartz, calcite, cerussite (lead carbonate) and iron. No. 6, pyrite, pyrrhotite, peacock iron and arsenopyrite. Samples Nos. 5 and 6 are your best specimens as ore, but each of them represents very low money values.

Porphyritic Sand.

LOS ANGELES, July 10.—Q.: Is this sand of any commercial value? H.

A.: Yellow microscopical mica, iron oxides and titanic iron. Of doubtful value.

Tungsten Absent.

LOS ANGELES, July 10.—Q.: Analyze for tungsten, please. C.

Quartzitic Matrix.

LOS ANGELES, July 11.—Q.: Will you please test the sample for me and give results in "In the Earth"? D.

A.: High-grade micaceous iron (hematite) freely scattered throughout the mass.

Fuller's Earth Present.

NEEDLES, July 11.—Q.: I am enclosing to you two specimens; No. 1, Haviland, Ariz.; No. 2, Powell, Ariz. Would respectfully request any information you can give me regarding specimens, etc. R.

A.: No. 1, reddle; will make paint. No. 2, hematitic Fuller's earth.

Zinc Traces.

LOS ANGELES, July 11.—Q.: Please analyze sample of sand rock which occurs near Cima, Cal. Is there anything of value to it? Is there any zinc in it? C.

A.: It is a mixture of marl (lime carbonate) with fuller's earth, potash trace. Would make a low-grade dressing for grasses, etc.

Quartz and Baryte.

GRANITEVILLE, July 11.—Q.: Am calling on you for help. Two samples herewith. No. 1 from large deposit in lime formation, and I have had as high as 11 per cent. zinc assay returns, but since that series of assays I have failed to get return of more than "zinc traces." We would like to know if the character of the rock points towards zinc? No. 2 from eighteen-inch ledge, in the lime formation, and it seems to be heavy spar. Through the center of the ledge runs a mineral seam and the rest of the ledge is quartz. The "one-piece" will describe the quartz mineral and spar together. This location is seven miles east of Graniteville. F. (Prospector.)

A.: Glad to hear from you. No. 1 is ferruginous quartz; zinc trace only. No. 2 (two samples,) the white one is baryte (barium sulphate, or heavy spar, as you boys call it.) Strontia present. The gray-green sample is baryte with arsenical sulphide, and traces of the valuable mineral-witherite (barium carbonate.)

Vanadium Absent.

RANDSBURG, July 11—Q.: Am sending you sample for test. I have had it analyzed for tungsten with negative results. It may carry vanadium. The sample was taken from the Slate range of mountains in Inyo county. Slate and lime carbonate formation. Kindly give me results in your most valuable paper, The Times. T.

A.: The yellowish matter is not vanadium bearing. Antimony oxide is present with ferrous and ferric oxides. Zinc low per cent. Strontium and baryte in the mass.

Prospect for witherite (barium carbonate.)

Platinum Absent.

LOS ANGELES, July 12.—Q.: I am an interested reader of your valuable department "In the Earth" and beg to submit some samples of stibnite, and to ask if they carry platinum. Samples from the Antelope Valley, California. L.

A.: The samples are (analyzed together) 28.50 per cent. antimony. It would pay well to run this antimonial sulphide into the metal, provided you have ore sufficient.

Sperrylite is absent. Not tested for gold or silver.

Platinum Absent.

LOS ANGELES, July 13.—Q.: Any platinum in this sample? Is it good for any commercial use? G.

A.: If the material represented by sample was properly washed and cleaned the product would be a fair quality commercial abrasive.

Partly Floatstone.

ANAHEIM, July 14.—I believe sample is talc. (?) Have extensive claim of it, but do not know positively what it is. MRS. M.

A.: The sample carries some little talc, with diatomaceous earth and silica.

Vanadium Absent.

CRESCENT (Nev.) July 15.—Q.: By parcel post please find and test sample of rock. Are the small specks vanadium? If not, what? This rock is from the Crescent mining district. W.

A.: The specks you refer to are lead, of molybdenum variety. Zinc traces.

Essonite.

BEAUMONT, July 14.—A.: What kind of garnet do you find in sample? T.

Soda and Dolomite.

ARCADIA, July 15.—Q.: I am anxious to learn composition of enclosed sample. Have quite a lot of it. W.

Manganese and Baryte.

PAYSON (Ariz.) July 15.—Q.: Am sending you samples for analysis from this vicinity. Does the black ore carry tungsten? Is the light-colored piece scheelite? I am pretty near being an "old subscriber," having been on the "pay roll" about nine years, and have not bothered you very often with questions. R.

A.: It is a pleasure to have you "bother" us. No. 1, tungsten absent; this is good grade manganese dioxide. No. 2 not scheelite, tungsten absent; the sample is yellow-white baryte.

High-grade Phosphates.

PASADENA, July 15.—Q.: Sample is from a claim I have in Idaho. When rubbed against another rock it emits a certain odor. What kind of rock is this? What causes the odoriferous principle? L.

A.: The property, or principal, of the odoriferous body is probably hydrogen sulphide (stale egg variety.)

Samples run 33.50 per cent. phosphoric acid.

Theory and Practice.

RIGHTS OF LABOR AND ITS FAULTS.

SHOULD HAVE A PROPER SHARE OF PROFITS.

But it has no Right to Break Agreements with Employers, nor to Murder Other Workmen Who Prefer to Work in Their Own Way.

[Pierre N. Beringer in American Industries:] It has been established by careful investigation that wages in this country and in France are no lower in towns or establishments where welfare work is strictly carried out and where organization has languished than elsewhere.

There are seven of the largest machinery product houses in this country that have established welfare work, thirteen electrical supply manufacturers of the larger kind, the three largest woolen mills, hundreds of clothing factories, the two largest paint factories in the world, ten foodstuffs factories, fifty of the large printing establishments, hundreds of department stores, most of the mail order houses, the telephone and telegraph companies, and other public utilities, several of the large insurance companies, railway companies, express companies, hotels, etc.

But while this work is going on for the betterment of labor, what is labor doing?

It certainly has rights. How are these rights being exercised? A fundamental right and duty devolves on every human being. That right is found in advancing himself educationally, physically, and in every possible way to liberty and a living. Most of us are slaves to circumstances and serfs to tradition and employment, but as the world grows older and better we advance and the worker and our fellowman advance as any unit advances in the mass. But have workingmen, aside from incidental agitation as to wage through their unions, done anything to meet the general betterment trend of the employing force? Have they taken into consideration the great liquidation and leveling process that has affected the country generally? Have you seen any great body of them taking cognizance of the fact that railroads and other public utilities have been losing money? Has there been any voluntary movement for lowering wage in any one industry or calling in order to lessen the load on the employer? Has there been, from the standpoint of the employed, any cry that legislation cease?

It may be remarked, too, that whenever capital concerns itself as to conditions it is with a view to bettering them for all, and that whenever labor concerns itself likewise it is only for the betterment of a certain kind of labor—the organized minority, and to the exclusion and further misery of the unorganized.

Labor has its rights, it is true, and it also has its faults.

Here are some of the things the organized element, the militant active kind, has been doing: It has broken its word in New York with the employing garment-makers.

Incidentally by the confession of Dopey Bennie Fein it is shown that murders have been committed in its name. Fourteen leaders are under indictment and there is a fair prospect for the indictment of twenty more. In Detroit the street car men have brought on a general strike—which failed. On the Pacific Coast it is said strikes will be called in all the principal cities, mainly for an increase of wage, but always for recognition of the unions. In Chicago a tremendous struggle is on and, in other places, the labor union leaders, unmindful of the fact that business will not permit, are making demand for increased pay.

In Chicago there have been murders, too, and in certain parts of the country it is openly proclaimed that one of the rights of labor is to kill.

While the employers are devising means to arrive at solutions of the various difficulties presented, what are the labor chiefs doing?

Are they attempting anything that will alleviate the wants of labor or bring labor and capital closer together? The same old leaders are continued in power and that continuance is insured by the continuance of ill-feeling and bitterness between employer and employed.

Has the organized element, as far as its controlling power is concerned, learned anything at all from the signs of the times? It is doubtful, for we find the leaders demanding the release of murderers or those charged with murder on the ground that they are members of the unions, but not because they are innocent of the crime charged or for which they are to be tried.

There is an awakening, however, going on and even among labor's organized hosts a reformation is slowly coming into being. This reformation will demand accounting for physical acts and for moneys expended, and it is showing itself by the cry from the Pacific Coast unions that information be given as to what was done with the McNamara fund?

There can be no profit sharing as long as the present-day leaders of labor remain in power, because the same objection applies to profit sharing that applies to welfare work—it might make the worker content with his lot.

DARROW AND THE POOR.

Likes to Offer Solutions of Social Problems, but Required $2000 a Week to Defend the McNamaras.

[The Spectator:] For a brief moment, the obscurity that has so long enveloped Clarence S. Darrow was dissipated by the limelight of publicity, and he emerged to tell us of the woes of the poor, whom he loves and loots. From the time that Mr. Darrow sobbed himself into a Scotch verdict on the charge of jury bribing in the McNamara case he has enjoyed a well-earned oblivion, which might well have been permanent had it not been for the masterly ineptitude of Chairman Walsh, who is laboring so assiduously to make the investigations of the Industrial Relations Commission quite ridiculous.

Mr. Darrow was considered by Mr. Walsh the proper person to apply to for solutions of social problems. Mr. Walsh was not wholly disappointed. Mr. Darrow was full of solutions, but they did not quite solve the problems that confront us.

Mr. Darrow is a believer in liberty; liberty, he declared, is so precious that it should be maintained even at the expense of bloodshed. While he did not explain what he meant by liberty, it may be judged that he thinks it the right of a few persons to take the liberty of doing all in their power to make miserable the lives of the many. He believes in the boycott, the handmaid of liberty, and in the picket, liberty's bodyguard. Constituted authority—the police power of the State—Mr. Darrow said should be resisted, with violence, if need be, if it were abused—and reserved the right to judge when it was abused.

When Mr. Darrow contemplated the pitiful spectacle of poor men, unfriended and undefended at the bar of justice, and in danger of being railroaded to prison by the hell-hounds of wealth and privilege, he showed signs of melting to tears.

His grief was so great that, possibly with the idea of giving him an opportunity to recover his lost equanimity, someone asked if he had not defended the McNamaras, who were indicted for blowing up the Los Angeles Times Building and killing over a score of men. He had, but he did not appear to wish to discuss the subject; he preferred to offer solutions for social problems, and to tell how the poor were oppressed by the rich. Quite so; but how much did he receive for defending the McNamaras who, it will be remembered, pleaded guilty? He received $48,000; he worked six months on the defense. Yes; that was at the rate of $2000 a week.

Darrow, the inveterate friend of the down-trodden, the defender of the poor, and the solver of social problems, did not say how the fee of $8000 a month had been raised; but it was taken from the meager earnings of the people whom he loves so much and loots so freely.

But who shall say that Darrow's fee of $48,000 for defending the McNamaras was too high? He knew the wretches were guilty, and probably his conscience would not permit him to work for less than $2000 a week for criminals. One of the problems for which Darrow offered no solution referred to the ethics of a profession that gives countenance to men who accept fees to defend confessed murderers.

UNION PATRIOTISM.

Place Loyalty to Their Organizations Above the Public Good, Regardless of Occasion.

[American Industries:] Patriotism, it seems from the action of union bands in Hartford, Ct., on last Memorial Day, is subordinate to the call of unionism. It is better that the nation's heroes go unhonored than that the Federation of Musicians let pass an opportunity to anathematize non-union musicians.

In Hartford last Memorial Day the usual arrangements had been made for a parade of the local military and patriotic organizations. A non-union band volunteered its services for the occasion. The band was composed of Poles and was known as the Polish Falcons Band. Its members were patriotic; they would blow their heads off to free Poland or to honor the dead of their adopted land of freedom. They were sentimentally loyal to everything American except a musicians' union, which in reality is not American at all.

When the local bands belonging to the union heard of the action of the Falcons, their camp, to use a military term, was in an uproar. Notice was served on the committee of arrangements that unless the services of the Poles were refused the union players would not march. The committee refused such a proposal and the union bands, all except one of them, refused to participate in the parade. The one union band which marched was the enlisted band of the First Regiment National Guard of Connecticut, which was subject to military discipline.

Here is a beautiful example of union love of country. It is well-known that unionists place loyalty to their organizations above the public weal. Cases are not unknown where murder has been committed in the name of organized labor, and the recent revelations in New York developed that the sovereignty of the country was usurped by garment workers who established their own courts, and meted out punishment to disobedient members.

DEVELOPING THE STATE.

What Is an Irrigation District Bond?

BY HON. LEWIS D. DENNETT.

THERE seems to be a surprising lack of general information with regard to one of the most important political subdivisions of California, that is to say with regard to irrigation districts. The irrigation district as a political entity is one of the contributions of California to the governmental system of America and the irrigation district law has been adopted with only slight variation by almost every one of the arid and semi-arid States of the West. Because of its comparatively recent development it is looked upon as somewhat unique, but as a matter of fact it is merely the logical development of the principle of local self-government applied with ordinary common sense to the peculiar conditions existing in the arid West. The irrigation district system of California has become as well known and as thoroughly established as the school district system, and its securities furnish for the investor as stable and satisfactory an investment as is furnished by school bonds.

Just as the State has been divided into school districts for the purpose of providing school facilities and for the administration thereof, so provision has been made for its subdivision into irrigation districts for the purpose of providing irrigation facilities and for convenience in their administration. There is little difference between a school district and an irrigation district so far as their political existence is concerned. The difference lies in the purpose of the organization. In one case, political subdivisions of the State are organized for the purpose of providing and maintaining school systems, and in the other case political subdivisions of the State are provided for the purpose of constructing and maintaining irrigation systems.

The securities of the two political subdivisions likewise are practically identical. School and irrigation bonds are municipal securities—municipal for the reason that the payment both of principal and interest is secured by the exercise of the sovereign power of taxation. All property within a school district is taxed for school purposes, and all real estate in an irrigation district is taxed for irrigation purposes. The irrigation bond, however, has more security than a school bond. The money obtained by a school district from the sale of its bonds goes to the construction and furnishing of school houses, which in themselves have no productive value, and if for any reason the school district should cease to exist the schoolhouse would be an asset of little or no value to the bond holders. In an irrigation district, on the contrary, money goes into the construction of an irrigation system and the acquisition of water rights. This property in most cases is worth more than the amount of the bonds of the district, and if for any reason an irrigation district should cease to exist—which under present laws is inconceivable—still the irrigation system would possess an actual economic value entirely apart from the power of taxation and would produce an income, so that the holder of an irrigation bond has not only the protection which the holders of all municipal securities possess, namely, the power and obligation of the State by taxation to provide for the payment of such bond, but, in addition thereto, all of the benefit possessed by the holder of an industrial bond, namely, the security of an income-producing property which in itself is reasonable security for the bonds issued.

There is nothing novel or unusual in the governmental machinery of an irrigation district. It is merely the application of the doctrine of local self-government to one of the necessities of the arid and semi-arid west. This application differs in no respect from the exercises of governmental powers manifested in the creation and maintenance of school districts.

The first district laws which were passed were naturally crude and imperfect and much litigation resulted. As the result the present law was passed in 1897. This law provides a machinery as simple and standard as is provided by the school district system. The constitutionality of the law and the legality of the bonds has been upheld by numerous decisions of the State and Federal courts and of the United States Supreme Court itself. No irrigation district in California organized or existing under the new law has made any default or delay in the payment of any interest or any installment of principal of any of its obligations. No district organized since the passage of that act has failed of complete success. While of course it is impossible to state with certainty the history of private enterprises during that time, it can be said with a reasonable degree of certainty that no private irrigation enterprise of any magnitude in California originated since that date has made a success. For obvious reasons the day of privately owned irrigation enterprises on a large scale has passed, and the only method by which the arid and semi-arid lands of California now unirrigated can be irrigated successfully has been proven to be the district system.

GOVERNMENT.

An irrigation district is governed as is a school district, by a board of trustees, consisting of three or five members, as the case may be, elected by the people within the district. These directors serve for a period of four years, but one or more retire every two years so that the directors and the people keep constantly in touch with each other by elections every two years.

ORGANIZATION.

Before a district can be organized the written consent must be obtained of a majority in number of the owners representing a majority in value of all of the land within the boundaries of the proposed district, so that a practical unanimity of sentiment is required.

ADDITIONAL SAFEGUARDS.

While the history of irrigation districts in California under the present law is without a single failure, and is one of unusually successful operation, yet the history of irrigation districts in other States and of other irrigation enterprises in the past to some extent has caused some popular misapprehension and to remove the possibility of doubt as to California irrigation bonds, the law of California is peculiarly drastic, both in the safeguards thrown around the issuance of bonds, and in the method of enforcing payment. The law requires the directors to obtain competent engineering advice and also, after such advice has been made a matter of record in the district, to obtain the written consent of a majority in number of the owners, representing a majority in value of the land, before even an election can be held to authorize the issuance of bonds. In addition an examination must be made and the approval must be obtained of a commission composed of the Attorney-General, State Engineer and Superintendent of Banks. When this approval has been obtained a certificate thereof by the State Controller is attached to the bonds, and thereafter such bonds become a legal investment for banks, trust funds, etc., may be used as security for the deposit of public money, and possess every other benefit or advantage possessed by any other municipal security in the State of California.

Not only are these unusual safeguards thrown around the issuance of bonds, but unusually drastic machinery is provided for the enforcement of the levying and collection of the assessment to pay such bonds. Should the directors fail to levy the assessment, it becomes the duty of the Board of Supervisors so to do, and it is made the duty of the district attorney, and if he fails, of the Attorney-General, to institute proceedings to compel the performance of this duty. These duties the court will enforce by writ of mandate upon the petition of any bondholder. It goes without saying that as in the case of all delinquent taxes the property assessed is sold if the assessment is not paid.

LIMITATION UPON BONDED INDEBTEDNESS.

A reasonable limitation also has been imposed upon the amount of the bonded indebtedness so that the holder of such securities is absolutely assured, first, that the assessment will be levied and collected, and second, that the bonded indebtedness will not be so great as to impose an undue burden upon the land, in other words he is assured that the security for the indebtedness will be ample.

IRRIGATION DISTRICT NOT A PRIVATE CORPORATION.

It must be born in mind at all times that an irrigation district is not a private corporation, and that the obligation of the land owners to pay the assessment is not a contractual obligation. A district is a portion of the governmental system of the State of California, and the payment of the bonds is enforced by the levy and collection of an assessment, which is just as valid and binding as the tax levied by any city or in any school district or by any county.

PRACTICAL WORKING OF THE SYSTEM.

A very careful examination was made for the purpose of determining the relative willingness with which various taxes are paid, and it was found that in the irrigation districts a smaller percentage of taxes was unpaid than in any of the large cities in California. For instance, in Los Angeles city, seven-tenths of 1 per cent. of the taxes of the last of the eight years was unpaid; whereas, in the Modesto Irrigation District for [illegible] of 1 per cent. was unpaid; in the Oakdale district only two-tenths of 1 per cent. was unpaid; [illegible] irrigation district show like records.

EFFICIENCY.

The writer has taken occasion to go over the records [illegible] where attempts have been made to compare the rates charged by private irrigation companies, [illegible] the cost and the completeness of [illegible] private systems with the district systems and the result is everything contrary to the ordinary theory with regard to public ownership.

Almost without exception the irrigation districts have shown a higher degree of economic efficiency in the operation of their systems and in every case a higher degree of completeness in the construction [illegible] the privately owned enterprises. [illegible] refers, of course, only to those enterprises of approximately the same magnitude and the same physical conditions.

Irrigation bonds provide for something which [illegible] nished arid California cannot [illegible] without. It might be possible to repudiate school bonds and still [illegible] out schools, but [illegible] istence without [illegible] possibility [illegible] pal securities [illegible] of irrigation districts in California [illegible] ation.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, July 31.—By comparison with the heavy trading and wide movements of the earlier days of the week today's stock market inclined toward the prosaic. Speculation was on more conservative lines. The outside demand for the war shares fell off largely and the extent of their rise of the week brought up the question of their stability at prevailing prices. Accordingly there was a tendency to shift speculation to other lines and the market developed greater breadth. Widest movements were still in the war groups, but other industrials such as the fertilizers and also the railroad stocks, figured more prominently in the transactions. Total sales were 260,000 shares. Opening changes were slight. Professional traders felt their way until it became evident that there was a steady undertone whereupon a broad buying movement was begun. Prices rose rapidly and during the greater part of the half session a higher level prevailed with gains running up to five points. In the last half the market felt the effect of profit-taking sales. Holders of speculative lines of the war shares were disposed to reduce their commitments—a step which was advanced in some instances by commission losses. The consequent tendency toward reaction was emphasized by reports that Americans had lost their lives on the steamship Iberian, although the British nationality of the vessel and the circumstances attending her sinking made the incident less disturbing to the street than the torpedoing of the Leelanaw. In the late session quotations were depressed sharply.

LOS ANGELES STOCK EXCHANGE.

Los Angeles Investment Declines on the Exchange—Bonds Stronger and More Active.

Los Angeles Investment slumped badly on the exchange yesterday and lost what gains the security has achieved during the past week. Closing sales were at 31 and the decline was attributed to the verdicts against three of the former officers of the company. Big Jim continued to maintain its high position and one option of 1000 shares was purchased at 16. One thousand shares of United Oil at 20¼ and 3000 shares of National Pacific at 1⅛ completed the transactions on the board. Union Transportation 5s were a seller again when 8 bonds changed hands in an informal sale at 92. An upward movemnet in Home Telephone Preferred was noticed when 20 shares brought the stronger figure of 38.25.

COMMERCIAL.

There has been a large increase in the amount of pineapples shipped from the Hawaiian Islands to the port of San Francisco since the marketing division of the territorial government was created. Previous to the formation of this systematic method of disposing of their crop the greatest consignment ever sent to the northern city in any one week aggregated 887 crates, while today 3000 crates a week are making an entrance into San Francisco. A few pines have been brought in recently weighing as much as eleven pounds and the same will be used for exhibition purposes. The Coachella Valley date industry is rapidly becoming an important factor and two experimental stations for the advancement of the industry are maintained by the department of agriculture in the valley. Some bunches of dates weighing as large an amount as thirty to fifty pounds have been received in Los Angeles. The harvesting of the California sugar-beet crop has commenced and from all indications will exceed the output of 1915.

Changes in the fruit and vegetable lists were nil yesterday and prices ruled low. The bean market is very dull and green varieties are exceedingly cheap. Budded walnuts are off the market and other kinds of nuts remain inexpensive. New prices in the live stock division of the provision list are: wethers, 5¼@5½; ewes, 4¾ and 5, and yearlings, 4 and 5¼.

As the call on the produce exchange was dispensed with yesterday, Friday's quotations will prevail until Monday. Cheese and butter prices in San Francisco remained unaltered but eggs went to 27½, a jump of 1½ points in a day. Los Angeles receipts of the two most important staples were 262 cases of eggs and 10,200 pounds of butter. Arrivals of cheese were 1440 and a heavy supply of the commodity is reported to be on hand. Although a fairly large amount of potatoes came into the city the same were immediately reshipped without being removed from the original cars. Watermelon receipts have fallen off considerably of late and only 2 cars came in yesterday. The balance of the receipts were made up of 191 sacks of sweet potatoes, 640 boxes of apples, 1024 lugs of pears, 507 lugs of plums, 326 boxes of peaches, and 1704 lugs of grapes.

BUMPER YIELD OFFSETS RAIN.

GOOD PROSPECTS FOR WHEAT REPORTED IN CHICAGO.

Corn Outlook Could Hardly Have been More Bearish from Dakotas and Minnesota—Bullish Condition in Kansas Fails to Have Any Permanent Effect.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, July 31.—Prospects of a bumper yield in the spring-crop States proved more than an offset today for wet weather over the greater part of the winter-wheat belt. In consequence the wheat market, although unsettled at the close, was ⅛@⅝ to 2⅜ under last night. Other net changes were: Corn ⅛ off to ⅝ up and oats ⅛ down to 1⅛ advance. The outcome in provisions was the same as last night to 7½ higher. Corn reports could hardly have been more bearish from the Dakotas and Minnesota, the banner States for spring wheat. According to one authority the conditions there were now such that neither blight nor rust could materially cut down the promise, the only thing to fear being a wet harvest. The bullish State report from Kansas failed to have any permanent effect on the market and there was no evidence of an urgent export call. In the corn market July shorts covered freely and thus did a great deal at first to harden prices all around. July oats advanced off the highest price of the crop. On the bulge, though, houses that generally act for the seaboard were active sellers until the rise was checked. Higher prices for hogs gave little strength to provisions. What selling there was came chiefly from Milwaukee.

Classified Liners.

AGATE TYPE ONLY.

Accepted subject to the following rates and rules: Rates: The rate for inserting Want Ads in the Daily Times is 1c per word each insertion; in the Sunday issue 1½c per word each insertion; minimum charge applicable to a single insertion [illegible] each non-consecutive insertion, 25c; except under the following classifications, the rate for which is 2c per word daily, 2½c per word Sunday, minimum charge, applicable to a single insertion [illegible] each non-consecutive insertion, 30c daily, [illegible] Sunday: "Society Meetings," "Personals," "Special Notices," "Church Notices," "Miscellaneous, Stocks and Bonds," "Money to Loan, Salary and [illegible]," "Physicians," "Medical," "Detectives," "[illegible]" and "Baths and Massage."

An extra charge of 25 per cent. is made for the use of capital letters.

Minimum space for classified advertisements ordered for more than one insertion, 14 words.

White space and dashes are charged for on the basis of seven words to a line.

Ads set solid are counted strictly by the word. For paragraphed or lined-up matter set in caps, count five (5) average words to a line. Not in caps, estimate five (5) average words to the first line and eight (8) average words to each line following. In this kind of advertising the actual number of words set solid is counted, and five words added for each unfilled line.

The Times reserves the right to classify all advertisements under appropriate headings.

The Times cannot guarantee accuracy or assume responsibility for errors of any kind occurring in telephoned advertisements.

The Times will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion of any advertisement ordered for more than one time.

Errors not the fault of the advertiser, which clearly lessen the value of an advertisement, will be rectified only by republication, without extra charge, on presentation of receipt within five days after insertion. No allowance will be made where the error does not materially affect the value of the advertisement.

No adjustment will be made for advertising items not affected by an error or errors which may occur in other items in the same advertisement. Advertisers should retain receipts given by The Times in payment for "liners," as no mistake can be rectified without them.

The Times will not accept phone or verbal orders to discontinue or change "till forbid" advertisements.

Telephoned orders to discontinue advertising in The Times are numbered in the order of their receipt, and in each instance the number of the order is given to the advertiser, who should make a record thereof. In case of dispute no charge for advertising will be rebated unless the "stop order" number is presented to The Times by the advertiser.

Sunday real estate advertisements, to be classified properly, must be in The Times office before [illegible] Saturday night. Other classified "Wants," "To Lets," etc., received over counter or by telephone until 11 p.m. Saturday. Ads received after these hours for each division will be inserted under heading "Too Late to Classify." Rate 1½ [illegible]

The Sunday circulation of The Times exceeds [illegible] copies, and more "liners" are regularly printed in its columns than in the five other Los Angeles newspapers combined.

Telephone your want advertisements. Ring up The Times, Main 8200, Home 10391, any time of day or night, and secure prompt and careful service.

"BE QUICK TO KICK IF THINGS SEEM WRONG, BUT KICK TO US AND MAKE IT STRONG."

INSTANT SERVICE FOR TIMES PATRONS.

For the convenience of persons who may desire to answer classified advertisements printed in The Times and communications to this newspaper and "liner" and other advertisements inserted, private letter boxes have been placed in various downtown buildings for the purpose indicated. Collections will be made from these boxes every [illegible]

Each piece of advertising copy must contain the name and address of the advertiser, number of insertions and heading under which it is desired that the announcement be printed.

READ THIS CAREFULLY.

SATISFACTORY METHODS have brought us a large practice. We invite YOU WHO READ THIS to join our large circle of patrons. CALL AND CONSULT OUR PSYCHIC, she is highly developed as a LIFE READER. She has no equal. HER READINGS are extended and complete; HER METHODS original; exact, helpful, saving; if her advice is followed it will result in your overcoming the obstacles obstructing your path, and place you in the way of accomplishing matters and attaining ideals that in the past have seemed impossible.

ASTROLOGICAL DELINEATIONS.

Scientific Horoscopes Cast; Geocentric System; COMPLETE LIFE READINGS; typewritten delineations, covering all conditions of life. Call and let our astrologer demonstrate the TRUTH OF SCIENCE.

A STATEMENT AND FORECAST.

The horoscope of a nation or city can be cast as well as an individual's. We have erected the figures for London, New York City, and Washington. MANY STARTLING CONDITIONS ARE REVEALED. The last note to Germany was dispatched during an evil period (July 19-22,) when the moon by direction was square with Mars, and powerfully excited by a transit of Mars. THIS CONFIGURATION SPELLS STRIFE, INHARMONY AND DISAGREEMENTS.

September 10 and 11, 1915, Mars and Saturn form a conjunction in Cancer; New York City and the British Isles are threatened with many evils.

CUT THIS AD. OUT FOR REFERENCE, IT WILL ONLY APPEAR SUNDAY.

PERSONAL—
MRS. MASSON,
the noted palmist, of London, England, may be consulted at 322 SOUTH SPRING STREET, by those desiring CAREFUL, CONSCIENTIOUS AND SCIENTIFIC HAND READINGS, FROM ONE OF THE FOREMOST PALMISTS OF THE DAY.

The earnest student and thinker will soon learn in his investigations along psychological lines that that which pertains to occult phenomena proper can readily be distinguished from crude and oft-exposed SLEIGHT-OF-HAND TRICKS, the most common of which is the telling of the subject's name, age, etc., AFTER HE HIMSELF HAS WRITTEN THAT information.

PALMISTRY HONESTLY PRACTICED WILL NOT tell your name, but it WILL give you information of considerably greater value in every-day life. Your vocation, your present line of work, matters of health and domestic life, financial conditions and ways and means of climbing out of a rut of ill luck into wide paths of success and prosperity, can all be told you through scientific palmistry, WITHOUT A SINGLE QUESTION, WRITTEN OR VERBAL.

MRS. MASSON DOES NOT APPEAL TO IGNORANT SUPERSTITION, BUT TO THE FINEST INTELLIGENCE.

WE CAN'T DO IT—

A man came into our used-car department. He had plenty of spot cash. He wanted a car. He wanted a bargain. He asked us regardless of cost to name the biggest bargain on the floor.

"We can't do it"—that was our answer.

Everything we sell is a bargain to some one—we have some swell snappy-looking cars—late popular models such as a "Light Six" 1915 Chalmers. Or of equal proportion at lesser cost we would point out a swell-looking 4-passenger Hupmobile or Hudson 33 raceabout or an elegant slightly-used Stutz.

On down the list including such names as Mitchell, Overland, Pope-Hartford, Regal, Velie, Reo and Hupmobile—we have cars of various grades and models that are bargains to some one—a bargain in value and in terms.

SLASHES HIS ARM ON WINDOW PANE.

FIFTY STITCHES REQUIRED TO SEW UP WOUND OF CLAREMONT BOY.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

CLAREMONT, July 31.—While playing at the college swimming pool late last night Myron Powell, 16 years old, shoved his right arm through a window pane and cut gashes that required more than fifty stitches from the surgeon's needle.

In company with a party of other boys, Myron was playing in the water. When he climbed out the boys put him out of an open window in the bath-house. He thought that he'd raise another window and get back into the building. The frame had swelled and it did not respond to his efforts. His hands were wet. Presently one of them slipped off the window frame and plunged through the glass.

The broken pieces of glass slashed his arm in a dozen places almost to the bone. The boys tied their handkerchiefs around the arm to stop the flow of blood and hurried him to a doctor. He lost a great deal of blood. The doctor says he may not recover the use of some of his forearm muscles.

In all forty fish were caught.

Rushing to Mrs. Allen's home in an automobile, Mrs. Adams gave the suffering woman first aid and then notified the Receiving Hospital. After being taken to the hospital and treated Mrs. Allen was removed to her home and, according to Police Surgeon Hiller, will recover. She said she took the poison because despondent.

Bentel of No. 1035 South Grand avenue. Suffering from a fracture of the left knee and lacerations about the head she was taken to the Receiving Hospital.

AMALGAMATED OFF LIST.

Storm Center of Market Taken from Board Because of Recent Dissolution of Company.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, July 31.—Amalgamated Copper stock, which for many years was the storm center of the copper market, has been dropped from the Stock Exchange list today. This was a result of the recent dissolution of the company. Anaconda Copper stock, which has taken over all the assets of the Amalgamated company, was given a new trading place on the floor.

Amalgamated stock experienced furious speculation in years past. The organization of the Amalgamated Copper Company in 1899 was one of the first big attempts in corporation building on a large scale, with the object of controlling a market. The stock, which was issued at par, rose as high as 130 and dropped as low as 33 5-8. The last quotation was 75.

STANFORD UNIVERSITY (Cal.) July 31.—Delegates in attendance at the forty-sixth annual California State Fruit Growers' Association convention, which concluded its sessions here last night, left today for San Francisco to attend a final session at the Panama-Pacific Exposition tonight.

Two addresses on the final programme are "The Mutual Indebtedness of Science and Agriculture," by John M. Coulter, professor of botany, University of Chicago, and "Present and Future Supplies of Commercial Plant Food," by J. G. Lipman, director of the New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station, New Brunswick, N. J.

Japanese Day Draws Great Crowd of Nipponese.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN DIEGO, July 31.—Directors of the Panama-California Exposition today appointed E. J. Chapin of San Diego director-general to succeed H. O. Davis, whose resignation, given July 1, is effective tomorrow.

Chapin has been acting director-general for the last month. Previous to this he was assistant to Director-General Davis.

Chapin has been employed as director of exhibits and director of transportation for about four years, entering the employ of the exposition when construction was started.

JAPANESE DAY.

Japan's flag of a white field and a red sun, 10,000 Japanese lanterns strung from the buildings and festoons of Nipponese designs furnished the decorations today at the Panama-California Exposition, where Japan Day was celebrated with much success.

Diversity was the keynote of the programme, which began early this morning with the entrance of 5000 Japanese to the grounds and ended tonight with a kimono parade, dinner and aeroplane exhibition.

The Japanese were welcomed at noon by Exposition President G. A. Davidson. Prominent members of the Japanese Association of Southern California, which had charge of the programme, responded. This afternoon an athletic programme on the Plaza de Panama was engaged in by Japanese and American contestants.

Tonight the association gave a dinner on the grounds to exposition directors and prominent local citizens. Among the Japanese who spoke were U. Oyama, Vice-Consul at San Francisco; and G. Yuasa, president of the association.

FIREBUG TABOO.

Because of his activities here several years ago, when he was known as the champion "firebug," Adolph Schonek, banished from the county by the authorities, will not be allowed to return, according to an order issued by Dist.-Atty. Spencer M. Marsh today.

Schonek wrote to the District Attorney declaring that he would like to return to San Diego to live with his aged mother, promising to observe the law strictly. A. E. Dodson, former superintendent of the city fire department, joined with others here in objecting to the granting of Schonek's request.

GRANTS INJUNCTION.

Eight owners of shacks on the water front were today granted a temporary injunction by Superior Judge T. L. Lewis restraining the city from destroying the buildings on the ground that they are unsanitary. This is the first snag the city health department has run into since it inaugurated its plan of cleaning up the water front. Hearing on a motion to obtain a permanent injunction is to be held August 4.

PERFECT BABY.

John Willard Rice, Jr., just over 2 years of age, was today declared winner of the eugenic baby contest conducted by the San Diego Mothers' Club. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Willard Rice of No. 3565 Third street, San Diego. The baby was given a perfect score among 400 other infants entered in the contest.

TARGET PRIZES.

Distribution of prize money, totaling $2000, among the members of gun crews who participated in target practice off San Diego Harbor last May was considered an important event aboard the cruiser Colorado here today. Capt. Ashley H. Robertson, commanding the cruiser, had official charge of the distribution of the money. Admiral T. B. Howard, commander of the Pacific fleet, was present as Capt. Robertson's guest, and complimented the men on the scores made. The scores were not published, but were forwarded to Washington for filing in the Navy Department.

DROPS WALLET ON SAND AT BEACH.

WAITS UP ALL NIGHT TO BE THE "EARLY BIRD" IN THE MORNING.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDONDO BEACH, July 31.—Turning handsprings on the beach to amuse his three children caused O. Packard, a contractor of Pasadena, four hours of sleeplessness this morning until the dawn broke and he returned to the beach and found a wallet he had lost along with $70 in currency lying on the sand.

Mr. and Mrs. Packard, their three children and mother and father of Chicago are spending a few weeks at the beach, residing at No. 418 Esplanade. While sunning himself on the sand Mr. Packard wore an overcoat containing a wallet with numerous valuable papers and the currency tucked away in it.

While cavorting on the beach Mr. Packard lost all and did not discover his loss until early this morning. He went early to the beach, which was crowded when he lost the money, and found the wallet where it had been dropped.

NEGOTIATIONS TO END WAR.

First Steps in Movement for Peace are Chronicled.

Englishman Presents Proposal to Von Romberg.

Britain Represented to View the Conflict as a Draw.

BY JOHN L. BALDERSTON.

[SPECIAL FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

BERNE (Switzerland) July 4.—The first negotiations to end the war between England and Germany have taken place here in neutral Switzerland. Acting in behalf of certain influences in Great Britain which believe the war a draw and favor a peace which shall humiliate neither side, a prominent Englishman has come to Berne, travelling through France, and presented his proposals to Baron Von Romberg, the German Ambassador to Switzerland. The German diplomat received his visitor with every courtesy and at the end of a long conference promised to forward the proposals to Berlin.

"Baron Von Romberg," said the Englishman in summing up the results of his mission, "considered that the steps I had taken would be of value in the sympathetic impression they would evoke in Berlin, and trusted that I would continue my efforts in the same direction."

Part of this remarkable story cannot be told until the war is over. The mysterious visitor, who is a man of prominence in his own country, as is obvious from the consideration with which, as will be seen, the German diplomat treated him, cannot be named at this time. An outcry against him in England would at once arise. Provided, however, that his name and those of his associates at home be concealed "for the good of the cause," he is willing that what took place at the conference with Baron Von Romberg should be made public. The suggestion of personal danger to himself this lofty idealist dismissed with the words,

"What did I risk? Suspicion, accusation of pro-Germanism and treason, prison, death? A few millions had died already in a foolish cause they scarcely understood; why should not I in a good cause, the cause of peace to all?"

BRITON'S SUGGESTION.

The suggestion made by the Englishman, which aroused the liveliest interest in the Baron's mind, was this:

Let Germany formally restate her position, announced when the war began, that all she desires is a guarantee that she is safe from aggression, that none of the Allies separately or together will attack her. Let her announce that she desires to annex no conquered territory. By so doing, Germany will put the responsibility for continuing the war on the Allies, who claim that their only object in fighting is to rescue Belgium and France from aggression. Germany's announcement will mean that this end has been already attained. Its effect on opinion in England and France will be such that what would then be a war of conquest on the part of those nations cannot be continued.

GERMAN CRITICISM.

Before agreeing to transmit this proposal to Berlin, the German Ambassador criticised it. His main point was that any guarantees the Allies might offer Germany that they would never attack her could not be accepted because the promises might be broken. To this the envoy retorted that Germany, in accepting the principle involved, would bind herself to nothing. It would be for the Allies to satisfy Germany of the value of their guarantees, and in this connection the head of a neutral power, perhaps the President of the United States, might be of service.

Back of the proposal made to Baron Von Romberg, in a general way, stands the International Labor Party in England, an organization denounced in England as pro-German and a "nest of traitors," but which has kept its strength during the war, and has branches in every village and town in England. Besides the Labor party, the influence of a class corresponding to the "intellectuals" of Russia is to be discerned. An important group at one of the classic English universities, I learn from another source, is not unconnected with the peace propaganda. Let it be understood that it is not claimed that either the International Labor Party or the university group referred to, or both together, sent an envoy to make proposals to Gemany. That I cannot prove, and Baron Von Romberg's caller mentioned no names, and made it clear that he was, officially, speaking for himself alone. The responsibility, and the danger, are his.

DANGER TO PACIFICISTS.

That the danger to English Pacificists is not imaginary, may be inferred from the slogan "Ramsay MacDonald to the Tower," which recently ornamented the front page of "John Bull," a journal of more than a million circulation, edited by Horatio Bottomley, who was recently deputed by the government to go into the shipbuilding district and spur the workers to greater efforts. Mr. Bottomley, whose influence over the "plain people" was thus officially recognized, closed a bitter attack on MacDonald as a coward and traitor with the sentence, "I demand that Ramsay MacDonald be taken to the Tower and shot at dawn!" Mr. MacDonald is leader of the International Labor Party. If he or his associates had anything to do with this peace mission to Switzerland, it may now be understood why it would be inadvisable for them to avow the fact.

The following account of the Englishman's interview with the representative of the Kaiser was written by him:

"As briefly as possible, I explained that though a British citizen, I had lived nearly twenty years in France, and yet in the war now deluging our three countries in blood, I had been able to find justification for the action of all three, not so much, however, that our countries were all equally right as that all were equally responsible for the war and all equally in the wrong. I pointed out that whether the war ended now, in six months, or a year, whether in the advantage to the German arms or to those of the allies, a lasting peace was the necessary object of all. Only when peace, temporary or definite, was arranged could the problems of Europe be studied and solved, if solution were possible. In Mr. Asquith's words, the day must come when 'for force, for the chaos of competition, for groupings and alliances and a precarious equipoise, there should be substituted a real European partnership, based on the recognition of equal right and established and enforced by a common will.'

"I ventured to point out to His Excellency that whether the German cause was just or unjust, the fact was undeniable that to a great extent the sympathy of the world was estranged from that cause, that the use of such a phrase as 'a scrap of paper' in reference to an international treaty by a German statesman was, to say the least, unfortunate and calculated to alarm all those smaller states, who felt that their existence depended on the recognition of similar documents. I told him that the time had come when Germany could reinstate herself in the opinion of the world and in that of those of her own people, who hesitated to accept the invasion of Belgium as a step essential to the salvation of Germany.

"Now was the time for Germany to restate, in formal and deliberate terms addressed not only to her enemies, but to the heads of all neutral states, the grounds on which she believed herself to be engaged in this war, the grounds on which she was still willing, even today, to accept peace. Unless Germany had changed her mind, these terms were no less and no more than a guarantee that she was safe from aggression, that none of the allies, either separately or together, desired to threaten or to attack her. I added that Germany had always disclaimed any desire to annex territory and before the war, when hostilities with Russia and France seemed imminent, had invited Britain to remain neutral on the triple and generous condition of respect to Belgian neutrality and, in the event of victory, of abstention from annexation of French territory in Europe or in her colonies.

"If today Germany formally restated her position, she would thereby force the allies to declare their terms and the grounds upon which they believed themselves at war. If, as they had repeatedly declared, their object was only to defend Belgium and to protect France from aggression, that object by Germany's own admission was already attained. For if Germany obtained the guarantee she sought of safety from aggression by any or all of the allies, and if, as she declared, she intended no annexation of conquered country, there remained no reason why the terms of peace should not be immediately entered upon. If, on the other hand, the allies were determined to continue the war in the endeavor to force Germany out of territory, which today by success in the first few months of the war she claimed she defensively occupied, or to beat Germany back within her own frontiers and in the event of a successful issue to dictate humiliating terms of peace, then at any rate, the responsibility of so continuing the war lay upon their shoulders and not upon Germany's.

"The Ambassador heard me in silence, only occasionally interrupting to emphasize Germany's point of view or to protest against the attitude of the allies. I shall never forget the impression of sincerity I received in proofs he gave me, from personal and private experiences, of the sudden unexpectedness of the outbreak of war, of his own family, for instance, in Germany near the Russian frontier towards the end of July, and unwarned and unrecalled even by the Minister's own friends in the German Foreign Office, who had no idea of the imminence of war.

"I myself had been told in Paris by the Prince of Monaco how, when the guest of the Emperor at Kiel at the end of June, some time after the assassination of the Austrian heir, the Emperor pointed out some half-dozen vast British warships present as his guests, saying: 'That does not look as if war with England were likely.' And yet he is accused of having prepared for war for months if not years, and our own War Minister, Lord Kitchener, does not hesitate, in the House of Lords, to say that the very date had been decided upon.

AS TO RUSSIA.

Russia, the Minister assured me was the universal belief in Germany, had prepared and desired the war in which, by her alliance, France must take part, even if her ideas of revenge for 1870 were not a sufficiently strong inducement? Britain, he added, entered the war upon the question of Belgian neutrality; although that could only have been a pretext seeing that Germany offered to respect it, and seeing that already, before the war, Britain had shown her solidarity with France.

"He had listened to my suggestion," he said, "because he appreciated personally the motives of my visit, and he dared not repel or affect to ignore any effort to bring about an honorable termination to the war so costly in all that was precious. At the same time he felt bound to add that the question was one for the military authorities and that to them there might appear objections. Such a statement from Germany might be interpreted as a confession of weakness, might strengthen a flagging energy on the part of Germany's enemies, might necessitate a change or cessation of certain military movements; that Germany's innocence in this war was well known, that it was difficult to see what guarantee the allies would be able to offer, and so on.

"I answered that such a statement as I suggested was not superfluous to clear Germany's attitude, would be to many people a revelation, and that, whatever the difficulties of the guarantee, those difficulties would lie, not upon Germany, but upon the allies, who would have to satisfy Germany as to their value, perhaps even by an appeal to a mutually acceptable power, say the President of the United States. I added that while the military power might see objections to a cessation of hostilities the last word really lay with the civil representatives of the nation, with the Chancelleries and the Foreign Secretary in consultation with the Emperor and his staff.

"The Ambassador was anxious to hear if I in any way approached him as representing more or less formally any individuals, or political groups in my own country or in France. I assured him I did not, although I felt, from long residence both in Britain and in France that there was an important section of public opinion in both countries that regretted the war, that realized that it increased rather than diminished the European problems it proposed to solve and that would hail with joy the possibility of release from the slaughter, upon all sides, of lives so valuable and so essential to the future of the world.

"The Ambassador promised to forward my proposal to Berlin, along with a short paper entitled 'The Way Out,' which summarized the ideas I had ventured to submit to him. He added that while he doubted whether any positive result would come from my efforts, he had been pleased to meet me and listen to my message as from an unprejudiced observer inspired by a sympathetic regard for both the nations involved and a sincere desire to contribute to their reconciliation. Baron Von Romberg considered that the steps I had taken would be of value in the sympathetic impression it would evoke in Berlin, and he trusted that I would continue my efforts in the same direction."

A more definite explanation of his views of the present situation, and how the war can be ended by mutual understanding, was prepared by the unofficial envoy. It is possible, although he did not say so, that the document transmitted to Berlin by the German Ambassador was in part composed of the following, which seemed to me the sanest exposition of the terrible world conflagration that has been offered by anyone either in Europe or in neutral America. The British pacifist's views, which I repeat are those of an important section of the British public, important though at present submerged; important intellectually if not numerically, follows:

"In general terms, the condition of reconciliation depends upon our seeing both sides of the shield of truth, upon recognition by each of the other's view point, upon an honest endeavor to put ourselves in the other man's place. This may seem difficult when one of the causes of the war is complete disbelief in the adversary's assertions. He has broken his word, we say. But can we deny his assertion that we have sometimes broken our pledged word? Denmark in 1807, Persia in 1907? What are most treaties but conditions of peace dictated to a broken power? Does any reasonable man expect the last of them, the treaty of Bucharest, to be honored by its signatories? The Crimean war forced Russia to sign the treaty of Paris, which she promptly violated in 1870. Has anyone accused her of dishonor therefor? Our adversary lived, he says, in dread of Russian aggression. Have we given that dread due consideration?

"But let us avoid details lest we lose sight of principles.

"The object of this war is peace, the peace we believe we could not obtain by any other means. We expect it to be a sound peace, based on national aspirations and therefore on right rather than on might. But by war it is obvious that our might is the means by which we hope to reach it, so, for once in the world's history, might is really to impose right. But our adversaries have dreaded the might on our side opposed to them. They were not sure that their powerful neighbors, Russia and France, were interested only in the right, and to resist force they too were ready. Have we done their position justice? We think we have. They think we have not. We say no one would have attacked them had they refrained from attack. They say they were encircled by advancing foes and must strike first for their lives.

"Peace then, lasting peace, is our object in this war. But lasting peace implies agreement, complete harmony among those at present bent on each other's destruction. How can that come about? Quite easily if each of us be taken at his word. And that is my way of reconciliation—prove that we mean what we say and ask no more than that the other do likewise. Is that impossible?

"Almost at the onset of the war, when all its evil forces had acquired an irresistible momentum, one of Europe's statesmen suggested a federation of Europe by which the hostile groups—to whose existence as diplomatic entities this war is due—could be mutually guaranteed against attack, 'a definite rapprochement between the powers.' It is as certain as anything can be that some such European federation, or better still, world-federation, must be the outcome of this armageddon if poor humanity is to survive. If that suggestion came too late, is it not possible now, when the nations have appealed to war and realized its futility and hideous cost in life and all worth living, that it would meet the desires of all?

"All nations engaged in the war today hold they are fighting in the defense of their land, of their people. Will they prove it? How may Germany prove it? How shall the allies prove it?

"The accusation against Germany by her enemies is that as a nation she is carrying out the ambition of her Pan-nationalists to impose by force her ideals on the world—to plant the German flag on Belgian, French, Russian and British territory—an ambition that these allies are determined to oppose. The allies disclaim any desire to dismember or to crush Germany, they have seen the results of that policy already in Europe. But they do desire to liberate themselves, Europe, and the world, from the nightmare of possible wars in the future.

"The answer of Germany to that accusation has been made over and over again. They desire no territory. They have seen the error of 1870, when the forcible annexation of territory, disapproved by Bismarck, led to armaments, unrest within the empire, and this war. They desire no territory in France, in Belgium or elsewhere. But they have taken up the sword to defend their hearths and homes, and they are on foreign soil today by victory in the early stages of that defensive war. Guarantee them what they asked before the war—safety from aggression—and upon that condition, and that condition only, will they retire from the ground they occupy today. Deny them that guarantee and they will die rather than yield.

"But who desires aggression? Who would have attacked Germany? Do not all the allies deny any such intention? Has it all been a misunderstanding? Has all this wrongdoing emanated from an ill-grounded fear of one's neighbor, a panic that dare not wait but must act at once? Obviously, that and that alone, is the explanation of this war, the saddest and most monstrous tragedy of errors that the world has ever seen.

"Today then peace, or at least arrest of the war, is possible if these simple conditions could be formulated. The problems in Europe today must be settled ultimately by discussion, and by mutual agreement on terms only to be reached by patience. War, and war alone, can never solve such complicated questions. War is never a solution, and today more than ever it is an aggravation. Arrest then of the war is the first step towards attaining the object we all seek.

"Let Germany announce to a listening world that the noise and din of battles have made us all, herself perhaps included, forget that she seeks no aggrandisement, that her motto is defense, not defiance.

"Let the allies meet the statement with the terms on which they, too, desire peace and if these terms involve no humiliation, no spoliation, no menace, may we not hope that the nations, whose courage in face of great peril is once more proved, may see eye to eye and join hands in the peaceful work before them?"

MEN'S COATS PADLESS.

Snug Waists Will Also Be Abbreviated This Winter, Says Style Clothing Designer.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, July 31.—Men's coats for the winter season will have padless shoulders and snug waists, and will be abbreviated, according to announcement of James McGinley, spokesman for the Style Clothing Designers' Association of America, whose annual convention ended here yesterday. McGinley said that the broad lapel would be banned this winter. Trousers, he asserted, will be tight.

St. Quentin.

FRENCH PEOPLE PHILOSOPHICAL.

Little Hostility is Shown in Conquered Districts.

Religion of the Bavarians Forms Common Bond.

Populace and the Soldiers Unite in Churches.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

ST. QUENTIN (France) May 25.—For generations the Bavarian soldier has sustained the reputation of being one of the best fighting units in the world. He has always been, in the eyes of his opponents, a very terrible man to be pitted against. His name has been synonymous with military efficiency and, especially during the present war, his enemies have whispered more than that about him.

Many do not know or will not believe that the Bavarian has any other side than a fierce desire to fight and to win, at any price. He is at the same time singularly devout and religious and in this lies one explanation for the present relative content of the civil population of that part of conquered France which lies to the northward. German system, in taking scrupulous care of the people, has played a large part, but the religious nature of the Bavarian soldier has had a share in the result.

An Associated Press correspondent who toured Northern France recently listened with some little degree of incredulousness as German officials insisted that the population of the occupied country and of the cities were quiet and submissive, fairly happy and bore few traces of bitterness toward the invaders.

PEOPLE ACQUIESCENT.

The people, to be sure, showed no outward signs of resentment. Nor would those with whom the correspondent talked admit of harboring ill-feelings against the Germans. Nevertheless it seemed impossible that they could be reconciled to their position. Then there entered into the problem the religious equation—stronger probably in Northern France than anywhere else where fighting now in going on.

Through the wonderful stained-glass windows of the cathedral of St. Quentin there streamed the afternoon sun of an early May Sunday, illuminating the strangest congregation that probably ever gathered in beautiful old Notre Dame. In the great nave there knelt fully 1000 women from all classes of the population. Three-quarters at least wore mourning—mute evidence that they had lost sons and husbands, brothers and lovers. The strains of a wonderful organ carried far into the streets about the cathedral, attracting more and more from outside.

BAVARIANS KNEEL.

At first glance one saw only the women in their deep mourning. Then, however, there came into view the drab gray uniforms of scores of Bavarian soldiers, kneeling, not on the little chairs, but on the stone floor. Some held little prayer-books and were mumbling prayers in German even while the French priest chanted in his own language. As the music continued more and more soldiers entered the church, and, finding no room among the audience, knelt in the rear until the building was packed clear to the doors.

Suddenly the mass came to an end. The women—but not the soldiers—rose. By twos and threes they began to file out of the cathedral, past the men who had come into possession of their city and who had been responsible for the death of their loved ones.

The correspondent scanned each face for some trace of the bitterness he expected to find written there. Not one woman in all the audience of a thousand cast even a resentful glance at the soldiers. Instead, there was almost universal approval as the French women walked by the rough German soldiers—peasants mostly—and saw their devotion. The antagonism that was to be expected seemed to have been banished by the bond of a common religion and a common devotion.

GERMAN PRIEST ENTERS.

Hardly had the women left the church than a German priest entered and began a mass in German especially for the soldiers, who gradually filled up the body of this church just vacated. The organ pealed again and this time the men, and not the choir, took up the refrain, and sang until the whole building reverberated with the melody.

Half an hour later the soldiers were seen on the streets of St. Quentin, chatting, laughing, greeting here and there some Frenchman whom they had come to know during the months of occupation. The brief episode in Notre Dame, wholly commonplace in many ways and yet given to so few to see, had put an entirely different complexion on an otherwise inexplicable situation. It was no longer hard to understand why there is little feeling on the part of the inhabitants of St. Quentin.

BULLET MISSES ESPEE MANAGER.

FIRED BY BOYS IT CRASHES THROUGH WINDOW OF HIS PRIVATE CAR.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

DUNSMUIR, July 31.—As General Manager D. W. Campbell of the Southern Pacific was travelling north yesterday in his private car, Sppt. Metcalf of the Shasta Division and other railroad officials accompanying, a bullet crashed through the car, scattering bits of glass from windows of the opposite sides of the car.

The bullet whizzed close to General Manager Campbell's head and barely missed Private Secretary Lord. Consternation prevailed and the train was stopped at Grenada, the nearest station, which is between Sisson and Dunsmuir. Detectives by the dozen were put on the case. The mystery was solved today when two boys, aged 10 and 12 respectively were brought to Dunsmuir. They said they were shooting at a tin can as a target. They had no idea of hitting a car in the train that was passing at the time, they declared. The bullet must have glanced on a boulder, for they surely did not aim at General Manager Campbell's special car.

The boys are sons of A. S. Johnson, who is moving in a covered wagon from Oregon to Los Angeles. The father's and the boys' explanation was accepted. They were allowed to go on to Los Angeles and General Manager Campbell went on his way.

How to Dress

If every woman tried to dress like the models shown in the average fashion magazine, she would look like a Futurist or a Cubist painting.

The attempts of a few are responsible for the queerly-dressed creatures which we occasionally see on prominent thoroughfares.

The intelligent woman who cares about her appearance wants to be fashionably yet tastefully and exclusively gowned.

Fortunately, there is a publication which will aid her—The Woman's Home Companion.

The fashion models in this magazine are not fantastic. They do not look like creatures which belong in a zoo or a museum.

They look like real human beings, real flesh and blood women—women who are really pleasing to the eye.

Every woman would be attractive in appearance if she made her gowns according to the designs and patterns furnished by the Companion.

MAY SUTTON BUNDY WINS IN GREAT TENNIS MATCH.

Mary Browne Goes Down to Defeat Before Wonderful Work of the Former World's Champion — Tom Bundy Loses in Final Round to Roland Roberts of San Francisco, Who is a Lucky Young Man.

BY WILLIAM M. HENRY.

MAY SUTTON BUNDY is not the May Sutton of old.

Far from it. Mrs. Bundy is a tennis player whose ability is so far above the May Sutton of old that there is no comparison.

Mary Browne, truly great player that she is, was absolutely helpless before the smashing tennis of the former world's champion.

TOO GOOD.

One game in the first set and two in the second were all that the midget national champion was allowed for consolation, and sister Florence hardly fared better in the challenge round, Mrs. Bundy capturing it by the [illegible] score of 6-2, 6-3.

Yesterday was the day for which a lot of people have been waiting ever since May Sutton became Mrs. Bundy.

A COME-BACK.

Out of the game for three years while Mary Browne was capturing the national championship with little opposition, there were many who said that the once peerless May Sutton would never come back.

Others, more enthusiastic, insisted that Mary Browne plays better tennis than Mrs. Bundy ever did.

Few, if any, figured on the wonderful improvement in Mrs. Bundy's game. There was none of the old "get 'em back" style of play. Mrs. Bundy drove with crushing force, covered the court with tremendous speed and played what was absolutely a man's game.

GOOD TENNIS.

Mary Browne played great tennis, although in the first set especially she was inaccurate. Her drives were a little prettier but not so effective and she was more graceful. Her overhead work was much the better and she covered court with great speed but the determined smashing and driving to the corners of the court and only May could not be beaten.

Mrs. Bundy captured the first four games in a row by great driving. Miss Browne's returns were fast and well thought out but inaccurate. The fifth game went to Miss Browne on her own service and because of her bad driving.

The next two games, however, went to Mrs. Bundy through her determined play and her great driving.

SAME THING.

The first game of the second set went the same way, Mrs. Bundy's driving being perfect and Miss Browne's drives still being inaccurate. In the second game Miss ,Browne rallied and for eight points played the most wonderful tennis imaginable, taking two games at love with wonderful placement shots which the plucky May refused even to attempt. In those two games Miss Browne played tennis that was absolutely unbeatable and, could she have held the pace she could have won the match. But May came back in that determined manner for which she is noted and by accurate placing of her drive won five games straight, the last one being rather an anti-climax as Miss Browne served a double fault.

PLAYED WELL.

Miss Browne played tennis that no one need be ashamed of but she was up against a player who not only couldn't be beaten but wouldn't.

Tom Bundy, May's illustrious spouse, fared slightly worse than his better seven-eighths, being nosed out in the finals by Roland Roberts, a child from San Francisco, largely through his own foolishness in playing with a broken racket rather than delay the match.

The final score of the terrific battle was 3-6, 3-6, 6-1, 6-2, 6-3 in favor of Roberts.

Bundy won the first two sets with ease and considerable dispatch. Roberts was playing grand tennis, displaying a fine drive and lots of headwork at the net, but he couldn't solve the twisting service of the southern man and Bundy's accurate placement shots beat him.

RACKET NO. 1.

The third set started out in a different manner. Roberts won the opening game on his own service, which was to be expected. Then Bundy busted a string in his racket and, by

SPRINTER IN SPEEDY TIME.

But the Wind was Quite a Considerable Help.

High School Boy Distances Howard Drew.

Several Other Fast Marks are Made.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN FRANCISCO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, July 31.—With a small tempest blowing in from the ocean, two world's records were bettered this afternoon at the exposition cinder path in the finals of the Far Western Track and Field Championships.

SOME BREEZE.

The wind carried runners along at a fine clip in both the hurdles and dashes, where most of the record breaking was accomplished. Robert McBride of the East Denver High School ran through the furlong in 21 seconds, breaking the world's mark of :21 1-5; A. Muenter of the Olympic Club ran through the 440-yard hurdles in :53 3-5, bettering the world's record of :54 3-5, made on a circular track, however.

Fred Murray equalled the world's low hurdle record of :23 3-5, while Fred Kelly equalled his own world's mark of 15 seconds in the high hurdles. And this does not include Frank Sloman's performance in the 440-yard dash, the Olympic star covering the distance in :47 3-5, bettering the Pacific Coast mark and coming mighty close to Maxey Long's world mark of 47 seconds.

TO THINK ABOUT.

All of which will be mighty serious food for thought for the minds of the eastern athletic talent.

When the record breaking ended, the spectators found time to observe that the Pacific Association had won the meet with 92 1-2 points, with the South Pacific runners going into second place with a total of 59 markers.

Athletic thrills were abundant through all of the competition. In the sprints honors for first place were divided between Howard Drew, the colored champion of Los Angeles, and Robert McBride, a dash prodigy from the East Denver High School.

DREW WINS.

In the century, Drew won from his Rocky Mountain rival by a yard in 10 seconds, while McBride reversed things in the furlong, running into first place by two yards. In this accomplishment, McBride ran under the

JOHNS IS WINNER IN OREGON TENNIS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PORTLAND (Or.) July 31.—Rev. L. K. Richardson of Portland lost the Oregon State championship in men's singles here today to H. V. D. Johns of San Francisco. The score, 7-5, 6-0, 6-3.

The final match in the men's singles of the Oregon tennis tournament here today produced the most exciting net battle of the week. It resulted in a victory for H. V. D. Johns of San Francisco over Catlin Wolford of Portland, 5-7, 6-2, 6-3, 3-6, 6-1.

Wolford, who proved the surprise of the tournament, has just completed his freshman year at Stanford University. His playing was brilliant, but consistency won for his opponent.

BEAVERS WALLOP VERNON, WHILE FANS HISS HELD.

THE pesky Portland Beavers won from Vernon again yesterday. The score was 4 to 2. The hurler who turned the trick was Lush, who won the first game of the series. As in that opening game, it was an error that gave him the victory. Only this time Risberg made it. It was almost excusable. Yet it let in two runs.

Red Held was the most unpopular man at Washington Park. Most of the fans still think that he presented Portland with the game on a silver platter. The umpire was hissed and booed until he ducked his red head under the grand stand.

PROTEST.

The reason for his unpopularity was his calling of Rader out at the plate in the sixth inning. Rader and the ball hit the dust at the home plate at the same time. Red jerked up his thumb. Rader must have said something before he got off the ground. Held canned him. His run would have tied the score, 1 to 1. The fans could not see the play Red's way and began hooting and hissing. They spent the rest of the afternoon doing it.

The canning of Rader meant the switching of the Tiger infield. Purtell went to third and Risberg took second. And unluckily for Red, it was Risberg's boot that let in the two runs that won the game. This did not make the fans feel any more kindly to him.

LUSH DROPPED.

The other feature of the game was the accuracy with which Cack Henley hit Lush. Twice he brought the Portland heaver in a crumpled mass to the ground. In the fourth inning he hit Lush in the head. Everybody held his breath. But Lush walked to first. In the sixth inning he hooked the ball into Lush's stomach. Again the pitcher grovelled in the dust. According to Cack, Lush stepped into the ball both times. There is no doubt that he was stepping pretty close to the plate and swinging from the ground up.

Portland scored its first run in the fourth inning. Stumpf doubled. Hillyard sacrificed him to third and he scored on Derrick's out, Henley to Gleichmann.

The other three Beaver tallies came in the seventh. Hammond singled to center. Speas sacrificed him to second, Henley to Gleichmann. Bates singled infield, ending Hammond to third. Stumpf drove a liner over second, scoring Hammond and sending Bates to second. Risberg threw Carish out by a beautiful stop, landing on his head. But he booted Hillyard's grounder, and Bates and Stumpf scored.

The Tigers made their two tallies in the seventh and ninth. Purtell scored on his double, Gleichmann's single and Berger's forced out of Gleichmann at second.

Doane was the last to score of the day. He singled and came across the plate on Wilhoit's drive over second.

The Vernon hitters were not able to do much with Lush. They seem to have adopted the policy of "watchful waiting." They do not swing at the ball until the pitcher has them in the hole and at his mercy.

The score:

TENTH AND HOPE

INCREASE THIS SEASON, REPORT.

PLEASURE AUTOS AND TRUCKS TO SHARE IN FACTORY OUTPUT RAISE.

News of a decided increase in the production of Reo cars for the coming season was received last week by H. C. Harris, Pacific Coast representative for the Reo Motor Car Company, who has been making his headquarters recently at the local branch of Earle C. Anthony, Inc., State distributors for the Reo.

"Twenty-four thousand pleasure cars will be produced by the Reo company during the coming season, according to word just received from General Manager R. H. Scott," said Harris last week. "The production of Reo trucks will also be considerably enlarged, and work has been started on a four-and-one-half-acre enlargement for the commercial vehicle division.

"A three-story structure, 101x256 feet, will be added to the general assembling department of the pleasure-car division. Another three-story structure, 115x138 feet, will be added to the final assembly department, while a three-story addition will enlarge the present engineering building as well.

"There has never been a year in the history of the Reo company that they could not have sold far more cars than they were able to produce, in spite of substantial enlargements of the factory each year. I hope that with the big increase in production this year, the factory will be in a position to completely supply the demand for Reos."

ONE IN FIFTEEN IS AN AUTOIST.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

POMONA, July 31.—According to an estimate which has been made by Deputy Assessor C. W. Talbott, one-fourth of the families living in this city own automobiles. His report shows that there are 825 machines here and that they represent an original expenditure of more than $500,000, although their assessed valuation is now $165,000. The total amount of tax collected on automobiles in the city this year will be $2700, or about 2 per cent. of the entire tax collections of the city. The deputy assessor estimates that $10,000 is the sum that was paid this year for State licenses. The State and county taxes amount to $3300 and the city taxes were $2700, bringing the total expense of owning cars up to $16,000 for the year. Fifty cars have been purchased since the assessor closed his books. Talbott's figures allow one machine for every fifteen citizens.

SEEING AMERICA, DOING IT WELL.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, July 28.—"We have traveled just 2500 miles in our trip across the continent, but that is hardly a good start," said L. H. Williams, who arrived in the city today from Mountain Grove, Mo. "We do not intend to stop until the speedometer has registered 10,000 miles. We are going to see America first and see it all."

Mr. and Mrs. Williams are in a big Cadillac, and Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Hardin, Mr. and Mrs. T. N. Funston and Miss Alta Morris are in a Hudson. They are guests of J. A. Hughes while here. They will take a trip into the mountains, go to Los Angeles, San Diego, the Yosemite, San Francisco, Lake Tahoe, Yellowstone Park and other places before returning to Mountain Grove. The men own a big wholesale grocery there.

The next St. Louis motor car show will be held at Forest Park Highlands the week of October 3.

CHEERS ROADS OF CALIFORNIA.

Kansas City Man Making Two Runs Across.

Wife and Children Accompany the Autoist.

Says the Highways of the World are Here.

California roads are the finest in the West, according to Paul Lewis, who left Los Angeles last week for his home in Kansas City after a trip which brought him west via the Lincoln highway to San Francisco and south to San Diego over the coast route. Mr. Lewis is driving an Overland of the 1914 crop.

When he left Kansas City Mr. Lewis left the old tires on his car, but purchased two extra Kelly Springfield Kant Slips for emergency work. At Salt Lake City he put these casings on the rear wheels, and they were not off the wheels until he drew up before the local branch of the Kelly Springfield company to equip his car with three more. The first pair of Kelleys by this time had traveled close to 1500 miles, but there was no appreciable evidence of wear.

They were put on the front wheels and two of the new ones on the rear wheels, with one extra for emergency service. "Kelleys for mine all the time," said Mr. Lewis, as he left. "When a tire can travel from Salt Lake to San Diego and back to Los Angeles without showing wear it's some tire."

Mr. Lewis is following the National Old Trails highway east and will stop for several days at the Grand Canyon. He is accompanied by his wife and two children, Frances and Mellen. The party is camping along the road instead of stopping at hotels, and the children, as well as their parents, find this part of the trip as much fun as the riding.

BARSTOW MAN LANDS AGENCY.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

BARSTOW, July 30.—The Central Garage, E. L. Stanfield proprietor, is now the home of the Studebaker in this district. In addition to the agency Stanfield will operate a regular supervised Studebaker service station and carry a full line of accessories and supplies.

The first 1916 Studebaker to arrive here was driven up from Los Angeles this week by Jack Jacobs, salesman for the local agency, who spent several days in the south wising up on the new creation.

JIM CORBETT'S PROTEGE.

JAMES J. CORBETT is back from Australia with a new heavyweight candidate for world's fistic honors. It is said that ever since a certain memorable experience occurring at Carson City, Nev., a few years back, "Gentleman Jim" has had an irrepressible desire to visit the land where the "solar plexus" grew.

A new crop of stories has quite likely been collected by Corbett, for a picture taken of a motoring party in a Studebaker six to Lesands, just out of Sydney, shows him as an attentive listener to R. D. ("Snowy") Baker, the boxing promoter, held to be without peer in the story-telling art. The party were guests of R. V. Cayce, assistant manager for the Studebaker Corporation of Australia, Ltd. Cayce is an old American ball player, his chief performance being in connection with the Texas and other southwest leagues. He is a player of no mean ability, being the star and shortstop of the All-American team, winner of the championship cup in the season that closed in March. With the invasion by the Comiskey-McGraw forces in the White Sox-Giants world's trip, Australia has the baseball fever in a violent stage.

Tom Cowler, the new protege of Corbett, is about 23 years old and has won his three fights of consequence in knockouts. Two of his vanquished foes were Ben Doyle and Les O'Donnell. Cowler stands over six feet tall, is pronounced as fast on his feet as a lightweight, and is said to show great cleverness in his fighting tactics. He was born in Cumberland, Eng., is of Irish extraction and came to Austrlia from Canada. Corbett plans to train him for eventually meeting Jess Willard and claims to have one of the preliminary battles practically arranged.

FORD BAND CONCERT.

The famous Ford band, composed of 55 employees of the Ford factory at Detroit, is to be in Los Angeles next Thursday and will give a special concert at Exposition Park that evening. The Ford band is en route to the Panama-Pacific Exposition, traveling in a special train. The instruments and uniforms are furnished by the Ford company and the players are never allowed to appear at any performance where an admission fee is charged. The Ford musicians left Detroit July 20 and will not return until about August 23.

DRAGS DRAGGED OUT.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN BERNARDINO, July 30.—Drags on automobiles coming down the mountain grades are tabooed by the road overseers and watchmen will be placed on the switchbacks and other places where drivers with weak brakes may resort to the use of dragging green boughs behind their cars. Drags fill the road with rocks and cause trouble for following automobiles as well as additional work for the road gangs.

Type 53

A New Eight-Cylinder Cadillac

THE new Eight-Cylinder Cadillac is ushered in on the heels of the most impressive success ever recorded in the motor car industry.

It follows a car which has entrenched itself in a positive position of pre-eminence.

The whole country now knows that the number of cars which are even candidates for comparison with the Cadillac, has been narrowed down until they can be counted on the fingers of one hand.

The country no longer asks if the Cadillac is as fine a car as some other; but inquires, instead, what other cars compare with the Cadillac—and how.

If public opinion could be translated into a few simple words, it would doubtless result in the statement that there never has been a motor car equal to the Cadillac Eight—either in performance or in stability.

It is this kind of a car—this one example of V-type efficiency, demonstrated by a year's experience—which the new Cadillac succeeds.

It succeeds a car which many thousands of people believe to have been the best car which the world has yet produced.

The new Cadillac is the fruit of experience, acquired in the building of 13,000 V-type Eights, and of their service in the hands of 13,000 users.

We believe that in this new car the V-type engine is developed to a point of excellence which even the most conscientious effort to equal cannot reach in many and many a day.

A year ago the Cadillac Company was blazing new paths of progress.

It pioneered new principles and new processes, pushing them to a point of certainty before its first V-type engine was marketed.

Nothing can take the place of that hard and painstaking period of invention, selection, rejection, adjustment and adaptation.

As a result, there is but one V-type standard based on extended experience; that is the Cadillac standard.

There is but one V-type criterion based on a demonstrated certainty; that is the Cadillac criterion.

It is obvious, therefore, that the first Cadillac Eight is the source from which V-type development must borrow its inspiration.

And in that fact lies an exceedingly important consideration.

In the pioneering process to which we have referred, the problems solved were peculiar to Cadillac construction.

They referred to that intimate relation between all the parts and all the processes of manufacture which make for a harmonious whole.

The Cadillac transmission and the Cadillac clutch—to cite only two of a number of features—were developed with direct reference to the requirements of the Cadillac V-type engine and the Cadillac car.

Their adoption by other makers may or may not be successful.

It is not the V-type engine, merely as a type, which has proven such a triumphant success, but the Cadillac Eight-Cylinder V-type engine, built into a Cadillac chassis according to Cadillac ideals—and as Cadillac artisans know how to build it.

That is what we meant when we said that nothing can take the place of Cadillac experience in building 13,000 cars.

That is why we do not believe that the equal of this new Cadillac Eight will exist for many a long day.

The first Cadillac Eight furnishes for those who would emulate its excellence, the one certain source of V-type information based on extended experience.

And the second Cadillac Eight, with that wonderful experience to build upon, naturally and logically marks an advance over the initial achievement.

There are no doubts or uncertainties about it.

Its advantages and virtues are all clear and positive and plain.

It has taken the one safe V-type criterion and carried it to the highest pitch.

It is twelve months away—13,000 cars away—from the least or last element of experiment.

Its pre-eminence cannot consistently be questioned.

In the face of the widespread adoption of the very principles which produced that pre-eminence, its leadership is not even a subject for discussion.

We believe that the new Eight-Cylinder Cadillac embodies the most practical combination of all 'round efficiency.

No really desirable qualities are sacrificed in order that some less essential—which provide more spectacular, but empty "talking points"—may be exploited.

We believe that it possesses a maximum of the worth-while characteristics which the most exacting motorist wants in his car—power, speed, smoothness, flexibility, ease of operation, dependability and endurance.

We repeat—again—we do not believe the equal of this new Cadillac exists.

And we do not believe that it can or will exist for a long time to come.

EVERY THIRD HOUSE AUTOS.

ONE-FIFTH OF THE ASSESSED PROPERTY IN MOTORS AT REDLANDS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, July 31.—One-fifth of the assessed personal property of the city of Redlands is in automobiles, according to the assessment rolls which have just been made by City Clerk C. P. Hook. The rolls show 600 automobiles in the city alone, their assessed valuation being $160,000. The total assessed valuation of the city jumped almost $400,000 during the year, being $8,843,150 this year, as against $8,476,325 last year.

During the year the Sommers system of making values on real estate was installed, resulting in a great increase, being $4,309,340 this year, as against $3,288,400 last year. The figures on improvements are $3,745,865 this year, being $4,366,610 last year. There is also a decrease in personal property, $777,065 this year, and $811,315 last year.

The city loses taxes of $62,815 by the soldiers' exemption, and on $66,850, which was the assessed valuation on the University of Redlands, exempt this year. It is estimated that there is an automobile in Redlands for very third family.

A summary of receipts and expenditures for eighteen months, from January 1, 1914, to July 1, 1915, the end of the fiscal year being changed this year, showing the receipts for the general fund to have been $315,105.44. The total expenditures were $280,655.03, leaving a balance of $34,450.41 on hand. It is estimated that the tax rate will be the same as last year, $1.30 on the hundred.

The Omaha race of July 5 was a financial success, the owners of the speedway realizing about 30 per cent. on their total investment.

STOLEN CARS ARE NUMEROUS.

Auto Club Issues Report on Motor Robberies.

Garagemen Assist in Battle Against Thieves.

Emblem of Organization has Great Effect.

In half a year's time, how many automobiles have been stolen in Los Angeles? What is the reason for their being stolen and what is the solution, together with an approximation of the value of the cars taken, were some of the questions answered yesterday in the first semi-annual report ever issued by a theft bureau.

Since January 8, 1915, just 580 automobiles have been stolen in Los Angeles, or more than in New York, Chicago or Philadelphia. The approximate total value of these cars reaches the staggering figure of $541,000.

To equal this record, the reported jewel robberies of the last ten years would have to be pyramided and then capped by a bonus. Yet, according to Secretary Mitchell of the Automobile Club of Southern California, motorists are not taking enough added precautions to stop this wholesale and organized thievery.

In order to give service to automobilists who have their cars taken, the Auto Club established in January the theft bureau, which reported yesterday. Since it was installed and put into working order to co-operate with the police and the Sheriff's office, 466 motor cars of those which were stolen have been recovered and only 114 are outstanding, the mysteries of the police world.

Where do the cars, which have not been accounted for, go? That is what police and Automobile Club officials are going to find out, if possible, in the next six months. One theory held by Detective Powell of the club's theft bureau is that they are so thoroughly taken apart that their various parts can never be traced. They pass into solution, in other words.

Co-operating with the Auto Club in this campaign is also the Garage and Repair Men's Association, which gives all the aid possible. It has been discovered that the Auto Club's emblem, carried on the radiator cap, is an absolute protection against theft, so active has that organization been in its work against the three organized gangs of thieves captured during the recent months.

ON ELECTRIC RAMBLE.

ANOTHER Beardsley electric tour took place yesterday.

This run was not for long mileage, but was more of a scenic mountain trip to take the owners and their friends over a route they had never traveled before.

The owners and their friends were invited to meet at the company's headquarters on West Seventh street at 1 o'clock Saturday. They followed Mr. Beardsley in the pace car out through Hollywood, Glendale and over the beautiful mountain road through La Canada to Altadena, then up to the foot of Mt. Lowe, where pictures were taken of the party, then to the starting point up Mt. Wilson, and on to their final destination, Sierra Madre, the very pleasant country home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hooker Jones.

Mrs. Jones threw the gates open and turned their orange grove, grounds and home over to the Beardsley Electric Company, where they, assisted by Mrs. Jones, gave a fine dinner, served under the mammoth oak tree that is reputed to be one of the largest live oaks in Southern California.

Those present on yesterday's outing were Mr. and Mrs. Volney S. Beardsley, Mrs. Fred Hooker Jones, Dr. and Mrs. R. Garton, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Bosworth, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Morphy, Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Marks, Mrs. Cora S. Stutz and daughter, Mrs. E. J. Stanton and friend, Mr. Harry H. Culver, Mr. J. U. Wayland, Miss Lillian Wayland, Mrs. Orrin Stair and daughter, Mrs. H. B. Matthews and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Beach, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Sorg, Mr. John T. Shannon, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Horn, Mr. and Mrs. Oris Mitchell, Mr. Dane Mitchell, Miss E. C. Strobl, Miss M. A. Mattey, Mr. Frank Spencer, Mr. W. H. Patterson, Mrs. H. H. Beckwith, Mr. and Mrs. N. R. ALLOYANUM ON NEW ARRIVALS.

Another shipment of Scripps-Booth cars was received during the week by Ralph C. Hamlin.

Advance orders required all but one of the cars and this one was put on the salesroom floor. From the previous shipments two demonstrators had been retained but it was necessary to dispose of one of these to please a purchaser who required immediate delivery, so Mr. Hamlin was left without a car for his showroom. The most recent arrivals from the factory are equipped with "alloyanum" pistons, which not only are lighter, but said to be better in every way for a high speed four-cylinder motor.

THREE CLASSES PURCHASE THE MODERN MOTOR CAR.

LOS ANGELES is the world's most highly developed automobile market, according to E. S. Jordan, sales manager for the Jeffrey Motor Car Company. Mr. Jordan was in Los Angeles last week on a tour of inspection through the western territory.

According to Jordan, California is at least a year and a half ahead of the Middle West in motor car market development, and six months ahead of New York and Philadelphia. He attributes this to California's excellent highways and her year-around motoring climate. The California motor market is closer the saturation point than any other section of the country, and this has naturally brought the most advanced selling problems to the dealers of this section. Problems are solved here long before they are encountered in the East.

Three things will be necessary for the future motor car dealer, according to Mr. Jordan. They have already become apparent in California and are rapidly being recognized in the East. They are a car which has an appeal to one of three classes of motor buyers, plenty of capital and a factory with the production to get the cost to the lowest possible point.

THE DIVISIONS.

The three classes into which Mr. Jordan divides the coming motor car business are the rich buyer who wants a style car, the man who seeks a standard car at a standard price and the man who wishes an inexpensive car.

To the former, comfort, luxuriousness, and mechanical perfection appeal.

The second class of buyers includes those who seek a comfortable, roomy car at a moderate price. It must be quiet and it must have a motor that is powerful enough to take the car anywhere. The number of cylinders, whether four, six, eight or twelve, does not matter.

The third class includes the buyers who want cheap cars, and in this field the man who can build the cheapest car which will do the work, who can get the necessary production to bring down the overhead cost to the lowest possible figures, will win out.

Mr. Jordan is the man who handled negotiations with foreign powers for the sale of the great fleets of Jeffrey quadruple drive trucks for use in the war. The shipping records of the port of New York show that the Jeffrey company has been very active in the disposal of trucks to the powers at war. The first Jeffrey quads were taken to Europe by the Canadian contingent and used in England while they were awaiting the call to the front. When that call came they took the trucks with them.

THE RECORDS.

The shipping records show the delivery on shipboard for England of twenty-five trucks early in October, and of a similar number for Russia. The next shipment was of 200 quads for the French government. In addition, fifty ton and a half trucks were shipped. Then came the shipment of forty more to the Canadian contingent.

Ambulances mounted on three-quarter-ton chassis were the next shipment to France.. One thousand of these were delivered through New York. Further shipments during the winter, the records show, amounted to 100 for Servia and fifty for Belgium. Early in the spring a shipment of 500 quadruple-drive trucks was made to the Russian government. Two hundred more quads were shipped to France.

It is reported that 375 more quads are now going through the factory for the Russian government.

The trucks are shipped by train from the Jeffrey factory to New York and within seventy-two hours after shipment they have been received and paid for. All payments are made through New York banks.

FRED MACE IS KING BOOSTER.

Fred Mace, the funny man with the Keystone company, whose face is familiar to film patrons throughout the world, is the owner of a King eight.

Mace decided that if all he had heard about the King was true he would be making no mistake in buying. So he called Clarence English of the English Motor Car Company on the telephone and made an appointment. The film star was after a demonstration that would show what the car could do, so he immediately requested that he be driven to the summit of Lookout Mountain on the high gear.

The hill is a difficult one, would be if the road had all the kinks ironed out of it. But with dangerous curves every 100 feet or so the car has little chance to gather speed and it is a case of lug all the way to the summit. The flexibility of the King and its ability to pull heavy loads at low speed, however, made the hill easy for the car.

GETTING THEIRS.

As the nations at war are needing for their own use the entire output of their factories, the competition of foreign tire manufacturers has been greatly lessened. The Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, in an effort to secure a share of the export business, is sending representatives to India, Australia and South America. In the countries Goodyear is now entering tires have been selling at exorbitant prices, and Godyear's entrance into these fields will be welcomed by all tire users.

SECOND ANNUAL PICNIC.

THE AUBURN owners' second annual picnic was held in Orange County Park, last Sunday, under the auspices of the W. J. Burt Motor Car Company.

Some fifty Auburn cars, driven by their owners and filled to capacity, started from the Auburn agency, reaching the park, four miles beyond the thriving city of Orange, before noon.

Incidentally, the drive to Orange County Park is one of the prettiest short trips out of Los Angeles, with a wide range in scenery from the walnut and orange groves and truck farms of "The Little County of Big Crops," to the wilder beauty of mountain and foothill and valley; passing too, over good roads, through several of the best small cities in Southern California.

Tables and parking space had been reserved. Hot coffee and cold lemonade had been prepared, and a basket picnic dinner came first on the programme. Then came the games with events extending almost from the cradle to the grave, with prizes of substantial value for the winners.

By this time W. J. Burt's collar was drooping, and an hour later it was completely wilted; but his well-known smile was still going strong. He gave his personal supervision to everything and left nothing for the comfort of his guests undone.

MORE FLOOR SPACE.

The Firestone Tire & Rubber Company's Los Angeles branch tomorrow assumes the occupancy of the building at No. 1237 S. Olive street, next door north of its present location. The old quarters are to be retained also, the additional floor space having been necessitated because of the constantly growing business.

MILLIONS FOR WAR TRUCKS.

Local Dealer Called East to Attend Conference—Cleveland Factory to Put Profits Into Manufacture of Autos—European Officers Stationed at Factory Test Power Wagons for Service on Battlefields.

CLARENCE SMITH has been called East to attend a conference of all Peerless agents at the Cleveland factory. Startling surprises in the motor car world are rumored and Smith stated before he left that he expected to make some highly interesting announcements when he returns.

The resources of the Peerless plant have been devoted almost exclusively to the manufacture of trucks during the past year. But all this time the engineers have been at work on a model that will cause a stir.

Since the first of last October the Peerless company has delivered twenty-two trucks a day. These have been sold in New York for $4000 each.

These are for use of the allied armies. The minimum order was for 1800 trucks and this has already been filled. The delivery of twenty-two trucks a day will continue during the war and for two months after peace has been declared.

The trucks delivered to date has meant over $5,000,000 profit for the Peerless company. This will be put into the manufacture of a new automobile that will once more bring the Peerless name to the high position it has always occupied.

The Peerless was one of the first companies to receive a large truck order. A large shipment was made to Canada and later to New York, from which point they were shipped to England and the continent.

Four British engineers are now at the Peerless factory testing out trucks. They are accepted by these engineers before they are put on the train for New York.

RESTA ENJOYS SANE MOTORING.

Dario Resta, is a genuine motor enthusiast off the speedway track. The great English-Italian who shattered all records for speed in the Chicago motor marathon now is spending most of his time prior to the opening of the fall racing season on the roads in the Middle West accompanied by his wife.

Resta recently purchased a Premier Speedster and he perhaps is one of the proudest owners in the country. While in Indianapolis preparing for the last speedway race, the Premier Speedster made its appearance on the market and it was not long before the driver and his wife became very much attached to the car. In Chicago Mrs. Resta used one of the speedsters to make daily trips to the race track to watch her husband in his daily speed trials and a few days after the record breaking contest Resta purchased one of the machines.

"TWIN-SIX" FOR LOCAL SERVICE.

On Tuesday the Packard "twin-six" demonstrator returns to Los Angeles, to remain until next Sunday. Though more than 600 people were given demonstrations in the car during its stay here a week ago, there were scores of people interested in the new car that could not be accommodated. Earle Anthony made a successful effort to secure a return engagement of the popular car, which from present indications will be kept just as busy this week as it was during the first four days it was demonstrated here.

HOENIX ROAD RACE IS UTGROWN BY SOUTHWEST

os Angeles Motor-car Men Turn Thumbs Down on esert Classic—Shettler Refuses to Lend Hand in romotion of 1915 Revival and Authorities Say, "Take peed Game to Speedway."

BY ALBERT GILL WADDELL.

ERE will be no 1915 revival of e Phoenix road race. The "desert classic," greatest of all motor events, is a race of the ccording to prominent Los Angeles utomobile men and city and officials.

s contended by the authorities e great Southwest has outgrown cing.

THE DANGERS.

are more than 47,000 auto egistered in Los Angeles one. According to county officials there are always 10,000 or more visiting auto parties in this county, giving a total of 60,000 machines constantly plying over the 600 miles of paved boulevard within the county limits. As a protection to the visiting autoists, if for no other reason, the Phoenix race should die, say former Phoenix entrants and racers.

Last year the Supervisors of Orange county refused to allow the race to be run over the good roads of that county. This action left but three routes open to the desert races.

The inland route to San Diego was eliminated when San Diego motor racing enthusiasts and the Phoenix race management failed to get together on the purse. There was no enthusiasm along the Ocean-to-Ocean Highway—by way of Banning, Beaumont and the Imperial Valley.

As a last resort, Leon T. Shettler, the man who managed the Phoenix race for years, personally went over the northern route, raising the money for the purse.

Phoenix people did not enthuse over the 1914 race on account of its being run over the northern route. The reception to the members of the "Howdy Special" crew, the crowd of boosters who annually travel to Phoenix to see the finish of the race, was but a cool welcome.

On the train returning from Phoenix the "Howdies" decided that the race had been the greatest ever, but it was generally admitted that the last Phoenix road race had been run.

Leon T. Shettler then announced that he was through with the Phoenix race. He said that he would never have anything to do with another Los Angeles-to-Phoenix road race. Shettler went further. He said that instead of benefiting the auto industry the Phoenix race was a detriment, when it had to be forced.

California's winter racing schedule, crowded with events, left no time for thought of the Phoenix race. Then, realizing that the "desert classic" was a dead one unless some enthusiasm was created at once, some of the Los Angeles boosters called a meeting, proposed to raise several thousand dollars and have the "desert classic" run from Los Angeles to El Paso. They hoped to combine the two races, the Los Angeles-to-Phoenix and the El Paso-to-Phoenix. They also hoped to combine the purses and, with the amount raised in Los Angeles, make it the greatest race ever held in the world.

To this plan Phoenix offered little or no support. Phoenix wanted the finish of the race.

Then Phoenix announced the usual

BROWN ENTERS DESERT RACE.

Walter M. Brown, entrant of the winning Stutz in the last Los Angeles to Phoenix road race, has stated that he will enter a car in the Phoenix race if it is held this year. Brown offers to enter the car merely as a matter of sportsmanship as he has nothing to win and everything to lose. In the past, when a man once won the desert classic he quit. But Brown says he will enter a Stutz in the desert race and make a strong bid for honors again, just to show that he is a real sportsman.

The annual Maxwell announcement banquet, given by the Lord Motor Car Company, distributors of Maxwell cars for Southern California and Arizona, to their dealers from all over their territory, was held last Thursday evening in the big banquet-room of the Los Angeles Athletic Club. The new 1916 Maxwell "25" which was displayed for the first time on Thursday was the topic of general conversation and Mr. T. J. Toner, of the Maxwell Motor Company, outlined the policy and plans for the 1916 season.

REMARKABLE RUN MADE BY AUTO.

One of the most remarkable automobile trips ever made by a car in Southern California was announced last week to Manager Al G. Faulkner of the Carlton-Faulkner-Bowles Company in a letter from W. W. Pope of Santa Paula. Mr. Pope recently wagered that he could leave Santa Paula after break of day and make a round trip to San Diego before dark.

The trip was made in a Jeffery light four. He was accompanied by I. B. Martin, R. L. Martin and L. S. Lothridge, who acted as observers on the trip.

The four left Santa Paula at 4:10 in the morning and were in Los Angeles at Seventh and Broadway just two hours later. After a stop of six minutes for refreshments, the party was again under way for San Diego, which was reached at 11:00.

The return to Los Angeles began at 12:20, after lunch in San Diego. One blowout delayed the party thirteen minutes, because they changed a front tire to a rear wheel and replaced it with the spare. They reached Seventh and Broadway again at 5:10. The stop for refreshments occupied nine minutes this time. At 5:19 they were under way again, and were in Santa Paula at 7:28.

The distance covered by the Jeffery on the trip was 420 miles. The elapsed time was 15h., 18m. Delays amounted to 2h., 24m. The actual running time being 12h., 56m., an average of 32.47 miles per hour. The car had previously run 2753 miles, and the original tires were still on all four wheels.

NEW AGENCY.

C. C. Carter of the firm of Austin Bryant and Carter, local distributors of the A.B.C. brand of oils and greases, was in San Diego this last week and announces that he has established an agency there and from now on the Southern Oil Company will distribute this popular brand of oil in the southern city. For the time being this office will distribute to all this southern territory, including the Imperial Valley, which has become a big user of the A.B.C. products.

WINTON SIX

A Car That Is Free From Vexations

One of the surest facts in the world is that better goods are never produced by cutting prices.

Another sure fact is that improved quality is only produced by constant effort applied to the same object. The maker who flits from one product to another seldom improves anything.

Eight consecutive years of effort concentrated upon one motor has made the Winton Six motor the most dependable that the industry has yet produced. Every new motor means new problems to solve, and they can only be solved in course of time. The Winton motor is eight years ahead of every new motor produced in 1915.

Winton Sixes are expressly made for that select class of people to whom $100 more or less is not vital; for men and women who cannot be satisfied by anything less than the highest scale of excellence; for men and women able to distinguish between the real and the seeming. And especially is the Winton Six made to satisfy that taste which demands personal individuality. The Winton Six owner has a car that is a distinctly personal possession.

All Low "After-Cost" Records Broken

The "first cost" of an automobile is a big consideration to any sane man, but the "after cost" is an even bigger consideration to any man who wants to remain sane in his automobile investment.

The "after cost" or upkeep is what a car costs you to maintain, run, and enjoy, after you have bought it, and it is mighty hard to enjoy an automobile if it costs you too much to run.

The Maxwell has lowered all economy records for:

Under the new geographical arrangement, the State is divided into twenty-nine districts, instead of the six now existing.

There are four large districts, the remainder being restricted area and including six game preserves, upon which it will be unlawful, without a written permit, to take, kill or have in possession any wild bird or wild animal.

In a general way, District No. 1 includes all of the higher mountain counties, from the southern boundary of Kern county north to the Oregon line and east to the Nevada line.

District No. 2 includes counties in the valleys and Coast Range north of San Francisco.

District No. 3 comprises counties in the valleys and Coast Range south of San Francisco to the northern boundary of Santa Barbara county, and including the lower-lying portions of Kern county.

District No. 4 includes the counties of Los Angeles, Orange, San Diego, Riverside, Imperial, San Bernardino, Ventura and Santa Barbara. Within District No. 4 are three game preserves of considerable extent, two being in the Angeles National Forest, one in Los Angeles county, portion the other in San Bernardino county, and the third in the small portion of the Cleveland National Forest that is in Orange county.

Most of the other numerous districts are along the coast line of the State, the purpose in creating them being the control of salt water fishing. Santa Catalina Island and State waters surrounding it form one district; another includes Salton Sea and the Colorado River in California.

NO "SPIKE BUCKS.

First in point of importance to the deer hunter is the fact that, under the new law, "spike" bucks are absolutely protected, as well as does and fawns. No deer may be killed unless it have prong horns. The obvious purpose of this restriction is to prevent the slaughter of does that may be mistaken for bucks.

The bag limit on deer stands as at present—two bucks in one season.

In District No. 4 the open season for deer is the month of September, fifteen days later at each end than at present.

In District No. 1, and in No. 23, which is the Lake Tahoe region, the open season is from August 15 to and including October 14; Districts Nos. 2 and 3 from August 1 to September 15.

Rabbits, while given added protection through a shorter season, must pay an increased penalty this year only through the fact that, under the old law, still in effect, the season opens August 1, while the new law provides for opening on October 1 and the closing on December 31. Thus, for the first six days of August, it will be lawful to kill cottontail and brush rabbits.

TAKE FEWER RABBITS.

The bag limit on rabbits is fifteen per day and thirty per week, instead of fifteen per day and one hundred and five per week.

There is no change in the law on tree squirrels, the season opening September 1 and closing December 31, with a limit of twelve per season.

Elk, antelope and mountain sheep are fully protected; the killing of elk is a felony.

Under full protection also are rail, wood duck and wild pigeon, while the killing of sea otter at any time is punishable by a fine of $1000

The open season for ducks, geese, coot and mudhens is from October 15 to January 31, as at present.

Bag limits on ducks and geese are, as now, twenty-five per day, fifty per week; on brant and honkers the limit is reduced to twelve per day, twenty-four per week.

On Wilson snipe, black-breasted plover, yellow-legs and golden plover the season runs with that on ducks, the bag limit on each of these four

THE STATE GAME LAWS STATED AND EXPLAINED.

State Now Divided into Twenty-nine Game Districts, Four Large and the Others Small — Spike Bucks are Protected and Fewer Rabbits Can be Killed—Six-day Season on Bunnies Starts Today.

BY FRANK GREAVES.

ADDED PROTECTION to all wild life is afforded by the new California fish and game laws, which become effective next Saturday. Shorter open seasons and a tightening up of the bag limits are the rule. Here are striking features of the law:

DEER—Season opens later; pronghorns only may be killed.

RABBITS—Shorter open season.

WILSON SNIPE, PLOVER, YELLOW LEGS—Lower bag limit.

GEESE—Limit of 25 per day, 50 per week.

VALLEY AND DESERT QUAIL—Open season lengthened in Southern California; bag limit decreased.

MOUNTAIN QUAIL—Season shorter and opens later; bag limit reduced.

DOVES—Open season extended; bag limit decreased.

TROUT—Southern California season open from May 1 to November 30.

DISTRICTS—Rearranged and renumbered.

Under the new geographical arrangement, the State is divided into twenty-nine districts, instead of the now existing.

There are four large districts, the remainder being restricted area and including six game preserves, upon which it will be unlawful, without a written permit, to take, kill or have in possession any wild bird or wild animal.

In a general way, District No. 1 includes all of the higher mountain counties, from the southern boundary of Kern county north to the Oregon line and east to the Nevada line.

District No. 2 includes counties in the valleys and Coast Range north of San Francisco.

District No. 3 comprises counties in the valleys and Coast Range south of San Francisco to the northern boundary of Santa Barbara county, and including the lower-lying portions of Kern county.

District No. 4 includes the counties of Los Angeles, Orange, San Diego, Riverside, Imperial, San Bernardino, Ventura and Santa Barbara. Within District No. 4 are three game preserves of considerable extent, two being in the Angeles National Forest, one in Los Angeles county, portion the other in San Bernardino county, and the third in the small portion of the Cleveland National Forest that is in Orange county.

Most of the other numerous districts are along the coast line of the State, the purpose in creating them being the control of salt water fishing. Santa Catalina Island and State waters surrounding it form one district, another includes Salton Sea and the Colorado River in California.

NO "SPIKE" BUCKS.

First in point of importance to the deer hunter is the fact that, under the new law, "spike" bucks are absolutely protected, as well as does and fawns. No deer may be killed unless it have prong horns. The obvious purpose of this restriction is to prevent the slaughter of does that may be mistaken for bucks.

The bag limit on deer stands as at present—two bucks in one season.

In District No. 4 the open season for deer is the month of September, days later at each end than at present.

In District No. 1, and in No. 23, which is the Lake Tahoe region, the open season is from August 15 to and including October 14; Districts Nos. 2 and 3 from August 1 to September 15.

Rabbits, while given added protection through a shorter season, will pay an increased penalty this year only through the fact that, under the old law, still in effect, the season opens August 1, while the new law provides for opening on October 1 and the closing on December 31. So for the first six days of August, it will be lawful to kill cottontail and brush rabbits.

TAKE FEWER RABBITS.

The bag limit on rabbits is fifteen per day and thirty per week, instead of fifteen per day and one hundred and five per week.

There is no change in the law on tree squirrels, the season opening September 1 and closing December with a limit of twelve per sea-

Elk, antelope and mountain sheep are fully protected; the killing of elk is a felony.

Under full protection also are rail, wood duck and wild pigeon, while the killing of sea otter at any time is punishable by a fine of $1000

The open season for ducks, geese, rail and mudhens is from October to January 31, as at present.

Bag limits on ducks and geese are, now, twenty-five per day, fifty per week; on brant and honkers the limit is reduced to twelve per day, twenty-four per week.

The Wilson snipe, black-breasted yellow-legs and golden plover season runs with that on ducks, and the bag limit on each of these four is reduced to fifteen per day, thirty per week.

Valley and desert quail may be shot in all districts from October 15 to December 31, a shortening of fifteen days in season, and the opening date being advanced forty-five days. The bag limit is fifteen per day, thirty per week.

The season for mountain quail and grouse in Districts Nos. 2, 3 and 4 is from October 15 to December 31, and in District No. 1 from September 1 to November 30. The bag limit on mountain quail is ten per day, twenty per week, and on grouse four per day, eight per week.

Sage hens may be shot in all districts during September, October and November, the bag being four per day, eight per week.

An extension of one month has been made in the open season for doves in all districts, opening September 1 and closing November 30. The bag limit is fifteen per day—a reduction of five.

TROUT SEASON LATER.

Opening of the trout season in District No. 4 has been changed from April 1 to May 1, the closing coming November 30, instead of October 31. These dates apply also to the game preserves within District No 4 and to District No. 1. There is no change in the catch.

Golden trout may be taken in all districts from July 31 to October 1, a shortening of the season by one month, the date of opening being advanced two months.

For black bass in Districts Nos. 3 and 4 the open season is from March 2 to November 31, and the limit twenty-five per day, minimum length seven inches.

Crabs may be taken in all districts from July 30 to November 15, but only with hoop or crab net; no females, and none under seven inches.

There is a slight shortening of the season on the spiny lobster, or crawfish, the opening date being March 1, and the close October 15. They must be taken only with crawfish traps and must measure not less than nine inches and not more than thirteen and one-half inches in length.

Red abalones may be taken at any time except during the month of February and must measure nineteen inches. The open season for green and pink abalones is from April 1 to December 31; the green variety must measure eighteen inches, and the pink sixteen inches.

The daily limit on all abalones in Southern California waters is ten. They may be taken for food only, and no drying is permitted. Spears may not be used in taking them. No black abalones may be taken in these waters at any time.

An increase of about 20 per cent. in the number of motor cars registered in Missouri during the first five months of the current year over the same months last year is indicated in a statement issued by the Secretary of State.

GREAT JUMPER VISITS HERE.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

POMONA, July 31.—Taylor, aged 25, who holds two American and one world's record for the standing broad and standing high jump, is here from Zanesville, O., for a visit with his father, C. H. Taylor, at 903 West Ninth street.

Last winter Taylor, as a member of the Amateur Athletic Union, went to New York and took two records away from Platt Adams, the Olympic champion. He defeated Adams in the standing high jump and indoor standing broad jump, doing five feet four inches in the standing high jump against five feet two inches, and eleven feet and two inches in the indoor standing broad jump against eleven feet. He holds the world's amateur record in the indoor standing broad jump, and the American titles for the standing broad and standing high jump. He is a member of the Illinois Athletic Club. When he goes back East he is going to join the Irish-American Athletic Club of New York City.

Taylor is a telegraph operator at Zanesville. He did his first jumping last year in the gymnasium of the Young Men's Christian Association at that place. The records he broke in New York about Christmas time had stood for about ten years.

Far West Track Meet.

world's mark of :21 1-5 seconds by a fraction. But so strong was the wind back of the runners that no attempt was made to fill the record blanks.

As was the instance in the sprints, a strong wind helped the hurdlers in their work. Fred Kelly of Los Angeles ran into first place over the high sticks, winning by an eyelash from Fred Murray of the Olympic Club. Kelly equalled his world's mark of 15 seconds held jointly with Smithson. Though today's mark will not be allowed, there is little question but that both Murray and Kelly could have travelled mighty close to the announced time under normal conditions.

REAL SPEED.

In the low hurdles, Murray reversed things on his southern rival by three yards, being timed in :23 3-5 seconds, equalling the world's record held jointly by Kranzlein and Wendell.

In the half mile, Bonnett of Los Angeles, coast record holder, won as he pleased in 2:01 4-5, although Cramer of the Olympic Club gave the former Cardinal star an argument for three-quarters of the distance. Guy Hobgood of the Northwest Association rambled away from his field in both the mile and two mile, and tied Mahoney of the Caledonian Club for individual point winning honors of the day. Hobgood defeated Millard of the Olympic team after a stern sprint battle in the final stretch in 10:08, while the lanky northerner won the shorter distance in 4:39 from his teammate Paul Clyde.

NO RECORDS.

No records were broken in today's field events, though better than average results were attained in the competition.

One of the day's surprises came when the discus throw was completed. Bagnard of Southern California defeated Muller, National champion in the event, with a toss of 132 feet 10 1-4 inches.

Most of those who competed in today's competition will return to the track next week for the Junior and Senior A.A.U. championships. Judging from the form shown by the winners, Pacific Coast and Western talent should meet the East on even terms in many events.

The points won by each team follows:

Pacific Association, 92½; South Pacific Association, 59; Northwest Association, 30½; Rocky Mountain Association, 25; Intermountain Association, 10.

Average mileage is the real test

Spectacular cases of big mileage furnish little evidence of tire quality. It's the average of thousands of tires run under all sorts of conditions of every day use that really counts. And that's where Savage Tires show up strong.

Because of highest grade of raw materials and the great care used in manufacture, Savage Tires are uniformly better and average much greater mileage. Casing after casing runs over 10,000 miles, many over 14,000.

EUROPE OFFERS ARMY TWELVE.

Aviators Use Power Plants Like Twin-six.

Sunbeam Factory will Make Motor of Type.

War Holds Back Advancement of Car Builders.

Twelve-cylinder, V-type motors, very similar to those in use in the Packard "twin-six," are being turned out in great quantities by two big European motor builders, according to the foreign correspondent of Motor Age. The Sunbeam factory in England and Renault in France are building this type of motor for use by the army aviators, and the "twin sixes" are reported to be displacing the seven and fourteen-cylinder rotary types.

It is stated on good authority that the Sunbeam factory will produce a twelve-cylinder pleasure car just as soon as the war is over. At the present time their entire output has been requisitioned by the army, but they are reported to have complete designs ready for a twelve-cylinder motor car, fitted with only two speeds, that will probably create a sensation in foreign motor circles similar to that aroused here by the Packard "twin-six."

The Sunbeam factory has had wide experience with the twelve-cylinder motor, for racing automobiles, for motor boats, and now for aviation. Its wonderful power, reliability and economy have won it a permanent place in these three strenuous lines of uses, and there is little doubt that the Sunbeam company will fail to produce in commercial quantities the "twin-six" motors for pleasure cars. It was a Sunbeam "twin-six," which holds the present hour record of 107 miles on Brooklands track.

Whether Renault plans to put out a twelve-cylinder motor car it not known, but it is natural to suppose that the famous French builder will try in a motor car the same motor that has proved so successful in the air.

Phoenix Race.

$2000 contribution toward the purse. George Purdy Bullard was again appointed chairman of the Arizona State Fair Racing Committee.

When Phoenix offered the usual $2000 toward the purse, it was specified that the 1915 "desert classic" enter Arizona via the new bridge over the Colorado at Yuma. This automatically killed the northern route and left only the Ocean-to-Ocean route and the inland course to San Diego open. The Phoenix people suggested that the race be run through San Diego, but left the course to the Los Angeles promoters as far as the Arizona line.

It was also made known that Los Angeles was to be asked to raise a part of the purse money. Realizing that it was a last chance, some of the strongest supporters of the race started to raise a sum by the sale of boosters' buttons. They hoped to raise an amount sufficient to bring the purse up to at least $10,000, but this plan fell flat.

A large purse would insure the Phoenix race, but the small purses competed for in the past are no longer sufficient to attract the great drivers and the owners of cars. The days of racing across the desert for less than the price of a car, taking a 20-to-1 shot at your own money, as it is expressed by a former entrant, is past.

Even if the dangers were eliminated and the officials anxious to see the race, it is doubtful if a dozen cars could be gathered together for the start. The big purses at Indianapolis and Chicago have taught the racing men that racing is worth money, and the western sportmanship which built the "desert race" no longer runs to automobile racing.

Not only are the dangers great on the highways of Los Angeles and Orange counties, but throughout the entire southern part of the State automobile traffic is unusually heavy this year, and officials claim that it will be on the increase until the late fall. The safest route is, of course, the Santa Fe trail. After reaching the summit of the Cajon grade, the open desert roads stretch out to the Arizona line, but even on this road there are hundreds of autoists touring East and West day and night.

To follow the inland route through San Diego and the Imperial Valley automobile men claim would be particularly dangerous. Imperial county now has approximately 2000 automobiles registered. There are powerful motor trucks operating between San Diego and the fertile Imperial Valley centers carrying supplies to the southern exposition city, and the most prominent automobile men in Los Angeles say that to run the Phoenix race through Imperial Valley with its heavy motor traffic would be a great injustice to the people of that prosperous section.

MANY SURPRISES DURING SEASON.

The 1916 season among motorists has been one of incessant surprises because of the numerous innovations that have marked the industry. A year ago practically all of the dealers were of the opinion that the six-cylinder car represented the zenith, and owners and operators shared this view. This season, however, is noted for changes as marked as any that ever have been known with the increased number of eight-cylinder cars and the advent of the twelve-cylinder motor.

Some of the manufacturers have proceeded almost exactly opposite to the more radical ones by announcing their intention to remain firm with a single type of construction, either the four or six-cylinder car. Still others, while continuing at least two types, have made unexpected changes in the price lists. To this class belongs the Oakland, a six-cylinder car for 1916 that will sell for less than the four-cylinder car, it is announced.

The first shipment of six-cylinder Oakland cars is scheduled to arrive in Los Angeles Tuesday or Wednesday.

ECONOMY TEST.

It was a great occasion for Goodyear tires as well as for Saxon sixes when Saxon dealers to the number of 105 last week left the Saxon plant at Detroit to conduct an economy test of gas and oil as they drove from the plant to their homes in various parts of the country. Every car in the test was Goodyear-equipped. In token of Saxon enthusiasm over Goodyear tires, also, the company made each dealer who participated a present of a Goodyear tire.

The Will County Automobile Club, of Joliet, Ill., has offered a reward of $50 for the arrest and conviction of any person who steals accessories from automobiles.

FAULKNER WILL ENTER SPEEDER.

Al G. Faulkner, manager of the local Fiat, McFarlan and Jeffrey agency, offers to enter a Fiat in the Phoenix race next fall if the race is run. Faulkner is a veteran of the desert classic, having piloted a car in the 1912 event and winning some of the prize money, although he did not win first place. Bob Burman, the speed king, has agreed to drive Faulkner's Fiat if there is a desert race.

Five on One.

MANY BODY DESIGNS ON SINGLE CHASSIS.

ALL the genius of the great organization has been concentrated by the Maxwell Motor Company in the production of one chassis, which for 1916 will be available in five different body types.

"The Maxwell company for 1916 has not departed in any way from their original policy laid out nearly three years ago of building one chassis and developing that to the highest point of efficiency," said Harry Lord of the Lord Motor Car Company. "Not only does the Maxwell advance into a still more commanding position through being 'stepped up' as a larger and better developed car, and that without increasing the wheelbase at all and with an addition of only 100 pounds in weight, but it adds the dignity of becoming a complete line.

"Each succeeding year has seen marked improvements in the Maxwell "25," although there has been no radical change in the general construction of the chassis. But the closest attention to the smallest and seemingly most trivial details has brought the Maxwell "25" gradually up to its present standard.

"There was a time when it was taken for granted that a low-priced car necessarily had to be cheaply constructed, but that time is past.

"Demountable rims, with an extra rim carried on the rear, one-man top, latest improved windshield, improved instrument board with all instruments mounted on the dash and set in flush with the board, linoleum-covered runningboards and footboards, high narrow radiator with increased radiation surface, and also the higher hood with vents in the sides. The body of the five-passenger touring car is exceedingly roomy, being much wider, with ample room for three full-sized persons to ride comfortably in the rear seat. The body, too, is longer, w wider doors and plenty of legroom f the driver. The style and appearan of the car—its lines—are in keepi with the generally-accepted body sty for the 1916 season—a new strea line effect, sometimes referred to a 'yacht line.' The back of the fro seat is covered to within a few inc of the top to protect it from unsigh scratches. Pockets are placed in a four doors for convenience."

Larger valve openings and a parti rearrangement of the design of th four-cylinder block motor result i more power and more responsive a tion. The flywheel and clutch a now completely inclosed and run i a bath of oil, protecting them fro dust and grit, reducing wear, incre ing efficiency and producing quiet a tion. The timing gears are separat ly housed. The spark plugs are pla practically in the center of the co bustion chamber, rendering the pe formance of the motor more smoo than ever before. A new and ve practical oil indicator is in the fo of a float, which is connected with a arm indicator on the outside of th motor, which registers the exact le of the oil in the case at all times, d ing away with the old-style oil gl which is so deceptive to the eye. A increase in brake leverage renders t car susceptible to more perfect co trol, while the owner will derive m terial comfort from the ability to a just the brakes by means of tu buckles that are accessible when t floorboard is lifted. The electric s tem has been improved in many d tails.

The weight of the 1916 Maxw five-passenger touring car comp has been kept down to only 19 pounds.

The Maxwell factory is at the pre ent time shipping close to 200 19 Maxwells per day, and this produ tion schedule is being increased a rapidly as the limit of human pos bilities will permit.

Starting and Lighting.

NEW OFFERING FOR FORD CARS PUT ON MARKET.

THE latest offering of the Splitdorf Electrical Company is a ready-for-installation starting and lighting system for Ford cars.

"The most serviceable system for the Ford owner has been the dictum while absolute utility has been the keynote for the strenuous and exhaustive tests the system has undergone to pronounce its fitness for hard service before bringing it to the Coast," said Mr. Sutherland, Splitdorf's Pacific Coast general manager.

"In unique features of construction and application, in simplicity of installation and effectiveness of operation," continues Mr. Sutherland, "the Splitdorf-Apelco outfits hold the palm for light-starting qualities and there is naturally a big demand for installation among the thousands of Ford owners."

The Splitdorf-Apelco system consists of a motor-generator, indicating automatic switch and starting switch, together with a 12-6-volt storage battery and all necessary parts for installation.

By connecting the motor-generator across the terminals of the batt through the starting switch, the ele trical machine acts as a motor, spi ning the engine until it picks up its own power. The motor-generator then driven by the engine as a dyn mo, furnishing current for charg the battery.

Acting as a motor, the machine h sufficient power to spin the engine a good rate of speed.

As a generator, it has capacity keep the battery fully charged, fur ing ample current.

In combining the motor and dyna into one unit, a compact design is only secured, but a design wh lends itself to an easy applicatio the Ford engine. The armature the machine has but one commu tor, one set of brushes and one se windings.

But Al when I got the letter frum count-sell-men J. S. Conwell about that Broadway Automobile and Flower show which I was to be assistant managur uv, I quit being a driver and sat on the town U like a millionhare or something.

I let Min my wife stay in San F. for the X poszishon as long as she wants now Al and as soon as I get a lot of kuperation from the strenule time I had up here, I will re-turn to Los Angeles to help get that building on broadway ready for that Automobile and Flour Show, and I will telafome to U up at The Times offus when I get into the city limits on the Yale or the Harvurd at San Pedroo.

If you see my wifus sister Carry don't tell her that I will be home so quick for that Auto show and U can tell Al Christie out at the Universe city movie Films that I will not be able to work for him for purty near about 6 mo. bekuse I have got to make a swell uv a front at the Automobile show and I should worry if some boohunk gets my job falling out of trees and stooping trains and forty 2 center meter shots from a gatling gun, hey AL?

And say Al! I met a lot uv swell guys here uv the name of Al besides the Shriners and one was Al Amonia and he is a prominunt fellow in the town of C. Atell. He has his name in the papers about every day and sometimes a lot uv times in one paper and the ladys must be purty nuts about him Al bekause they say in the papers that Mrs so and so have got a D. vorse frum her husband Mr. Sew and Sew and she wants Al. Amonia. Hows that for a swell uv a popularity hey Al.

THE OTHERS.

I read uv another Al yesterday, a fellow named Al. Loy. He was in some kind of an automobile affair but I never had time to read much about it and this morning 2 cops was talking on the car about Al. Loy getting in bad making some counter fits 5 $'s pieces.

About Anti-Skids

How They Differ. We Spend $1,000,000 This Year to Make Goodyear All-Weather Treads Double Thick

Some anti-skids are simply regular treads made rough. The Goodyear All-Weather is an extra tread vulcanized on to the regular. It will cost us this year about $1,000,000 to give this double thickness on our output of All-Weathers.

This means more than extra wear. It means deep grips which remain efficient after thousands of miles of service.

Serious Defects

Some anti-skids have shallow, short-lived projections. Some have rounded edges which fail to grip. Some center the strains at small points in the fabric. Some cause much vibration.

The Goodyear All-Weather has sharp-edged grips. It is flat and regular, so it runs like a plain tread. It distributes the strains.

Any man who measures and compares anti-skids is bound to choose Goodyear All-Weathers.

So All Through

Every detail of Goodyear Fortified Tires shows advantages like this. The extras we give you outside of the tread will cost us this year $1,635,000. This year's improvements over last year will alone cost us $500,000. All that for features exclusive to Goodyears, or which few others use.

Yet this year's price reduction will save our users about $5,000,000. And that was our third reduction in two years, totaling 45 per cent.

Impossible Claims

Tires which lack these extras claim to equal Goodyears. That is, of course, ridiculous.

Tires with small output claim to match Goodyear values. That is impossible.

Accept the users' verdict. Goodyears lead in sales and prestige after millions have been tested. They have held top place for years. And our increase this year in new users is breaking every Goodyear record.

Your friends or we will sometime win you to Goodyear tires. You can't always resist these advantages. They mean too much to you. Any dealer will supply you.

MUCH BUSINESS.

Following the announcement that Alle S. Hamilton, proprietor of the Los Angeles Ignition Works, has been appointed Southern California agent for the Vesta electrical products, comes the report from this company that there has been such a demand for these Vesta batteries that they have been taxed to their utmost to supply it, as all the local stock was used and San Francisco was called on to furnish what they had to meet this demand.

PROPOSED TOUR.

A great many Moline-Knight owners having expressed their desire or their intention of motoring up to San Francisco to take in the exposition, has given Mr. G. M. Flint, sales manager of the Moline Automobile Company, the idea of planning a touring trip up there for Moline-Knight owners, and if these plans are carried out the start will be made about August 15.

KING

Announcement of Policy

THE King Motor Car Company's growth has been conservative. They struck the keynote in the eight-cylinder field by manufacturing a motor car at a price that leaves them without competition.

For the past twelve months the KING EIGHT at $1350, f. o. b. Detroit, has been the only popular priced eight-cylinder motor car. The KING is one year ahead of the time in the eight-cylinder market. It embodies refinements which builders in its wake cannot equal till time has given them experience.

The KING EIGHT is not a ONE YEAR car. The KING does not and will not rely on radical yearly announcements to stimulate sales. It is, and will continue to be, the policy of the KING MOTOR CAR COMPANY to manufacture a motor car that will be measured by the public as a dependable product.

The King Motor Car Company will make no change this year in the design or price of its present model. The owner of a KING EIGHT can feel perfectly secure that his model will not become antiquated in a year.

The life of a motor car should be, statisticians say, in the neighborhood of 70,000 miles. You can run your KING EIGHT 8,000 or 10,000 miles a year and still have used only a small fraction of the car's service mileage.

Measure your second-hand value on the fraction of service mileage you have used.

POPULAR RACER MARRIED.

Tom Orr, one of the Maxwell racing team, is the first of the Maxwell drivers to sign a new contract since the recent record-breaking performances of Maxwell race cars at Chicago, Sioux City and Omaha.

July 17, he was married at Jackson, Mich., to Miss Elizabeth Low of Chicago. Nothing was known of the romance until the news was whispered around Maxwell headquarters several mornings later.

Orr is one of the most popular men in the racing game and a very consistent driver. His last performance was at Omaha, July 5, when he broke the world's record for miles, driving his Maxwell this distance in 2m. 59s.

If the war had not intervened, it is certain that the 1915 European shows would have marked the appearance of twelve-cylinder motors.

Mail Orders—If you can't come in we will send you a speedometer. Send in old speedometer head, make of car, size of wheel, length of shaft and whether right or left side. Remember the supply is limited.

The campaign to standardize speedometer equipment on motor cars has resulted in this wonderful offer.

The Stewart-Warner Company wants one of their new magnetic instruments on every car in Southern California.

That means exchange offers that make it cheaper to buy new speedometers than to buy speedometer parts or repair old ones.

We expect to break all speedometer sales records with this offer. After such a sale there will be no excuse for any motorist having an old speed indicator. If the instrument you have is of ancient vintage and seldom works, here is a chance to convert that inferior article into a high grade speedometer, one that always works.

If your old instrument needs repairs, it may pay you to make this exchange for a new one. This low price is for immediate sales only. A speedometer opportunity you will not have again.

LOCAL AUTOISTS TAKE LONG TRIP.

THROUGH HIGH SIERRAS WITH TRIED AND TRUE CAR IS EXPEDITION.

Through the high mountains of the Sierras in a Hudson Six, covering over 2000 miles, is the trip which is now being carried out by Clarence and Milton Baruch, young business men of Los Angeles. The boys have already driven their Hudson car over 10,000 miles and have had so many occasions to test it out on their strenuous trips that they do not hesitate in starting out for this unusually strenuous journey, where it will be necessary for them to put their Hudson to nine mountain summits ranging from 6000 to over 8000 feet in elevation.

The trip will include such scenic districts as the Sequoia and Gen. Grant National Parks, Yosemite Valley, Lake Tahoe, and the return trip along the east slope of the Sierra Nevadas through Bridgeport, Mono Lake and along the aqueduct in the Owens Valley.

Incidentally, after leaving Yosemite Valley, the Baruch boys will spend a few days at the exposition at San Francisco. The trip which they have planned involves probably a greater mountain mileage at high altitudes than any other trip of equal length that could be taken in Western America.

MANY IN CLASS.

That KisselKar trucks will hereafter appear in seven sizes—adding one model to the line—is the official announcement from the Kissel factory. The capacities will be 1000 lbs., 3-4 to 1 ton, 1 to 1½ ton, 1½ to 2 tonu, 2½ to 3 ton, 3½ to 4 ton and 6 ton.

The 1000 pound delivery is the new member of the group and marks the entry of Kissel into the light commercial vehicle field. It is, therefore, attracting a lot of attention in the trade. The stripped chassis weighs 2200 pounds and the length over all is a little more than 14 feet. It carries a new Kissel-built block motor of 32 horse power. The wheel base is 115 inches. Aside from this new model probably the most interesting feature of the Kissel announcement is the adoption of a worm drive rear axle on the medium size models. The worm is of David Brown construction.

ACCESSORIES ON GREATEST SCALE.

LOCAL CONCERN PREPARES TO SELL THOUSAND THERMOS BOTTLES IN DAY.

In one day 1000 Thermos bottles are to be sold by the automobile accessory department of Bullock's.

Manager Kemp of the accessory department went East a short time ago and while there secured the largest single shipment of Thermos bottles ever sent to the Pacific Coast and by special permission, the local house is to sell 1000 of these tomorrow at a greatly reduced price. In preparation for the sale, 750 bottles have been wrapped ready to hand out over the counter.

The accessory sale at Bullock's also includes shock absorbers for Ford cars, dusters, robes and gloves.

A special offering of the local house is a new auto glove made of imported leather, which is washable. The leather is treated by a chemical process and grease and dirt may be washed out with soap and water, making it possible for the autoist to always have clean gloves.

DEMONSTRATION OF SLOW PACE.

One of the developments of the 1916 motoring season is the slow demonstration.

According to Walter M. Brown, Southern California and Arizona Stutz distributor, it is no longer necessary to demonstrate with speed. Last year when Brown was demonstrating with the early 1915 Stutz he used to take West Sixth-street hill on the high, making thirty-five miles per hour on the grade. This year his demonstration is made on the high gear, but the car climbs the grade at seven miles per hour.

"The autoist knows that the car has speed," said Brown, "but the system has changed and we climb the hill as slow as we can now, whereas we made all the speed possible last year."

THERMOS WINTON.

William B. Walker, president of the American Thermos Company, is to be in Los Angeles Wednesday or Thursday with one of the most novel-looking automobiles ever seen in California. Walker's car is a Winton "six" equipped with a body built on the lines of a huge Thermos bottle. While in this city Mr. Walker will spend much of his time in company with Manager Kemp of the automobile and accessory department of Bullock's, which handle a great bulk of the Thermos auto trade in Southern California.

Efficient male and female help can quickly be obtained through the medium of the "Wanted, Situations" columns in The Times' "liner" section.

ANGELS LOSE TO SALT LAKE.

Butler's Hitting is of the Highest Variety.

Bee Bugs Threaten to Mob Jimmy Toman.

Umpire Rustled Out of Park by Officials.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SALT LAKE CITY, July 31.—The Bees finally won a ball game this afternoon and off that master, Jack Ryan, also, so there is rejoicing in this burg. With Joe Gedeon back in the lineup and the club otherwise strengthened by the presence of Bunny Brief and Tommy Quinlan, Blankenship's aggregation showed new life and pepper and acted like a ball club.

Fittery and Ryan were both hit hard although not as hard as the box score would indicate. Except in the fourth inning when the Bees hopped on to the Angel heaver with a vengeance, both pitchers kept their hits well scattered.

BUTLER.

One of the distinct features of the game was the hitting of Butler, the young man whom Dillon brought down from the Northwestern. Butler cracked out two pretty singles, beat out a bunt and started the Angel rally in the ninth with a double. If his work today is any critiron of what may be expected of him in the future, a few Angel infielders may soon be seeking new jobs.

Quinlan and Brief played great ball in their first Bee appearance and did a whole lot toward bringing the shot-to-pieces club back to life.

POOR TOMAN.

The game was full of "fight." First Harry Hannah and Harry Wolter acted as if they might be talking themselves into a little mix-up, but players of both sides interferred. Then the crowd got after Toman and for a time things looked threatening.

After the game a mob of raving bugs gathered at the exits to the main grand stand and threatened Toman with violence. Club officials and police officers outgeneraled the gang though, by talking it out of its notions while the umpire was being rustled up town in an automobile.

Directors of the local club stated that they would wire President Baum asking him to remove Toman from here for the present at least.

Toman has been having a bad week here and with the home club losing and getting all of the bad breaks, he has an extremely uninviting job on his hands. His decisions on balls and strikes Wednesday were very bad and today, when he made a few mistakes in a row, the bugs were up in arms, because his decisions came awfully near losing them another game.

FIRST RUN.

Butler scored Los Angeles first run in the seventh on a single, an infield out and Maggert's clout. Butler again led the Angel rally in the ninth by hitting the left-field fence for two bases. Brooks, hitting for Ryan, grounded out, but Maggert drew a walk. Beumiller flied out. Wolter's single registered Butler and Koerner's clout filled the bases. Fittery then hit Ellis on the arm and forced in a run. Terry ended that by flying out to Quinlan.

Salt Lake's four runs in the fourth came on doubles by Quinlan and Brief, a walk and singles by Ryan and Hallinan. The Bees registered one in the sixth on Ryan's single, Beumiller's boot and a hit by Hallinan. The sixth was sent over in the eighth on a double by Gedeon, a stolen base and Boles's bad throw to third in an effort to stop the Bees' second.

OHIO SCHOOL TEACHERS PILOT SIX ACROSS CONTINENT WITH EASE.

Bringing the word that the school teachers of the East and Middle West have become ardent motorists within the past two years and that they enjoy nothing so much as automobile touring, a party of four women pedagogues arrived in Los Angeles Wednesday in a National Six touring car. They are the Misses Minerva Johnson, Margaret Hill, Daisy Mote and Blanche Shute, all of Piqua, O. The car belongs to Miss Johnson's parents, but as all are experienced drivers they had no need for a chauffeur.

"We are having the time of our young lives," declared one of the comely quartette to Reeve Gartzmann of Hawley, King & Co. "The National people all along the line have treated us fine. We have not had any serious trouble, because we are not forcing things and the only expense we have been to on the car has been for keeping it in condition."

OLD HOMESTEAD.

Secretary-Treasurer Ransford of the Master Carburetor Company, left Los Angeles Monday for the East on a trip which will combine business and pleasure. The business part of it will take him to the Master carburetor corporation's factory at Detroit, where he will spend several days discussing business conditions and laying plans for the coming season on the Coast. The journey will also include a visit to his old home near Detroit.

OCEAN RACES COME TODAY.

The great ocean race for swimmers is to be held off Ocean Park at 2:30 this afternoon with Lady Langer, Bud Goodwin, Joe Wheatley, Herman Laubis, Sol Tuttle, Pete Lenz, Billy Logg and any number of other stars entered. Langer is touted to retain his title.

In the ladies' race there will be a great deal of fast work. Miss Aileen Allen, who holds the championship and who was regarded as a certain winner, has been barred by the A.A.U. for professional work done several months ago. Her absence will make the race more even and more exciting.

Pruiett Whitewashes San Francisco in First Game and Allows Three Scattered Hits—Commuters Now Have One Game Lead in Seven Games Played with Leaders.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, July 31.—By winning both games of a double-header today from San Francisco, Oakland obtained a one-game lead over the Seals in the seven games played in the current series.

The opener saw the league leaders whitewashed by Pitcher Pruiett, who held his opponents to three scattered hits. Cavet, the Seals' new sou[illegible] took his second defeat of the week in the second game, 2 to 1. The Oaks tied things up in the eighth frame and put over the winning tally in the ninth on Johnston's single, Elliott's sacrifice and a timely bingle by Kuhn. Scores:

FIRST CAR OF MODEL CROSSES.

TOURISTS LEAVE ON ORIGINAL AIR TO RETRAVEL THE CONTINENT.

J. A. Jenkins and wife, with Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Dunlap of Fort Wayne, Ind., arrived in the city during the past week in their Cole "8." They are said to be the first tourists to make the long drive from the Hoosier State to the Pacific Coast in a car of this type. They were greeted upon their arrival in the city by Charles A. Yeager, sales manager for the Cole Motor Company. After a few days visit they left on their return trip.

The Indianians made a number of side trips in their Cole while westward bound. The speedometer when they left here for the East registered 6746 miles. They told Mr. Yeager they had not experienced a single mechanical trouble with the car. Firestone tires that were put on the car at the Cole factory served throughout the journey and on their arrival here still contained the original air in the front tires. Five punctures in the rear casings were experienced.

CARS COMING.

Sales Manager Don Smith of the Chandler Motor Car Company of California, Southern California distributors for the Chandler car, has received word from the factory that three carloads of Chandler light sixes are en route to Los Angeles. Mr. Smith made the announcement to his salesmen Tuesday and Thursday that prospective buyers had made arrangements for the delivery of the entire lot. It seems impossible to keep a Chandler touring car on the salesroom floor, so insistent is the demand for cars.

WILLIAM IS BEST PACER.

WINS GREAT CLASSIC, TAKING TWO HEATS.

Directum I Manages to Take Opening Heat, but Tires and Fails to Make Running in Second and Third — Braden Direct Paces Swiftly on the Stretch.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

DETROIT, July 31.—William showed his superiority over all other pacing champions this afternoon by outlasting and outgaming his field and winning the $5000 free for all, two heats out of three.

This event, which brought together the most famous pacers in the world, was the race of greatest interest for the final day of the grand circuit week.

VERY FAST.

Only a little less spectacular was the 2:03 pace, which went four heats while the 2:12 trot, with five, also was a splendid performance. The other two races which completed the programme were won in straight heats.

Starting the free for all pace William took a lead of half a dozen lengths in the first eighth of a mile.

Following him was Directum I, the same distance in front of Flower Direct with Anna Bradford a bad last. They maintained these positions for five-eighths of a mile when the trailers began moving up. Directum I was only a length away from William at the last turn; halfway down the stretch he was on even terms and passing the distance flag showed his nose in front. In a furious drive he increased his advantage a few inches and took the heat by a scant neck. The time, 2:00 1-4, was a record for a Detroit track.

Marvin pursued dixerent tactics in the second mile, allowing Murphy to do the leading. The fast clip of the first heat had tired Directum I and when the dash for the wire began he faltered. William passed him in the last eighth when Flower Direct, under the whip, rushed up to beat him for second place. The last half of this heat was covered in 59 seconds.

In the final heat Anna Bradford paced out in front of Flower Direct second, William third and Directum I in the rear. In this order they raced until the three-quarter pole was passed. Then Marvin gave William his head and it was all over.

Flower Direct and Anna Bradford, in the slower going, were able to keep close but Directum I was through.

Lettie Lee took first money in the 2:12 trot, which went five heats. She was able to win only the first two, but her good position in the next three gave her the race. McClosky won the third and fourth heats and then wilted and Mirthful took the final.

The 2:05 trot was rather easy for Margaret Druien. In each heat Rythmell led the small field into the stretch but Cox pushed to the front when ready and won easing up.

Eno captured the 2:16 trot in straight heats, leading all the way in the first heat and coming through the bunch in the stretch in the other two.

The 2:03 pace brought an excellent field. Braden Direct, finishing fifth in the first heat, had the most speed in the next three, winning each time from almost nowhere in a stretch drive.

SCENIC DRIVE IS COMPLETED.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

BURBANK, July 29.—The great scenic roadway in the Verdugo Hills, built by Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Stough, is fully completed, and is open to travel from its beginning at Walnut avenue, Burbank, to where it swings into the highway in Tuna Canyon, which leads out to the San Fernando boulevard.

There is eight miles of roadway cut from the solid rock and granite of the hills, all on the Stough property excepting a very short strip, over which they have a perpetual right of way. There is no filling in and there are few, if any, better roads in the country; certainly none more permanent or which will require less repairing. It is twelve feet wide and can be widened if required.

The view along the entire route is one of grandeur and the grade so easy that one scarcely realizes they are climbing till they look down upon the peaks that a few moments before towered above them. The road cost $14,000 and was built by Mr. Strough, under supervision of L. B. Taylor.

MARJORIE HAS NEW MACHINE.

According to what Willard Mack, the celebrated actor, told Manager Reeve Gartzmann, of Hawley, King & Co.'s motor vehicle department, the National is the most popular automobile among the theatrical folk in New York City. Mr. Mack, who already owned an Oakland speedster, purchased a four-cylinder National "40" during the week. The car is of the four-passenger type and was intended as a present to Mrs. Mack, or Miss Marjorie Rambeau, as she is known on the stage.

Frank Keenan of the Beverly Hills Hotel, who is connected with the New York Motion Picture Company, has purchased a six-passenger, six-cylinder National touring car. Mr. Keenan was doing the row as a prospective buyer and saw the car on the sales floor at 1 o'clock. By 4 o'clock he was on his way to the hotel at the steering wheel.

Delivery of a six-cylinder roadster was made to Mrs. E. S. Larson during the week also. Mrs. Larson's National was finished in wistaria, the shade having been selected to match the lining of her purse.

William F. Cody, known the world over as "Buffalo Bill," recently purchased a touring car and now is seldom seen except at the wheel of his machine.

May Sutton Bundy Wins

the resulting outs and nets, dropped the game.

Tom thereupon shelved the racket and took up a new one which lasted long enough to win his next service and then it, too, gave out and, rather than delay affairs, Tom fought on with his mangled racket and of course lost the game by continued errors. The set looked a good deal like a gift to Roberts.

The sudden failure of the veteran to keep up his accurate game seemed to instill new ginger into the northern youngster and from the start of the fourth set his work improved tremendously.

ANOTHER ONE.

Tom had managed to get another racket by the start of the fourth set and with it he held things even until the score was two all. Here another string broke and Tom began whanging the ball into the net or else poking it out of bounds.

Roberts was driving superbly and Tom would have been kept busy winning the match with a good racket and, with the handicap of a stringless affair as his only weapon, Bundy succumbed, 6-2.

Tom came up for the fifth set with Allyn Barber's racket and lost a game right off the reel. He switched again and this time took a racket handed him by one of the officials, but by the time he had become accustomed to it he had lost his service, giving Roberts a lead of two games.

TOO LATE.

From this time on Bundy's work improved immensely, but Roberts was playing great tennis. He had hit his stride and the way he passed Bundy up at the net was something beautiful to behold.

Tom managed to stay with it until the score had reached 4-3 in Robert's favor, but there the northerner slipped her in the high and ran out the set and match at 6-3.

As one tennis expert said, Roberts had all the luck and was playing at the top of his game, but he didn't deserve to take a set from Bundy.

The only three other matches in which finals were reached were the men's doubles, mixed doubles and junior doubles.

THE WINNERS.

Wayne and Sinsabaugh retained their title by beating Breeden and Frees in a well-played match, 2-6, 6-1, 6-3, 6-2.

Miss Browne and Duncan won the mixed doubles title from Miss Sutton and Barber, 5-7, 6-3, 6-4.

Fottrell and Roberts won the junior doubles from Petersen and Rager, 6-2, 6-3.

All other matches were postponed.

BIGGER BUSINESS FORCES REMOVAL.

LOCAL MACK CONCERN TAKES OVER BUILDING USED BY LORD COMPANY.

Such an increase in business has been enjoyed by the Mack Motor Truck Company that Manager J. A. Stoner has had to select quarters with larger accommodations than those afforded at the South Flower-street location. He has chosen the building at Nos. 1032-34-36 South Olive street, which has a floor space more than double that now occupied. Repairs are now being made and the removal will be completed about August 10.

Manager Stoner only recently returned from a visit to the factories of the Republic Motor Truck Company at Alma, Mich., and the Mack and Saurer companies in Pennsylvania. He says that he learned the truck companies are on the crest of a wave of prosperity. At the general offices of the International Motors Company he was told so many orders have been received that extensive additions to the plant were made necessary.

Just how extensive has been the effect of the European war on the motor-truck industry of the United States was instanced by a single order of the International Motors Company. It calls for the delivery of twenty-five trucks each week until peace is declared and sixty days thereafter. Mr. Stoner says he believes the placing of orders for supplies in this indefinite manner indicates that the belligerents do not estimate the length of the war. He regards the prediction of the Kaiser for peace by October as being made at long range.

Relative to the removal of his local quarters, Manager Stoner said: "We had to have more room and that was all there was to it. Our business has been going right ahead showing a steady gain month by month. With three lines of trucks to handle and several different models for each line we had to have a bigger showroom. The shop and stockrooms had to be increased also. I believe the new location will be a good one. It has a number of advantages, and no drawbacks that I can see."

MORNING MILK MOTOR HAULED.

HORSE ELIMINATED BY POWER TRUCKS, EVEN IN DAIRY TRANSPORTATION.

The motor truck has practically eliminated the horse-drawn vehicle in the heavy hauling in connection with the dairy industry in California. Motor trucks are now being used exclusively by the larger dairies in everything except the delivery from house to house of milk, and much of this in the apartment-house district is done by motor truck

In supplying milk for hotels, clubs and other large consumers, the motor truck is found much more efficient. It is also called into play in bringing the milk from farmers to the creamery.

One of the most unique of all motor truck deliveries in connection with the creamery industries is the "hurry up" wagon of the Crescent creamery, which is used in making rapid deliveries of ice cream from the creamery to the consumer. This delivery service has lately been introduced with an Autocar truck to do the work. The addition of the hurry up wagon brought the total number of Autocars in the service of the Crescent company to ten, all of which are in constant service.

GRIFFITH'S FIAT.

D. W. Griffith, recognized as the greatest moving-picture director in the world, is the owner of a new six-cylinder De Luxe Fiat limousine. Griffith sought something different and exclusive when he decided to purchase a new inclosed car, and he considered many closed cars before he finaly selected the Fiat, the most expensive of the entire list, as the car which best suited his requirements. The new De Luxe is the latest six-cylinder model of the Fiat factory and embodies the most up-to-date equipment in its handsome limousine body.

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

ANNOUNCEMENT

The following prices f.o.b. Detroit, effective August 2, 1915:
Ford Runabout..............$390.00
Ford Touring Car............ 440.00
Ford Town Car.............. 640.00

No speedometer included in this year's equipment, otherwise cars fully equipped.

There can be no assurance given against an advance in these prices at any time. We guarantee, however, that there will be no reduction in these prices prior to August 1, 1916.

Profit-Sharing with Retail Buyers

On August 1, 1914, we made the announcement that if we could make and sell at retail 300,000 Ford cars between August 1, 1914, and August 1, 1915, we would share profits with the retail purchasers, to the extent of from $40 to $60 on each car. We have sold over 300,000 Ford cars in the time specified, and profit-sharing checks of $50 each will be distributed as rapidly as possible after August 15, 1915. Retail purchasers who have not yet mailed us their profit-sharing coupons, properly endorsed, should do so without delay.

Our plan to profit-share with retail purchasers of Ford cars during 1914-15 has been most successful. We thoroughly believe in it, but realizing the uncertainty of conditions generally makes it advisable to defer any announcement of future profit-sharing until a later date.

We are, however, confident of our inability to reduce costs for several months, and therefore can offer no profit-sharing for cars delivered during August, September and October, 1915.

1—One day Mr. Twee Deedle made the children very small, and they were having the loveliest time flying over the meadows. "Let's sit upon this tree and rest awhile," Dolly suggested. So they flew down to the tree and sat upon the leaves.

2—"I wish we could have an adventure of some sort this morning!" Dickie cried. "Well! Let's see!" mused Mr. Twee Deedle. "What can we do?"

3—Just then the children heard a loud buzzing, and a bumble bee flew up and lit upon the leaves beside them. The children were so small the bumble bee looked as large to them as a pony. "The boy bumble bees do not sting," Mr. Twee Deedle told the children, who seemed just a trifle nervous. "And the lady bumble bees only sting if they are mistreated," the bumble bee said.

4—So Mr. Twee Deedle asked the bumble bee to bring two others and take them a ride upon their backs. This he did, and they were soon flying over the fields. The country was just like a map below them and the bumble bees flew as fast as aeroplanes.

5—"Let's stop and gather some of these beautiful flowers!" cried Mr. Twee Deedle as they came to a daisy field. So the bees flew to the ground, and the children and Mr. Twee Deedle plucked a large bouquet. One of the bumble bees said he knew of a little girl just getting over a long sick spell, so they flew with the flowers to the little girl's house and dropped the flowers upon the windowsill.

6—She was very glad to get the flowers, and thought the children were tiny fairies, as well as Mr. Twee Deedle. "This is more fun than having exciting adventures," the children said, "and we are sharing our pleasures with others." "Let's gather more flowers and take to other people!" cried Mr. Twee Deedle, and, of course, the children and the bumble bees were eager to do this, for "he is truly happy who makes others happy."

COMMON SENSE in the HOME

CANNING AND PRESERVING.

IN response to my plea for recipes for canning from those who have tried the instructions and proved them good a number of letters have come which will prove of interest to the housekeeping Cornerites. I give a selection from them below:

"I have derived so much pleasure in many ways from the Helping Hand Corner that I want to tell you my method of canning fruit.

"I always clean my jars when the fruit is first emptied from them and when ready to can I wash and scald the jars, lids, and rubbers in hot water, placing the jars where they will drain (the mouths downward), and heat slowly. I dry the lids and rubbers and place them where they will get hot, but not too hot. . . . Then I have a pan on the stove with water in it; when the jars and fruit are ready I place the jars in the pan of hot water with paper or cloth in the bottom of the pan to prevent the jars bursting. I fill them, lift them on the table, and seal immediately. I always take pains to have the mouths of the jars, the lids, and the rubbers thoroughly dry, and I never lose any fruit. MRS. E. R. A."

These instructions are valuable as far as they go, but they do not supply the information needed for the beginner who wishes to put up fruit. That such knowledge is in demand is indicated by the two following requests:

"I am anxiously awaiting the recipes for canning and preserving. This industry has in the past been a source of pin money for me and already I am receiving calls for fruit. I want to learn all the new ways possible of preserving them.

"MRS. E. H. M."

The last wish would give a good deal of work to any one who attempted to answer it. "All the new ways" would require more space than I am afraid we can grant, but we shall do the best we can.

"I see that you answer all questions people ask, therefore I would like to know how to can tomatoes and snap beans so that they will keep all the winter. M. S."

The writer of this letter encloses stamp for reply, apparently overlooking my oft-repeated statement that it is impossible to send recipes by mail. I am glad, however, to give directions for canning vegetables and consider myself fortunate in having received a practical letter on the subject from which to quote.

CANNING VEGETABLES.

"You ask for information as to good methods of canning and I am glad to give you mine for putting up certain vegetables. Truth compels me to say that while my beans and tomatoes never spoil I have never had any real luck in canning corn. But I do put up tomatoes and corn together and they keep finely. Here are my methods of canning the vegetables I mentioned and if they are followed exactly there is no reason why they should ever be a failure.

"To can string beans I take the strings from each side of the bean, unless I can get the so-called stringless beans. Even those will stand a little watching for strings. I use either the green or the wax beans, cut them into pieces about an inch long, put them over the fire in warm water and boil until they are tender, but not soft. I season them with salt and pepper, and take the beans out of the pot with a skimmer. I have my jars standing close by in a pan of hot water. Put in the beans until the jars are full to the top, boil up the water they were cooked in and skim it, and then fill the jars with the liquor until they are overflowing. I have the lids and rubbers close at hand and screw down the tops at once. Always be sure that the rubbers are soft and flexible, for if they are hard and stiff they will crack and admit the air.

"I have two ways of canning tomatoes. For one I use the medium sized tomatoes and have them all as nearly the same size as I can. I drop them into boiling water and then slip off the skins and cook the tomatoes a few at a time—just enough to fill one jar. If the tomatoes are a fair size you can't put in more than six or seven. I put the tomatoes into boiling water, cook them for eight minutes, take them out with a skimmer, pack them into the jar, fill up with the boiling water, and seal. They are good and by doing a jar or two a day I get quite a large supply by the end of summer.

"When I can stewed tomatoes I scald and peel the tomatoes, put them in a preserving kettle, bring to a boil, and cook for fifteen minutes. I pour off the extra liquor, season the tomatoes with salt and a little pepper, and can them boiling hot, sealing at once.

"For corn and tomatoes boil twenty-five ears of corn tender, cut the corn from the cobs while it is hot, peel and chop up a couple of dozen ripe tomatoes, mix these with the corn, salt to taste, and bring to a hard boil in a preserving kettle. I only cook for two minutes after they have come to the boil, then turn them into the jars and screw the tops down at once.

"I hope this letter may help some other housekeeper. R. T. J."

I am sure it will be of genuine assistance to all housekeepers who have vegetables to put up and I only wish I had another like it containing instructions for canning fruit. As it is I take pleasure in giving these and a few directions for preserving from my own experience.

CANNED PEACHES.

Peel and stone firm, ripe peaches, cutting each in half and dropping the pieces into cold water. When all are done allow a cup of sugar to each four quarts of fruit, put a cup of water in the bottom of a preserving kettle, on this a thick layer of peaches, sprinkle these with sugar, add more peaches and sugar, and continue in this order until all are used. Set the kettle at the side of the stove or over a low flame, bring slowly to a boil, and cook for fifteen minutes. Can while boiling hot and seal immediately. A safe precaution is to invert a thick plate in the bottom of the kettle before putting in the fruit. This is the best protection against scorching and sticking.

CANNED PEARS.

Peel firm pears of uniform size, dropping each into cold water as soon as pared. Do not remove the stems and be sure that the pears are perfect, without specks or worm holes. Allow a quart of water and a half pound of granulated sugar to every quart of fruit; bring the sugar and water to a bubbling boil in a preserving kettle and drop the pears into this. Cook steadily, but not hard, until the pears are tender enough to be pierced with a straw. Put the fruit into wide mouthed jars, bring the sirup again to a hard boil, fill the jars with this, and seal at once.

CANNED PLUMS.

Wash and wipe ripe plums and pierce each with a needle, to prevent their bursting. Allow a cup each of sugar and water to six quarts of the fruit, bring the sugar and water to a boil in a preserving kettle, lay in the plums, and when the boil is restored simmer for five minutes. Lift the plums out with a split spoon, pack them into the jars, pour in the boiling sirup, and screw on the tops at once.

CANNED APPLES.

Peel, core, and quarter tart apples, throwing the pieces into cold water as soon as ready. Allow one pound of granulated sugar to four pounds of apples. Lay the apples in a preserving kettle with just enough water to cover them and cook slowly until the fruit is tender. Put a cup of water with each pound of sugar and bring them to a boil. After boiling four minutes lift the apples from the water with the skimmer, place them in the sirup, simmer for one minute, and put into jars. Seal at once. These make good pies and apple sauce.

PRESERVED PEACHES.

Select firm white peaches, peel, stone, and weigh them, allowing a pound of granulated sugar for each pound of fruit. Place the fruit and sugar in a preserving kettle in alternate layers and put the kettle where the contents will heat slowly. Simmer after a boil is reached for half an hour, or until the peaches are tender enough to pierce easily with a fork. Take out the peaches with a skimmer and spread them out on flat plates. Boil the sirup until thick and clear, removing the scum from the top as it rises. Put the fruit into wide mouthed jars, pour in the boiling sirup until it overflows, and screw the tops on at once.

PRESERVED PEARS.

Peel pears as for canning, without removing the stems. To each pound of fruit allow a pound of sugar, put the fruit and sugar in the kettle in alternate layers and proceed precisely as directed for preserving peaches.

PRESERVED WATERMELON RIND.

Remove the green outside rind of the melon, scrape out the soft inside, and cut the firm white portions into strips, squares, or triangles. Cook in water to cover it until tender enough to pierce. Make a sirup by boiling together two and a half pounds of granulated sugar and a quart of water, skimming frequently. When the sirup is clear drop in the rind, cook until clear, take out, and lay on platters. Add a sliced lemon and a little sliced ginger root to the sirup, boil ten minutes longer, pack the rind in jars, fill these to overflowing with the boiling sirup, and seal.

The rinds of citron melon, known in some parts of the country as "pie melons," may be preserved in the same way. The preserves should not be used for a few weeks after making, as they improve by ripening.

MARION HARLAND'S HELPING HAND.

"TO THE inquiry of B. C. B., I will answer that this is the way in which I prepare a batch of my favorite cheese. The best time to prepare it is usually from March until the latter part of June, or a little later.

"Put a saucepan containing thick, clabbered milk on the stove, and let it come slowly to the point of boiling. When it reaches this, put it aside to cool. After it is cold, pour it into a colander cover with a plate which must be small enough to fit down into the colander, and rest on the curds. Place a weight on the plate so that the curds may be pressed dry, a process which will require twelve hours or more. Then put the cheese into an earthen jar, salt to taste, and rub the cheese between the hands until the curds are like fine crumbs. Cover the jar again and set it on the kitchen table near the stove, where it is warm, but not hot.

"Every twenty-four hours for four or five days the cheese must be thoroughly stirred, until it is what we call ripe. At this stage put into a skillet a lump of butter the size of an egg, add the cheese; let it come to a good boil. Stir constantly. Pour it out on a platter; when cold, slice it, and it is ready to serve. I hope all lovers of home made cheese will try this recipe, for the cheese made by it is delicious. Practice makes perfect, and if it is not a complete success at once it should be tried again and again until it comes right.

"I have a delicious recipe for cheese salad, also one for Spanish chili beans. I will be glad to send these on if you think any one would like to have them.

"M. M. M."

I am sure the recipes would be as gladly welcomed by others as by myself, and I hope we shall have them before long. I trust also that one or more of the Cornerites will try the recipe for cheese and let us know the result. I suppose the only uncertainty about the result comes in the possible failure to discern just when the product has reached the ripe stage. Also I am at a loss to know why it is not as well to make it at one time of the year as at another. Why should the period from March to late June be better than further on in the summer? I hope M. M. M. will write and enlighten us on this when she sends the recipes she offers.

Suggests an Exchange.

"I wonder if any of the Cornerites would like some seed of the beautiful desert lily. I would like in return or exchange samples of filet crochet suitable for pillow slip edging or the ends of towels. I would also like some pretty edging (not the mile a minute). MRS. E. F."

I have no doubt that any of our correspondents who live where the climate is hot and dry enough to raise the desert lily would be glad to have the seed, and I hope that those who wish it may also be able to offer the filet crochet patterns asked in return or exchange.

The Mother Employed.

"I meant to write sooner in reference to the old mother dependent upon her daughter. Since reading the letters you have printed on the subject it seems to me more than ever that my word is needed. Let us analyze the situation and see for a moment just what it means to each of the persons who are interested.

"To the daughter it means mortification that people should know (or think) that her mother needs to earn money. To the mother it means, first, some necessities or luxuries she could not otherwise have; second, independence, and last, but not least, the firmer grip on body and mind that having some work to do is bound to give her. Lacking this last, the brain begins to decay and we have the dreadful examples with which all of us are familiar of elderly persons whose minds have given way, and who have become mere animals, swayed by the instincts or the impulse of the moment.

"If the daughter realized these facts would not her own mortification sink into insignificance compared to the beneficial effect of the work upon her mother's mind and body? Would she not also realize that her own cares would be less in the future, so long as her mother retained her health of mind and body? The matter looks simple to me. M."

Another common sense way of considering this question. I printed a letter along these lines only a week or two ago and it interests me to see the varying points of view held by different persons. This last strikes me as eminently sane.

Wants Belgian Hares.

"Can you give me the address of some one who raises Belgian hares? I would like to get a pair if I can, and thought you could perhaps help me through the Corner. We have some old music to give away if any one cares to send postage for it. J. W. H."

This query I shall have to refer to the Corner. I cannot answer it myself. It is impossible to give addresses in this department, but I will file the name and address of J. W. H., and if any one writes for it who can supply the desired information I shall be happy to send it. I have no doubt that there will be requests for the music.

To Decorate a Room.

"I am going to ask your help. I am a poor girl and have to spend all my income for board and clothes. Do you suppose some of the Cornerites would help me to decorate my room? I would like very much to have some pennants, if any one has a few to spare. They would help much in decorating the bare walls. I am lonely at night, and the sight of the pennants would cheer me up and make the long hours seem less doleful. I am your servant for anything I can do to help in any way. Maybe there is some one to whom I could write cheering letters, and, if so, I would like to get her address.

"M. V. H."

I am sure there must be girls who will help out this lonely sister. Not only pennants would be of value in decorating the bare walls and rendering the room more cheerful but some of the pictures which accumulate in every home—cut from the magazines or saved from the daily papers—might be of value. I know I have only to print this request to insure a generous response, and I will send the address of M. V. H. on application, either to those who wish to help her cheer her room or who would like to receive some of the letters she offers to write.

Boiled Salad Dressing.

"Will you kindly give me a recipe for boiled dressing for salads? I would be much obliged. M. M. G."

The following is the best boiled salad dressing I have ever eaten and I am glad to make it better known: Beat to a cream one tablespoon of flour and one of butter, whipping it with a fork; stir in one egg beaten light, one scant teaspoon of white sugar, and one-half teaspoon each of pepper and mustard; add four tablespoons of vinegar and put all in a saucepan over the fire. Cook slowly, stirring constantly until the sauce is smooth and thick, then take from the fire, add salt to taste, turn into a bowl, and put in a cool place. It should be thoroughly chilled before it is to be used, and whipped cream must be stirred into it to thin it to about the consistency of mayonnaise dressing. This is especially good to use upon salads made of cooked vegetables, such as peas, string beans, etc.

Asks for Reading Matter.

"Will you kindly give me the address and name of Mrs. O. S. H. I would like very much to get some of the books and magazines she is so kind as to offer.

"MRS. W. S."

Another request which has come too late. The magazines and books offered by Mrs. O. S. H. have been bestowed on an earlier applicant. Can some other Cornerite supply the desire of Mrs. W. S.?

Using Up Bread Crumbs.

"Some time ago some one in the Corner requested formulas for using bread crumbs. Those I send are strictly my own and are good.

"Leave waste pieces of bread in the oven until thoroughly dry, but not toasted, pass them through the meat chopper, turn the crumbs into glass jars and screw the tops down firmly. There you have all ready the foundation for much excellent cookery. These are of service in coffee cake and suet pudding; are better for scallops than cracker crumbs, are good in veal and meat loaf, for stuffing, and many other uses which will readily occur to the housekeeper.

"Here are some of the recipes by which the crumbs may be employed:

"Coffee Cake.—(Use a half-pint cup measure). Two cups of crumbs, put to soak in two cups of sour milk or buttermilk. In another bowl cream three cups of sugar with one cup of good lard or butter; add three unmixed eggs, beat all well, put in the sour milk; one heaping teaspoon of salt, three teaspoons of cinnamon, one teaspoon of cloves, two even teaspoons of baking soda. Cut in two three cups of seeded raisins and dredge them with flour to prevent their sinking to the bottom of the cake; put these with the other ingredients and two cups of sifted flour. If the mixture is not as stiff as fruit cake dough, add more flour. Bake in two large tins.

"Suet Pudding.—Use the same ingredients as for coffee cake, but put in less sugar and for shortening use a cup of minced suet instead of the butter or lard. Turn the mixture into a well greased pudding mold and steam two and a half to three hours. Sauce is preferable flavored with lemon juice.

"Slices of the pudding are equally good if steamed over for other dinners. If desired, two cups of strong coffee can be substituted for sour milk in either of the recipes given, adding six teaspoons of baking powder in place of the baking soda.

"I am writing this with my left hand while in bed, so please excuse any faults. "M. V. B."

I do not find any faults which need to be excused and I think it is astonishing that in the circumstances the writing is so legible, the directions as clear as they are. The only point on which I would like reassurance is the quantity of baking powder demanded. Even taking into account the large supplies of various ingredients, six teaspoons seems an uncommonly liberal allowance. Yet the rest of the instructions are so clear that I am ready to be convinced that this detail is correct and that the generous proportions of both baking powder and soda are accurate. If there is an error will M. V. B. kindly repair it? We are much obliged for her recipes. Will she also tell us if the crumbs thus kept never become stale after a while? I have had that experience in my kitchen, but it is possible the crumbs had not been dried long enough.

Books on Shorthand.

"I would like very much to review my shorthand, the Eclectic system. I loaned all my text books to a friend some years ago and would like to ask if any Cornerites have such text books they would part with now. I would be glad to have them and to pay the postage. C. E."

Can any one meet the wishes of this Cornerite?

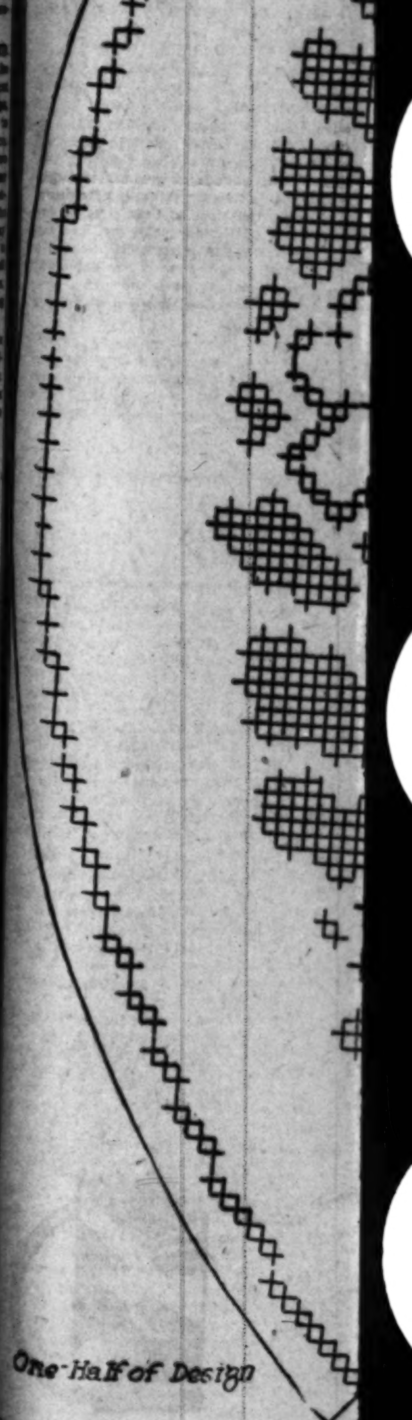
CENTER

DESIGNED BY E. J. BUCKMAN

A LONG time ago it was customary for children learning to do fancy work to prepare for exhibition a piece of material on which they had embroidered specimens of their skill in needlework. Even the child who was not especially gifted in the art of making fancy stitches was encouraged to put forth some effort, though she contributed nothing more than simple cross-stitches. Each piece prepared for the exhibition was called a "sampler." The stitches and the brilliant colors employed in the making of the samplers were of such good character that they have withstood the changes that time has made in needlework, and are today revived and applied to everything but samplers, the latter no longer being required of patient little fingers.

The design on the page today is evidence of the revival of the old-time stitchery. While only one-half of the design is given, the effect of the whole

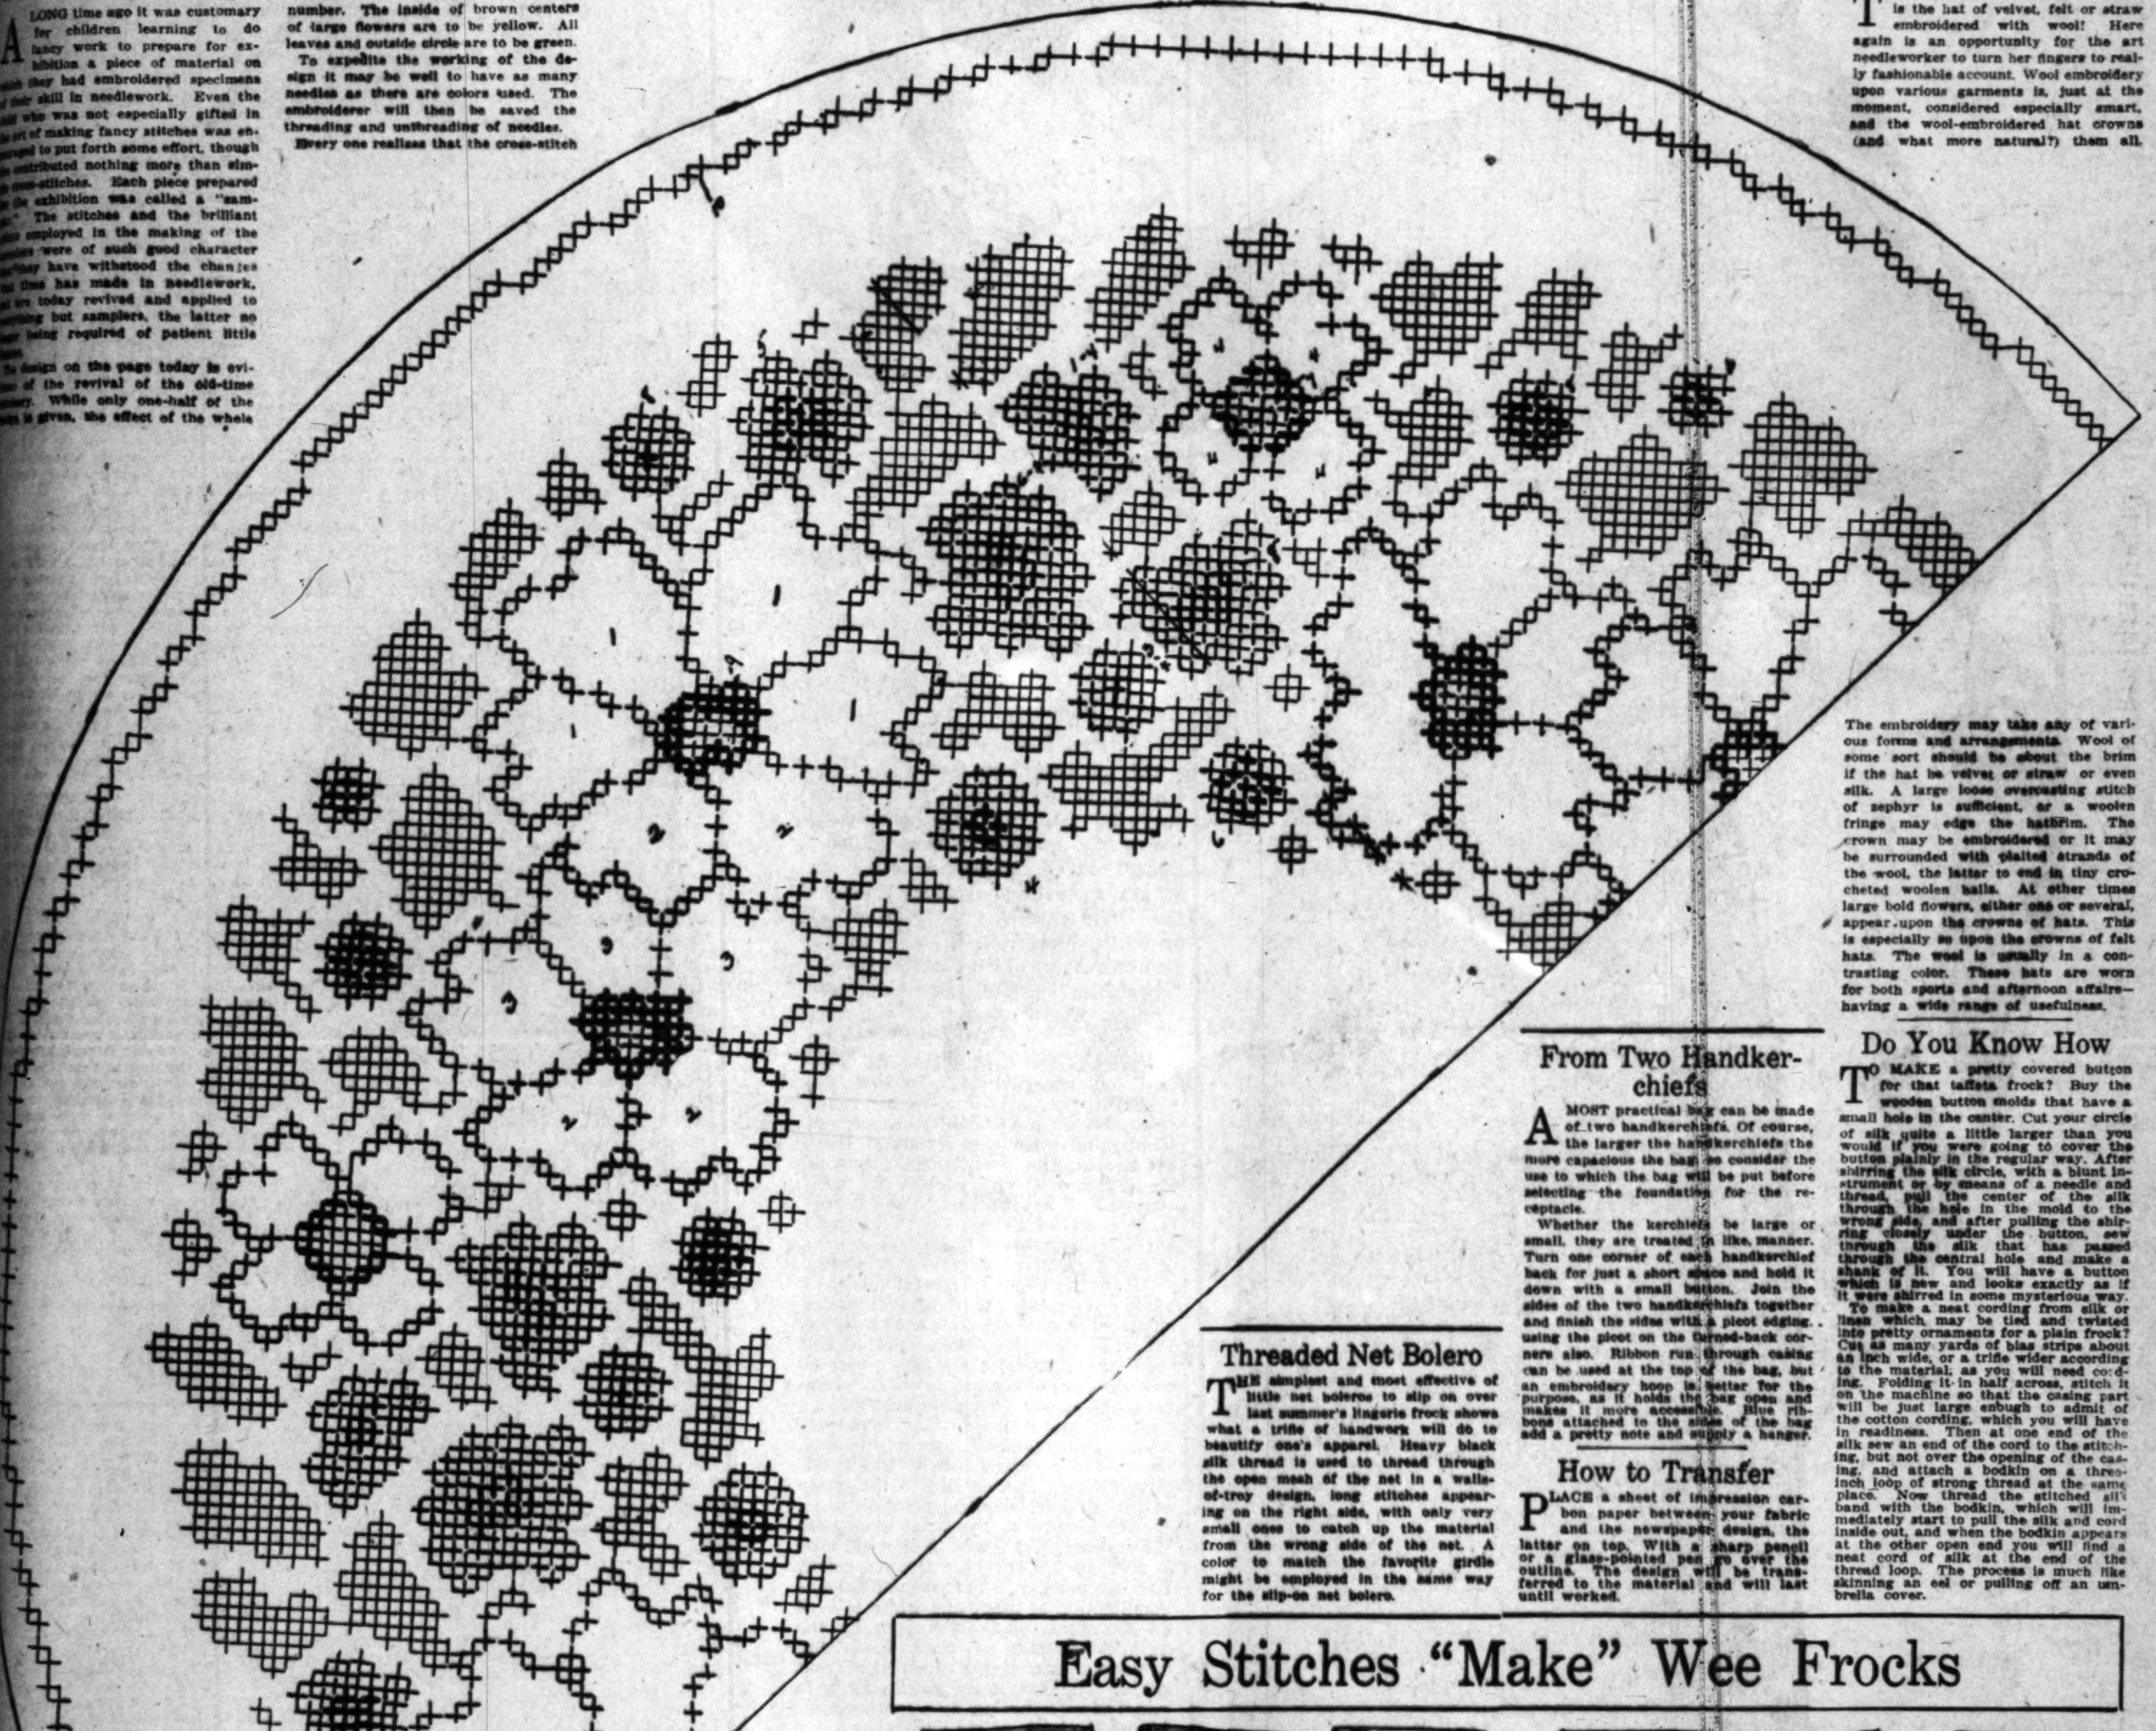


FOR THE INDUSTRIOUS NEEDLEWOMAN

BY ADELAIDE BYRD

CENTERPIECE in SAMPLER EFFECT

DESIGNED BY E.J. BUCKMAN



One-Half of Design

A LONG time ago it was customary for children learning to do fancy work to prepare for exhibition a piece of material on which they had embroidered specimens of their skill in needlework. Even the child who was not especially gifted in the art of making fancy stitches was encouraged to put forth some effort, though she contributed nothing more than simple cross-stitches. Each piece prepared for the exhibition was called a "sampler." The stitches and the brilliant colors employed in the making of the samplers were of such good character that they have withstood the changes that time has made in needlework, and are today revived and applied to everything but samplers, the latter no longer being required of patient little fingers.

The design on the page today is evidence of the revival of the old-time samplery. While only one-half of the design is given, the effect of the whole can be pictured without stretch of the imagination.

the design is stamped upon green or any other colored the effect will be much more if a combination of many col to work the design. And it to use bright colors to carry sampler effect.

be a little bit confusing to where to place the various I have arranged a key which considerably. By observing written on the design the be easily followed:

ck red.
rk red.
genta.
ft blue.
y blue.
llow.
ange.
olet.
brown.
dium shade of green.

k lines mean brown centers, here otherwise marked by number. The inside of brown centers of large flowers are to be yellow. All leaves and outside circle are to be green.

To expedite the working of the design it may be well to have as many needles as there are colors used. The embroiderer will then be saved the threading and unthreading of needles.

Every one realizes that the cross-stitch is about the simplest one to work, but unless the stitches all slant in the same direction the effect of the finished work will not be good.

For the benefit of the reader who has never done any cross-stitching it may be well to suggest that instead of tracing this design directly on the material a piece of canvas may be basted over the linen and the design followed with your eyes. The open mesh of the canvas will make it easier to form the little crosses. Do not let the needle pick up any threads of the canvas when going through the mesh, for when the work is completed each thread of the canvas is pulled away from beneath the cross-stitching.

The straight circle surrounding the circle of cross-stitches can be outlined in green, or if a touch of black is desired, this is a good place to introduce it. The straight line can be omitted entirely and the centerpiece finished with a piece of braid half an inch wide.

Eighteen inches is the diameter of the centerpiece, but by adding wide lace to the edge of the piece the width of the centerpiece will be increased many inches.

The joining of the lace is sometimes a difficult task for some persons, but by joining the strips of lace together and dividing the piece into quarters it can be pinned or basted to the edge of the centerpiece, which has also been divided in like manner.

Not only is the design appropriate for a centerpiece, but it will do admirably for a cushion, especially if a cloth having a basket weave is selected for the cushion and the design is worked in colored zephyr. Can't you picture what a pretty addition such a cushion would be to a room furnished in rag carpet and mahogany?

Spider Crochet

A MYRIAD of spider webs, glowing in all the colors of the rainbow, just as when the early morning sun strikes the colors from the dew! And it is done from one yarn variegated in hue like the yarns which the children use for the horse lines which they knit on the little red spools. The crochet itself is done in a very loose, weblike stitch, which so arranges itself to the different colors of the yarn as they come in turn that the effect is that of many different colored webs strung together with invisible threads. A lovely light dressing sacque of this spider crochet is mounted over a lining of softest gray silk, and the result is altogether charming. A white or pale pink parasol may be seen with the same spider webbing crocheted in silk covering its entire top.

Wool Embroidery on Hats

THE very smartest, duckiest of hats is the hat of velvet, felt or straw embroidered with wool! Here again is an opportunity for the art needleworker to turn her fingers to really fashionable account. Wool embroidery upon various garments is, just at the moment, considered especially smart, and the wool-embroidered hat crowns (and what more natural?) them all.

The embroidery may take any of various forms and arrangements. Wool of some sort should be about the brim if the hat be velvet or straw or even silk. A large loose overcasting stitch of zephyr is sufficient, or a woolen fringe may edge the hatbrim. The crown may be embroidered or it may be surrounded with plaited strands of the wool, the latter to end in tiny crocheted woolen balls. At other times large bold flowers, either one or several, appear upon the crowns of hats. This is especially so upon the crowns of felt hats. The wool is usually in a contrasting color. These hats are worn for both sports and afternoon affairs—having a wide range of usefulness.

Threaded Net Bolero

THE simplest and most effective of little net boleros to slip on over last summer's lingerie frock shows what a trifle of handwork will do to beautify one's apparel. Heavy black silk thread is used to thread through the open mesh of the net in a walls-of-troy design, long stitches appearing on the right side, with only very small ones to catch up the material from the wrong side of the net. A color to match the favorite girdle might be employed in the same way for the slip-on net bolero.

From Two Handkerchiefs

A MOST practical bag can be made of two handkerchiefs. Of course, the larger the handkerchiefs the more capacious the bag, so consider the use to which the bag will be put before selecting the foundation for the receptacle.

Whether the kerchiefs be large or small, they are treated in like manner. Turn one corner of each handkerchief back for just a short space and hold it down with a small button. Join the sides of the two handkerchiefs together and finish the sides with a picot edging, using the picot on the turned-back corners also. Ribbon run through casing can be used at the top of the bag, but an embroidery hoop is better for the purpose, as it holds the bag open and makes it more accessible. Blue ribbons attached to the sides of the bag add a pretty note and supply a hanger.

How to Transfer

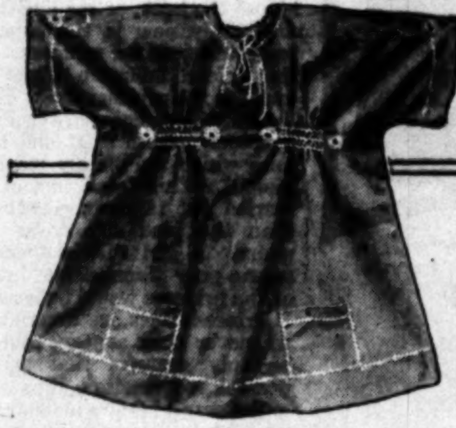
PLACE a sheet of impression carbon paper between your fabric and the newspaper design, the latter on top. With a sharp pencil or a glass-pointed pen go over the outline. The design will be transferred to the material and will last until worked.

Do You Know How

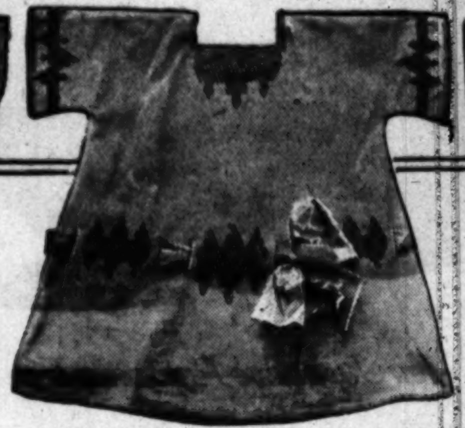
TO MAKE a pretty covered button for that taffeta frock? Buy the wooden button molds that have a small hole in the center. Cut your circle of silk quite a little larger than you would if you were going to cover the button plainly in the regular way. After shirring the silk circle, with a blunt instrument or by means of a needle and thread, pull the center of the silk through the hole in the mold to the wrong side, and after pulling the shirring closely under the button, sew through the silk that has passed through the central hole and make a shank of it. You will have a button which is new and looks exactly as if it were shirred in some mysterious way.

To make a neat cording from silk or linen which may be tied and twisted into pretty ornaments for a plain frock? Cut as many yards of bias strips about an inch wide, or a trifle wider according to the material, as you will need cording. Folding it in half across, stitch it on the machine so that the casing part will be just large enough to admit of the cotton cording, which you will have in readiness. Then at one end of the silk sew an end of the cord to the stitching, but not over the opening of the casing, and attach a bodkin on a three-inch loop of strong thread at the same place. Now thread the stitched silk band with the bodkin, which will immediately start to pull the silk and cord inside out, and when the bodkin appears at the other open end you will find a neat cord of silk at the end of the thread loop. The process is much like skinning an eel or pulling off an umbrella cover.

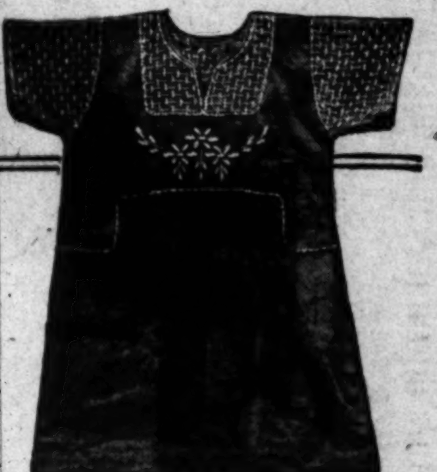
Easy Stitches "Make" Wee Frocks



Pocketed Frock for Playtime



Smocking May Be Simulated



Is it a Real Bolero?

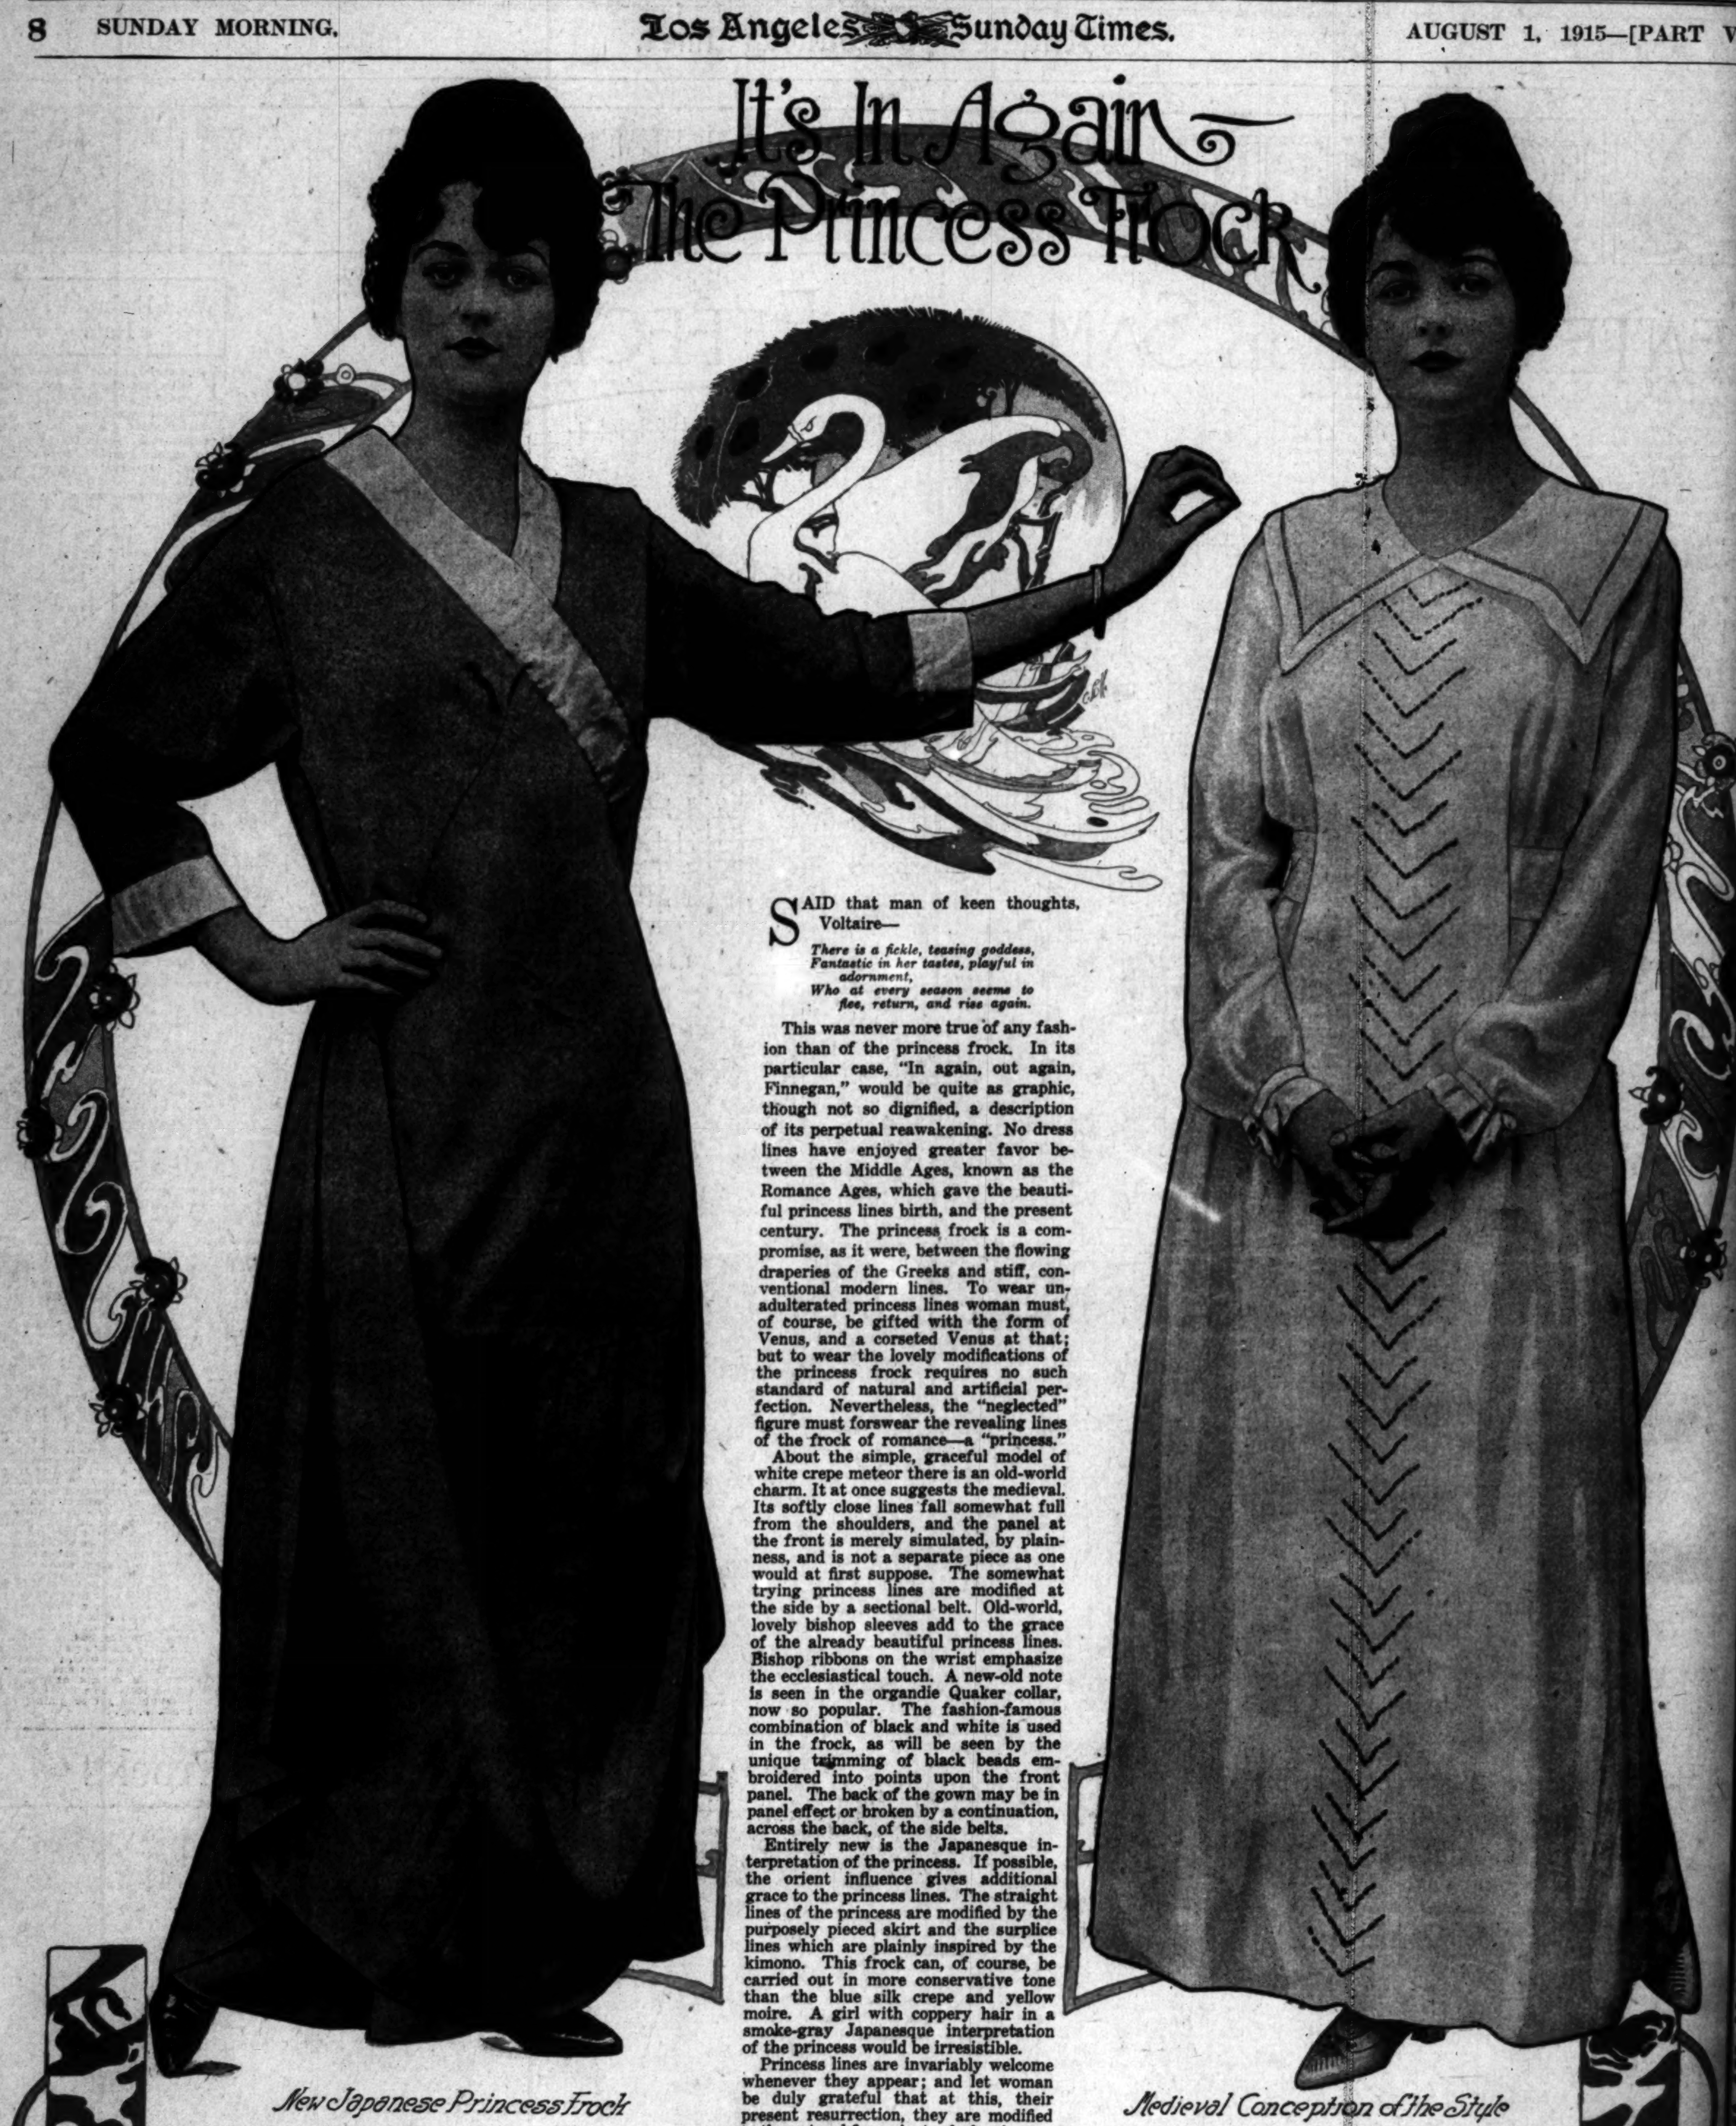
"IT SEEMS that I am always making new dresses for Dorothy," says a young mother, "just because I can't resist the temptation to experiment with the delightful little frocks that one sees in the shops and in the windows of the needlework stores. And, do you know, somehow or other, she never has too many, no matter how many I make, for I always cut them so simply that laundering is scarcely a consideration and I have no scruples about economizing on clean frocks." The situation in a nutshell! Mothers' fingers fairly itch to try new stitches, especially easy and attractive ones, on the tiny frocks which defy the ravages of the washtub and ironing board because of simplicity of line and absence of trimming.

When one is confronted by the pictures of diminutive frocks showing how effective simple stitchery may be when rightly placed, this appeal is stronger than ever, and there is no doubt that needles will be flying before you have actually finished reading this article. The frock of white rep—or linen may be substituted—shows groups of simulated smocking and a "blanket-stitch" edge. The idea of smocking is to confine fullness in an attractive way, thus making a trimming of a necessary part of the frock's construction. Here in the straight lines of the little kimono frock, where there is no gathering to be held in place, the ornamental part of the smocking idea is insisted upon and accomplished by crossed long stitches of heavy silk or mercerized cotton in light pink, and the crossing held down by short stitches of the same thread. The hems at neck, sleeves and skirt bottom are all machine-stitched and about half an inch deep. Over these is worked to hide the time-saving stitching a blanket-stitch or a wide buttonhole stitching of the pink silk or cotton. Six groups of eyelets are worked just below the natural "waist line," through which is run a soft sash of pink ribbon to be tied in a coquettish bow at the side. Crochet stitching might also be used to finish the hems in place of the buttonholing, if mother is more familiar with the crochet needle than the embroidery hoop.

On dark linen a veritable jacket effect is simulated by the clever placing of rows of simple stitches. This model is cut in one piece over the accepted kimono pattern. A lacy guimpe is suggested by the groups of single stitches in white cotton placed at angles in the manner of darning or weaving. The neck and outlining of these embroidered portions is finished with a couching which isn't couching at all, but a line of running stitches with several strands of the embroidery cotton, showing very long stitches of the cotton, and barely catching up the goods itself. The spray of daisies in solid work may be omitted entirely or repeated on the back, according to the inclination and time of the worker. An addition to the charm of this little frock may be accomplished by eyelets worked at either side, front and back, of the "couching," which simulates the bolero, so that when velvet ribbon is run through these four eyelets and shows at front and back the effect will be more that of a short jacket falling over a velvet sash which disappears at the sides entirely.

A little high-waisted shapeliness is suggested in the frock showing clever use of featherstitching. The fullness of the tan chambray is gathered from under the arms and held in place by three lines of white featherstitching, the effect being almost that of smocking, while the two lazy-daisies with their brown centers suggest buttons holding featherstitched bands in place. Brown scalloped cotton edging is stitched into sleeves and rounded neck, and white featherstitching edges all. Two eyelets are worked at either side of the slit which gives room for the frock to be slipped over the head, and is held in place by a silk cord. And, oh, Mother! don't forget the pockets! Such lovely, roomy, low, convenient pockets! What kind fairy of a designer had the happy inspiration of placing pockets just where a little girl's hands could reach them, instead of having to do gymnastic exercise to find pockets that always grow too high? They should be a welcome addition to every playtime frock.

It's In Again—The Princess Frock



New Japanese Princess Frock

Medieval Conception of the Style

SAID that man of keen thoughts, Voltaire—

> There is a fickle, teasing goddess,
> Fantastic in her tastes, playful in > adornment,
> Who at every season seems to > flee, return, and rise again.

This was never more true of any fashion than of the princess frock. In its particular case, "In again, out again, Finnegan," would be quite as graphic, though not so dignified, a description of its perpetual reawakening. No dress lines have enjoyed greater favor between the Middle Ages, known as the Romance Ages, which gave the beautiful princess lines birth, and the present century. The princess frock is a compromise, as it were, between the flowing draperies of the Greeks and stiff, conventional modern lines. To wear unadulterated princess lines woman must, of course, be gifted with the form of Venus, and a corseted Venus at that; but to wear the lovely modifications of the princess frock requires no such standard of natural and artificial perfection. Nevertheless, the "neglected" figure must forswear the revealing lines of the frock of romance—a "princess."

About the simple, graceful model of white crepe meteor there is an old-world charm. It at once suggests the medieval. Its softly close lines fall somewhat full from the shoulders, and the panel at the front is merely simulated, by plainness, and is not a separate piece as one would at first suppose. The somewhat trying princess lines are modified at the side by a sectional belt. Old-world, lovely bishop sleeves add to the grace of the already beautiful princess lines. Bishop ribbons on the wrist emphasize the ecclesiastical touch. A new-old note is seen in the organdie Quaker collar, now so popular. The fashion-famous combination of black and white is used in the frock, as will be seen by the unique trimming of black beads embroidered into points upon the front panel. The back of the gown may be in panel effect or broken by a continuation, across the back, of the side belts.

Entirely new is the Japanesque interpretation of the princess. If possible, the orient influence gives additional grace to the princess lines. The straight lines of the princess are modified by the purposely pieced skirt and the surplice lines which are plainly inspired by the kimono. This frock can, of course, be carried out in more conservative tone than the blue silk crepe and yellow moire. A girl with coppery hair in a smoke-gray Japanesque interpretation of the princess would be irresistible.

Princess lines are invariably welcome whenever they appear; and let woman be duly grateful that at this, their present resurrection, they are modified to the natural figure instead ofone's poor waist being forced into an hourglass mold for the occasion.
